Twenty-six years ago, May 11th, 1917, to be exact, John Lisco was introduced to Trenton and to the world (which to hear him say it, is practically the same thing.) Years passed, and he entered Trenton's fabled Cathedral High. While still in his freshmaan year ,he played both varsity football and baseball. Friends of Cathedral predicted great things for him and succeeding seasons bore out the prediction. With the addition of track he became a "three letter man" and captained football as a senior. Then graduation—and New Jersey Teachers' College welcomed freshman Lisco to its ivied portals. Taking up in athletics where he had left off, he starred on both the diamond and the gridiron through four years. In college he majored in Physical Education and decided when he was diplomatized to train embryonic athletes. So he took up the gym instructor's portfolio at Trenton Junior High coaching track and baseball, together with other duties.

Worked With Seabees

When the war broke out Lisco, decided to do something about it. So on April 18, 1942, 25 years later to the day that the U. S. entered the first war he enlisted as a member of the Naval Reserve. His first year in the service he was assigned to the Seabees at Camp Allen, Norfolk, Va. Transferred to Camp Perry at Williamsburg, Va., he was placed in charge of the CPOs there. When the V-12 program opened, the chief was assigned to Purdue, and then to Villanova. At present, he is not helping any of the varsity coaches, but baseball season is on the way, and we'll hear more about Chief Specialist John Lisco.

About Status of Pre-Med V-12's

The prevalence of rumors on the campus with reference to the future of pre-med students in the Navy V-12 Program prompted a Villanovan reporter to seek out the office of the President, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A. As usual, the reporter was very courteously received. The result of the interview is given below in question and answer form. Fr. Stanford emphasized that "his answers were not official, but that they are to be considered as a personal interpretation of current Navy Bulletins."

Q. Is it true that none of the V-12 trainees who are due to complete their pre-medical course at Villanova in February are to be designated for Medical School?

A. There has been no official announcement of any kind that would lead me to believe that this will be so. Of course, you must realize that a number of these men had already been accepted in Medical School before the present Navy procedure went into effect. They will, therefore, go on to Medical School.

Q. Why have so many prospective applicants for Medical School who are in the Navy Program been notified that their applications have not been accepted and that, therefore, they must transfer to the basic course?

A. Figures as to the number of V-12 trainees who will go on to Medical School are not yet available. I will be surprised, however, if the number is not relatively small. The reason for this may be stated briefly. The number of trainees prepared for Medical School is relatively large, the number of openings for Naval trainees is relatively small.

Q. Why is the number of V-12 pre-meds relatively large?

A. When the V-12 program was inaugurated and those who had enlisted in V-1 and V-7 were brought in under the program, they were allowed to continue with the course which they had been pursuing in college. This included a relatively large number of pre-medical students. In the parallel plan of the Army, it was different. Students were assigned first for basic military training and then to specialties and the pre-medical program was dropped for the time being because Medical Schools were already filled up with applicants until late in 1944. In the Navy, pre-medical students were allowed to continue and take their chance later on of being accepted for Medical School.

Q. What procedure is followed in assigning V-12 trainees to Medical School?

A. As I understand it, the procedure is as follows: All Naval students who had not been accepted into Medical Schools prior to August 1, 1943, have the opportunity to apply for Medical School in this way. Having completed three terms of college, they request academic transcripts and letters of recommendation from the college which are handed into the Commanding Officer and from thence are sent to regional committees comprised of deans of Medical Colleges in the respective Naval district. This committee reviews all the records as they come before them and passes judgment as to which ones are acceptable. Those acceptable are listed in the order of preference. The list of approved applicants from the respective Naval districts is then sent to the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington, where further adjustments are

Navy Physician Dies

The Alumni Office has just received word that Lieut. Comdr. John F. X. Jones, USNR, MC, Philadelphia physician and surgeon, died on January 7th, at the Coatesville United States Veterans Hospital where he had been a patient for two months. He was 62 years old and graduated from Villanova School of Science in the year 1897.

Brig. General Merritt A. Edson Visits Campus

Pvt. Edson's Father Tells V-12 Trainees of South Pacific Experiences

Villanova College, at present playing host to a V-12 unit of some 400 Navy and 200 Marine trainees, was honored last Monday by the presence of Brigadier General Merritt A. Edson, USMC, on the campus. In the vicinity on business, General Edson stopped primarily to visit his son, Pvt. Merritt Edson, Jr., who is stationed here.

However, Captain Robert L. Morgan, USMCR, Officer-in-Charge of the Marine detachment, invited him to give a short lecture on his experiences to the men. Recently promoted from the rank of colonel, General Edson saw much action during the invasion of several South Pacific islands.

GEN. MERRITT A. EDSON

The entire unit was assembled in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance Building to hear him speak. In opening his address he spoke to the trainees as potential officer-candidates, and emphasized the need for officers capable of maintaining rigid discipline among their men. He cited specific examples to prove his point.

General Edson then offered to answer any questions concerning warfare as fought in the South Pacific. The first query brought a long discussion as to the merits of naval artillery barrages on territory under atack, during which the General quipped, "The big guns accomplished just about what the Marines said they would," implying that the Navy's hopes for total destruction were far from realized. He pointed out that the Japs were "holed in" so well that it took almost a direct hit to knock out even a machine-gun emplacement.

He went on to answer questions concerning the difficulties of landing on beachheads and consolidating positions, emphasizing the various natural obstacles involved.

In conclusion, General Edson summed up his preliminary remarks by stressing the absolute need for capable leadership on the part of those officers who are in direct contact with the men: the second lieutenants and ensigns.

Technical Monthly Appears Tomorrow

The November '43 edition of the Villanova Engineer, the technical school's monthly publication, will be distributed tomorrow. It features articles by Arthur Roth, M. E. '44 and Anthony Mannino, E. E. '44. The articles deal with model ship basins and Motion picture sound reproduction.

Frederick J. Gerngross, AS, editor of the monthly, makes an appeal to all engineering students, both civilian and service, to take a greater interest in their magazine. Articles and stories dealing with engineering and related subjects are desperately needed if the publication is to continue. Any engineering students who feel that they can write technical articles are urged to get in contact with Gerngross or some other staff members.

Students Greet Belated Belle Air

Centennial Yearbook Encountered Many Unexpected Difficulties Before Ready For Distribution

Well, the Belle Air has finally arrived. Even though it is six months behind the date of publication in normal years, the consensus of student opinion is that the book was well worth waiting for.

The long delay in arrival of the edition was due primarily to the decision of the moderators to make this year's opus a Centennial Edition including a picture record of the two Centennial celebrations: the Mass of September 20th 1942, and the Convocation of May 3rd, 1943.

Ordinarily by May 3rd of any normal year the picture deadline is long past; but the editors were willing to hold up publication so that the Centennial could be presented as a unit. This decision was made in September '42.

Trouble, Trouble, Trouble

Then the school year of '42-'43 started and it was immediately apparent that there would be further trouble ahead, because the staff of student editors began to fall apart chiefly because of the demands of Uncle Sam. Student replacements for members who departed into the service were not forthcoming.

John Fitzgibbons, sophomore C&F student, worked with the book since its inception and he was the only student consistently to do so. Others have helped from time to time as asked, and the moderators want to take this occasion to thank them all and to make public acknowledgement of the generous help they gave.

But the great burden of editing and composing fell to the lot of Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., whose time was already very limited because of the increased burden of the accelerated scholastic program. All during the six weeks of Summer School the work on the book was at a complete standstill.

Skilled Craftsmen Scarce

To further delay things, the printing and engraving professions are now, like all other businesses, operating with skeleton personnel, and the expert work demanded by the standards of Belle Air publications had to be entrusted to only a few employees capable of doing perfectionist's work. Progress was therefore subnormal, which is not surprising in view of the great number of plates used, both the four colored ones and the ordinary black and white ones.

The moderators, and any one connected with the printing and engraving business know that there can be no quarrelling with the price asked for the book. The men estimate that if every plate used in this Centennial Edition had been made new for the publication the cost of getting it out would have been between $18,000 and $20,000.

Fr. Stanford Attends Cincinnati Meeting

The President of the College, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., played an important role in the merger of two National educational associations meeting at Cincinnati during the past week. He served as a member of the joint commitee which worked out the plans and effected the union after several months of negotiation.

The two groups which now have joined forces are the Association of American Colleges with a membership of almost 600 colleges and the National Conference of Church Related Colleges with a membership of 400 colleges.

Fr. Stanford, who has held the presidencies in both Associations in former years, was this year elected for a three-year term to membership on the new National Commission on Christian Education of the American Association of American Colleges. This Commission will carry on the special interests of the National Conference of Church Related Colleges within the framework of the Association of American Colleges.

"Haverfordians" To Play For Informal February Hop

Chairman Bansback Announces Impossibility of Securing Services of Shep Fields; Student Council Sets $2.20 As Price of Dance Tickets

The dance to be held on February 12 under the auspices of the Stdent Council will feature the music of "The Haverfordians," according to an announcement made recently by Herbert Bansbach, A.S., chairman of the organization. Shep Fields, who was previously mentioned as a possibility for the dance, could not be secured because he was engaged for the date before it was possible for the committee to complete its transactions.

The fact that the dance could only be scheduled for a Saturday evening, because of the V-12 curricula, presented one of the major obstacles, since practically all "big name" bands are booked for that day many months in advance.

Secured Best Band Possible

Bansbach, who is personally in charge of this dance, revealed that all available bands were carefully considered, and that the "Haverfordians," although they cannot be thought of as a "name" band, were thought most favorable in all respects. He said, "It is hoped that the student body will not take this change in bands as a let-down, but that they will give their fullest cooperation toward making the dance a success, because no effort was spared to secure the best band possible."

The band, which was secured by arrangement with the Orchestra Bureau in Philadelphia, is also scheduled to play for a dance at Chestnut Hill College on February 5. It has been playing in and around Philadelphia and the Main Line for the last twelve years, and is noted for its "sweet" style of music.

Completing Arrangements

The arrangements for the dance are rapidly nearing completion. The price of admission will be $2.20 per couple. Tickets will be placed on sale next week and may be purchased from the various Student Council representatives. Dancing will be from nine till one. The affair, contrary to rumors which have been circulating around the campus, will definitely be informal.

The Student Council wishes to express its sincere appreciation for the hearty cooperation that was given by the student body in making ticket deposits and regrets having to change the original plans.

Gov't. Education Programs Praised By Fr. Stanford

President Outlines Federal Plans; Foresees Far-Reaching Influence of Armed Forces Institute on Education

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova, was guest writer for "Everybody's Weekly," a syndicated feature of the Philadelphia Inquirer, this past Sunday.

Father Stanford's topic, "Place Sentinels at Education's Outposts," was concerned with an issue as paramount in the sphere of postwar domestic policy as in the question of dealing with the axis after hostilities in the international field.

Asks Father Stanford, relative to the continuation of the United States Office of Education's War Training Program: "Is not industry now in a position to carry on such training for itself? There is no incentive for industry to do so, as long as the Federal Government continues to do this at public expense.

Colleges Not "Taken Over"

"In no sense of the term," Father continues, "has there been a 'taking over' of our educational institutions by the Army and Navy. Their identity and independence have been maintained and there is now under way a most interesting experiment in cooperative management by educational institutions on the one hand, and by the Army and Navy, as agencies of the Government, on the other. The whole program is a tribute to our democratic way of life.

"There are, however, certain dangers in such a program for the future freedom of higher education." Here Father stresses the need for drawing the line between government interference in education during the present period of national crisis and "permanent assumption of Federal control in realism never intended by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

Institute Established

To provide needed additional educational advantages for returning service personnel in the post-war period the Armed Forces Institute has been established and is in operation with headquarters at Madison, Wisconsin. "The Institute," as Father continues, "attempts to encourage and to provide 'in service' education that will be of use in civilian life for members of the various armed forces now serving at home and abroad. . .It is, without a doubt, a most forward looking project. . .and needs to be understood and watched. . .so that it may not wander into paths alien to our philosophy of education under a democratic form of government."

Commenting objectively with an eye to warning: "lest the pattern set in wartime or other national emergencies become permanent policies," Father concluded:

"Federal appropriations for such a program should channel through the several states and the program should be decentralized in its administration. Furthermore, I would much prefer to have subsidies for both maintenance and tuition paid directly to the individuals for whom they are intended."

Interracial Council Discusses Justice

The Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council met Sunday afternoon at Rosemont College to discuss college plans for the promotion of interracial justice. Miss Kay McCarthy, president of the Council presided over the meeting which was attended by about forty people.

The framework for a definite plan of Catholic action to be advocated by students of Rosemont, LaSalle and Villanova was set up during the session. The chief policy to be followed this year will be the publishing of several articles on the Negro problem in college publications, namely "The Rambler," "The LaSalle Collegian, and "The Villanovan." The first of these articles will be written by a LaSalle student and will appear in the three papers mentioned as a syndicated feature in the near future. The next meeting of the C. I. I. C. is scheduled for March and will be held at LaSalle.

V-12 Inspection Due

Commander Scott G. Lamb, USN, Director of the Fourth Naval District Training Office, and his staff are scheduled to make a regular semesterly inspection of the school's V-12 unit in the near future. Although the exact date of the inspection is not known, it is believed that it will occur in the middle of the week, rather than on a week-end as before.

Discipline

LT. COLONEL JOHN S. LETCHER, USMC, who has served on many fronts where the marines are fighting, has written very forcibly about the lack of obedience and observance of the rules of military discipline that he had experienced among the troops:

"There is one secret weapon that we do not possess. It is not new. It is as old as the profession of arms, and it is the keystone of a successful military organization. It is called obedience, and is that which causes a soldier to obey orders. Our soldiers do not possess it.

"In the Marine Corps, wherever I have served, every jeep has had to be fitted with a shackle and a padlock, so that the gears can be locked whenever the vehicle is not in use.

"Again, in one organization in which I served, more than 1000 rounds of ammunition was fired at birds or beasts deliberately against orders to conserve ammunition and fire only at the enemy.

"The steps which we must take to remedy the situation are, first, correction by example; second, correction by education; third, correction by coercion. The first step, correction by example, is by far the most important. By that I mean that all officers and non-commissioned officers must be made to set an example of obedience to the enlisted man under their command. To do this the following principle must be recognized and adhered to from the top of our service to the bottom.

"This principle is that the higher the rank of a commissioned officer or enlisted man, the more strictly must he be held accountable for obedience to orders and for proper performance of duty. Because punishment for disobedience is in inverse ratio to the rank of the offenders, rank either among officers or enlisted men must never be allowed to carry with it the privilege of disregard for orders. The American fighting man will never respond to the kind of leadership in which the officer says, "Do as I say, not as I do."

"The second step, correction by education, means that we must educate our men to the importance of obeying orders. The youth of America has been assiduously taught that discipline and military obedience are un-American, so we have to combat an educated hostility to obedience. The result is that the American soldier must now be educated to obey orders.

"The third step of producing obedience to orders, coercion, is generally needed by only a small percentage of the men in a command; but if the coercion is not applied firmly and severely to recalicitrant personnel, the disobedience of these men grows rapidly to where it can be a very grave menace to the efficiency of an organization."

Colonel Letchers' words only reemphasize those of General Edson, who, during his address to Villanova's trainees last week, gave such an excellent picture of the need for the maintenance of proper discipline at the battlefronts. They should serve as a guide to all V-12'ers who are far-sighted enough to realize that some day they might be in a position where lives might depend on the example they have given their men, and the respect which their men have for them.

Meet the Boys

Bill, Joe, And Al Are Our Victims This Week, Of An Engineer's Life We Give You A Peek

By PVT. LARRY SCHMITT

THREE engineers, two chemical and one electrical, are this week's choice of the men to be biographied. The E.E., William Robert Hennessey, is distinguished by his unassuming manner and infectious smile.

Born in Buffalo, Bill received his secondary schooling at Central High, Scranton, since his family moved to that city when he was five years of age.

The influence of his twin brother, Edward, Jr., was the factor which caused him to matriculate at Villanova in September of 1940. During his sojourn at the Main Line institution, Bill has been quite active. As a sophomore, he was elected Treasurer of his class and acted as a member of the Orientation committee as well. Phi Kappa Pi received him as a member as did the A.I.E.E. Two years service in the Sanctuary Society are also a part of his record.

Prefers Sales Position

"I suppose I'll have to work a couple years for experience, before they make me General Sales Manager at General Electric," was Bill's casual way of indicating his preference for salesmanship when asked concerning his intentions for the future.

Sincerity and determination seem to epitomize this man's philosophy of life. That "stick-to-itiveness," so lacking in many of us, is not found absent in his makeup. This is reason enough to explain his social desirability and the large following of friends which he has.

"Villanova's Adolph Menjou," as many of his buddies call him because of his meticulous taste in clothes, is sure to do justice to the faith of his classmates and bring credit to his teachers and to his Alma Mater.

THE "middle-man" in today's trio of personality pictures is Joseph C. Donovan. A native of Philadelphia, Joe attended the Transfiguration School and St. Joseph's Prep. At St. Joseph's he was a sports writer on the "Chronicle," the school sheet.

In 1940, the Chemical Engineering school of Villanova welcomed Joe to its classes. Both in class and out, he has always been busy. As a member of Phi Kappa Pi, he was an active participant in the bowling league. Intramural football and baseball also were part of his crowded schedule.

His term as Secretary of Mu Alpha Theta in '42 was good enough to merit his election as president of the society the following year. Further evidence of his abilities is demonstrated by the fact that the

Camp To Campus

IN a letter from Captain Jim Hanley's father, Jim and Lieutenant Andy Chisock are believed to have been in the recent fighting at Cape Gloucester. Andy and Jim met at New River during their final training before embarking for the South Pacific. Both were assigned to the same regiment, but to different companies. They saw action at Guadalcanal where Andy received his commission on the field. Their outfit was relieved and they had been at Morington, Australia, until recently.

To answer those cries, "where's Frank 'Irish' Kennedy?" Here's his address—

Pfc. Frank J. Kennedy, USMC
Co. K, 3r Bn. 3rd Marines
c/o Fleet Postoffice
San Francisco, California

Not long ago a letter arrived from "Irish" stating that he was "somewhere" in the South Pacific area. He had lost contact with the Villanova gang until he read an article about one of last season's football games and noticed that one of his "boys" was still here as a Marine trainee.

Devine Undergoes Operation

V-12 casualty! Jim Devine, AS, underwent an appendectomy at Bryn Mawr Hospital last Thursday. Best wishes for a speedy recovery, Jim.

In England, in an anti-aircraft battalion, is Gene Hannon. Gene received his training at Ft. Eustis, Va. and was later sent to Camp Meade, Md. Also in England is Henry "Jigger" Donohue, former Wildcat ace hurler, famous for his no-hit, no-run game against Vermont. "Jigger" had his training at Camp Devins, Mass.

Joe Lord, at Maxwell Field, Alabama, expects to receive his commission within the next few weeks.

Corporal Bill Mowen, after completing a course in ordnance nomenclature at Quantico, Va., has been sent to Camp Elliott, California, where he is in an ordnance depot. Bill says that the hours are long but the work is interesting.

Seven at Northwestern

Billy Sullivan, Jim Harkins, Dick Ryan, John McCarthy, "Chick" Ciccarelli, Jim "Sweeney" Finnegan, and Jim Hoerst have seven more weeks to go as midshipmen at Northwestern. The boys said that Doc Hartman would be glad to hear that they brought their American government books along and study them diligently during their free time!

Corporal Bill Golden is in a headquarters company at the Army War College at Washington, D. C.

Austin Gavin, formerly of the Villanova V-12 unit is a member of the Chemical Research Department, in the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Maryland. Austin is there waiting to begin med school.

By TOM HITCHELL

THIS week we turn our attention to the Junior Prom of Immaculata College held last Saturday evening at the Warwick Hotel. . . with dancing from nine (??) till one to the soothing melodies of Nat Nisson, his violin and his orchestra, the affair offered an exceedingly enjoyable evening for all those present. The weather may not have been "made to order" but it would have taken a great deal more than a little snow to dampen the merriment of the occasion.

READY TO GO:

A drunk watching a revolving door saw a man walk in. Soon the revolving door revealed a pretty girl stepping out.

"It's a good trick," said the drunk, "but I still don't shee what that guy did with hish clothes."

Johnny Scola, living up to his reputation as Alumni's "Four Star Wolf," was seen howling over an attractive redhead between dances. Gene Weinert and Hugh Gillespie double dated for the night. Mike Cruise went B.T.O. by escorting lovely Sally Cousins, chairman of the Prom.

His right hand man, John Farrow, was seen cutting in now and then; lucky guy! George Hoberg resumed relations with Margie for the dance after a somewhat stagnant interlude. He and Dick McMullen ended up pushing a taxicab along Broad Street about 4 A. M.

START OUT SLOW:

There is an engineer on this campus who never takes a drink.
You gotta hand it to him!

Couldn't get Tom Schubert to go to the Prom. He's too much of a Chez Vous fan lately. Joe Keating, Jack McChesney, and Joe Morgan had a hard time getting him to go to Chez Vous and now practically have to drag him home . . . Will Gagen is keeping the name of his Immaculata date a secret; can't say that we blame him. Jim Bogan, Bob Beal, and George Haupt were just a few of the Alumni gobs that were making the most out of a swell night. "Handsome Butch" Marcolini, who by the way is our latest Rosemont "contact man," wasn't doing bad at the Warwick either. John Atkinson's sudden loss of hair didn't hinder his dynamic impression on Anita any. Quite a few of our ex-Villanovans showed up at the affair: Joe Rozum, Frank Donnelly, and John Bongiovanni among them. . .Hughie O'Rielly's magnetic personality will get him someplace yet. A snappy salute got him into conversation with a three-striper (and we don't mean seaman 1/C) on the steps of the Warwick.

Then there was the M.E. who took his nose apart to see what made it run!

IN THE KNOW:

We finally discovered that the "novel" which John Moore has been writing is just another twelve page edition to Ann way out in Minnesota. . .How come Al Kaval is getting all those special deliveries lately? . . . Jim "Silent Sinatra" Corrigan is still not over that hectic weekend in New York. . "Pump-gun" Dervin's mastery of handling the First Platoon was accomplished with his perfection of the "Reidy-Salute." "Field Marshall" Breitske has developed a real top sergeants' voice while in command of Company A. Steve Terry remains faithful to the Corps; a very cute private too! Few people know about Tony Bovenzi and the "one and only" Ann. .

OUR OWN SHOW:

Small Fry: Shine your shoes, boss?

Grouch: No.

Small Fry: Shine 'em so you sees your face in 'em?

Grouch: No!

Small Fry: Coward!

Too bad the Student Council had to change some of their plans for our dance on the twelfth. However, the fact that we won't have a "name" band should not affect the success of the affair. We've all been looking forward to this affair; why loose spirit at this point? We can still make it one of our best social events. Let's not give up the ship now!

Spec. 2/c Brunt Swim Instructor

Taking up where Chief Specialist Beck left off as swim instructor for Villanova's V-12 contingent is Cover S. Brunt, Specialist second class USNR. With worlds of experience behind him it did not take long to become accustomed to Villanova or to his new duties.

Born October 25th, 1913 in Baltimore, Seaman Brunt has filled his years with a by no means sedentary existence. Living in towns all over the eastern coast, Brunt is, despite his youth, a real cosmopolitan. Finally staying in one place for four consecutive years, he graduated from the South Side High School, of Newark, N. J.

Three Colleges

Looking around for a college he seemed to think that perhaps it would be best to absorb some first hand experience so he enrolled in the Engineering College of Columbia University. Seeing that time was slipping past he decided to register with Stevens Tech at Hoboken, New Jersey. In two years he figured he was getting in a rut, therefore he opened his next year at Panzer College (no connection with German divisions of the same name).

Main Liners Defeat F & M 41-36 In Saturday's Clash

Villanova's courtmen compiled a .500 average this past week as they dropped a 53-38 decision to the Sampson NTS last Tuesday at home and won a close 41-36 contest from the Franklin and Marshal Diplomats away on Saturday.

Jumping into a quick 3-0 lead in the Sailors' game on a basket and foul by Feeney the 'Cats seemed headed for another win. However, two quick field goals by George Milhaven, diminutive guard from St. John's, put the Sailors out in front to stay. With the flashy Milhaven and Milt Mirsky leading the attack, the Sampson quintet managed to maintain a slight lead until the last few minutes when they spurted to increase their lead to 53-38 at the gun.

Break Streak

Leading the Villanovans to their fifth triumph of the year in the F&M game where Don Osterman and Frank Frascella, with 11 and 10 points respectively. Leading throughout most of the game due to their ability to control the backboards, the Wildcats saw their edge melt away under the fierce rally in the fourth period, and the Diplomats tie the score at 30-30. Jack Ramsey quickly came to the rescue and dropped a shot after which the Villanovans were never headed. This win broke a two game losing streak for the Blue and White and gave them their fifth victory in seven starts.

VISITS CAMPUS

Ensign Alex Bell, football star under "Clipper" Smith at Villanova in 1938 returned to the campus for a visit this past week-end. He previously had been stationed at Newport, R. I. as a chief specialist, and recently received his commission in the Naval Reserve. He is at present stationed at Princeton University for his Indoctrination course.

Ensign Bell was a running mate of All-American Johnny Wysocki at end as well as being a teammate of Jordon Olivar, present Wildcat coach.

Phils, Jr. C. E.'s Pass Mendel (3) In PKP League

The Phillies and the Junior Civils both moved up a notch and pushed the Mendel Third Deckers out of first place by virtue of 4-0 victories over the Fourth Deck Mendel and the Swabs while the Third Deckers were losing a 3-1 match to the Holy Rollers on Saturday in the Phi Kap Bowling League.

Bonafiglia High Three

In other contests on the same day the Soph Day-Hops lost a 3-1 match while the Senior M.E.'s split with Ship's Co. High man for the day was Joe McFarland of the Senior Mechanicals who rolled a 200 game followed closely by John Correale with a 198. John Bonafiglia finished in this single game high as third with a 190 while a newcomer on the Ship's Company, Al Kasulin, rolled a 185.

High man for the three game total was Bonafiglia again. He finished the day with a 542 score while close behind was Bob Formaini whose 536 kept the Mendel Third Deckers in the running. Between these two and the next there is a gap of almost 50 points, and holding down third place for the week is Buzz Powers who scored a 491.

'Cats Play Hosts to F & M, Bucknell In Coming Games

Hoeveler, Former Temple Ace, Bison Star; F. & M. to Meet Villanova Tonight in Second of Home and Home Games

Climbing back on the win wagon with last Saturday's victory over Franklin & Marshall, the Wildcat quintet will try to make it three straight when it meets the Diplomats from Lancaster at home tonight and the Thundering Herd from Bucknell at Lewisburg Saturday, January 22. The Bucknell five has an excellent record to date of four wins as against one loss, that being a close decision to the high-riding Muhlenberg squad. With wins over such highly rated teams as Penn State, Albright, which team incidentally beat Brigham Young University, and Lehigh, the Bisons should prove to be one of the harder teams of the season.

V-12 Team

The Bisons will put on the floor service team composed of members of the V-12 Naval Training program which are stationed on the campus. Starting at the forward positions will be 6'3 "Frank Burns, a member of last year's Bison varsity and Bill Hoveler, 6' marine transfer from Temple Universitty. Opening at guards will be one of their scoring machines Jim Seel, Washington and Jefferson's contribution to the Bucknell training unit. Partner to Seel will be Vic Mastriani smooth ball handler from Siena College (N. Y.). Rounding out the team at the pivot spot is Paul Goodwin who controls the backboerd with all of his 6'5."

Renew Rivalry

This game with Bucknell will be the first of a home and home series with the Bison and marks the renewal of a court series between the two schools which had terminated in 1938. Both teams have somewhat parallel records, Bucknell having the better of the two having played only five games as compared with Wildcat's seven. It wil be a tight game with the Bison ruling a slight favorite.

Alumni, Marines Win Second Half Opening Games

Alumni Hall, first-half pacesetters of the Intramural Basketball League opened the second half of the league with a rousing 30-24 win over an improved Mendel club and a 28-15 triumph over the Residents in Alumni Hall gym last week.

Marines' Warning

The Marines, a close second to the "Medicine Men" in the first half gave warning that they are not to be overlooked as they took the measure of Fedigan, 36-22, and the Day-Hops, 36-26. In the other games of the week, the Day-Hops beat the Residents 29-21, and Fedigan eked out a close 30-29 victory over Mendel.

Teamwork Too Much

The Alumni win over Mendel was one which the Pre-Meds had to go all out to achieve. The Mendelites under their new coach, Fr. Deehan, were off to get a crack at the second half crown, and thus to go into the ensuing playoffs, but the better teamwork of Alumni was just too much for the Engineers. Holding onto a slim 3 or 4 point lead for most of the game, Alumni, led by Joe Walters with 5 field goals prevailed in the end by 6 points.

The Marines paced by Ray Kaspar, and Al Kasulin, two six-footers, had too much height for both the Day-Hops and Fedigan, and by controlling the backboards prevented the other teams from outscoring them. Outstanding for Fedigan was Ed. Kolnaski who with Kasulin was tied for scoring honors with six baskets apiece.

In the all-civilian game of the week, the Day-Hops registered a 29-21 victory at the expense of the Residents. Scoring 26 points equally between them, Newt Ward and Jack Welsh were the big guns in the Day-Hops' surge. Holding a 21-12 half time edge, the Commuters coasted in for their first win in the second half of the league.

Lt. Harry Mazzei Dies In Service

Lt. Harry Mazzei, '40, one of the best quarterbacks ever to wear the Villanova Blue and White. died last Wednesday at Woodland Brooke General Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas from cerebral hemorrhage.

Lt. Mazzei was stationed at Camp Hulen and wrote to his family last December 27, that his eyes were bloodshot and that he was in the base hospital there.

Columnist

Known to his teammates here at Villanova as "the Baby Tank," this stocky fellow was the blocking back on the greatest football team in Villanova's history, and in addition, he was an outfielder on the varsity baseball team.

Besides being active in sports on the Main Line Campus, Lt. Mazzei took an interest in other extra-curricular activities. He was a member of the Villanovan sports staff for four years and in his last year wrote the "Here and There" column. He was on the Junior Prom and Senior Dinner Dance Committees, as well as being a member of the North Jersey and Varsity Clubs.

Commissioned

After being graduated from Villanova with a B. S. degree in Education, Lt. Mazzei played two years of pro ball with the Long Island Indians of the American Football League before his enlistment.

In August 1942 he joined the Army and was stationed at Camp Deven, Mass. He received his commission at Officer Candidate Division, Antiaircraft School, Camp Davis, N. C.

Q. Will a Naval trainee who is not accepted for admission into Medical Schools now have an opportunity to be admitted after he is discharged from the Navy?

A. I would think so, provided his academic record is acceptable to a Medical School. There is even the possibility that he may receive government subsidy as a veteran of the armed forced under the program now before Congress.

He became a member of the gym, soccer, swimming, and tennis teams and switched his course to a B. S. in Physical Ed. On being graduated he decided to do his bit for sports from the bench, taking up school teaching at Gwynn Falls school in Baltimore. Here was a job with which even he couldn't get bored. It was his duty to guide the entire sport program of the school including coaching of every varsity team.

In August, 1943, however, Brunt brought his many talents to the bluejackets, joining the Navy in Maryland. He finished boot training at Newport, R. I. and became a member of the Physical Instructor school at the well-known base, Bainbridge. Immediately on graduation he was assigned to Villanova and he will guard over the mighty waters of the field house until the Navy finds other work for his extensive talents.

"To me," one his friends said concerning Joe, "the striking thing about Joe is his thoughtfulness. He doesn't say much, but when he does, it means something."

The Naval service's appeal has caused Joe to take steps to enter Midshipmen's school soon after his graduation.

PHILADELPHIA is "home" to Albert Durante. Born here in 1922, he attended Landreth Public School and South Philadelphia High as preparation for his entrance to Villanova.

Chemical engineering struck Al's fancy. His talents in this field did not go unrecognized, as is proven by the fact that he was allowed to assist Doctor Haenisch for two years, and is now called "Harry's right-hand man" by his class-mates due to his able assistance to Prof. Blumenfeld.

In his Junior year, Al was made an executive member of the American Chemical Society. Along with intramural basketball, the Math Club held his interest as an underclassman. Since his freshman year, Al has been a member of Phi Kappa Phi. He was made a member of the honorary engineering society, Chi Epsilon Mu, and has also been active in the A.I.Ch. E.

Even at this late date, Al is uncertain about his decision between the Navy and Chemistry, but his faithful service as a member of the circulation staff of the Villanovan speaks well for his ability to make good in whichever he chooses.

About Separation From V-12 Plan

So much interest was manifested in the report of our question-and-answer interview with the President of the College, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., which was published in our last issue, that we ventured to approach him again. gram for scholastic reasons is recommended?

Q. How is the decision reached when separation from the V-12 program for scholastic reason is recommended?

A. At the end of each term, the records of all students who have one or more failures are presented to a faculty committee for consideration. This committee carefully studies the student's previous record, his grade on the Navy test, comments from his instructors and faculty advisor and then makes a recommendation to the Commanding Officer.

Q. What is meant by probation?

A. When the faculty committee feels that a student has made a diligent effort to master a subject but has failed because of lack of background or for other causes, a recommendation is made that the student be permitted to continue in the program on "scholastic probation." The additional recommendation of a change of curriculum may accompany probation. The records of students who are on probation will be carefully followed during the ensuing term and a recommendation for continuance or separation is made by the committee shortly after midterm.

Q. How is the Faculty Committee made up?

A. The 9 members of the committee are drawn from both the administration and faculty. Eight different departments of instruction are represented.

Q. Is one failure sufficient for a recommendation for separation?

A. No definite answer can be given to this question since so many factors are involved. The subject, credit hours, past and present grades, attitude of the student, are all part of the picture. It can be stated that failure in such subjects as Physics, Mathematics, etc. will usually make it impossible for the student complete his assigned curriculum.

Q. Why is not a "satisfactory list" as well as a "scholastic deficiency" list posted?

A. There is a manpower shortage. The list of "deficient" students is smaller than the list of "satisfactory" students and, therefore, takes much less time to prepare Anything like an "honor" list is not possible week by week. It is possible to compute such a list and publish it only at the end of a term.

Q. How much time is a student expected to put on study each evening?

A. The average student should expect to devote at least 3 hours a day or 18 hours a week to study.

Q. Should a student devote all his study time to Mathematics and Physics?

A. Certainly not! However, these subjects may require a proportionately heavy share of study time.

Q. Will the fact hat a student in the V-12 program has changed his curriculum, affect his opportunities in the Navy?

A. To the extent that he has not the requisite preparation for certain types of service, the answer is yes. Otherwise, the answer is no.

Q. Are the students in the V-12 program eligible to obtain a college degree?

A. Some students in the V-12 program will undoubtedly receive college degrees. However, no general rule can be laid down. Each case will have to be considered separately and on its own merits.

Q. May a student find out his scores on the Navy Achievement Test?

A. Yes, this information is available at Father McQuade's office.

Senior A.I.E.E. Members Attend Winter Meeting

Students in Villanova Branch Leave Thursday For New York; Technical Sessions Planned

Senior members of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will have an opportunity to "paint the great white way red" when they travel up to New York City, Thursday, Jan. 27, to attend the Winter Technical Meeting of the society.

The meeting will begin on Monday, Jan. 24, and will continue throughout the week until Saturday evening, Jan. 29. However the Villanova group, because of the heavy scholastic work entailed under the present war time conditions, will only be able to attend for two days. At a recent meeting of the senior members, Thursday and Friday were selected as the most favorable days.

Members of the Institute from all parts of the nation will gather for meetings at the Engineering Societies Building, 33 West 39th. St. There will be, in all, thirty technical sessions and conferences held during the week. On Wed. morning, at a general session, the Edison Medal will be presented to Dr. Vannear Bush "for his contribution to the advancement of electrical engineering."

A catalog of some 45,000 United States patents and patent applications in the mechanical, electrical, and chemical fields, formerly enemy-owned or enemy-controlled, will be on exhibit during the meeting.

All seniors in the electrical engineering school, as well as a number of juniors, will attend the convention. V-12 trainees are to be given a 48-hour leave for the occasion. The group will be headed by Harry S. Bueche, Professor of Electrical Engineering. Emil Amelotti, Associate Professor of Mathematics, will also attend.

Attends Meeting

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade. O.S.A., assistant to the president, attended the annual meeting of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania at Harrisburg, Pa., on Fri., Jan. 21. The following day he went to Washington, D. C., to be present at a meeting of representatives of Colleges in the states bordering on the Atlantic which are under the Navy's College Training Program.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

A list of the new mail regulations published by Sergeant G. A. Maharg, Mail Clerk of the college's V-12 unit, follows:

Effective last Monday, the post office of this unit, located in Room 107, Mendel Hall, will be open from 1115 to 1325 only. At no other time will mail be issued.

During those hours the trainees will call for their own mail and packages. They can not be picked up by anyone but the addressee.

Men should acquaint their correspondents with their room and hall, as properly addressed mail will save time and labor in handling.

Men calling for mail at the post office will immediately give mail clerks their name, hall, and room number as soon as they reach the desk.

Anyone interested in obtaining the "Combat Conditioning Manual," a copy of which is hung on the Mendel bulletin board, should order it from Corporal Charles McGrath.

Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, has announced that the election of officers for the coming school year will be held in the near future.

Indications were given that preparations for the organization's annual presentation of the Carl T. Humphrey Memorial Award will soon be started.

Because of current conditions, it is doubtful that there will be a 1944 issue of the college yearbook, the "Belle Aire". The reason, made known by the faculty moderators of the publication, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., is that under the V-12 program no provisions is made for the service students to pay an activity fee each semester. In previous years the annual depended almost entirely on a percentage of this fee for its capital.

Commander Scott G. Lamb and his staff will visit the campus today on their regular semesterly inspection tour of V-12 training stations. Comdr. Lamb is Director of Training of the Fourth Naval District.

"Punchy" Writer Daydreams—But With a Purpose

Reminisces on "Good Old Summertime"; Kids Himself Into Expecting Easier Semesters in Future

It has suddenly dawned upon this department that the "new" members of Villanova's V-12 unit (the ones who came in about three months ago) know nothing about life at Villanova as it was last summer—in those good old days when we went to class in our "skivvies" and 10 o'clock Sunday night just saw us at the peak of a merry evening. This article is an attempt to inform them about . . . Oh, who are we kidding? Everybody knows it's just to fill up space.

Looking back, we feel that the chief difference was that then we were constantly, comfortably, conveniently, and cozily warm. Because of the tepid (and often torrid) atmosphere there was no need to pull a knife on your "roomie" when you wanted him to go to the Pie Shop; a good kick usually sufficed.

However, the clear, warm summer weather had other and even more pleasant effects. For instance, there was that slightly different early-morning curriculum. In those days 6:10 each morning saw us rather briefly attired in shorts and "sneaks" calmly and cheerfully mustering on the drillfield. How we loved it!—going out for a quick half hour of pushups and laps around the already sun-lit field. It used to do our hearts good to see the boys kneeling by their beds at night and softly saying, "Please let it be a nice day tomorrow—please don't let it rain in the morning—please!!!"

But some things existed that were so horrible that it terrifies us to recall them even at this late date. For instance, there was no restriction whatever against "hitting the sack" again after morning muster. Tsk Tsk!

Although its disadvantages will probably more than offset its good points, we like to look ahead with the thought that summertime (which, after all, isn't too far off) will bring with it some nice, comfortable living and a "snap" semester. Oh, allright! Go ahead and say what you're thinking. A fella can't even dream around here. .

Daily Ceremony Lends Military Atmosphere To College Life

Change Expected In Drafting Of College Students

Engineering and Pre-Med Quotas Limited; Students Graduating by July 1 Not Affected

Revisions in existing regulations concerning the deferment of civilian students from the draft, which are now underway, are expected to result in considerable restrictions of the number of students being deferred.

The new rules will not affect students already in a deferred status who are scheduled to graduate before July 1, 1944.

Students studying in fields in which there are critical shortages of manpower will be deferred only within the limited quota which will be assigned to each educational institution. The individual institutions will be obligated to select the best students, and request deferment for them.

Men in pre-medical courses will be entitled to deferments only if they have bona-fide acceptances to recognized medical colleges.

In the future, all such student deferments will clear through the National Roster of Scientific and Professional Personnel, which must substantiate and endorse the colleges' request to the local draft board.

These revision will go into effect on February 15. Additional information will be published as it becomes available.

Dance Tickets Now On Sale; Get Yours From Hall Delegates

Tickets for the dance to be held on February 12 under the auspices of the Student Council were placed on sale during the past week. The price is $2.20 per couple, and the tickets may be obtained from the following men: Austin Hall—Pvts. John Killelea, Sabino Carrone, and Joseph Dervin; Mendel Hall — Apprentice Seamen Frank O'Connor, Frank Quinn, and Carton Conway; Fedigan Hall—Apprentice Seamen Herbert Bansbach, Bernard Borshke, and Hugh Burns; Alumni Hall—Apprentice Seamen Harold Peifer and George Haupt; also from John Fitzgibbons, Joseph Foley, and Bernard Cassidy.

The dance will feature the music of the "Haverfordians," who were secured through the Philadelphia Orchestra Agency by the Council's Band Committee headed by Pvt. Sabino Carrone and Carton Conway, A.S.

In Armed Guard

Lt. (jg) Walter T. Dwyer, Jr., USNR., who was a student at Villanova College at the time he entered the Navy on October 25, 1941, has just completed his training and is at the Naval Armed Guard Center, New Orleans, La., where he is awaiting further assignment.

He will be responsible for the safety of his vessel against enemy submarine, air, or surface attack.

Lt. Dwyer, who lives at Chestnut Hill, previously served in the office of Naval Intelligence as an enlisted man, and was an officer for a year and a half before being assigned to the armed guard.

President Appointed

The President of Villanova College, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., has recently accepted appointments on two newly formed committees. He has been named a member of the national committee concerned with the feeding of starving children in Europe. Besides this assignment, Fr. Stanford has been appointed a member of the Thomas Jefferson Commemorative Committee coordinated with the Thomas Jefferson Bicentennial Commission created under an act of Congress

About Separation From V-12 Plan

So much interest was manifested in the report of our question-and-answer interview with the President of the College, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., which was published in our last issue, that we ventured to approach him again. gram for scholastic reasons is recommended?

Q. How is the decision reached when separation from the V-12 program for scholastic reason is recommended?

A. At the end of each term, the records of all students who have one or more failures are presented to a faculty committee for consideration. This committee carefully studies the student's previous record, his grade on the Navy test, comments from his instructors and faculty advisor and then makes a recommendation to the Commanding Officer.

Q. What is meant by probation?

A. When the faculty committee feels that a student has made a diligent effort to master a subject but has failed because of lack of background or for other causes, a recommendation is made that the student be permitted to continue in the program on "scholastic probation." The additional recommendation of a change of curriculum may accompany probation. The records of students who are on probation will be carefully followed during the ensuing term and a recommendation for continuance or separation is made by the committee shortly after midterm.

Q. How is the Faculty Committee made up?

A. The 9 members of the committee are drawn from both the administration and faculty. Eight different departments of instruction are represented.

Q. Is one failure sufficient for a recommendation for separation?

A. No definite answer can be given to this question since so many factors are involved. The subject, credit hours, past and present grades, attitude of the student, are all part of the picture. It can be stated that failure in such subjects as Physics, Mathematics, etc. will usually make it impossible for the student complete his assigned curriculum.

Q. Why is not a "satisfactory list" as well as a "scholastic deficiency" list posted?

A. There is a manpower shortage. The list of "deficient" students is smaller than the list of "satisfactory" students and, therefore, takes much less time to prepare Anything like an "honor" list is not possible week by week. It is possible to compute such a list and publish it only at the end of a term.

Q. How much time is a student expected to put on study each evening?

A. The average student should expect to devote at least 3 hours a day or 18 hours a week to study.

Q. Should a student devote all his study time to Mathematics and Physics?

A. Certainly not! However, these subjects may require a proportionately heavy share of study time.

Q. Will the fact hat a student in the V-12 program has changed his curriculum, affect his opportunities in the Navy?

A. To the extent that he has not the requisite preparation for certain types of service, the answer is yes. Otherwise, the answer is no.

Q. Are the students in the V-12 program eligible to obtain a college degree?

A. Some students in the V-12 program will undoubtedly receive college degrees. However, no general rule can be laid down. Each case will have to be considered separately and on its own merits.

Q. May a student find out his scores on the Navy Achievement Test?

A. Yes, this information is available at Father McQuade's office.

Senior A.I.E.E. Members Attend Winter Meeting

Students in Villanova Branch Leave Thursday For New York; Technical Sessions Planned

Senior members of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will have an opportunity to "paint the great white way red" when they travel up to New York City, Thursday, Jan. 27, to attend the Winter Technical Meeting of the society.

The meeting will begin on Monday, Jan. 24, and will continue throughout the week until Saturday evening, Jan. 29. However the Villanova group, because of the heavy scholastic work entailed under the present war time conditions, will only be able to attend for two days. At a recent meeting of the senior members, Thursday and Friday were selected as the most favorable days.

Members of the Institute from all parts of the nation will gather for meetings at the Engineering Societies Building, 33 West 39th. St. There will be, in all, thirty technical sessions and conferences held during the week. On Wed. morning, at a general session, the Edison Medal will be presented to Dr. Vannear Bush "for his contribution to the advancement of electrical engineering."

A catalog of some 45,000 United States patents and patent applications in the mechanical, electrical, and chemical fields, formerly enemy-owned or enemy-controlled, will be on exhibit during the meeting.

All seniors in the electrical engineering school, as well as a number of juniors, will attend the convention. V-12 trainees are to be given a 48-hour leave for the occasion. The group will be headed by Harry S. Bueche, Professor of Electrical Engineering. Emil Amelotti Associate Professor of Mathematics, will also attend.

Attends Meeting

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., assistant to the president, attended the annual meeting of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania at Harrisburg, Pa., on Fri., Jan. 21. The following day he went to Washington, D. C., to be present at a meeting of representatives of Colleges in the states bordering on the Atlantic which are under the Navy's College Training Program.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

A list of the new mail regulations published by Sergeant G. A. Maharg, Mail Clerk of the college's V-12 unit, follows:

Effective last Monday, the post office of this unit, located in Room 107, Mendel Hall, will be open from 1115 to 1325 only. At no other time will mail be issued.

During those hours the trainees will call for their own mail and packages. They can not be picked up by anyone but the addressee.

Men should acquaint their correspondents with their room and hall, as properly addressed mail will save time and labor in handling.

Men calling for mail at the post office will immediately give mail clerks their name, hall, and room number as soon as they reach the desk.

Anyone interested in obtaining the "Combat Conditioning Manual," a copy of which is hung on the Mendel bulletin board, should order it from Corporal Charles McGrath.

Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, has announced that the election of officers for the coming school year will be held in the near future.

Indications were given that preparations for the organization's annual presentation of the Carl T. Humphrey Memorial Award will soon be started.

Because of current conditions, it is doubtful that there will be a 1944 issue of the college yearbook, the "Belle Aire". The reason, made known by the faculty moderators of the publication, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., is that under the V-12 program no provisions is made for the service students to pay an activity fee each semester. In previous years the annual depended almost entirely on a percentage of this fee for its capital.

Commander Scott G. Lamb and his staff will visit the campus today on their regular semesterly inspection tour of V-12 training stations. Comdr. Lamb is Director of Training of the Fourth Naval District.

"Punchy" Writer Daydreams—But With a Purpose

It has suddenly dawned upon this department that the "new" members of Villanova's V-12 unit (the ones who came in about three months ago) know nothing about life at Villanova as it was last summer—in those good old days when we went to class in our "skivvies' and 10 o'clock Sunday night just saw us at the peak of a merry evening. This article is an attempt to inform them about . . . Oh, who are we kidding? Everybody knows it's just to fill up space.

Looking back, we feel that the chief difference was that then we were constantly, comfortably, conveniently, and cozily warm. Because of the tepid (and often torrid) atmosphere there was no need to pull a knife on your "roomie" when you wanted him to go to the Pie Shop; a good kick usually sufficed.

However, the clear, warm summer weather had other and even more pleasant effects. For instance, there was that slightly different early-morning curriculum. In those days 6:10 each morning saw us rather briefly attired in shorts and "sneaks" calmly and cheerfully mustering on the drillfield. How we loved it!—going out for a quick half hour of pushups and laps around the already sun-lit field. It used to do our hearts good to see the boys kneeling by their beds at night and softly saying, "Please let it be a nice day tomorrow—please don't let it rain in the morning—please!!!"

But some things existed that were so horrible that it terrifies us to recall them even at this late date. For instance, there was no restriction whatever against "hitting the sack" again after morning muster. Tsk Tsk!

Although its disadvantages will probably more than offset its good points, we like to look ahead with the thought that summertime (which, after all, isn't too far off) will bring with it some nice, comfortable living and a "snap" semester. Oh, allright! Go ahead and say what you're thinking. A fella can't even dream around here.

Change Expected In Drafting Of College Students

Engineering and Pre-Med Quotas Limited; Students Graduating by July 1 Not Affected

Revisions in existing regulations concerning the deferment of civilian students from the draft, which are now underway, are expected to result in considerable restrictions of the number of students being deferred.

The new rules will not affect students already in a deferred status who are scheduled to graduate before July 1, 1944.

Students studying in fields in which there are critical shortages of manpower will be deferred only within the limited quota which will be assigned to each educational institution. The individual institutions will be obligated to select the best students, and request deferment for them.

Men in pre-medical courses will be entitled to deferments only if they have bona-fide acceptances to recognized medical colleges.

In the future, all such student deferments will clear through the National Roster of Scientific and Professional Personnel, which must substantiate and endorse the colleges' request to the local draft board.

These revision will go into effect on February 15. Additional information will be published as it becomes available.

Dance Tickets Now On Sale; Get Yours From Hall Delegates

Tickets for the dance to be held on February 12 under the auspices of the Student Council were placed on sale during the past week. The price is $2.20 per couple, and the tickets may be obtained from the following men: Austin Hall—Pvts. John Killelea, Sabino Carrone, and Joseph Dervin; Mendel Hall — Apprentice Seamen Frank O'Connor, Frank Quinn, and Carton Conway; Fedigan Hall—Apprentice Seamen Herbert Bansbach, Bernard Borshke, and Hugh Burns; Alumni Hall—Apprentice Seamen Harold Peifer and George Haupt; also from John Fitzgibbons, Joseph Foley, and Bernard Cassidy.

The dance will feature the music of the "Haverfordians," who were secured through the Philadelphia Orchestra Agency by the Council's Band Committee headed by Pvt. Sabino Carrone and Carton Conway, A.S.

In Armed Guard

Lt. (jg) Walter T. Dwyer, Jr., USNR., who was a student at Villanova College at the time he entered the Navy on October 25, 1941, has just completed his training and is at the Naval Armed Guard Center, New Orleans, La., where he is awaiting further assignment.

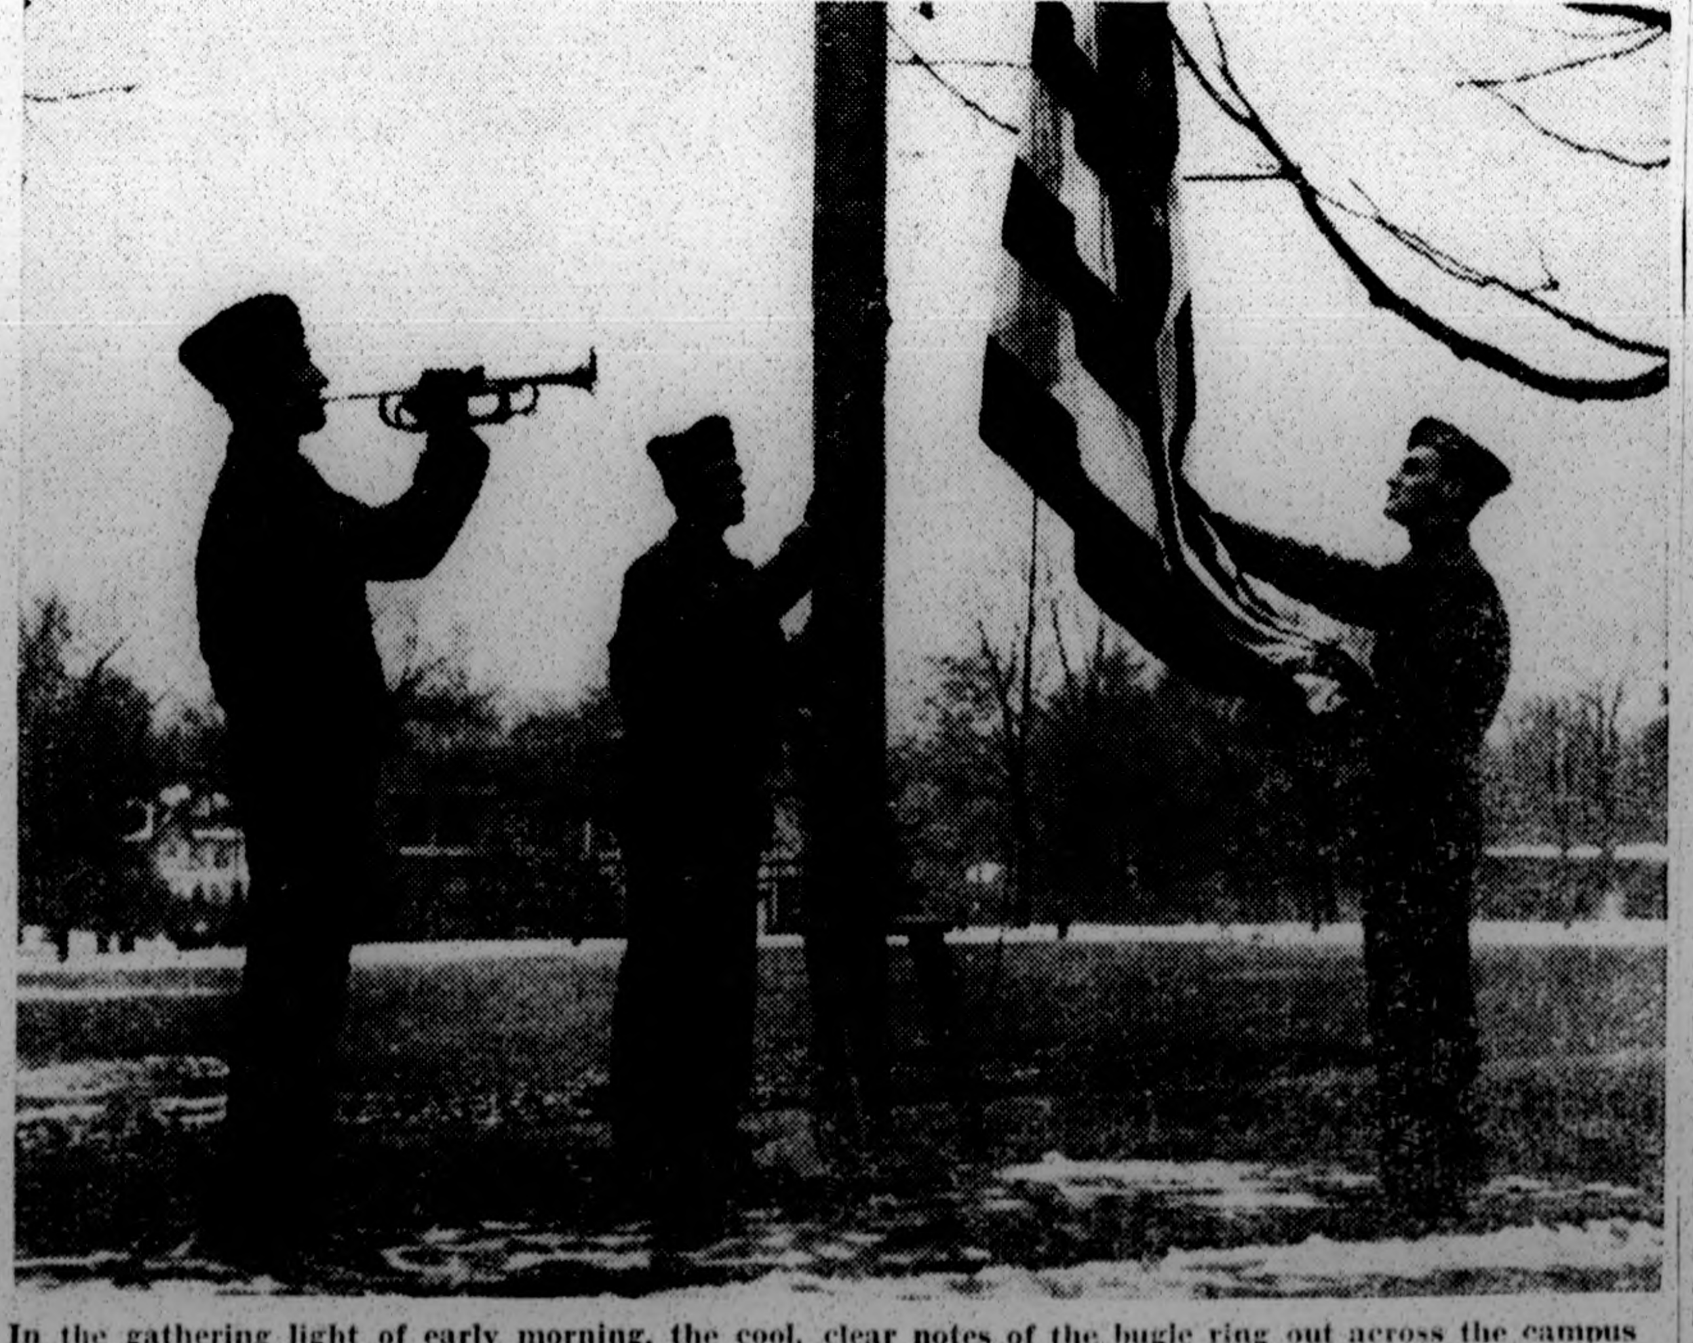
He will be responsible for the safety of his vessel against enemy submarine, air, or surface attack.

Lt. Dwyer, who lives at Chestnut Hill, previously served in the office of Naval Intelligence as an enlisted man, and was an officer for a year and a half before being assigned to the armed guard.

President Appointed

The President of Villanova College, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., has recently accepted appointments on two newly formed committees. He has been named a member of the national committee concerned with the feeding of starving children in Europe. Besides this assignment, Fr. Stanford has been appointed a member of the Thomas Jefferson Commemorative Committee coordinated with the Thomas Jefferson Bicentennial Commission created under an act of Congress

Daily Ceremony Lends Military Atmosphere To College Life



In the gathering light of early morning, the cool, clear notes of the bugle ring out across the campus in "Salute to the Colors." This scene is typical of the ceremonies of raising and lowering the flag which occur in front of Mendel Hall each day at 0800 and sunset. Left to right, the V-12 trainees are Pvts. Foreman, O'Connell and Murphy, of the Marine Corps Reserve.

The Trials of Tappa Kegga

THERE were two major fraternities at Pimento University: the old, traditional Tappa Kegga, and the newly-formed, ultra-sophisticated Gamma Iota. Unlike most fraternities, these two had reasons for being. Tappa Kegga, formed at the first by the founders of the school, existed to uphold and add to the honor and tradition of dear, old Pimento U., to foster interest in all the activities of the University, to provide a home and league of mutual benefit for those students who wished to live in peaceful quarters, pursue the work of their choice without having to suffer infringements on their individual liberties.

Gamma Iota, it is sad to say, had not such lofty ideals, possessed not such fitting and charitable desires. Gamma Iota was a shrewd and calculating organization with a selfish and evil purpose. Its end was the abolition and incorporation of all other fraternities, Tappa Kegga in particular, and to attain this end would employ any plan, be it ever so base.

Gamma Iota was cold and scheming; it plotted every move with the finest of care and made few mistakes in judgment. It realized the futility of openly offending or antagonizing the established and respected Tappa Kegga. Oh, but these Gamma Iotas were smooth! They were as polished and capable as they were radical. They would do anything to weaken the spirit and prestige of the T. K. But they could not work in the open, could not show the slightest of distate for the older group.

So it happened that they befriended the members of the Tappa, seemingly with the fullness of heart and in the best of faith, but actually, spreading dissention and dissatisfaction, slyly, cautiously, among the happy recipients of their flattery. They went so far as to have a half dozen of their sharpest hustlers join the hated rival-fraternity. Once within, instead of noticing and appreciating the fine qualities and high motives of the frat of frats, they carried on their lying, tale-bearing, back-biting, and slandering with an increased fervor and zeal. They added force to their arguments by disseminating them through the medium of a small mimeographed sheet which they collectively published. And still the remark that was seemingly strong was an innuendo, the apparent shout, a vile whisper.

They whispered to the wealthy student, "The peasant element among us grows jealous of your position and will sieze the first opportunity to rob you of your riches. Join the left and all these will be your servants."

They whispered to the less fortunate frat-brother, "What right has the wealthy student to his money? Join the left, and all these will I give you."

They whispered to the Jewish member, "Beware the Protestants and Catholics. Join the left and all these cannot harm you."

They whispered to the Catholic member, "Beware the Jews and Protestants. Join the left and all these cannot harm you."

They whispered to the Protestant member, "Beware the Catholics and Jews. Join the left and all these cannot harm you."

They whispered to the Negro, "The Whites and Orientals cry out against you. Join the left and all these will be silenced."

They whispered to the Oriental, "The Negroes and Whites cry out against you. Join the left and all these will be silenced."

They whispered to the White, "The Orientals and Negroes cry out against you. Join the left and all these will be silenced."

So it went. They whispered to the theologian evil things about artists and scientists, to the scientist libels concerning artists and theologians, to the artist foul lies about the theologians and scientists.

This is the reason that everything is changed at Tappa Kegga House. Before, one walked into the lounge and his ear joyed at the laughter and joking, his eye was feasted on the perfect examples of brotherly-love. But now . . . well . . . the several members of Tappa Kegga sit straight in their chairs, backs against the wall, in a silent circle about the room, casting suspicious glances at each other, and fearing the strangest things in the universe. The simplest incident becomes an omen of evil; their minds remember horrid crimes that have never been committed.

Someone suggested that a table be placed in the exact center of the room, from which none could draw away, or none surge to the fore, where explanations could be sought and given, and understandings arrived at; but, of course, the radicals of Gamma Iota shouted the measure down.

Right now these demons are out in the hallway, bursting in satanic glee. Let us hope they choke.

Sab Is Having His Face Washed With Snow By His Two Marine Pals, Wally And Joe

By PVT. LARRY SCHMITT

LAST WEEK'S snow offered a suitable backdrop for a camera study of three of Austin Hall's Senior residents. Antics of this sort are not all strange to these three likeable Marines.

Walter Brannigan is a native of Brockton, Mass. Graduating from Boston College High in 1939, he matriculated at Boston University. Just one year was spent at this institution, after which Villanova opened its doors to him.

Wally entered the Commerce and Finance school, here, and continued in it until his call to the colors on July first of last year. Back at his Alma Mater in khaki, he continued his interest in sports that he had shown as a civilian.

Manager of both the varsity baseball and football teams, Wally has always been a loyal fan and booster of Villanova teams. Last summer found him an active participant in intramural baseball.

Fellows remember him as a civilian primarily for his original practical jokes. Wally's keen sense of humor, which is by no means clothed under the Forest Green, enabled him to cause many a buddy confusion, distress, and droll indignation. His "New England" localisms are slightly reserved, but Wally's retorts to his friends' jibes are always packed with punch.

College sports are not the terminus of his ambitions. With definite inclinations toward hockey, Wally, some day, hopes to be connected with the pro stem of the sport. Music interests him too, being partial to the present-day Negro style.

"Plans for the future," said Wally, "consists in first, graduating, second, ending the war, and third, becoming at least part owner of the Boston Braves and winning a pen-

PLAINFIELD, New Jersey is the home town of Sabino P. Carrone. Receiving his elementary and secondary schooling in that city, he spent one semester at Rutgers, after which he matriculated at Centenary College.

At Centenary Sab pursued diverse activities with the same zeal that characterizes all of his actions. While at the southern college he was active as bass fiddler in several musical organizations. In last year's Centenary production of "Kollege Kapers," the school's varsity show, his many talents were brought to the fore. Along with having an integral part of the writing of the script, Sab acted as master of ceremonies and played in the band.

Plans Journalistic Career

In preparation for his intended life's work, he enrolled in the School of Journalism there. His ability and his love of writing are evidenced by the fact that he once wrote a 1500 word theme for each of 32 classmates while in high school.

"The rub came," says Sab, "when all of the themes that I wrote for other fellows were graded A or B while mine got a C."

It was not long after his transfer to Villanova that he gained the friendship of many here. Proof that Sab has "something on the ball' lies in the fact that he is one of the two fellows who were elected to the student council both last semester and this current one.

With the hope that the offer that he once received for a position on the New York Herald-Tribune will renew itself after the war, Sabino, with his copy of Stephen Vincent Benet's works open on his desk, consoles himself with the optimistic attitude," there is always

The sailor stared wide-eyed at a fuzzy object which he had just fished out of his clam chowder.

"What's the trouble?" asked a gentleman in Navy-blue, striding up to the table; his hands behind his back.

"There was a piece of tennis ball in my soup," the sailor said wildly. "Look, it says right there — SPAULDING BROS."

Just by way of finishing up . . .

"All right," agreed one of the visitors. "Orders are orders. What's the reason?"

"I'm supposed to do it every time anything is reported missing."

"What's missing today?" asked the Congressman, opening his coat and raising his arms.

"I believe it's a ten-ton truck, sir," answered the sentry.

Boxing Matches Feature TKO's, Draws, Comedies

Breen-Lattanza Fight, Best on Program, Ends in Draw; Tom O'Connel Acts as MC and General Laugh-Getter

The annual Boxing Night was held last Friday, Jan. 18, in the Field house with 19 bouts, both wrestling and boxing being included in the three hour program.

Starting the procession of bruised eyeballs and bloody snoots, Williard Adams battled the strong hearted Jack Murphy to a close win. Other winners of the night were Frank J. Kemph, who gained a decision over Herb "Hamburger" Lamb; "Windy" Barret who TKOed Ed Murphy; John Smith who won over "Battling' Tommy Baxter; Ralph Newman over John Weldin; Bill Maynes who decisioned William Carroll; Al Sondheimer who outhit Pete Verna; Walt Breen who beat Harold Reynolds; John Atkinson who outslugged "Jack" McManus; and "Big Ben" Paradee who decisioned Joe McGovern.

Come Back

One of the outstanding fights of the night was the Bill Lamb-George Burkhart draw. Both of these boys threw them from way back, each trying to outslug the other. Bill Lamb started the sit down session when he slammed one on Burkhart's jaw to momentarily place him in an angular position and take the first round. Revenge was Burkhart's however, as he came back strong in the second round to score a knockdown and tie up the fight. Both fought valiantly in the third and the match ended as a draw. "Ed" Finneran, after fighting a losing battle for the first two rounds came out in the third frame with a flurry of leather and a stout heart to battle "Red' Brahm to a draw. Other draws of the night occurred in the Solis-Stookey and Breen-Lattanza settos.

No Quarter

The latter, the wind-up of the night, has been adjudged by many as the best seen on the campus in a long time. The battle was fought furiously raging to and fro, with leather flying all the way. No quarter was asked and none given as both threw everything but the water bottles. The shouts and cheers of the crowd had the field house shaking at its foundations.

In the only genuine wrestling bout of the evening, Jim Hobbs outgrappled Jim Skane. Hobbs weighed in at 180 lbs. and Skane at 175.

Coleman Vs. Siano

Contributing to the humorous side of the entertainment were Greg D'Angelo and "Joltin' " Jack Donahue from Nort' Joisey City, who put on a riotous exhibition which promises to bring jealous threats from many pro wrestlers.

Donning the leather mittens to get their laughs, Alex "Don't-knock-me-out,—I'm doing all right by myself" Coleman and John "Slugged" Siano sweated out three uproarious rounds. Credited with the best performance along these lines was the O'Connel-Nealon farce in which Tom "Microphone" O'Connell fought Bill "Volunteer" Nealon in a duel to the finish. Furnishing the in-between-bout entertainment was Gene Konopka and his red hot jive merchants.

Handlers

The guest of the evening, Sgt. Tommy Loughran, USMC, refereed three of the bouts. The third man for the rest of the evening was basketball mentor Al Severance. Ably handling the fighters was the old master, Lou Lopez, aided by his fellow Austinite Bill Russel, and taking care of the time was Johnny Dzitko, with Tom O'Connell handling the mike.

Feeney Fouled While Shooting

Don Osterman's form is unmistakable in the background as he comes in for a follow-up, while Jim Begley (guarding Osterman) of F. & M. watches the shot. Further back are Andy Fontana of Villanova, and Bill McKernan (39) of F. & M. and in the left foreground is Jack Peterson (46) of the Diplomats, who is also driving in for the follow-up.

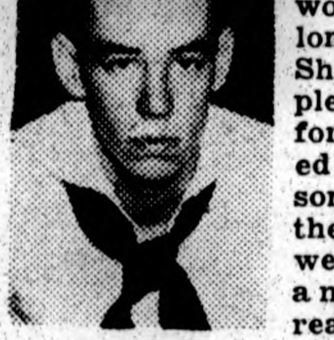
THIS week the spotlight points with pride to the officers (?) and men of the Villanova basketball team for their fine showing against F & M and Bucknell, both of which games they won.

The fact alone that they won two games would be reason enough for being complimented. However, what really caught our eye was the teamwork in the Diplomat game Showing a complete reversal of form as compared to the Sampson contest of the previous week, the Blue and Whiter really poured it on the hapless Diplomats to the tune of 48-29.



We weren't lucky enough to get to Bucknell on Saturday night, but from all reports the quintet must have displayed some brand of team-work to come from behind by 20 points midway in the third quarter and win the game in the second extra period. This not only required coordination but in addition plenty of fight. This is the first time that we have ever heard of a game where the one five was losing by the equivalent of 10 field goals and then rallied to take the game from under the noses of the opposition.

Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics has this to say about the game. "It was the greatest rally that I have seen since coming to Villanova." This is indeed some compliment to the court five for Fr. McGuire has seen quite a few games since he's been here.

So keep up the good work, fellows; and let's see you make it five straight this week against Ft. Dix and Rider and then keep on going until you have completed the rest of the season without sustaining another defeat. This may seem a little improbable but it certainly isn't impossible, so let's go.

Main Liners Down Bucknell, 43-42; In Overtime Clash On Foul Shot

F. & M. Subdued 48-29 by Rampaging 'Cats; Frascella Bags 17 Against Diplomats and 14 at Lewisburg to Lead Weekly Scoring Parade

By DON COLLINS

The Blue and White of Villanova is now sporting a three-game win streak as a result of the second win over the Diplomats of F. & M. by a 48-29 score, and a thriling second extra period triumph over the Bucknell Bison, 43-42.

In Tuesday's contest against the Diplomats, the Blue and White led by Frank Frascella with 17 points on 8 field goals and a foul, poured it on hot and heavy, and widened the gap of the previous score.

Starting to roll immediately, Villanova dropped in 5 points before F & M could warm up and were never headed. Bill Feeney, former Georgetown ace, was held to four points by the spectacular guarding of Hal Mackin. Outstanding in the scoring department for the visitors was Jack Zeitler, V-12 transfer, who bagged 12 points.

On Saturday, attempting to foster a new win streak, the ball club journeyed to Lewisburg where it met Bucknell University in one of the most exciting games of many a season. Midway in the third quarter, the Blue and White were on the doleful end of 35 to 16 count. Then it happened. Feeney and Frascella alternated in wracking up 20 straight points bringing the house down and the lead to Villanova. But the Bisons didn't leave the floor as might be assumed; they came charging back, leading the Wildcats with 15 seconds to go, 40-38. Frascella, determined not to waste Villanova's gallant comeback, stole the ball from Mastriani, and crashed through to tie score at the gun.

In the first extra period Feeney's

Phillies Lead PKP Bowling

The Phillies still lead the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League by one point as they split a 2-2 match with the Ship's Company while Mendel Third Deckers moved up to second place as a result of a 3-1 win over the Junior Civils who dropped third on Saturday at the 69th St. Bowling Center.

While the Phils are still out in front of the pack, most of the honors this week go to the Mendel Third Deckers, who broke the record for a team high three with 2372. The former mark was 2341, set by the Senior Mechanicals earlier this year. Big gun in this splurge of pins was Joe Heim, who rolled a 194 single, and a 484 total for the day.

Team Victory

Behind these leaders, the Senior Chems overtook the Senior Mechs in the standings by virtue of a 4-0 triumph. That this was a team victory can be seen by the fact that not one of the Chems rolled a high enough score to gain a berth in the first eleven high singles, while the Mechanicals had McFarland in ninth place with a 175 and J. Correale up there in fourth with a 188.

The Holy Rollers and Mendel Fourth Deck maintained their relative positions as they split 2-2.

In the other match of the day, the Soph Day-Hops, led by De-

Wildcat Quintet To Oppose Rider, Ft. Dix This Week

Severancemen Are Out to Lengthen Three-Game Win Streak Against Roughriders and Soldiers; Both Contests Scheduled For Home

Riding high on the crest of a newly formed three game winning streak, the Wildcat quintet will attempt to maintain this record by taking on two more teams this week in engagements on successive Tuesday and Saturday nights, against Rider College of Trenton and Fort Dix.

First of the teams to be met will be the service five from New Jersey which will tangle with the Blue and White here at the field house on Tuesday night. Playing the Wildcats for the second consecutive year, the Fort Dix soldiers are well remembered by Villanova fans. It was against a team from this camp that last year's 'Cat team opened the basketball season.

All-Americans

In one of the highest scoring games of the year, the Wildcat team prevailed over a quintet composed of college and professional all-stars. Outstanding among these was the coach and high scoring pivot-man, Seton Hall's great All-American Ed Sadowski who teamed up with two other All-Americans Meyer Bloom of Temple and Bob Hassmuller of Fordham, and almost upset the Wildcat quintet.

This year's Fort Dix five will miss some of these players but they still possess material equally potent. Although they have had only a mediocre season, dropping a few games to other service fives as Fort Benning, which team beat them last week by a 43-31 score, the team is still to be reckoned as a powerful foe.

Jinx Team

On the following Saturday night, Al Severance's charges will tangle with the Roughriders from Rider College, Trenton, N. J. Playing here at the field house gym, the Main Liners will be out to keep a clean slate against Rider court squads. Having met already in a five game series, the Rider-men as yet have to score a victory over Villanova basketeers. Named a jinx team for their ability to knock off streak holding teams with an inspired mediocre squad, they have always pushed Villanova teams to the limit.

Only Veteran

Under the tutelage of Tom Leyden a former University of Mississippi star, the Roughriders feature an attack that combines accurate and timely passing with good floorwork. Leading the Purple and Gold five in scoring and having the distinction of being the only returning veteran from last year's varsity is Don Pugliese. Standout at his forward spot for his canny floorwork and ability to rack up points, Pugliese, who tossed in nineteen points against the Coast Guard last week, will pair off with an equally fine player—Jim Kunsch, to fill the forward wall. Number one man at the pivot position will be Len Kelner who is noted for his ability at follow-ups and controlling the backboard. At guards will be two brilliant defensive notes, Bill Tanzone and Ed Zach. This will be the 1944 edition of Coach Leyden's wire to trip a Villanova court squad and ruin a budding win streak.

'CAT IN CONTROVERSY

Jim Magee, substitute center here for two years under 'Clipper' Smith is one of the players over which a controversy is being raised in the Southeastern Football Conference. Georgia is being fined $500 for using Magee and four other men during the past season who have since been declared ineligible.

Magee played for the Wildcats in 1940 and '41 coming to them from West Catholic in Philadelphia where he was a teammate of Jim Harkins, Villanova tackle on the '43 squad.

Medics Take First Place By Victory Over Marines

By GENE WEINERT, A.S.

Two hard-fought victories by the fast-moving Medicos of Alumni Hall, one over the Marines, 41-37 on Monday night, and the other over the Day Hops, 27-24 on Thursday, gave them undisputed possession of first place in the Intramural Basketball League.

In other games of the week Mendel won its first of the second half when the Residents were defeated, 26-17, and then lost to the Marines in a tough 34-24 contest. The Day-Hops beat Fedigan, 34 to 29 on Monday, and Fedigan did an about face Thursday to take a hard fought tilt from the Residents, 40-37.

In the Alumni-Marine contest a fighting Leatherneck team jumped to a dominating 9-0 lead in the first eight minutes. Ed Powers finally broke the ice for Alumni with a sharp cut followed by a lay-up shot good for two points. Joe Walters and Powers then teamed up to cut down the Marine lead to a 20-16 count at half-time.

Big Al Kasulin started the second half with a snappy break after the tap off to put the Marines ahead by six points.

However, the "Medicine Men" came right back, and led by their captain, Joe Walters, and Ed Harvey, pecked away at the slim lead of the Marines until with but a few minutes to go the score was tied at 35-35. Here it was that Powers came into the limelight again as he dropped a lay-up to send Alumni into the lead to stay. The Pre-Meds then added what proved to be the winning field goals on longs by Harvey and Boyle.

High man for the leathernecks was burly Ray Kaspar who had 6 field goals and a foul for 13 points The team play of Alumni is shown in the scoring column where it is seen that Walters, Powers, and Harvey collected 12, 11, and 10 points respectively.

Harvey Again

Facing Alumni for the first time this half on Thursday the Day Hops rushed the Sailors continually, and held the lead until the last three minutes when the snappy finish boys took the game from under the Day-Hops' noses. Again, it was Ed Harvey, Alumni's long shot specialist, who broke the 24-all deadlock with a throw from midcourt. Harvey added four more points before the final horn sounded to aid the stretch win from the tie to the standing 27-24 score.

Mendel Improved

Mendel Hall, improving with every game, drubbed the Residents' on Monday night 26-17. Never threatened, Mendel took the lead early in the game. Dick Madigan of the winners was high scorer for the game with 10 points. Joe Costello likewise of the Engineers, racked up 7 points and by means of aggressive floor play, worried the Residents throughout the game.

On Thursday the fifth place Mendel Hall team threw a scare into the Marines holding an 11-8 half-time lead and by constantly dominatingating the backboards despite their lack of height.

However, Fred Goetz who combined brilliant floor work with five field goals in the second half to pull the Marines ten points ahead of the Engineers for a final 34-24 score. Goetz was high scorer for both teams with ten points.

Simpson Hits 16

Ollie Anderson proved to be the big headache for the Day-Hops as he paced Fedigan Hall in a brilliant comeback from a trailing half-time score of 24-9. The Day-Hops, held to a mere five field goals in the second canto, finally won out 34-29. Anderson's stellar work under both baskets was outstanding since the Day-Hops usually dominate these important spots. Freshman Paul Simpson nullified Andy's 12 points by bagging 7 field goals and 2 fouls to show the way to the victorious civilians.

Fedigan revived on Thursday to nose out the Residents 40-37. Ed Kolnaski's defense and pivot shots, coupled with the steady floorwork of Charlie Labelle, proved to be the edge needed against a stubborn Resident quintet. Bill Boyle kept the Residents constantly in the game with 7 field goals.

Faculty Vs. Navy In Court Fracas

In the near future, a basketball quintet composed of members of the naval staff on the campus will engage a team made up of priests from the monastery.

As yet no date has been set, and the only details available, besides the fact that the two fives will meet, are the names of the members of the two teams.

Lt. Harry August, Executive officer of the V-12 Unit will start at forward for the Navy and from all reports, the faculty had better keep a weather eye peeled for this fast breaking forward who can shoot equally well with either hand. At the other front position will be CPO "Doc" Horgen. An excellent ball handler, and a set shot artist, Chief Horgen will probably attempt to draw the defense out while Lt. August cuts down the wide open center.

Backboard Man

The Navy's starting pivot man will be the biggest fellow on the campus, Chief John Zukas. CPO Zukas is expected to shine under the backboards due to his height,

At the guard positions will be Chief Specialist John Lisco, former collegiate star from New Jersey Teachers College and Yeoman 3/c Clayton Freeman who gained his experience at the John Bartram High School in Philadelphia. In addition to their ability at keeping the score down, these two possess more than the usual amount of shooting ability, and it is within the realm of possibility that either one of them may emerge the high scorer of the game.

One Reserve

The only reserve that is known at the present time is Sergeant Doerfler of the athletic staff. The sergeant is the handy man of the team and will act as a relief for those who begin to feel the pains of what will be a hard fought battle.

The Faculty will be represented by Frs. McKee and Kemme as forwards, Fr. Girolami at center, and Frs. McCarthy and Kropp at the guards. This group played together for a few games last year, and as a result has more in the way of teamwork than their opponents. However, they will have to concede the edge to the Navy in the height department, and right now it looks as though it will be a battle between teamwork and individual stars.

THE man of a thousand nicknames, Joseph Michael Dervin, is in his back yard here at Villanova. Oakmont, Pa., is the birthplace of this diminutive marine and he has lived "seven minutes from Villanova" from then until now.

It was at nearby Malvern Prep tha Joe went to high school. Here he served as Sports Editor of the year-book, as well as playing four years of baseball.

The Business School of the Main Line College welcomed him as a Marketing Major in 1940. A consistent participant in intramural softball and football, "Junior" has been long known for his dry wit and subtle sarcasm.

His Sophomore year found him on the baseball diamond; an injury the next year forced him into the stands. His fellow students realized his talents more fully and elected him as one of their representatives in the Student Council for the current Semester.

Plans Studying Music

"Pump-gun's" real interest in life lies in his love of music. Particularly interesting to him is the style of arrangement of a number. In this vein he prefers the work done by Les Brown and Stan Kenton. That his interest in arranging music is not trivial is shown by the fact that he has serious intentions of attending a music school after the war, and then continuing in the field.

District Officers Make Inspection Of Training Unit

All Parts of Campus Examined; Comdr. Lamb, Head of Inspecting Party, Pleased With Conditions

The regular semesterly inspection by district training officers was conducted Wednesday, January 25 The inspection, which involved all equipment and buildings used by the V-12 Unit at Villanova, was made by Commander Scott G. Lamb, U.S.N., Director of Trainees in the Fourth Naval District Training Office, and his staff.

The last inspection of this type was held on July 22, 1943, when the party was led by Captain J. P. Womble, a member of the Training Division of the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Washington, D. C. Commander Lamb was also a member of that group.

Inspect Entire Campus

The visiting officers inspected the mess-hall and galley, the various offices, the barracks, the Field House, and the sick bay. In the barracks, the various rooms and facilities were examined. A prominent feature of the occasion was the passing in review of all the trainees, with the commissioned officers of the Ship's Company and the inspecting party in the reviewing stand. Led by the Drum and Bugle Corps, a recent addition to the Unit made since the last inspection, the review was carried off in a very military fashion. And this was quite an accomplishment, considering the muddy condition of the parade grounds.

Comdr. Lamb Pleased

Commenting on the entire inspection, Commander Lamb said, "I am well pleased with the progress which has been made in the military set-up and I think the Unit has shown great improvement since the last inspection, at which time of course, it made a good showing

"The Drum and Bugle Corps has added notably to the efficiency of the troops in passing in review and I am glad I had the opportunity of seeing them in action.

"In regard to the entire inspection, I found conditions very satisfactory."

Simultaneous with the semesterly inspection was a fire inspection made by Lieutenant Jones, of the Bureau of Yards and Docks in Washington, D. C. All fire-fighting equipment and fire exits, together with the general condition of the buildings, were examined by Lieutenant Jones.

Former M. O. Returns

Inspection of the Sick Bay, its personnel and equipment was conducted by Commander William T. Minnick, U.S.N., former medical officer for the trainees and Ship's Company at Villanova.

Congratulations on the success of the inspection were extended to the trainees that evening by Lieutenant Harry W. August, U.S.N.R., Executive Officer of the Unit. Stressing the thoroughness of the inspection and the general success of the affair, Lieutenant August read a statement from the Commanding Officer, Commander Edward J. Milner, U.S.N. The statement as posted next day read:

25 January, 1944.

"The Commanding Officer and his staff congratulate the entire corps on the showing made in the military review this date upon the occasion of the inspection by the District Officer.

"Each company is commended on the appearance of the barracks which brought favorable comment from the inspecting officers. The company commanders, masters-at-arms, details and individual trainees, all did their job well.

"There will be no restrictions this week-end."

It is obvious that the inspection was also quite a success for the trainees.

Inspecting Party And Staff Watch Trainees Pass In Review

Pre-Med Students

Rev Joseph Boyle, O.S.A., College Registrar, has announced that all pre-medical and pre-dental students seeking admittance to Medical school should obtain their letters of acceptance and present them at the Registrar's Office as soon as possible. Fr. Boyle must know immediately the names of all students planning to seek such acceptance.

A. I. Ch. E. Meets

The members of the Villanova Student Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers will conduct at meeting at 12:30 P. M. tomorrow in the parlors of Simpson Hall. Dr. J. H. Rushton Chairman of the A.I.Ch.E. committee on student chapters, and head of the Chemical Engineering Department of Virginia University, will act as guest speaker.

Koosh - Koosh At A Deefa

Former Editor of VILLANOVAN, Now in Army in North Africa, Describes Experiences at Arabic Feast

When the smoke of battle finally lifts from the world, we will be inclined to regard these long years of war as a horrible nightmare, as something we would rather forget. However, at least one of the men at the front will bring back with him a few pleasant memories. He is Lt. Raymond J. Harter, USA Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan for the 1933-34 school year, who holds an administrative position in the army in North Africa.

Lt. Harter, who received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Economics from Villanova's Commerce and Finance School in 1931, recently submitted this story of one of the brighter of the many evenings he has spent on foreign soil

"This article is coming to you tonight from Ray Ben Youssef, or at least that is what the Arabs would have called me if they had given me my name. Ben in Arabic means son, and their names are always written as Raymond son of Joseph.

"That is a little bit of information I picked up a long time ago, but recently my education in Arabic ways and customs was considerably broadened. I added another interesting event to my personal experiences when I attended what is known as a 'deefa.' I doubt if that is the way it is spelled but that is the way it is pronounced, so it will have to do.

"A deefa is an Arab feast or banquet. Ordinarily they are held on festive holidays or when celebrities are to be entertained, but they might be held any other time that an Arab feels the urge to throw a knockout party. The primary objective of the deefa seems to be to stuff the guests with so much food that they have to be carried away from the place. The one I attended was only a small deefa, but a large one may consist of as many as 10 or 12 courses, comprising a half a dozen meat courses, several fruit courses, and a few others that the English languages just can't describe.

Large Families

"This particular deefa was given by an Arab who is quite an interesting character. Before the war he was an interpreter for an English firm represented here and at times acted as a guide for Cook's tours. He speaks very good English and is now employed by the American Red Cross as an interpreter and as a guide for their tours for soldiers. He comes from a large family and has been giving these deefas each week, holding them at a different brother or brother-in-law's home each week. Apparently he has an endless string of relatives because he has been holding these parties for a couple of months and has not yet run out of brothers or brothers-in law.

"The deefas have always been a great novelty for newcomers to North Africa, both Americans and Europeans alike. With only the suggestion of an invitation they would almost break a leg to get there, but heretofore there has been very little reciprocity involved. A colonel in our party who had been to several deefas given by our Arab friend said that, a couple of weeks ago, he returned the compliment by inviting an Arab and a couple of his brothers to a steak dinner at a restaurant near here This obviously made a very deep impression on the Arabs. Our friend told us that he has been giving these parties for the Europeans for the past 18 years, and the Americans are the first noes who ever incans are the first ones who ever in- is just little things like this that are winning over the confidence of these people for the Americans.

"Medina" Out of Bounds

"Our party consisted of 14 Americans — three Red Cross girls, one nurse, and 10 officers. The Arab's home is in the Medina, the native section of the town, which ordinarily is "Off Limits" for American troops, but one of the colonels in the party is provost marshal for this area, so that presented no problem whatsoever. As we drove into the Medina, two MP's stepped off the curb to stop us, spotted the colonel, threw a smart salute and stepped meekly back onto the curb

"The homes in the Medina are certainly not pretentious. They are very simple white adobe structures most of them very old and with no fancy external trimmings. But indoors they present quite a different appearance. Woodwork is noticeably absent. The floors are all constructed of fancy-patterned tile and most of the walls are tiled to a height of four to five feet from the floor. Doors to practically all of the rooms indoors are left open and in their place brightly colored curtains are hung. The principal room of the house we visited was located on the second floor. It was entirely devoid of furniture except for thick, richly colored velour

Year Book Staff Feted At Dinner

The Belle Air staff held its annual dinner last Thursday evening at the Bala Inn on City Line in Philadelphia. The Revs. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., and Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., treated the small staff to a steak supper in honor of the final arrival of the Centennial Year Book.

Besides the moderators there were present, Carton Conway, A.S., Hector Martinez, Frank Perna, Joe Foley, and John Fitzgibbons. At the dinner, Fitzgibbons was presented with the Belle Air key for outstanding work on the publication, an honor usually reserved for senior staff members. Other keys have been given to editors on this edition just prior to their going away into the armed services.

Among things discussed at the dinner were plans for the tentative 1944 Belle Air. The moderators are depending on those present at the affair to see it through if plans for the financing of the book materialize.

Distribution Incomplete

However distribution of the '43 book has not been completed. Arrangements have been made for the Belle Air office to be open on Thursdays from 12:00 to 2:00 P. M. till Feb. 17, for those students entitled to a book to obtain their copy.

There are many students, both V-12 trainees and civilians, who are entitled to a copy of the Centennial Edition and who have not as yet picked up their book. This is probably due to the fact that they are confused as to their status. Any student who is in doubt about his account and who would like to have a copy, is urged to drop up to the office, room 235 Mendel Hall or see John Fitzgibbons, Business and Circulation Manager, personally. It would be greatly appreciated by the staff if this matter be taken care of as soon as possible so that the editing of the proposed 1944 Belle Air can get under way.

Trainees To Receive Religious Articles

At the request of the Chaplain Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., the National Catholic Community Service of Washington, D. C., a Member Agency of the United Service Organizations, is forwarding 500 rosaries, 500 four-way medals, and 500 military missals for distribution among the Navy and Marine trainees stationed at Villanova.

When the religious articles are received and blessed, they will be distributed to the men in their barracks.

A leaflet containing an explanation of the Rosary and the manner in which it is recited will also be distributed at the same time.

Besides this, Fr. Grimes has been responsible for the distribution of the weekly Servicemen's Religious Bulletin since the arrival of the V-12 Unit at Villanova.

Entertainment To Be Held Here By Service Club

Voluntary Patriotic Organization to Present Show to Villanova Servicemen at Field House Friday, Feb. 11

Through the efforts of the Student Council, arrangements have been made for the "Yankee Doodle" Service Club to stage an entertainment for the Villanova V-12 Unit in the college Field House on Friday evening, February 11, at 8:45 P. M.

Suggestion that this organization, which is sustained by the voluntary contributions of Jenkintown residents, should perform for the service students on the campus first came from its president, George Noake. After some correspondence with Herbert L. Bansbach, President of Student Council, agreement was finally reached last week.

The group, an independent service club, will present a winter review, entitled "Memories." Featured in the show will be songs and dances which were enjoyed by American soldiers, sailors, and marines of World War I. Fifty girls, all of whom are from the local area, will comprise the chorus.

Special feature of the night will be a Ballet dance performed by a group of Villanova trainees. Attendance at the show is being strictly limited to the college students. No outsiders will be admitted.

On Voluntary Basis

Organized three years ago on a purely voluntary basis, the group has done much to foster service morale. They are but recently returned from a 2000-mile tour of camps, hospitals, and government bases.

They have presented musical reviews, dances, and skits which have been favorably received at such places as the Valley Forge Hospital.

They have their headquarters at the Heger School of Dancing in Jenkintown, and their principal purpose is to provide entertainment for the coastguardsmen stationed at the Widener Estate in Elkins Park and the personnel of the Naval Air Base at Horsham. Purely voluntary support enables them to continue their work.

Originally scheduled for next Friday, the date of their coming had to be postponed when a representative of the group, impressed by the possibilities of the stage in the spacious Field House, decided that enlargements could be made on the planned entertainment.

In announcing this student council presentation, Bansbach expressed the hope that, if the venture was well received by the men of the unit, more such affairs could be staged in the future.

Citizens, Soldiers, or Both?

WELL, Mates, it is still debatable whether or not you will vote in the next Presidential election. As this goes to press, the issue is still under the hammer and the outcome is still unpredictable. A great enough number of honest men are wholeheartedly bolstering your cause, but in this case everyone wants to be Santa Claus.

Everyone wishes you to vote, but for different reasons, and by different means. Shall you vote merely for the presidential candidate of your choice, or shall you also have a hand in the political workings of your state? Shall you be constrained to vote a straight ticket, or shall you be able to "mix 'em up"? Shall you vote in the manner approved by the people of your state, or shall you be given a uniform, federal ballot? Shall you have the pleasure of imbibing campaign addresses, or shall you be cheated of this joy? The old questions of States' Rights, Federal Powers, Poll Taxes, and so forth, are seemingly connected with the debate; it is all so confusing.

It is very nearly time to contubiate all the smoke and nonsense, and go a-probing for the point of the discussion. To begin with, it is your right not only to be able to vote, but also to take a place in the machinery which sets up a candidate. This right includes, too, a voice in the political maneuvers of your municipality and of your state. Do not assume the fallacy that you can only vote for presidents, or that you have no cry in the selection of the candidates. Remember: you are citizens of the United States. This takes for granted that you have a right to vote.

The political footing and booting of this particular right of yours will lead to many wrongs. It will make the men whose plan of balloting is finally accepted appear as spotless defenders and champions of the serviceman. It will make those men whose plan is rejected seem villianous and scheming, and antagonistic to the rights of the serviceman.

Since campaign addresses are also on the table for "Take-It-or-Leave-It," it is the sixty-four dollar question whether you will hear or read them in camps, bivouacs, ships; this will make the presidential race a handicap in favor of the better-known candidate.

The depth of fallacy, however, will be reached in this: you may be led to believe that some political power operating in your country will have given you the right to vote your choice for president. This is ridiculous! It is in the moral power of no man to make this right or to destroy it. God gave you this right, just as he gave you the rights to life and to liberty, and any man who attempts to take this right from you is a criminal and a thief of the lowest type.

You are in a peculiar position. You are under oath to obey the leaders chosen by the people of the United States. Yet, you are the people, not all of them, but a great, big part of them. It is now a question whether you will have your rightful part in choosing your governmental leaders. It is the sworn duty of those who at present represent you to see to it that this right is maintained, just as it is your sworn duty to say, "Yes, Sir" to the men who represent you now and who will represent you in the not-too-distant future.

Impressions of an Arab Feast

cushions which line the four walls The cushions carried us back centuries to an Oriental medieval setting, but a smart, modernistic radio cabinet in one corner snapped us right back to the twentieth century.

Seated On Cushions

"When they were ready to start serving, the cushions were placed in a circle in the center of the room. In the middle of the circle was placed a low,handsomely designed table of inlaid woodwork. Each course is served in a single bowl and placed on this table. The guests sit around on cushions and dig into the food with their fingers The Arabs never use any eating utensils. All food must be eaten with the right hand only. The left hand is reserved for their personal hygiene. Each guest is given a towel to put across his lap to protect his clothing, but it is not to be used as a napkin. Your hand and face get greasy and goocy, but you are not allowed to wipe it off until everyone is finished eating. Emily Post undoubtedly would be greatly impressed.

"The Arabs do not join in the meal. The host wanders constantly around the outside of the circle seeing to it that his guests have twice as much of everything as they can possibly devour. He adjusts a cushion here, shoos a fly away there, or claps his hands to bring the servants running. The food was served by young serving girls, about 12 or 14 years of age, who shuffle in and out silently with enough food to feed an army.

Women Go Unseen

"The guests never see the women of the house. Their place is in the kitchen. Also, the guests are not supposed to eat all of the food even if it were physically possible What the guests leave goes to the women; what they leave goes to the children; what they leave goes to the servants, and what they leave goes to the dogs. It's no wonder the dogs around here look so starved and bony.

"Just before starting to eat, everyone is required to take a "bath." A native girl brings around a silver water kettle and a silver bowl. She goes to each guest, pours water into his hands, drains it into the bowl and hands him a towel—not the same one he has on his lap—with which to dry himself. Then he is ready to start stuffing himself.

"As I said before, our deefa was a small one—it consisted of only five courses. First they brought in practically a whole barbecued lamb highly seasoned and covered with some kind of native gravy. It is really delicious, and if we didn't know that several other courses were to follow, we probably would have stuffed ourselves on that alone.

"The second course consisted of a number of roast chickens covered with an Arab buttered sauce. The chickens were as tender and tasty as could be, but I didnt care at all for the sauce. However, the third course consisted of more chicken and was much more to my liking. They were prepared the some as our roast chicken in a regular brown gravy, but they then had each chicken wrapped in a large, flat egg omelet. It was the Arab version, I guess, of pigs in a blanket.

"Koosh-Koosh" Is Staple

"The fourth course consisted of koosh-koosh, which is the staple food all over North Africa. In the center of the bowl is a concoction looking very much like chop suey It consists of lamb meat, onions beans, raisins, and about a half a dozen thinks I can't name. All around the outside of this concoction is a thick mass of koosh-koosh grain. Koosh-koosh is a cereal very much like farina. When you eat it, you take a handful of koosh-koosh and the other stuff from the middle of the bowl and mix it all up in your hand until you have it in a neat ball. Then you open the hatch and toss it down, licking the excess grain off your fingers. Sounds appetizing, eh? There is just one word of caution. You must be careful not to drink too much water with it because koosh-koosh swells up in water, much like rice, and would bloat you before you had a chance to eat anything else.

"Our final course consisted of fruit. They served some special type of melon somewhat similar to honeydew and several different kinds of grapes. It was right in the midst of the grape season here and they really were good.

Sigihtly Messy

"By this time everyone had grease and koosh-koosh half way up to their elbows. Our left hands were still clean, of course, but everyone sat there with their right hands sticking awkwardly in the air as though they had just broken their wrists. However, at this time our host came to our rescue clapped his hands and back came the servant girl with the silver kettle and bowl and a cake of good, old American Ivory soap. When we had all finished washing, we went back to our original positions on the cushions around the walls of the room.

"After about a half-hour of relaxing, digesting and smoking they served mint tea—the real delicacy of the evening. The Arabs take more pride in the brewing of their mint tea than the Americans do with mixing a good Manhattan or Martini cocktail. The host squats on a cushion with two large silver trays before him. On one he has two silver teapots with all the cups, and on the other he has silver containers of tea, sugar, and mint leaves. All of these must be carefully blended with boiling water. When it is all ready, it is served in small demi-tasse cups.

"The drink is really tasty, but is very rich and sweet. Our host must have used almost a pound of sugar per serving of 14 cups. The serving of the tea is the climax of the evening in more ways than one You are required to take at least two cups, otherwise the host would feel slighted, but the serving of the third cup is your signal to go. The Arabs do not have to resort to such crude American customs as winding the clock or putting out the cat—they just serve the third cup of tea.

"Naturally that brought our evening to a close, but it certainly was an evening well spent. It was one of the things I shall always remember about my 'trip' to North Africa."

—except violets

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY, A.S.

There is a notice at the East entrance to Rittenhouse Square in Phila. which in its entirety reads:

"The picking of all flowers and shrubs in this park is forbidden by act of City Council—except violets, dandelions, and weeds. (June, 1907.)

From this above it seems so clear
That in a world wide rent with strife
The things exotic we hold dear,
The common, are bereft of life.

Be it scarce and hard to clasp,
Then 'tis loved and gathered tight;
The violet full within our grasp
Is quickly shadowed from the light.

Why this be true is hard to say
That rare and beautiful are one;
But all the world grows tired of day,
And nothing bores us as the sun.

So thus the orchid—foreign born—
On lady's bosom gaily shown,
While violet—fresh as cool, green morn—
Must live, and bloom, and fade alone.

For ten decades Villanova's campus has been admired for its intrinsic beauty. However, its grounds are now being desecrated, perhaps to the point of being permanently ruined, by you who disregard the rules against walking on the lawns. Main Line Murmurings

By PVT. LARRY SCHMITT

Indicative of the trend of the times is my appointment as "permanent" writer of this column. I don't expect to make a statement of policy, but I should like to set the guy straight who last week accused me of copying my jokes—the term is borrowing, bub—BORROWING! ! !

PAIN INC.

Toothache, huh??—well, I'll tell you what you can do. Go to the sick bay and, there your temperature will be taken, you will be given a pill, and told to return. When you come back with the same pain the next day, have an especially sad look on your face and you will probably wrangle an appointment with "Heartless" Hobson. According to a framed piece of paper on the wall of his office he is a D.D.S. This stands for, I suppose, "Dental Dirtywork Specialist." (He specializes in the only form of torture which has not been perfected, as yet, by the sick bay staff.)

The appointment day arrives. If you are still game you hop down to Bryn Mawr and after a double Coke for a bracer you stomp bravely into the office. At the very start you are thrown off guard by a cheerful "hello" from the doc's "partner in pain," in the guise of a dental nurse, Miss Leary.

A three-month old edition of "The Molar Malclusion Monthly," a magazine concerned with the art of torture, lies open on the sofa so you settle down to a little light reading You are suddenly interrupted in the middle of a fascinating story about a cross-eyed dentist who consistently pulled the wrong tooth by an ominous, "you're next."

You walk timidly into the "inner sanctum," and are greeted there by a weird character who shouts, "Hi. Mac!" with a gleam in his bloodshot eyes.

"Now, let's see," he says in a fiendish tone. You unwittingly open your mouth, and before you know it, the action starts—but, I'm not the kind of a guy who likes to recount the foul deeds which are perpetrated in that dingy back room above Liggett's—just use your imagination—or if you have a courageous spirit — I can think of no better preparation for combat than avisit to "Heartless" Hobson—the ringleader of "Pain Inc."

MANEUVERS? ?

It was a skeptical crew that boarded the Paoli local Saturday evening, bound for that "military" objective — Bryn Mawr College Bravely and questioningly they stepped from the train and submissively followed the "escort" sent out to "tow 'em in."

The complexion changed when the boys advanced to the first skirmish line—there to be greeted by a bunch of "solid" chicks. Not much time was wasted with introductions—the "enemy" just tapped you on the shoulder and you were off. The "Leap-year Motif," much to the fellows' dismay, was sustained all evening. Whenever an "antagonist" got the urge to dance, she closed in on you and "took over."

The action, once joined, assumed the pattern of practically all assaults—that of small groups—namely "twos." Those who drifted from the main line of action were usually discovered in the "galley," foraging for sustenance. The results of the tactics are recorded for posterity in the form of soft "Good Night's" and "See you soon's," as well as in the fellows' address books.

After the heat of battle the groups retired to that certain smart Bryn Mawr rendezvous.

'Cats Take Rider, Drop Close One To Ft. Dix, 58-56

Main Liners Lead Roughriders at Halftime 30-16; Last Minute Rally Against Soldiers Falls Short

This past week saw the Villanova Wildcats play .500 ball as they lost to the Soldier team from Fort Dix by a 58-56 score when a last-ditch rally fell just short of tying the tally and won a game from a rather weak Rider squad, 48-40.

On Tuesday, the Wildcats had their 3 game streak broken by the soldiers from Fort Dix, N. J. in a close 58-56 contest. Gaining revenge for last year's 75-55 loss to the Main Liners, the Dixmen were led by big Jim Coughlin, who bagged 8 field goals and 2 fouls for 18, and Bob Hassmuller, former Fordham All-American who split the cords 7 times for 14 points.

Lead at Half

The Blue and White jumped to a quick 5-2 advantage in the opening minutes, but the soldiers, on push shots by Coughlin, last year star at St. Joe's College, and sets by Hassmuller, moved to a 16-16 tie at the 10 minute mark. In the second period the soldiers took up where they left off so that at the halftime, they held a 32-27 edge.

Coming back after the intermission the boys from New Jersey boosted their lead to 56-47 at the end of the third period. Starting off the last canto, Phil Jakeway dropped a long shot from outside and was fouled while doing so. Making good on the foul, Jake pared the lead to 56-50. Taking the ball out from under their own basket, the soldiers managed to freeze the ball for a few minutes despite the frantic efforts of the 'Cats.

Ramsey Drops Two

Finally the Jerseyites worked Hassmuller loose on the edge of the foul circle and this dead-eye-dick proceeded to drop his last long for the night for what proved to be the winning points. Now with but a minute and a half to go, the Wildcats fought back grimly and, on two beautiful longs by Jack Ramsey, who played most of the game with a bad knee, made it 58-54. In the last five seconds, Jakeway connected again but before the soldiers could put the ball in play, the

Phillies Tied By Mendel (3) Despite Win

The Mendel Third Deckers, by virtue of a 4-0 triumph over the Swabs moved into a first-place tie with the Phils as the latter won a 3-1 match from the Senior Mechanicals in the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League. Behind the leaders, Ship's Company held on to third place by defeating the Junior Civils 3-1 while the Soph Day-Hops and the Mendel Fourth Deckers were winning 3-1 contests at the expense of the Holy Rollers, and Senior Chems, respectively. As a result of their victory, the Fourth Deckers went into a tie for 6th place with the Senior Mechs, and the Holy Rollers.

Ship's Company, for the second straight week, took the day's High Single honors as they rolled an 816 with Jordan Olivar, Varsity Football Coach, showing the way by smacking a juicy 221. High three for the day also went to the boys from the Navy Office as they knocked down a 2308 scratch, which, when combined with their handicap gave them a 2384 and enabled them to break a record set last week by the Third Deckers from Mendel who rolled a 2372.

As a result of Saturday's scores, Olivar and Conway move into the select top five with 168 and 162 averages for the season. Bill Thomp-

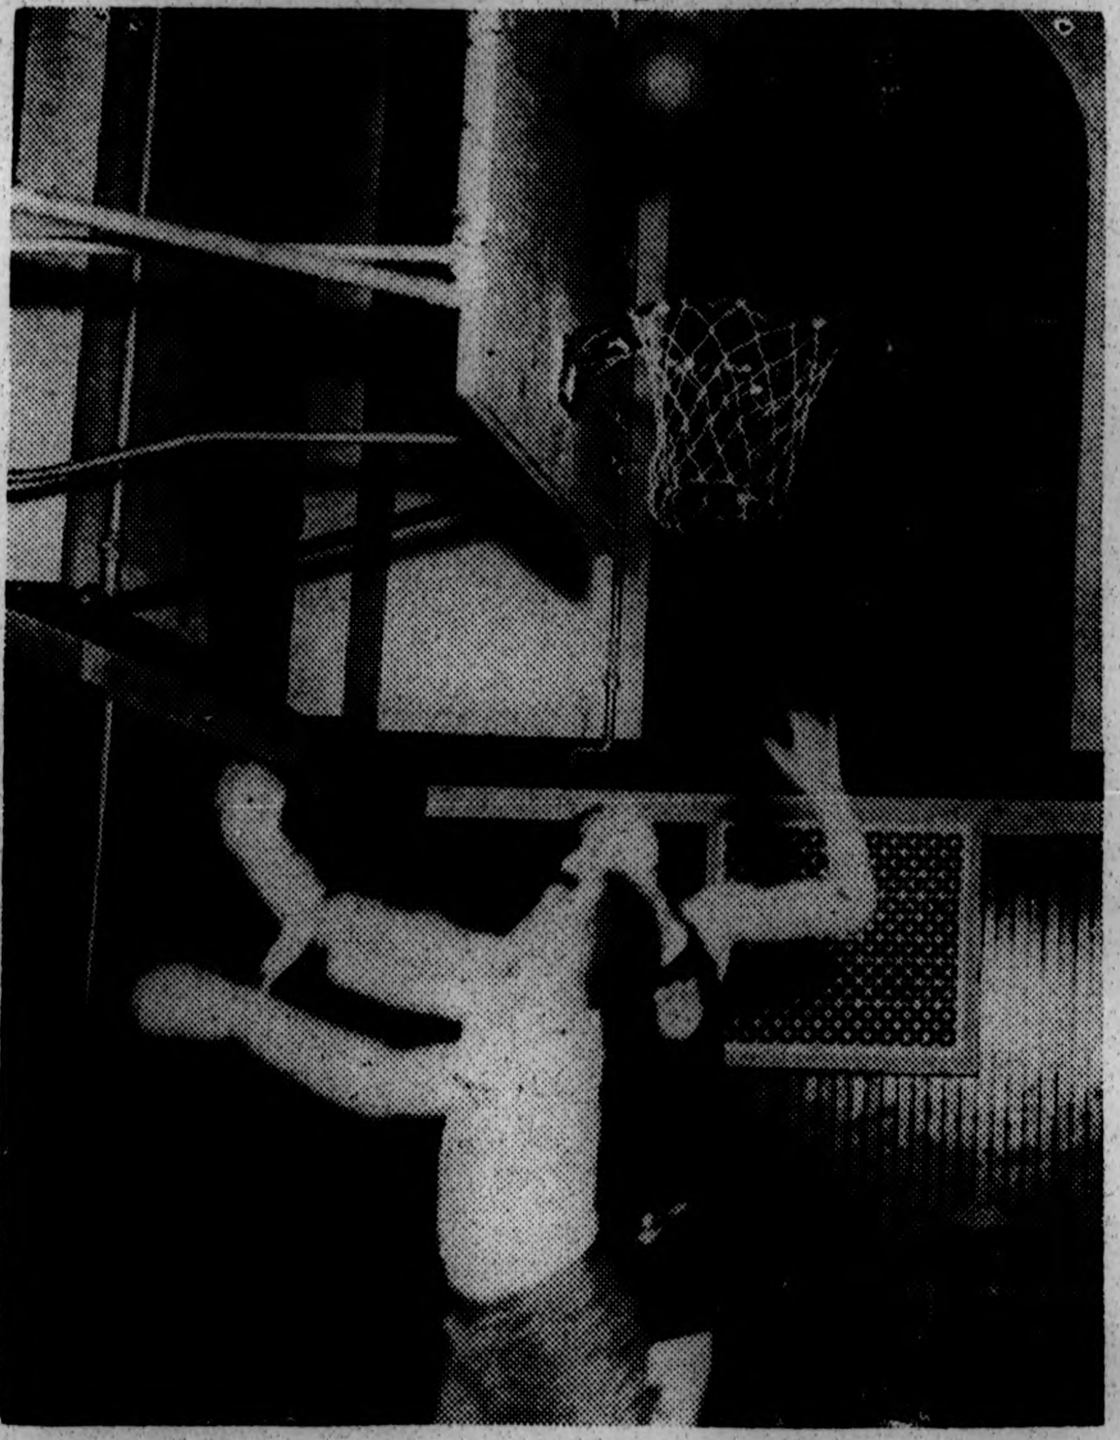
Nealon Drops One



Pictured above is "Red" Nealon as he made one of the shots which helped in the breaking of an old intramural scoring record as he scored 47 points. This individual outburst aided the Marines in their 80-15 trouncing of the Residents.

Alumni Maintains Pace; Marines Break Record

By GENE WEINERT, A. S.

Alumni Hall's fast-stepping quintet climbed up two more rungs of the championship pointed ladder in the Intramural Basketball League at the expense of Fedigan 35-33, and then Mendel, 28-24. The Marines continued to hold second place on Wednesday by virtue of a terrific avalanche of successful shots, smothering the Residents 80-15, in the highest scoring game of the season. On Thursday, the Marines rolled over Mendel, 33-21. The Resident civilians broke a five - game losing streak by defeating the Day-Hops on the same night 29-21, Mendel Hall having already inflicted the Commuters' third loss 28-25, on Monday night.

Rally Falls Short

The Quickie Kids of Alumni fought a holding action against a game Fedigan squad that broke down a five point deficit at the half to come within nudging distance of the winners. "Nord" Powers cut the cords in the final minute of play for the two points that decided the game. "Ollie" Anderson teamed up with Ed Kolnaski to add his sterling backboard work to Ed's 20 points. Anderson, fighting vigorously for the ball under his own basket, brought Fedigan and Alumni rooters to the edges of their seats as he tapped in the last two goals in a rally that just fell short.

Nealon Scores 47

Bill "Red" Nealon set a new league record on Wednesday night, breaking the old record set in 1935 by Walter "Whitey" Kurchinski of Alumni Hall, by scoring 47 points. Shooting all but three of his 23 field goals in short and lay-up shots, Nealon nevertheless played a very active game all over the court. Against a team, each man of which had a distinct height advantage, Red's defensive work was a major factor in the low Resident score Ably supplementing Nealon, Al Kasulin, and Tom Konsgaard added 13 and 11 points respectively to the

THE announcement made the other day by Ensign Maniaci that Villanova would have a mile relay team to compete in the games of 1944, brings back to old Villanovan memories of last year's great relay team. Much has been and can be said about that team. Confronted with the unsurpassed diffifulty of no coach, those few really fine runners banded together, first under Johnny DiCarlo, and then after losing him, under Harry Keefrider, to mold, and display the best relay team in the East.

Starting out with that standout four, Johnny DiCarlo, coach, captain and brilliant anchor man. George Guida, Bob O'Sullivan and Dutch McCarthy, they proceeded to the first of the indoor meets, the Millrose Games. Here, in the fine time of 3:24.8, they led the field to take their event. The following week they ran in the N.Y.A.C. Games in the best clocking of the indoor season to establish themselves as the cream of runners in the East, by conquering such teams as Seton Hall, and Fordham. Then it was that the Army Air Corps called DiCarlo. His place as a runner and coach was taken by the alternate

Bucknell and Swarthmore Out to Avenge Defeats

Villanovans Meet Loyola Greyhounds in Field House Feb. 7; Bisons Also Engaged at Home; Wildcats Travel to Swarthmore Tomorrow

Failing in their attempt to repeat the last minute scoring rush of victory against Fort Dix as they did with Bucknell, the Wildcat quintet now stands with seven wins for ten engagements. With their new little winning streak cracked, the Severencemen will be back again to start a new one this week, having chosen Swarthmore and Bucknell, victims of early-season tangles, as the stepping stones to this goal.

Opening Wednesday night at Swarthmore, the Wildcats will attempt to make it two straight over the V-12 Garnet team Having registered a convincing 58-31 triumph in their previous set-to, the Blue and White meet an improved and experienced quintet. Having dropped honorable decisinos to such powerhouses as Navy and Penn, the Little Quakers are now a sturdier foe.

Line-Up Unchanged

Lining up against the Main Line team will be the same Garnet squad as were met previously. Bill Emmanuel, former Lafayette star, and Hank Bordman, veteran of last year's team will open at guards. High scoring Ray Winch, former Oaklyn luminary, whose 6'2" helped him bucket thirteen points against the Main Liners in that last tilt will continue at his pivot position. Forwards will be, Jerry Adams, transfer from Penn and Jack Early, court star of West Catholic High and Lehigh.

Bucknell Strong

On the following Saturday night, the Thundering Herd from Lewisburg, will invade Villanova and try to disprove the Wildcat's one point triumph in their meeting two weeks ago. Remembrance of the tight game waged with the Bison, gives a good idea of just how potent that team is. In a game that was extended two extra periods, the Blue and White (Frascella) finally racked up a charity toss to win a breathless 43-42 fight. The story of the Wildcats phenomenal twenty point spree in the final quarter to knot the game was the highlight of this fracas.

Tall Team

Now at full strength, the Bucknell five will pair off with a revised 'Cat squad at the Field house gym, February 5. The opening five for the Bison will be as follows: Forwards, Frank Burns, tall veteran of last year's Bucknell squad, and the high scorer of the team, Bill Hoeveler, a marine transfer in the V-12 plan from Temple University. Hoeveler, a marine transfer in the V-12 plan from Temple University. Hoeveler was high Bison man in the 'Cat game, tossing in nine points. Paul Goodwin will jump at center, and will be out to break his 8 points total of the previous encounter. At guards will be Vic Mastriani, who also racked up 8 points, and who is a transfer from Siena College (N.Y.), and Jim Seel, varsity player on last year's great Washington and Jefferson quintet. Bucknell holds a slightly better record than the Wildcats, having dropped only two games as compared with the 'Cats' three

ACADEMIES WIN

The Naval and Military Academies of the U. S., both future opponents of the Wildcats on the basketball court triumphed over Swarthmore, 79-36, and St. John's of Brooklyn, 49-36, respectively. Villanova defeated the Garnet earlier this season but the Middies almost doubled the Main Liners' score.

St. John's is regarded as having one of the better teams in the Metropolitan area, and since the Cadets had little trouble with the Indians., it looks as though the Blue and White will have its hands full when it tangles with both of these clubs.

Mile Relay Team In Millrose Games

Ensign Maniaci Acts as Coach of Recently Organized Track Squad

This coming Saturday night, Feb 5, the newly organized relay team will open the 1944 indoor track season by entering the Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden, in New York. Eleven men have reported to Ensign Maniaci, former Columbia ace and present co-holder with Jesse Owens of the world's 60 meter record, who will act as coach of the team.

Those reporting to Maniaci included "Ace" Regan and Ed Fitzgerald, holdovers from last year's track team. Fitz was a substitute on the quintet which made quite a reputation for itself. Ace was a miler on the team, and created a small sensation around school when he led Gundar Haegg from the pole in the Finnish flash's first American start.

Has Garden Experience

Phil Golden, transfer from St. Joseph's in Philadelphia starred as an individual sprinter and quarter miler at North Catholic High where he was a member of the Catholic League Championship Relay team. Last year he ran with the St. Joseph's College Mile Relay team which placed second in the K. of C. meet in New York's Madison Square Garden.

From the hilly regions around Penn State comes John Foreman, Marine trainee and one who represented the Main Line Institution in one or two meets last summer Foreman stands 6 ft. tall and brings both speed and stamina to the team.

Dunbar Recalled

One of the new arrivals here, Bud Hunter, has shown himself worthy of consideration in the choosing of the mile quartet and is one of the most promising new men out for the squad. Next comes Burt Cox, a lean rangy lad who reminds Wildcat followers of Dixie Dunbar, erstwhile track star now serving in the Merchant Marine.

In addition to these, Carl Haefle, Larry Bradley, Jack Kern, Bill Moyer, and Harry Schmidt are out to press the more promising members for places on the team. From the ranks of these men will come the team which is to represent Villanova during the coming indoor season.

When asked about the team and its chances, Ensign Maniaci replied: "There's a great deal of work to be done and a short time in which to do it, but if the spirit and cooperation of the boys is indicative of their will to win, Villanova might gain permanent possession of the Anderson Trophy which is to be retired this year and on which we already have one leg.

Hard luck in the form of sloppy baton handling, and accidents on the track caused this new team to place third in the succeeding National A.A.U. and I.C.4A meets, losing to teams whose times they had formery surpassed. Rallying in the Knights of Columbus Games in N. Y., the Wildcats garnered another first, finally followed by a second in the K. of C. Meet in Cleveland. So, with no coach, new runners and stern opposition, this enthusiastic group established themselves as the best on the boards with a record of 3 firsts and a second, and 2 thirds besides the best time for the season in the mile relay competing against the cream of the crop.

It seems that this enviable record, and the proud boast of achievement is what inspired a new and less experienced group of runners to keep up Villanova tradition. You and I often noticed during the past semester, fellows like Ed Fitzgerald and John Foreman, running while others played football and basketball, or loafed. They were determined not to let these efforts go in vain, so gathering together, they sought out Ensign Maniaci, a former track great in his running days at Columbia, and asked him to coach the team. Their efforts weer so successful that this new group of indoor runners is entered in all the same big meets of the season that brought fame to last year's team.

One will then invariably ask what are the prospects of success for this team, and I invariably say that they have the best of chances of covering themselves with glory. They have in Ed Fitzgerald, a runner who was a miler in high school and who was converted to a quarter-miler with the greatest of success. In last year's Penn Relays his was the best time of our runners in the mile relay event in which they took second. Around him will be built this new team.

Long rangy John Foreman, a marine transfer from Penn State, showed that he could run last summer in the few meets that an unorganized few from here ran. He has both requisites of a good runner, stamina, and kick. We all remember Bob "Ace" Reagan for his distance running ability. Remember? He was the boy who ran against Gunder Haegg at Princeton and actually headed him for a good part of the distance. He is willing to change over to the shorter distances, and the will is half the battle.

In a nomination for a fourth man to round out the group, I see that Phil Golden, an excellent runner at North Catholic H. S. and who showed up well on the relay team at St. Joseph's College, fills all the requirements for this place He looks like a runner with his long legs, and slim build, and he is a runner as proven by his past races.

So there we are; we have volunteers, we have a team. That they will be good will depend on their efforts. Since it was their idea to establish a team, they will work hard, and with this will to win they cannot fail to acquit themselves with highest honors. We anxiously await the manifestation of their work next Saturday when they, in their turn meet the best of the East's relay teams in the annual indoor season opener, the Millrose Games

Leatherneck's ample total.

Thursday night almost saw the first defeat of Alumni for the second half at the hands of the remarkably improved Engineers from Mendel Hall. Alumni fired its inevitable stretch burst just before halftime instead of at the end of the game, as Joe Walters sunk an eye-popping running throw from far behind midcourt. A rapid lay-up by Critides and a foul by Walter, added to the long one, brought the Pill boys from the bottom side of a 16-14 score to an intermission lead of 19-16. Managing to add point for point each tally of Mendel plus an additional foul shot, Alumni hit their final total with but 30 seconds of the game left.

Day-Hops Lose Welsh

On the same night, the Austin Marines easily outdistanced the Fedigan five, as Al Kasulin accounted for 11 points to make Fedigan pay dearly for holding "Red" Nealon to one point. The game's two big boys, Kasulin and Kolnaski, left little room for anybody else under the basket which is Nealon's favorite spot.

Playing against a game Day-Hop team that lacked the services of Paul Simpson and Jack Welsh who injured his ankle early in the second stanza, the Residents broke their string of "rear marches." Washing off the heavy coat of shellac applied applied the night before by the Marines, each member of the starting five, with one lone exception, put at least three shots through the hoop, to bring the Resident their first victory of the second half, 29-21.

Against the Day-Hops on Monday night, Mendel, led by Dick Madigan who tallied six baskets, won its second game for the present section of the schedule. By virtue of a second half in which they tallied eleven baskets, Mendel managed to finish topside in the box score by three points.

Nealon Bags 47 To Break Record And Lead Scorers

"Red" Nealon of the Marines has once again forged his way to the lead for the second half of the Intramural Basketball season. By virtue of his record breaking score of 47 points in Wednesday's game with the Residents, Nealon has climbed from eighth position to number one in the scoring column with a 72 point total.

Out of Top Five

Ed Kolnaski, Fedigan's ace, held top honors previous to this week. Although he counted 26 points for the 7 day period, he dropped to second place behind Nealon. "Newt" Ward, top man for the Day-Hops, took a firmer grip on third place as he bagged 21 points to bring his average to 9.6 points a game. Wards' teammate, Simpson, dropped out of the first five, and Ray Kaspar did a like slip from second to fifth spot.

Entertaining the Roughriders from Rider College last Saturday in the Field house gym, the Villanova Wildcats played the part of a poor host by staving off a second-half rally of the visitors to win 48-40.

Firing baskets from all angles, the Wildcats started off like a house afire, and with Frank Frascella scoring 12 points in a hectic first half, held a 30-16 edge at the intermission.

Having thus doubled the score in the first canto, the Wildcats sat back to enjoy their 14 point lead, but the tiny Jersey five put on a spurt and managed to outscore the Wildcats in this second half 24-18

Behind Frascella in the scoring column were Phil Jakeway and Don Osterman, who both tallied 8 points. For Osterman it was the last game with the Blue and White. as he was ordered elsewhere by the Navy Department yesterday.

Vol. 17—No. 22 N. A. A. S. X-660 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1944

VERY REV. EDWARD V. STANFORD, O.S.A., PRESIDENT OF VILLANOVA

Congratulations ! !

By THOMAS SCHUBERT, A.S.

NEXT Monday marks the birthday and the Silver Jubilee of the coming to Villanova of a man who has labored diligently and long in the service of the College — the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President.

Born in Boston, Massachussetts, on February 14, 1897, Father Stanford attended Boston College before entering the Augustinian Order, in which he was ordained a priest on June 10, 1922. He began teaching in the College shortly after the Armistice in 1918.

From the beginning, Father has been more than a teacher here at Villanova, although in this field, too, he excelled. He was counsellor in one of the resident halls for a number of years, and College Chaplain for several more. Finally, in June, 1932, he was made President of the College, which position he has held ever since.

To demonstrate that Father Stanford has been, since that time, a leader in the field of education is at once easy and difficult: easy because the evidence is so abundant; difficult if one attempts to keep the demonstration from sounding like a roll-call of honor.

He has held many important posts, is a past president of the Association of American Colleges, the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, and the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania. At the present time, he is the Secretary of the American Council on Education and a member of its Board of Directors and also a member of the General Executive Board of the National Catholic Educational Association.

Various other positions which he has held include seven separate chairmanships in the University and College Department of the National Catholic Educational Association and the Vice-presidency of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Since the declaration of war, Father Stanford has filled various important Government assignments. He is a consultant to the Navy Department, the War Manpower Commission, and the United States Office of Civilian Defense. He also served for a time as a consultant to the War Department.

He is a member of the Committee on Relationships of Higher Education to the Federal Government, a member of the War Savings Committee of the United States Treasury Department, and a member of the Committee on American Unity for the Pennsylvania State Council of Defense.

Many personal honors have been conferred on Father Stanford. Boston College, Loyola University of Chicago, and St. John's University of Brooklyn have conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Literature at various times.

In addition to all this, he has found time to win nation-wide renown as a writer of religious pamphlets, par-

Navy Transfers Basic Students

Approximately thirty-two trainees from the college V-12 unit, most of them second-semester freshmen in the "basic" classification, were given orders last week to report to various other colleges throughout the east for the beginning of the next semester. This action was in keeping with the Navy's policy of attempting to assign men to schools where they can best be prepared for the fields of work to which they are adapted, and for which, in many cases, they stated a preference.

Men have been assigned to the following schools, all of which have been members of the Navy College Training Program since its inception: Cornell University, Yale University, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, University of Virginia, North Carolina University, University of Pennsylvania, and Muhlenberg College.

A number of trainees who have completed two or more semesters in other schools, particularly men scheduled to study pre-medical and engineering courses, will report here for their next semester's work. In addition, it is probable that men from the fleet who have been accepted for V-12, as well as civilians who qualified in the aptitude test given last November 9, will be assigned here as basic students.

Delta Pi Epsilon To Hold Initiation And Annual Smoker

Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance School's fraternity, will become active again next week when it conducts its annual initiation and smoker on the evening of Friday, Feb. 18.

John Fitzgibbons, President of the organization, has named Hugh Burns, A.S., and John Reddy as Co-Chairmen of the Pledging Committee, Joseph Foley and Harry Watters as heads of the Initiation Committee, and Edward Gallagher and Private William Devine as Co-Chairmen of the Entertainment Committee.

After the initiation, which will open the affair, the new members will be the guests of their older "brothers" for an evening of entertainment and refreshments.

Commerce and Finance students must apply for admission to the fraternity no later than tomorrow, February 9th, when all members of D.P.E. meet at 1 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel. Prospective members, whether or not they have made previous application, are urged to attend.

Student Council Completes Plans for "Winter Hop"

Valentine's Day Provides Theme For Saturday's Dance; Bansbach Predicts Financial Success As Ticket Sales Proceed At Satisfactory Rate

Villanova's "Winter Hop," featuring the music of "The Haverfordians," under the leadership of Rice Longaker, will take place at the Field House this coming Saturday night, February 12.

The services of "The Haverfordians" were secured by the band committee through the Philadelphia Orchestra Agency. A preview of the band's style of playing was given at the recent "Hearts and Heroes" dance held at the nearby College of Chestnut Hill.

In keeping with the calendar, the theme of the dance will be that of St. Valentine's Day. Decorations will correspond to the occasion.

Leads Haverfordians

RICE LONGAKER

Chairmen and co-chairmen of the various committees working on the dance are as follows: Band, Pvt. Sabino Carrone and Carton Conway, A. S.; Decorations, Arthur Roth and William Boyle; Programs, Frank O'Connor, A. S., Pat Reagan and Bill Schurr; Refreshments, Lou Eni; Tickets, Frank Quinn, A. S. The committees are being coordinated in their efforts by Chairman Herbert Bansbach, A. S., and his assistant, Frank O'Connor, A. S.

Ticket Sales Progressing

Interviewed in reference to the dance, Bansbach, who is also chairman of the Student Council, announced that plans for the selection of a Valentine Queen had been dropped since such a choice promises to be difficult to make. Commenting upon the financial outlook of the dance, Bansbach stated," The sale of tickets is going well, and good attendance is expected.

Tickets will remain on sale in the respective halls until Friday, February 11, after which time they must be obtained at the door. Admission will be $2.20 per couple and the dance will be informal, lasting from nine to one. Those interested may contact one of the following: Alumni Hall—Apprentince Seamen George Haupt and Harold Peifer; Austin Hall—Pvts. Sabino Carrone and John Killelea; Fedigan Hall—Apprentice Seamen Herbert Bansbach, Bernard Borshke and Hugh Burns; Mendel Hall—Apprentice Seamen Carton Conway, Frank O'Connor and Frank Quinn; Civilians—John Fitzgibbons, Joseph Foley and Bernard Cassidy.

As in the past, the stage will be converted into a lounge for the dance. Concerning the possibilities of restricted trainees attending the dance, an announcement will be forthcoming.

V-12, ASTP Give Qualifying Test

Program Still Open to Civilians; Candidates to Take Examination March 15

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Assistant to the President, has announced that the Third Army-Navy College Qualifying Test for the Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy V-12 Program will be given at Villanova on Monday, March 15, at 9:00 A. M. The same exam will be given for both Army and Navy candidates.

The test is designed to measure the aptitude and general knowledge required for success in the college programs. All qualified students are urged to take the test.

Each candidate will be required to indicate on the day of the test, his preference for the Army or Navy program. However, taking the test does not constitute an enlistment, and, having taken the test, a student is not obligated to enter the program if he is accepted.

Technicians Needed

The purpose of the Army Specialized Training Program is to meet Army needs for specialists and technicians in certain critical fields. Those selected for the program will study at government expense. Academic work will be on a college level.

The Navy V-12 College Training Program enables students to continue academic training to prepare themselves for better service in the Navy. Successful completion of various prescribed courses will lead to commissions in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Besides qualifying scholastically, candidates must meet Army and Navy physical requirements and be within the age limits of one of two groups.

Students who have attained their 17th, but not their 20th, birthday by July 1, 1944 may apply to either the Army or the Navy. Those who have reached their 20th, but not their 22nd, birthday by the above date may apply only for the Army program.

High Physical Standards

In general the Army physical requirements are as follows: Minimum height 5 ft., maximus 6 ft., 6. Minimum visual acuity of 20/20 without glasses, correctable with glasses to 20/40 in each eye. Weight proportional to height. Ten serviceable upper and ten serviceable lower teeth. Normal hearing (15/15) in each ear for whispered voice. No chronic or venereal disease.

Requirements for the Navy Program are in general as follows: Minimum height 5 ft., 5½ in maximum 6 ft. 4 in. Minimum visual acuity of 18/20 in each eye, correctable to 20/20. Normal color perception. Weight proportional to height. Twenty vital serviceable teeth, and other standards obtainable in the Navy Medical Manual.

Leaflets, general information forms and "Admission and Identification" forms are obtainable in room 117 Mendel Hall. Students who plan to take the test should make this fact known to Fr. McQuade as soon as possible in order that necessary test supplies may be secured. Further information may be obtained from Fr. McQuade.

A. I. Ch.E. Meets

At a meeting of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers held in Room 215 Mendel last Friday evening, Dr. Thomas Nelson, noted metallurgist, gave a talk on "The History of the Steel Industry." He demonstrated various points through the use of lantern slides.

man on the team, Harry Keefrider.

Hard luck in the form of sloppy baton handling, and accidents on the track caused this new team to place third in the succeeding National A.A.U. and I.C.4A meets, losing to teams whose times they had formery surpassed. Rallying in the Knights of Columbus Games in N. Y., the Wildcats garnered another first, finally followed by a second in the K. of C. Meet in Cleveland. So, with no coach, new runners and stern opposition, this enthusiastic group established themselves as the best on the boards with a record of 3 firsts and a second, and 2 thirds besides the best time for the season in the mile relay competing against the cream of the crop.

It seems that this enviable record, and the proud boast of achievement is what inspired a new and less experienced group of runners to keep up Villanova tradition. You and I often noticed during the past semester, fellows like Ed Fitzgerald and John Foreman, running while others played football and basketball, or loafed. They were determined not to let these efforts go in vain, so gathering together, they sought out Ensign Maniaci, a former track great in his running days at Columbia, and asked him to coach the team. Their efforts weer so successful that this new group of indoor runners is entered in all the same big meets of the season that brought fame to last year's team.

One will then invariably ask what are the prospects of success for this team, and I invariably say that they have the best of chances of covering themselves with glory. Navy Transfers Basic Students

Approximately thirty-two trainees from the college V-12 unit, most of them second-semester freshmen in the "basic" classification, were given orders last week to report to various other colleges throughout the east for the beginning of the next semester. This action was in keeping with the Navy's policy of attempting to assign men to schools where they can best be prepared for the fields of work to which they are adapted, and for which, in many cases, they stated a preference.

Men have been assigned to the following schools, all of which have been members of the Navy College Training Program since its inception: Cornell University, Yale University, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, University of Virginia, North Carolina University, University of Pennsylvania, and Muhlenberg College.

A number of trainees who have completed two or more semesters in other schools, particularly men scheduled to study pre-medical and engineering courses, will report here for their next semester's work. In addition, it is probable that men from the fleet who have been accepted for V-12, as well as civilians who qualified in the aptitude test given last November 9, will be assigned here as basic students.

Delta Pi Epsilon To Hold Initiation And Annual Smoker

Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance School's fraternity, will become active again next week when it conducts its annual initiation and smoker on the evening of Friday, Feb. 18.

John Fitzgibbons, President of the organization, has named Hugh Burns, A.S., and John Reddy as Co-Chairmen of the Pledging Committee, Joseph Foley and Harry Watters as heads of the Initiation Committee, and Edward Gallagher and Private William Devine as Co-Chairmen of the Entertainment Committee.

After the initiation, which will open the affair, the new members will be the guests of their older "brothers" for an evening of entertainment and refreshments.

Commerce and Finance students must apply for admission to the fraternity no later than tomorrow, February 9th, when all members of D.P.E. meet at 1 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel. Prospective members, whether or not they have made previous application, are urged to attend.

Student Council Completes Plans for "Winter Hop"

Valentine's Day Provides Theme For Saturday's Dance; Bansbach Predicts Financial Success As Ticket Sales Proceed At Satisfactory Rate

Villanova's "Winter Hop," featuring the music of "The Haverfordians," under the leadership of Rice Longaker, will take place at the Field House this coming Saturday night, February 12.

The services of "The Haverfordians" were secured by the band committee through the Philadelphia Orchestra Agency. A preview of the band's style of playing was given at the recent "Hearts and Heroes" dance held at the nearby College of Chestnut Hill.

In keeping with the calendar, the theme of the dance will be that of St. Valentine's Day. Decorations will correspond to the occasion.

Chairmen and co-chairmen of the various committees working on the dance are as follows: Band, Pvt. Sabino Carrone and Carton Conway, A. S.; Decorations, Arthur Roth and William Boyle; Programs, Frank O'Connor, A. S., Pat Reagan and Bill Schurr; Refreshments, Lou Eni; Tickets, Frank Quinn, A. S. The committees are being coordinated in their efforts by Chairman Herbert Bansbach, A. S., and his assistant, Frank O'Connor, A. S.

Ticket Sales Progressing

Interviewed in reference to the dance, Bansbach, who is also chairman of the Student Council, announced that plans for the selection of a Valentine Queen had been dropped since such a choice promises to be difficult to make. Commenting upon the financial outlook of the dance, Bansbach stated," The sale of tickets is going well, and good attendance is expected.

Tickets will remain on sale in the respective halls until Friday, February 11, after which time they must be obtained at the door. Admission will be $2.20 per couple and the dance will be informal, lasting from nine to one. Those interested may contact one of the following: Alumni Hall—Apprentince Seamen George Haupt and Harold Peifer; Austin Hall—Pvts. Sabino Carrone and John Killelea; Fedigan Hall—Apprentice Seamen Herbert Bansbach, Bernard Borshke and Hugh Burns; Mendel Hall—Apprentice Seamen Carton Conway, Frank O'Connor and Frank Quinn; Civilians—John Fitzgibbons, Joseph Foley and Bernard Cassidy.

As in the past, the stage will be converted into a lounge for the dance. Concerning the possibilities of restricted trainees attending the dance, an announcement will be forthcoming.

V-12, ASTP Give Qualifying Test

Program Still Open to Civilians; Candidates to Take Examination March 15

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Assistant to the President, has announced that the Third Army-Navy College Qualifying Test for the Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy V-12 Program will be given at Villanova on Monday, March 15, at 9:00 A. M. The same exam will be given for both Army and Navy candidates.

The test is designed to measure the aptitude and general knowledge required for success in the college programs. All qualified students are urged to take the test.

Each candidate will be required to indicate on the day of the test, his preference for the Army or Navy program. However, taking the test does not constitute an enlistment, and, having taken the test, a student is not obligated to enter the program if he is accepted.

Technicians Needed

The purpose of the Army Specialized Training Program is to meet Army needs for specialists and technicians in certain critical fields. Those selected for the program will study at government expense. Academic work will be on a college level.

The Navy V-12 College Training Program enables students to continue academic training to prepare themselves for better service in the Navy. Successful completion of various prescribed courses will lead to commissions in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Besides qualifying scholastically, candidates must meet Army and Navy physical requirements and be within the age limits of one of two groups.

Students who have attained their 17th, but not their 20th, birthday by July 1, 1944 may apply to either the Army or the Navy. Those who have reached their 20th, but not their 22nd, birthday by the above date may apply only for the Army program.

High Physical Standards

In general the Army physical requirements are as follows: Minimum height 5 ft., maximus 6 ft., 6. Minimum visual acuity of 20/20 without glasses, correctable with glasses to 20/40 in each eye. Weight proportional to height. Ten serviceable upper and ten serviceable lower teeth. Normal hearing (15/15) in each ear for whispered voice. No chronic or venereal disease.

Requirements for the Navy Program are in general as follows: Minimum height 5 ft., 5½ in maximum 6 ft. 4 in. Minimum visual acuity of 18/20 in each eye, correctable to 20/20. Normal color perception. Weight proportional to height. Twenty vital serviceable teeth, and other standards obtainable in the Navy Medical Manual.

Leaflets, general information forms and "Admission and Identification" forms are obtainable in room 117 Mendel Hall. Students who plan to take the test should make this fact known to Fr. McQuade as soon as possible in order that necessary test supplies may be secured. Further information may be obtained from Fr. McQuade.

A. I. Ch.E. Meets

At a meeting of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers held in Room 215 Mendel last Friday evening, Dr. Thomas Nelson, noted metallurgist, gave a talk on "The History of the Steel Industry." He demonstrated various points through the use of lantern slides.

Religion and Racial Justice

THIS is the first in a series of articles which will endeavor to answer questions concerning the negro problem which have been put to the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council. The question for this issue is: What is the Catholic Church doing to alleviate the negro situation in the United States?

The Catholic Church in the United States has been very active in regard to the negro question because it realizes the importance, in this country, in the present era of this question, and that the negro race has been subjugated too long. Ranking high in the church's efforts are the diverse religious orders which specialize in working among the negroes. The Josephite Fathers exemplify this group. After ordination they go to the hostile regions of the South where they labor among the millions of ignorant and religionless negroes. They are obliged to build churches, often with their own hands, and then for the rest of their lives they must literally fight for their congregation. The life of any priest is hard, but that of a missionary is one-hundred-fold worse.

Besides heroic missionaries, the church applies other means to alleviate the dreaded social sickness of "racial hatred." In many cities, Philadelphia included, Interracial Councils under the auspices of Catholic groups have been founded. These councils not only discuss the negro situation but also attempt to act accordingly and thereby give justice to the negro. College groups also have been united in the same cause. Our own college, La Salle, is a charter member of the college group in this area.

For those of the laity who cannot attend these councils the church has inaugurated an Archconfraternity of Christian Doctrine. The members of this group donate their services, whenever they can, to teach religion to colored children. In Philadelphia alone, hundreds of these laborers are urgently needed. However, many of those people who would like to help, feel that they are incapable of teaching. For these the church has social worker's jobs. Beside these important positions mentioned, the Church participates in myriad ways in aiding the negro. However, all the organizations of the church combined are but a pailful from the ocean, in comparison to the work which needs to be done. But this vital work will not be accomplished until we have the full attention and aid of the entire Catholic Church, both clergy and laity.

Father Stanford's office-door has been wide open to all students, from the humblest freshman to the graduating senior. Villanova today tenders her President sincerest gratitude and congratulations on the occasion of his coming birthday and twenty-fifth Anniversary.

Meet the Boys

Here's A Quartet From Good Counsel Hall: Ed, Alex, Gene And John — Pinochlers All

By JOHN DEMPSEY, A.S.

FIRST of the Good Counsel quartet to receive our attention this week is Edward Lucas, of Chicago, Illinois and points East. The travelling is a late development, however, since Ed attended both grammar and high school in the Windy City.

Immediately after high school, however, Ed rushed to the ticket office and bought himself a one-way trip to Villanova. That was four years ago—September of 1940, to be exact—and from a quick slide-rule calculation we deduced that he should be leaving here soon. He informed us that we were almost correct, and that he would be departing at the end of this month.

Ed will carry with him fond memories of his days as an active member of the engineering fraternity and the math society, and as a frequent participant in intramural sports.

His future plans are rather vague, but he "expects" to enter the armed forces soon.

NEXT to be waited on is Alexander Infanzon, one of our friends from "South of the Border"—down Puerto Rico way.

Alex remained an island boy for a good many years, as he finished his secondary schooling right in San Juan. 'Way back in 1940, however, he found his way into the States and—ignoring Horace Greeley—headed north for Pennsylvania, whence he found his way to Villanova. Deciding to stay awhile, he unpacked his bags and enrolled as a biology student.

Never one to let the world roll by, Alex took an interest in College Dramatics and was a member of the Villanova team that won the cultural Olympic prize at the University of Pennsylvania for the best half-hour show.

Al is going to further his knowledge with post-graduate work at Penn.

SINGING tenor in our civilian quartet is Gene Sebastian, who breathed his first lungfull of coal dust in Locust Gap, Pa.

He attended grade school and high school—in the usual order—and in the latter distinguished himself by his scholarship, being both an honor student and the class valedictorian. He didn't believe in favoring mind to manner, however, and devoted a good deal of his time to intramural sports.

In 1940, Gene slid down from the mountains and his Villanova with a bang. After enrolling as a chemistry major he started to devote his time to extra-curricular activities and soon became interested in the German Club, as well as the ever-present Phi Kappa Pi frat.

In a few weeks Gene will have departed for the Army, and we hope that he will find there many of the spaghetti dinners he loves so much.

FINALLY we have John Cella of "that little sand dune east of Philly"—New Jersey. John got his first mosquito bite on the first of May, 1923, and didn't escape them till he followed Washington across the Delaware and settled in the lush, green hills of Pennsylvania four years ago.

Previous to coming here, however, Jack did some travelling on his own. He attended both military school and high school in New York. Like his friends of the upper regions of this column, Jack struck Villanova in the fall of '40, when he signed up as a mechanical engineering student. He was quick to join those landmarks of the engineering school—A.S.M.E. and Phi Kappa Pi.

". . . As a Christmas present from the ship we received a package of cigarettes, a cigar, two bars of candy, and an orange. The orange was the first fresh fruit we have had since leaving the States and I can assure you that it was really appreciated. Candy is rationed, so that also was a treat.

"We have no Catholic chaplain on board, so today I am getting the officers and men together in the mess hall and will read the Epistle, Gospel, say a few words on the significance of Christmas, then say the Joyful Mysteries of the Rosary. That is the least we can do to remember that we are Catholics and what Christmas means to us."

Tom expects to graduate and receive his wings and become a second lieutenant or flight officer within the next six weeks. Aviation Cadet Jack Masson at Douglas, Arizona is also graduating from advanced flight training. Jack will get his wings and bars sometime this week and is expected home soon after. Still another Aviation Cadet, Ray Baldwin, is in basic flying school at Chico, California and is expected to graduate in May or June.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Swarthmore And Bucknell Avenge Previous Defeats

Garnet Wins 41-38 on Home Court; Blue and White Lose 49-39 to Bisons in Return Encounter

Determined to form some sort of a streak, the Wildcat quintet molded the first two links of what may be a new losing chain. On successive Wednesday and Saturdays nights, the Villanova basketeers dropped ball games to teams which they had already beaten earlier in the season.

With the heartening effect of a victory over Rider College under their belts, it was a spirited but inept Blue and White team that was taken into the stables by the sharp players of Swarthmore 41-38. It was the prolific Jake Early who had starred here at West Catholic H. S., and later at Lehigh, who tossed in 12 points in the form of 5 field goals and two charity tosses to submerge Villanova and take scoring honors for the evening. In the opening minutes the 'Cats played as good felines should play but it was not enough to keep the Little Quakers. On a series of quick field goals by the towering Ray Winch and Harry Boardman, the Garnet swept away to a 21-18 halftime lead. Stretching this lead to 25-18 at the opening of the second half, the Garnet maintained this seven point advantage until the end of the game when the 'Cats rallied to tighten the final edition of score to a three point defeat.

Saturday, the Thundering Herd from galloped into the field house with revenge in their hearts and the ability to satisfy it in their playing. Not only did they avenge the one point, two extra period setback of a few weeks ago but did it in most convincing manner by winning 49-39 High scoring Bill Hoeveler, Temple's gift to the bucknell V-12 Unit, again assummed the major role in point getting, who flipped in 5 filed goals and 3 fouls to top the scoring for the noght.

To say that the Wildcats didn't fight would be wrong for the opening half was a very tight ball game, leaping forward with a 4 point lead, the Blue and White seemed to be readed to another win but, alas and alack, the Bison started to drive and the 'Cats scratched back. The two teams were knotted in scoring at 11, 14, 16 17 and17 during this fitful first half but the Herd pulled away to a 24-20 lead at the half.

Back to win in the second half,

Kolnaski Regains Lead In Scoring

Ed Kolnaski, Fedigan Hall's gift to the high scoring brackets, took undisputed possession of top scoring honors for the Intramural Basketball League. One point behind the Marine sensation, "Red" Nealon, last week, Kolnaski counted 20 points in the week's game to nudge Nealon out of first spot. Nealon dropped down to third place due chiefly to the Marines being idle Tuesday evening.

Joe Walters who was the major factor in Alumni hall's march to the championship climbed from a far fourth place last week to second natch. In the two games, Walters accounted for 35 points. "Newt" Ward dropped one position to fourth spot. Al Kasulin, a newcomer to the top five, pushed his running mate, Ray Kasper, out to take fifth place.

Third-Deckers Beaten 3-1 as Phillies Assume Undisputed Possession of First Place

The Phillies defeated the Mendel 3rd-Deckers 3-1 to break the tie between the two teams, and take undisputed possession of first place in the PKP kegler's league on Saturday afternoon. The same day also saw the Ship's Company take the Mendel 4th deckmen into camp by the same score, and thus tie the 3rd deck for second place.

In other contests, the Junior Civils split with the Senior Chems, and the Soph Day-Hops lost to the Senior Mechanicals, 3-1, while the Holy Rollers had four more added to their win column as a result of a forfeit by the Swabs.

Team high three for the third straight week went to the Ship's Company with a 2261. The Navy men also took the team high single game as they rolled an 802, while the day's individual scoring honors went to Jordan Olivar again, as he cut down a total of 496 pins.

Coming in second behind the Navy team in the high three were the Junior Civils, who managed to score 2177, just exactly 84 pins lower than the Sailors, and the 3rd Deck Engineers just missed beating the Gobs by 4 pins in the team high singles as they rolled a 799.

In the individual average department, Bonifiglia rolled just enough this week to average 169.6 for the season, and take the lead away from Bill Thompson, whose score dropped to 169.5. Jordan Olivar passed Angie Rosa whose 495 for the day dropped his average to 161, while the former boosted his to a 167.

Mile Relay Quartet Wins Heat In Millrose Games

Regan, Fitzgerald, Cox, And Schmidt Represent Blue And White In First Meet Of Indoor Season; 30-Yard Lead At Finish

Villanova's mile relay quartet, composed of Bob Regan, Burton Cox, Harry Schmidt and Ed Fitzgerald, won their heat of the 37th Annual Millrose Track and Field Games last Saturday, February 5, in Madison Square Garden. The time was a slow 3.33.2, but they led Rhode Island State under the wire by a good 30 yards.

Pushed to the limit by the New England boys during the second and third quarters, the Villanova quartet managed to pull away as the anchor man, Ed Fitzgerald, finally picked up the necessary yardage to coast home.

However, N. Y. U. had the better time, 3.24.5, and consequently the honor of winning the meet went to the Tigers.

Slow Start

Also competing in the annual affair was the recent recipient of the Sullivan Award, America's outstanding amateur athlete, Gil Dodds, who won the Wanamaker Mile in 4 minutes, 10.6 seconds. Dodds, a theological student from Boston, was the last to get away at the start but quickly picked up what he lost and was in second place at the end of the first quarter.

From here on the spectators were expecting a new record as the eventual winner pulled away from the field during the second and third quarters with times of 2.01.3 and 3.04. The final quarter-mile was a disappointment, however, as Dodds evidently tired and after the blistering pace he had kept up he just managed to keep ahead of Bill Hulse in the slow time of 66 seconds.

Ewell Beaten

In the surprise of the meet, Claude Young, of Illinois, nipped Barney Ewell, Penn State's former great, in the last stride to win the 60-yard dash in 6.2 seconds. In this race, the co-holder of the world's indoor record of 6.1, Herbert Thompson, finished fourth behind Ed Conwell of N.Y.U.

Joe Hall, stocky little New England half-mile champion, representing Columbia, came off the pace of Dartmouth's Bill Atkinson and stalled off the last-lap challenge of Al Daily, New York A. C., to win the 880 in the ordinary time of 1 minute, 57.3 seconds.

Naval Academy And Sampson NTS Next Opponents

Wildcats Travel to Sampson in Attempt to Even Score; Engage Middies at Annapolis Tomorrow

The Wildcat basketeers, licking their wounds of the past few games are hard at work trying to get back into form to meet what is perhaps the toughest week on their schedule. The Villanovans are running into a dark cloud of Navy blue in the form of red hot ball clubs from the cademy at Annapolis, and the Naval Training base at Sampson, New York. On the basis of previous performances, either of thees teams are enough trouble for any week but to have them right is a row is a task worthy of giants.

Finest Middie Team

Wednesday night, the club is due at Crabtown to meet what is undoubtedly the finest Middie team in years. Unhampered by conscription worries, the Sailors have been mowing down all competition, and their coming traditional game with unbeaten Army shapes up as a real Basketball classic.

Chief thorn in the Wildcats' side figures to be big Jim Longacre, point producing forward who has kept Blue and Gold rivals at arms length all season. Longacre, with a whole squad of sky scraping buddies, presents a serious problem to a weakened Villanova team.

Only Two Losses

But these are not all the troubles falling to Coach Severance this week, for Saturday night, again playing out of town, the club will tap off at Sampson, meeting again the trainees from N. Y. Unable to defeat them either in football or in our first meeting on the court, the Blue and White is determined to do something about this incipient jinx.

However, they will certainly have to extend themselves, for up until Saturday night, the Sailors had lost only two games, and these, to the best in the East, Army and Dartmouth. Then last week-end the New York Coast Guards sneaked in a haymaker on their overconfident buttons, and undoubtedly the Sailors are now out for opponents' blood. So all in all it looks like a very tough week ahead for the boys on the hardwood.

Alumni Clinches Title Tie By Downing Marines 38-36

Alumni Hall took the crown for the Intramural Basketball League on Thursday evening by defeating the challenging Marines in a thrilling 38-36 battle. Joe Walters, playing an outstanding game for the new champs, fittingly put the cap on the game with the clinching field goal, bringing his game topping individual score to 19 points.

Alumni had won their Tuesday affair with the Residents, 50-19, to bring a record of seven wins and no losses to the deciding game. The Marines had likewise added a victory to their total when the Day Hops forfeited their scheduled game for Tuesday. Fedigan Hall won their two games for the week when they took Mendel, 36-28, and the Day Hops 43-19 in that order. Mendel won the week's remaining game on Thursday from the Residents.

Alumni Never Headed

Engaging in a neck-and-neck contest for the whole game, Alumni twice pulled away from the Leathernecks with substantial leads only to have the Austin boys overhaul them. The Marines overcame a five point deficit in the first half to take the lead toward the end of that period, 17-14. Heeding the cries of Alumni rooters for quick shots before time ran out, Ed Powers threw a long basket from one side of the court behind the midway mark. Alumni then promptly took the ball away from the Marines, and Joe Walters tallied a field goal with another midcourt shot to boost Alumni to the first half lead.

Alumni hustled as the second half opened to pull away as the Marines stood dead in their tracks. With seven minutes remaining in the game, the score stood 29-17 against the Marines. However, during the next three minutes the Austin five cut the score down to 31-25. Alumni countered with goals by Walters and Boyle, while Al Kasulin raised the Austin score two points. The Marines then put on their stretch drive to bring the score to 37-35, still in Alumni's favor, with one minute left. The spectators rose to their feet as a double foul was called giving Nealon and Harvey, representatives from each team, one shot apiece. Nealon brought the score to 37-36, and the pressure mounted on Harvey. Coolly, however, Harvey closed the scoring for the game and likewise sealed the outcome as his shot snapped the cords, giving Alumni Hall the Intramural championship.

Day Hops Lose Two

Fedigan, winning two games, fastened an exclusive grip on third place. The scoring twins, Anderson and Kolnaski, bagged eleven points apiece on Tuesday night to bring woe to the Engineers from Mendel; and on Thursday, it was Leo Noll who directed the west-end boys to

Navy Outpoints Faculty 27-25 In Close Contest

By HARRY W. AUGUST, LT., USNR

The Faculty just didn't have the staying power!

The good priests do well in the classroom and always are able to hold their own with even the largest classes.

They are without peers in the dining hall, always being able to grapple with a steak or pork chop with the best of them.

And, there are other fields in which they have no peers.

But, on the basketball floor, they don't have the stamina, the power, that final bit of effort that it takes to bring victory.

It must be said that they are great front runners, and look awful good when they are ahead.

All this Mammy Palaver is apropos of nothing more than the basketball game between the aforementioned priests and the Ship's Company last Wednesday night at the field house.

The score was 27 to 25 in favor of the Navy-Marine combination, but it well could have been overwhelming had the Ship's Company really extended itself, and not held its real strength in reserve. As a matter of fact, the Navy outfit did not feel it even necessary to call on its real stars for this match. Too, the Ship's Company insisted that a friendly referee and scorer be used for the benefit of the Faculty. One of the Navy players wore a sweat suit for almost half of the game as an additional handicap.

Father Gerolomi Stars

The priests got off to a running start, due largely to the superb shooting and under-basket work by Father Gerolomi, whose abilities were underestimated, and who was not watched as closely as he should have been. Father Gerolomi was the leading scorer of the night with six field goals.

The priests led, 13 to 6, at the end of the first quarter, but the Ship's Company was unperturbed for even at this early stage it was apparent that the Faculty would be unable to sustain its sizzling pace.

As the second quarter opened, the Ships' Company merely turned on a minute amount of heat and soon forged on even terms with the priests. From that point out, it was merely a question of how close the Navy would allow the priests to come.

The score at the half was 15 to 15, and as the third period opened the Ship's Company played a tantalizing game, allowing the priests to score once in a while just to remain within what they thought was striking distance. However, the Navy always had the situation well in hand, and well under control.

Replay Demanded

Father McKee, his sleek, athletic figure garbed in the latest in uniforms, played a superb game, especially in the third period when he ran up and down the sidelines urging his men on to greater effort (and wheedling a few points onto the priests' score or off the Navy score in between times).

There is no use of going into the stars of the game from the Navy viewpoint, as it was a closely-knit, smoothly co-ordinated team that played in flawless fashion and merely toyed with the opposition.

After the game, the priests set up a shout for another game, but the Navy players could see no reason to expose them to further slaughter. The priests wanted to continue playing games each week until they could win one, perhaps by catching the Navy some time when they were in a weakened condition.

Refs to Help Priests

All the Navy players showed their superb physical condition by never showing the slightest sign of exhaustion. It was apparent that they could have gone at top speed throughout the game had it been necessary. This is due to the rigorous schedule they insist upon maintaining for themselves.

In addition to Father Gerolomi, Father Kemme displayed good "form" by getting four field goals. Also on the floor for the priests were Fathers Kropp, Klekotka, McKee, Burke and McCarthy.

Refereeing were Private Kasulin and Apprentice Seaman Hobbs. Scoring was by courtesy of Apprentice Seaman Schiff. All three had been instructed by "high" Navy officers to give every possible break to the priests, but it was known in advance that even that would not be of enough help to allow the Faculty to emerge victorious.

a decisive victory over the Day Hops with his twelve points.

Mendel dropped from a third place tie to a definite fourth rung. Having lost to Fedigan early in the week, the slide-rule five came back to beat the Residents in a game which for a long time had the appearance of a baseball score. At halftime Mendel led 8-1. However, the Residents returned to take the lead 9-8. George Stathopolous then scored a lay-up, putting Mendel in the lead once more 10-9. After that point, the Engineers pulled away to a win, for Tom McQuaide's foul shot was the lone Residents score from there to the final whistle.

The Day Hops in losing two games dropped to fifth spot from last week's three way third place tie. Forced to play on Thursday night without the services of two members of their starting five, Simpson and Welsh, they dropped one to Fedigan. However they were not even that fortunate on Tuesday when they forfeited to the Marines.

Fitzgibbons New Editor-In-Chief Of College Annual

Despite the fact that, until recently, a 1944 edition of the College annual, the Belle Air, was considered an impossibility because of prevailing conditions, the moderators of the publication have just announced definitely that the book will be published this year.

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Assistant Professor of English, who are in charge of the yearbook, have appointed John Fitzgibbons, a sophomore day-student in the Commerce and Finance School, as Editor-in-Chief. This is the first time in the 21-year history of the Belle Air that a sophomore has held this position. Other appointments to the editorial staff will be announced later.

In the form of a slightly abridged "Wartime Edition," the book will be available before October of this year. It will cost $5.00 for servicemen. The price of the book will be deducted from the regular activity fees of non-service students, and civilians graduating at the end of this semester will be charged $2.00, payable before graduation.

Subscriptions Determine Size

The size, which is directly dependent on the capital available, will be determined by the number of subscriptions obtained from the servicemen and graduating seniors, and also on the amount of advertising which can be obtained. Copies of the book should be ordered as soon as possible. They will be reserved upon payment of $1.00 to any Belle Air representative.

Work on this new edition is to start immediately. A photographer will be here tomorrow to take pictures of the graduating seniors, who are to report to the reception room of Austin Hall at a time which is to be posted on the bulletin boards this afternoon. Students not scheduled to graduate, but who may be leaving school after this semester for other reasons, may also have their pictures taken at this time, provided they first contact Fitzgibbons. He will be available in the Belle Air Office, on the second floor of Mendel Hall, between 3:30 and 5:00 P. M. today, or tomorrow between noon and 1:30. There will be a charge of $1.00 per sitting. Pictures of the varsity track and basketball teams, as well as the intramural basketball teams, will also be taken tomorrow. Notices will be posted to give further information.

Commissions Open to Graduating Seniors

A bulletin containing information pertaining to the application for reserve commissions in the Navy has just been published by the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, located in the Widener Building in Philadelphia. It reads as follows:

Approximately two weeks prior to graduation seniors of accredited universities or colleges not now enlisted in any of the armed services may apply in person to the Philadelphia Office of Naval Officer Procurement for appointment as a commissioned officer in the Naval Reserve.

Each applicant must bring with him a letter from the registrar or dean of the school attended, certifying that he is scheduled to be graduated on a specified date.

Acceptable candidates who are physically qualified will then be given formal application papers to be completed and returned to the Office of Naval Officer Procurement after graduation and award of degree.

NEXT EDITION MARCH 14

This is the last issue of the Villanovan until March 14.

Naval R.O.T.C. Open to V-12'ers With 3 or 4 Terms

Positions Open For 500 Candidates Who Meet Requirements For Navy's Other College Program

Immediate demand for the commissioning of additional young Naval officers has necessitated the further acceleration of the regular Naval R. O. T. C. program. Early commissioning of some of those now in the program will create vacancies in Naval Reserve Officer Training units which will be available to a limited number of advanced students in the V-12 program. Such students must be selected immediately so that they may be enrolled in NROTC at the beginning of the term starting on March 1, 1944.

Approximately 500 candidates will be selected — 250 for NROTC Engineering and 250 for NROTC General. Because of the limited number of billets available, only those exceptionally well-qualified should be recommended.

If the needs of the service permit, a total of seven terms of college, including that taken prior to entrance into V-12, will be allowed for all subject students.

These students will complete, in the additional terms allowed, all Naval Science and Tactic's Courses as listed under the standard curricula for such courses, and in addition will in general conform as closely as possible to the balance of those same curricula.

Requirements for all candidates:

1. Entrance into V-12 with advanced standing, i.e., having had some college work prior to entrance into V-12.
2. Regular V-12 physical qualifications (not V-12 (S)).
3. Pre-medical, pre-dental, and pree-theological candidates, and all enlisted marines are not eligible.
4. Better than average rating on officer-like qualities.
5. Better than average, college record and achievement test score (where available).

Additional requirements for N. R. O. T. C. Engineering:

1. Completion of only 3 or 4 terms of collegee by March 1, including that taken prior to entrance into V-12.
2. Current enrollment in courses for and current classification as a major in engineering.

Additional requirements for N. R. O. T. C. General:

1. Completion of only 3 or 4 terms of college by March 1, including that taken prior to entrance into V-12.
2. Completion by March 1 of all minimum requirements for Deck Candidates as listed in the V-12 bulletin.

Exceptions may be made in certain special cases of students who by March 1 will complete only two terms of college, including any taken prior to entrance into V-12, under the following conditions:

1. They must be students whose program has been irregular in some respect, so that they were not screened to a specialty under the regular procedures.
2. They must be exceptionally desirable candidates whom the commanding officer is willing to recommend for special consideration.
3. For such candidates a special letter of recommendation should be submitted.

De Vittorio Wounded

Word has just been received that Captain Armond A. De Vittorio, a graduate of Villanova's pre-Medical School in the class of 1934, was wounded in the right arm by shrapnel on January 7 in an engagement on the Italian mainland. He was also a graduate of the medical school at Temple University.

De Vittorio enlisted in the Army Medical Corps and was sent overseas on May 10, 1942. Besides the Purple Heart which he received for his wound, he holds the Legion of Merit for "extraordinary meritorious service in the invasion of Oran and subsequent operations in Algeria and Tunisia."

Forty-four Graduating Students To Receive Degrees February 27

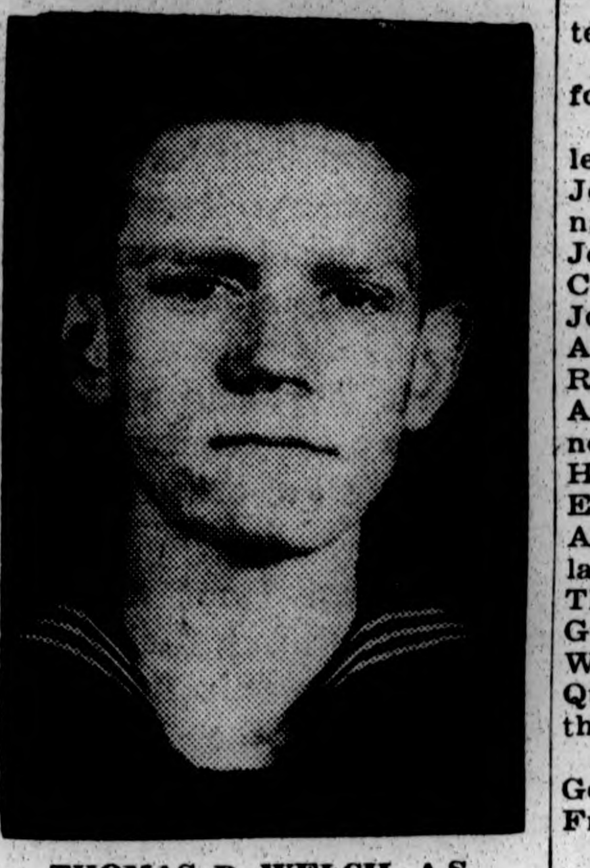
Welch Succeeds Hoberg as Head Of Villanovan

Fr. McKee Makes Appointments In Term Change-over; Schmitt Becomes New College Editor

In the usual bi-semesterly change-over of staff, Thomas P. Welch, A.S., has been chosen to succeed George C. Hoberg, A.S., as Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan, according to an announcement made last week by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of the publication.

Welch, who is now finishing his sophomore year of electrical engineering, assumes the post after two semesters of experience with the staff. During this time, he executed the duties of Copy Editor.

New Editor



THOMAS P. WELCH, A.S.

Other changes include Pvt. Lawrence J. Schmitt, who replaces Thomas F. Hitchell as College Editor; John J. Dempsey, A.S., Copy Editor; Frank Perna, who relieves Harold J. O'Connor as Business Manager, and Albert J. Derr, who was promoted to Photography Editor from Photography Assistant.

The following appointments, made during the course of the last semester, will be continued for another four months: Edward Gallagher and John Reddy, Circulation Co-Managers, and John Coyne, Subscription Manager.

Edited Year Book

Welch first gained journalistic experience as editor of the year book at Malvern Preparatory School. Since coming to Villanova on a scholarship in September of 1942, he has been a consistent honor student. Besides his work on the paper, he is a member of the Sanctuary Society and has participated in intra-mural swimming activities.

Schmitt, the incoming college editor, came to Villanova from Loyola College in July. At Loyola, he was majoring in Chemistry and Philosophy, and would have graduated this semester; but, since he has been studying Electrical Engineering as a member of the Marine Cordps, he will be here for a few more semesters.

Dempsey, like Welch, is a transfer from civilian days at Villanova, to which he too had come on a scholarship. A member of the Science School, he is an honor student and will leave either for Medical School or Midshipman's School in June. He has been on the paper for two semesters.

Perna, who is a junior in the C. & F. School, has had ample experience for his job. He has served on the business staffs of both the Belle Air and Villanovan for several semesters, and has assisted Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A., in discharging the duties of the Alumni Office for some time.

Most Of First Section Of Class Of '44 To Receive Engineering Degrees

The first section of the Class of 1944 will be graduated with appropriate ceremony in the College Chapel on Feb. 27. From available information it is predicted that about forty-four students will receive degrees. This number represents only a third of the entire Class of 1944, since two similar groups will graduate at the end of the spring and summer semesters.

Approximately three-fourths of the class will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Engineering. Although most of the graduating students are civilians, the school's V-12 unit contributes twelve Navy and four Marine Corps trainees. The traditional Solemn High Mass will be celebrated by Very Rev. Edward V Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova, with Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., acting as deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. The guest speaker has not yet been decided upon.

After mass the men will be entertained at a luncheon.

The proposed list of graduates follows:

B.S. in Engineering—John L. Allen, A.S., Herbert Bansbach, A.S., John N. Breen, Edward C. Brennan, A.S., Thomas Calpin, A.S., John T. Cella, Philip Cellucci, Peter C. Conway, A.S., James Correale, Joseph C. Donovan, William Doyle, Albert Durante, Louis J. Eni, John R. Farrow, Frederick Gerngross, A.S., James J. Villanova Grad Takes Part In Heroic Rescue

Navy men on a big, sleek warship refer to LCI (landing craft, infantry) as a "barge with a house on it." These ugly ducklings of the Navy are seldom noticed except to be cussed or good naturedly derided, and they do a ticklish job under fire with scant credit. This one happens to have saved fifty men from drowning in the furious white water that pounded the sharp coral ledge around Ennubirr Island during the Marine landing there Jan. 31.

Four Alligators (troop-carrying amphibian tractors) had capsized on the reef 500 yards astern of this LCI, captained by Lieut. (jg) Thomas F. Kennedy Jr. of Bryn Mawr, who was graduated from the Commerce and Finance School here in 1937.

The LCI threw a line to Dr. R. B. Hardy, Marine surgeon and former Harvard All-American football player, and P. S. Layser, J. R. Boltuc and A. J. Tideway, the three strongest swimmers among the overturned Marines.

Now it developed that the wash of the ship was strong enough to break the hold of the other castaways on the line. So Lieutenant Kennedy brought out two more ropes and Layser and Tideway held them in their hands to form a square around the outside of the viciously tugging current. By this route all of the stranded men were brought aboard.

Lieutenant Kennedy was about to order his lines hauled in when two more Alligators capsized on the reef. In all, fifty men were saved.

Mendel dropped from a third place tie to a definite fourth rung. Having lost to Fedigan early in the week, the slide-rule five came back to beat the Residents in a game which for a long time had the appearance of a baseball score. At halftime Mendel led 8-1. However, the Residents returned to take the lead 9-8. George Stathopolous then scored a lay-up, putting Mendel in the lead once more 10-9. After that point, the Engineers pulled away to a win, for Tom McQuaide's foul shot was the lone Residents score from there to the final whistle.

The Day Hops in losing two games dropped to fifth spot from last week's three way third place tie. Forced to play on Thursday night without the services of two members of their starting five, Simpson and Welsh, they dropped one to Fedigan. However they were not even that fortunate on Tuesday when they forfeited to the Marines.

the Main Liners tied the score once more but the breaks went against them as Frank Frascella, High man for the Wildcats went out on fouls and a boy named Mastriani came in for the Bison and rifled 4 quick longs through the hioop to break the Villanovans back.

RECEIVES COMMISSION

A starter on last year's varsity basketball team, Joe Lord, will receive his commission as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Forces within the next month. Lord left school in 1943 when the Enlisted Reserve Corps was called up.

Fitzgibbons New Editor-In-Chief Of College Annual

Despite the fact that, until recently, a 1944 edition of the College annual, the Belle Air, was considered an impossibility because of prevailing conditions, the moderators of the publication have just announced definitely that the book will be published this year.

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Assistant Professor of English, who are in charge of the yearbook, have appointed John Fitzgibbons, a sophomore day-student in the Commerce and Finance School, as Editor-in-Chief. This is the first time in the 21-year history of the Belle Air that a sophomore has held this position. Other appointments to the editorial staff will be announced later.

In the form of a slightly abridged "Wartime Edition," the book will be available before October of this year. It will cost $5.00 for servicemen. The price of the book will be deducted from the regular activity fees of non-service students, and civilians graduating at the end of this semester will be charged $2.00, payable before graduation.

Subscriptions Determine Size

The size, which is directly dependent on the capital available, will be determined by the number of subscriptions obtained from the servicemen and graduating seniors, and also on the amount of advertising which can be obtained. Copies of the book should be ordered as soon as possible. They will be reserved upon payment of $1.00 to any Belle Air representative.

Work on this new edition is to start immediately. A photographer will be here tomorrow to take pictures of the graduating seniors, who are to report to the reception room of Austin Hall at a time which is to be posted on the bulletin boards this afternoon. Students not scheduled to graduate, but who may be leaving school after this semester for other reasons, may also have their pictures taken at this time, provided they first contact Fitzgibbons. He will be available in the Belle Air Office, on the second floor of Mendel Hall, between 3:30 and 5:00 P. M. today, or tomorrow between noon and 1:30. There will be a charge of $1.00 per sitting. Pictures of the varsity track and basketball teams, as well as the intramural basketball teams, will also be taken tomorrow. Notices will be posted to give further information.

Commissions Open to Graduating Seniors

A bulletin containing information pertaining to the application for reserve commissions in the Navy has just been published by the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, located in the Widener Building in Philadelphia. It reads as follows:

Approximately two weeks prior to graduation seniors of accredited universities or colleges not now enlisted in any of the armed services may apply in person to the Philadelphia Office of Naval Officer Procurement for appointment as a commissioned officer in the Naval Reserve.

Each applicant must bring with him a letter from the registrar or dean of the school attended, certifying that he is scheduled to be graduated on a specified date.

Acceptable candidates who are physically qualified will then be given formal application papers to be completed and returned to the Office of Naval Officer Procurement after graduation and award of degree.

NEXT EDITION MARCH 14

This is the last issue of the Villanovan until March 14.

Naval R.O.T.C. Open to V-12'ers With 3 or 4 Terms

Positions Open For 500 Candidates Who Meet Requirements For Navy's Other College Program

Immediate demand for the commissioning of additional young Naval officers has necessitated the further acceleration of the regular Naval R. O. T. C. program. Early commissioning of some of those now in the program will create vacancies in Naval Reserve Officer Training units which will be available to a limited number of advanced students in the V-12 program. Such students must be selected immediately so that they may be enrolled in NROTC at the beginning of the term starting on March 1, 1944.

Approximately 500 candidates will be selected — 250 for NROTC Engineering and 250 for NROTC General. Because of the limited number of billets available, only those exceptionally well-qualified should be recommended.

If the needs of the service permit, a total of seven terms of college, including that taken prior to entrance into V-12, will be allowed for all subject students.

These students will complete, in the additional terms allowed, all Naval Science and Tactic's Courses as listed under the standard curricula for such courses, and in addition will in general conform as closely as possible to the balance of those same curricula.

Requirements for all candidates:

1. Entrance into V-12 with advanced standing, i.e., having had some college work prior to entrance into V-12.

2. Regular V-12 physical qualifications (not V-12 (S)).

3. Pre-medical, pre-dental, and pree-theological candidates, and all enlisted marines are not eligible.

4. Better than average rating on officer-like qualities.

5. Better than average college record and achievement test score (where available).

Additional requirements for N. R. O. T. C. Engineering:

1. Completion of only 3 or 4 terms of collegee by March 1, including that taken prior to entrance into V-12.

2. Current enrollment in courses for and current classification as a major in engineering.

Additional requirements for N. R. O. T. C. General:

1. Completion of only 3 or 4 terms of college by March 1, including that taken prior to entrance into V-12.

2. Completion by March 1 of all minimum requirements for Deck Candidates as listed in the V-12 bulletin.

Exceptions may be made in certain special cases of students who by March 1 will complete only two terms of college, including any taken prior to entrance into V-12, under the following conditions:

1. They must be students whose program has been irregular in some respect, so that they were not screened to a specialty under the regular procedures.

2. They must be exceptionally desirable candidates whom the commanding officer is willing to recommend for special consideration.

3. For such candidates a special letter of recommendation should be submitted.

De Vittorio Wounded

Word has just been received that Captain Armond A. De Vittorio, a graduate of Villanova's pre-Medical School in the class of 1934, was wounded in the right arm by shrapnel on January 7 in an engagement on the Italian mainland. He was also a graduate of the medical school at Temple University.

De Vittorio enlisted in the Army Medical Corps and was sent overseas on May 10, 1942. Besides the Purple Heart which he received for his wound, he holds the Legion of Merit for "extraordinary meritorious service in the invasion of Oran and subsequent operations in Algeria and Tunisia."

Forty-four Graduating Students To Receive Degrees February 27

Welch Succeeds Hoberg as Head Of Villanovan

Fr. McKee Makes Appointments In Term Changeover; Schmitt Becomes New College Editor

In the usual bi-semesterly changeover of staff, Thomas P. Welch, A.S., has been chosen to succeed George C. Hoberg, A.S., as Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan, according to an announcement made last week by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of the publication.

Welch, who is now finishing his sophomore year of electrical engineering, assumes the post after two semesters of experience with the staff. During this time, he executed the duties of Copy Editor.

New Editor

THOMAS P. WELCH, A.S.

Other changes include Pvt. Lawrence J. Schmitt, who replaces Thomas F. Hitchell as College Editor; John J. Dempsey, A.S., Copy Editor; Frank Perna, who relieves Harold J. O'Connor as Business Manager, and Albert J. Derr, who was promoted to Photography Editor from Photography Assistant.

The following appointments, made during the course of the last semester, will be continued for another four months: Edward Gallagher and John Reddy, Circulation Co-Managers, and John Coyne, Subscription Manager.

Edited Year Book

Welch first gained journalistic experience as editor of the year book at Malvern Preparatory School. Since coming to Villanova on a scholarship in September of 1942, he has been a consistent honor student. Besides his work on the paper, he is a member of the Sanctuary Society and has participated in intra-mural swimming activities.

Schmitt, the incoming college editor, came to Villanova from Loyola College in July. At Loyola, he was majoring in Chemistry and Philosophy, and would have graduated this semester; but, since he has been studying Electrical Engineering as a member of the Marine Cordps, he will be here for a few more semesters.

Dempsey, like Welch, is a transfer from civilian days at Villanova, to which he too had come on a scholarship. A member of the Science School, he is an honor student and will leave either for Medical School or Midshipman's School in June. He has been on the paper for two semesters.

Perna, who is a junior in the C. & F. School, has had ample experience for his job. He has served on the business staffs of both the Belle Air and Villanovan for several semesters, and has assisted Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A., in discharging the duties of the Alumni Office for some time.

Most Of First Section Of Class Of '44 To Receive Engineering Degrees

The first section of the Class of 1944 will be graduated with appropriate ceremony in the College Chapel on Feb 27. From available information it is predicted that about forty-four students will receive degrees. This number represents only a third of the entire Class of 1944, since two similar groups will graduate at the end of the spring and summer semesters.

Approximately three-fourths of the class will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Engineering. Although most of the graduating students are civilians, the school's V-12 unit contributes twelve Navy and four Marine Corps trainees. The traditional Solemn High Mass will be celebrated by Very Rev. Edward V Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova, with Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., acting as deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. The guest speaker has not yet been decided upon.

After mass the men will be entertained at a luncheon.

The proposed list of graduates follows:

B.S. in Engineering—John L. Allen, A.S., Herbert Bansbach, A.S., John N. Breen, Edward C. Brennan, A.S., Thomas Calpin, A.S., John T. Cella, Philip Cellucci, Peter C. Conway, A.S., James Correale, Joseph C. Donovan, William Doyle, Albert Durante, Louis J. Eni, John R. Farrow, Frederick Gerngross, A.S., James J. Villanova Grad Takes Part In Heroic Rescue

Navy men on a big, sleek warship refer to LCI (landing craft, infantry) as a "barge with a house on it." These ugly ducklings of the Navy are seldom noticed except to be cussed or good naturedly derided, and they do a ticklish job under fire with scant credit. This one happens to have saved fifty men from drowning in the furious white water that pounded the sharp coral ledge around Ennubirr Island during the Marine landing there Jan. 31.

Four Alligators (troop-carrying amphibian tractors) had capsized on the reef 500 yards astern of this LCI, captained by Lieut. (jg) Thomas F. Kennedy Jr. of Bryn Mawr, who was graduated from the Commerce and Finance School here in 1937.

The LCI threw a line to Dr. R. B. Hardy, Marine surgeon and former Harvard All-American football player, and P. S. Layser, J. R. Boltuc and A. J. Tideway, the three strongest swimmers among the overturned Marines.

Now it developed that the wash of the ship was strong enough to break the hold of the other castaways on the line. So Lieutenant Kennedy brought out two more ropes and Layser and Tideway held them in their hands to form a square around the outside of the viciously tugging current. By this route all of the stranded men were brought aboard.

Lieutenant Kennedy was about to order his lines hauled in when two more Alligators capsized on the reef. In all, fifty men were saved.

Interracial Justice

THERE is no question concerning that which should be done in the case of interracial justice. Christianity preambles Democracy, and in a single voice both demand that all men are brothers and should love one another. This is more than a pretty sentiment; this is a most profound truth. It is contained in the second great Commandment of God, and is worded by Jesus Christ, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself for love of God." Regardless, therefore, of the habits of thought one has achieved, or of the prejudices one has been nursed on, the fact is simple, inevitable, indisputable. We must love everyone. Not that we must like being kicked in the face, nor that we must find appeal in being annoyed by others. No. But we are constrained to avoid hating our torturers; moreover, we are ordered by God to love them.

The negative side of the interracial case (that which must not be done) has been accomplished so often that the present sad plight is directly attributable to this line of procedure. What ought not be done is: the liberty of the many should not be subverted to the license of a few. Sad to say, the freedom of the rank-and-file of various minorities is, at present, being painfully amputated because certain select among them have been granted license to carry on as they see fit. And they oftimes see fit to carry on in a very unlovely manner.

It amounts to a well-meaning Mayor dashing up on a fire-engine and granting police protection to a Harlem criminal who has just started a riot. The criminal is as much an annoyance to the good people of Harlem as he is to the good people outside of Harlem. Outside of Harlem, however, he would be held accountable to law for his indiscretions; within Harlem, he is granted protection, that is to say, the people of Harlem have no protection against him. He has been given license, and the good people of Harlem are subject to discrimination on his account, are subject to intolerance because of the weight of his crimes, and, thus, lose their freedom.

It is seen, therefore, that the grant of license to the evil in a minority is no way to help that minority. It is the worst possible procedure, since the wrath of the people affected by the evil is wont to fall upon the heads of the entire group. This is a great modern evil, and it results not in the elimination of intolerance, but in its increase and growth. It effects not the outlaw of prejudice, but really strengthens and nurtures it. It is a crime that is born of kindness and a desire to help, yes, but it is a crime of the vilest type.

If you have guardianship over a child, and you are truthfully interested in and wholeheartedly concerned with the welfare of the child, you will warm his diminutive breeches when he becomes, for the moment, a "bad boy." You will not chain him to the floor for stealing cookies, but you will give him a physical reason of a milder sort for discontinuing the practice of thievery. In like manner, if you are honestly in love with all men, you will not condone crime when it occurs, but you will hold men accountable for misdeeds, no matter what color the criminal's skin happens to be, no matter what his religious beliefs, no matter what

Meet Big Jim Of Commerce And Finance, And Ed, A C. E. Who Sure Can Dance; We Hope The Navy Gives Pete A Chance

WALTZING into our limelight this issue is Edward L. O'Hara, gentleman, scholar, and dancer extraordinary.

Born in Philadelphia on the 4th of September, 1918, Ed began his scholastic career at Our Mother of Consolation Parochial School. Going on to bigger and better things, he attended La Salle High School. Here he distinguished himself as a member of La Salle's Track and Swimming Squads, while at the same time proving his scholastic mettle by winning the Mathematics Medal.

The next two years following graduation from La Salle found Ed at Midvale Steel Corporation, employed in the forging department.

It was during this period that Ed's contributions to the Terpsichorean Art took place: Ed and his two sisters were engaged in professional dancing at varied private affairs, in Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Little need be said about their grace and form for their trophies speak in our stead, as does the fact that Ed placed second in the Pennsylvania Championship in waltzing for 1939.

Scholastic life again overtook Ed however, and 1940 found him enrolling at Villanova in the Chemical Engineering Department. In due time Phi Kappa Pi, the A.I.Ch.E., A.S.C., and the Mu Alpha Theta took him into their ranks. The last, better known as the Math Society, has honored him with its present vice-presidency.

With graduation drawing nearer, Ed is now engaged in his thesis work, busily laying out equipment plans and preparing models for the new Chemical Engineering Building which is to be built.

Following graduation he plans to enter industry. Whatever the future holds for Ed, its culmination can be but one thing, success.

INTRODUCING another of Villanova's loyal sons, we present Peter Francis Mento, future chemical engineer.

Philadelphia became Pete's birthplace on August 6, 1922. Happy days of grammar school found Pete at Incarnation in Olney.

Graduating to prep school, Pete matriculated at St. Josephs' Prep, proving himself in both the scholastic and extra-curricular fields. Journalism struck Pete's fancy, and the Chronicle placed his name on the masthead. Intramural athletics took care of the "sanum corpus," while its counterpart, the "sana mens," Pete handled himself. How well he did this the St. Joseph's Honor Roll and Pete's various medals forcefully testify.

Villanova became Pete's destination in 1940, and Chemical Engineering became his chosen field. Neither his former scholastic standing nor extra-curricular activities lagged, for the Honor Roll still had Mento under the M's and Villanova's activities counted on his never failing support. The Villanovan, Phi Kappa Pi, Mu Alpha Theta, A.I.Ch.E. and A.S.C. placed him on their respective rolls and intramural athletics still held place in Pete's scheme of things.

Commenting on the future, Pete hoped that graduation would bring a commission in the Navy. In closing our interview, we encouraged Pete by reminding him of the Navy's extremely good taste.

SUCCESSOR to a long line of brotherly tradition at Villanova, we introduce James F. Bigley, one half of the graduating Commerce and Finance Class.

Born in Philadelphia on the 12th of September, 1920, Jim attended Northeast Catholic Boys High School, finding his mark in both curricular and extra-curricular ac-

Camp To Campus

BILL FOREBAUGH was recently transferred from Scott Field, Illinois to Lowrey Field, Colorado, where he is attending Central Fire Control School. Bill says that it is a sixteen week course that deals mainly with the B-29 bomber.

Aviation Cadet Jim Burns, who has been unassigned since his accident in Mississippi, has been sent to the Valley Forge General Hospital. Jim, I know, would welcome a visit from any of his old friends here at school.

Word finally from long-not-heard-from Bill Kellerman. Bill is a Naval Aviation Cadet and is stationed at the U. S. Air Station at Glenview, Illinois. Bill had his four months of flight preparation at the University of Pennsylvania and was sent to pre-flight school at Chapel Hill, North Carolina. His course at Glenview will end about April first when he will leave for Corpus Christi, Texas.

Jack Miller, stationed at Camp Campbell, Kentucky is now on maneuvers in Tennessee.

Alfred George and Harry Binder both reported to be "somewhere in England."

Roger Sanmartino will became an ensign February twenty-ninth. He is a midshipman on the Prairie State and expects to specialize in Radar after his graduation.

On campus last week was Norman Schoonover. Norm stopped in on his way home from Salt Lake City where he is now stationed.

"Archie" F. Martinez is at Fort Eustis, Virginia. "Archie" was inducted last August in Porto Rico and has since been stationed in Panama.

Among the ensigns at the General Motors plant at Detroit, Mich. is Bill Naylor. Another ensign, Ed Elman, returned to his ship, a Navy transport, at New Orleans after attending fire fighting and damage control schools at Philadelphia and Norfolk. Finally, Ensign Steve Knapp, an aircraft engineer, is now somewhere in the South Pacific.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

JOE V. TWELVE gets a leave at the end of the semester so that he can spend a week "at home with his family." The family looks forward to seeing Joe; he's been away for four months. Dad anticipates chats in the evenings about Joe's "military life." Mom plans special meals, and she visions him sitting at the kitchen table eating just as he used to.

Joe's kid brother expects to show him to all his buddies, while Sis has at least six teas, dances or other social functions at which she plans to display the "pride of the family." So the whole family makes plans for Joe's leave, and they look forward to seeing him around "for a whole week."

"D" day arrives and Joe breezes in. Chucking his sea-bag in the front door, he gives mom a kiss and leaves instructions to have his clothes pressed because "Mabel's sorority is holding a dance tonight."

The next morning, and for the six following A.M.'s, the household has strict orders not to make any noises before noon because "his majesty" has to rest since he "didn't get in until three this morning."

Breakfast and lunch are combined into one meal which Joe downs before scooting off for an afternoon visit with the boys at school, or a show, or an early date.

If Joe makes it back home before the evening's activities, it is only for a shower, shave and chow. The evenings begin early for Joe because he "can't be wasting time—we learn how valuable it is in the service."

The terrific pace, during which the family gets only fleeting glimpses of Joe, continues for the week, which, like all weeks, eventually draws to a close.

Dad drives Joe to the station, and as he and mom return home she says, "well, anyway it was good to have his clothes strewn all over the place and to have him rushing to make a date again." — Great institution, Parents!

V-12 VALENTINES

As Smith and Jones were waiting at the bus stop, a passer-by stopped and asked Jones the time. Jones did not reply.

After the stranger had passed on, Smith asked:

"Why didn't you answer him?"

"Well, it's this way," Jones replied. "If I'd told him the time, he might have got chatting, then we might have had a drink together, and in the end I might have asked him home to supper.

"There he might have met my daughter—and she's a very pretty girl—and they might have fallen in love. Finally, they might have got married.

"And let me tell you, I don't want a fellow for my son-in-law who can't afford to buy a watch."

She was only a grave-digger's daughter, but you ought to see her lower the beer!

Any girl can be gay in a classy coupe,
In a taxi they all can be jolly.
But the girl worth while
Is the girl who can smile
When you're taking her home in the trolley.

A V-12'er was introduced to a certain Mrs. Hummick, so he tried to fix her name in his mind by rhyming it with "Stummick." He met her again the next day; greeted her smilingly: "How do you do, Mrs. Kelly?"

A true music lover is a man who, upon hearing a soprano in the bathroom, puts his ear to the keyhole.

Evans: "I would like to know how long girls should be courted?"
Terry: "The same as short ones."

Sportorial

by
Dave Ward, A. S
Sports Editor

IT is with a mixture of both relief and sadness that we write this article, for the writing of this sportorial signifies the end of our term as Sports Editor of the Villanovan. No longer will we have to worry about deadlines; or whether we will be able to fill the two pages allotted to us each week; or rush down to the Main Line Times office every Monday afternoon to put the finishing touches on the paper. Yes, it is a relief to have that work off our minds now, but there is another side to it. No longer will we enjoy those Saturday afternoon bull sessions in the middle of copy reading; the constant heckling of the college staff by the sports staff, and vice versa; and last but not least, the closeness of most of the fellows on the Villanovan staff.

In other years the writing of this last sportorial would have meant an end to the Villanovan career of the writer in addition to signing ——30—— to the Sports Editor's job. However, this year it will probably be different. Since we're only sophomores, and will return next semester (we hope), we will probably remain on the staff working under Hughie O'Reilly who will succeed us, and whose countenance graces the opposite corner of this rag. Yes, we'll be back next semester as a cub again, and it will feel strange merely to write a story, and let somebody else worry about where it goes.

We're glad that we are returning to Villanova, for from our day of birth, it seems that we were destined to go to the Main Line Institution. The reason for this was that we had an uncle who was graduated not only from the college, but also from St. Nicholas' Academy. Incidentally, he had been a football player, and one of the team which managed to upset Army back in 1915, some nine years before yours truly even put in an appearance in this world. As a result, from the first time that we could hear, it was always, "You'll go to Villanova someday."

Consequently, Villanova was always our favorite team. We re-

Fedigan Ace Leads Scorers

Ed Kolnaski, Fedigan Hall's 16-inch rifle pulled away from the pack to secure his claim to the intramural scoring crown for the second half of the season. Despite a late rush by spectacular "Red" Nealon of the Marines, who on the final night of the season tallied 27 points, Kolnaski lengthened the distance between himself and Alumni's Joe Walters by three points.

Kolnaski led the league from the second game, losing it only once by the margin of one lone point to Nealon following the game in which "Red" scored 47 points to set a new league mark for a single contest.

Alumni Wins Intramural Basketball Championship

By GENE WEINERT, A. S.

Fedigan Hall inflicted a thorough drubbing on Alumni Hall's championship quint 62-34, in the last game of the season in the Intramural Basketball League. The first loss for the Pre-Meds since the first half of the schedule ruined a previously perfect record for the current half. On Tuesday, Alumni strode to an easy win over the Day-Hops 62-21, while Fedigan correspondingly trounced the Residents 42-16. The Marines were victors over Mendel 30-20, and the Residents in that order, with "Red" Nealon coming back to the Austin squad to score 27 points in the latter game. Although Mendel lost to the Marines, they returned Thursday night to beat the Day-Hops 53-23.

Anderson High

Ollie Anderson played the outstanding game of the week as he and his Fedigan mates chased the Alumni boys back to their pills by a 62-34 score. Contributing ten baskets and two foul conversions, Anderson's backboard play was likewise brilliant. Ed Kolnaski, the league scoring champion, contributed 12 points with Leo Kiely and Noll tallying 13 and 11 markers respectively. Alumni had nothing to offer as their main scorers, Walters and Harvey, were held to five field goals between them.

Boyle Stifled

Fedigan walked away from the Residents after a low halftime score of 19-12. As Leo Noll hooped seven baskets, the West-Enders never gave the Civilians an opportunity to lead. Closely guarding Bill Boyle, the Resident's main threat, Fedigan stifled any hope that Father Kemme's boys might have had.

Alumni took the Day-Hops into camp, adding a resounding win to their heavy record. The Day-Hops put up a game but losing battle from the outset being forced to gain their lone consolation in Newt Ward's 9 points.

Mendel Wins

Mendel, after taking their hard fought loss on Tuesday, came back powerfully on Thursday night to add a clamp to the Day-Hop's record. George Stothopolous poured six field goals and two fouls through the hoop to lead both teams.

The Marines gathered their first team together for the last game

'Cats Hit Comeback Trail Against Loyola; Lose To Navy And Sampson

One win and two losses in last week's games brought the Wildcat average down to .550 with three games remaining in the 1943-44 basketball season, Monday night's game with Loyola being the lone win. In away games the Wildcats lost 35-27 to Navy at Annapolis, and on Saturday to Sampson NTS 56-44.

Starting off the week in a favorable manner, the Main Liners defeated the Greyhounds of Loyola for the second straight time this season by a 55-48 score. Led by big Jim Lacey, the visitors kept the pressure on the Wildcats from start to finish of the spine-tingling ball game. Lacey, who garnered 23 points for the night, led both sides in scoring while the set shots of Gene O'Connor sprinkled between Lacey's goals kept the Greyhounds right on the heels of their taller opponents.

'Cat Shooting Off

Traveling to Annapolis, Md. on Wednesday for an afternoon game with the Midshipmen of the Naval Academy, the Main Liners saw what they hoped would be an incipient win streak ground into the dust to the tune of 35-27.

Playing on the semi-circular backboards for the first time this season, the Villanovans couldn't find the range at all in the initial period as the Navy took a 13-0 lead at the quarter. Getting their eyes in shape, the Wildcats managed to bring the score to 21-15 at the intermission.

Surprising everybody in the gym in the second half, the 'Cats rang up 9 straight points to take the lead away from the Middies. However, Middie captain Ken Longnecker, Erie, Pa., boy, broke the ice for the Navy who gradually pulled away to the final 35-27 score.

Saturday night the Main Line quintet ended a home and home series with Sampson Naval Training Station with a 0% average, losing the game 56-44. With the high scoring stars of the last Villanova-Sampson fracas, Mirsky and Milhaven, setting the pace, Sampson took the game from the start.

Milt Mirsky led the scoring parade for the evening with 14 points, closely followed by George Milhaven with 12 counters. Jumping into an early lead, the charges of playing coach Ensign Don Ahern maintained a fast pace for a high scoring game. Sparking the Villanova team until he left on fouls with a handy seven points and even better floor work was Phil Jakeway. In their previous game, the Sailors from Sampson won handily 58-56.

Ship's Co. Wins Four From Phils To Tie For Lead

A last ditch surge by Ship's Company on Saturday afternoon at the 69th Street Bowling Center gained a 4-0 win over the Phils and put them in a first place tie with their victims. These games would have been the end of the annual PKP bowling league but because of the tie, the teams will meet sometime this week to roll for the championship.

In performing their surprising feat, the Navy men set two new records as they rolled an 873 high single, and a 2508 high three. In these the Sailors were led by Jordan Olivar who came in fourth in the individual standings with an average of 164.4.

Ahead of the football coach in these were Johnny Bonafiglia, 171.96, Bill Thompson, 171.14, and Angie Rosa, with a 164.7. High three for the season went to Chief Specialist "Doc" Horgen, who smacked a healthy 562, some 35 pins under Bonafiglia who having won one prize was not entitled to another. Bonafiglia also had garnered the high single honors but this time the prize was awarded to Angie Rosa who rolled a 224.

Army, Aberdeen, And Muhlenberg Oppose Wildcats

Undefeated Cadets Rated Second In East; Muhlenberg Game Changed To February 25

By HUGH O'REILLY, A. S.

With nine victories and six losses, the Wildcat basketball team has rambled through a mediocre season with a mediocre record. Now they meet, in their final forays, the hardest teams on the schedule. In succession they engage Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Army and Muhlenberg, to finish the season and the semester.

On Tuesday the 15th, the soldiers of the Flaming Bomb from Aberdeen, Maryland, come to the field house in an attempt to keep the Villanovans in a defeatist mood. With a team that boasts wins over such teams as Bambridge, University of Virginia, Curtis Bay Coast Guards and others, they have the backing and the material to score a win. The Aberdeen line-up will start at guards the present coach and star of the team, Angelo Musi, former Temple ace and his running mate, Moe Becker, member of last year's Aberdeen quintet. At center will be Bob Cotton, tall, able ball-player who has been out most of the season with a bad ankle. Alternate at this pivot spot will be Al Menke, star at Aberdeen last year and former Purdue University court star. Forwards will be Ben "Whitey" Scharnus, who played ball at Seton Hall College and later pro ball with the Detroit Clowns. His partner at this post will be Johnny Balsavich, a Massachusetts product with a dead eye.

Kenna, Cadet Star

It is up to West Point, the Main Liners will go to meet the number one team of the East, in college ranks, boasting the only undefeated record in this part of the country. Penn State, Phila. Coast Guard, Columbia; all these and many others have dropped beneath the screen-like play and deadly accuracy of Army's five stalwarts. With a fast-breaking offense and closely woven defense, the Army has thus taken over all opposition. Most prominent starter in the Cadet line-up will be the well remembered Doug Kenna of football fame who is outstanding for his point-getting ability. He, together with Jim Damon, will start at guards. Center will be Larry Elkberg, who alternates at this spot with Hen Christl. Forwards will be George Hall and Jack Faas. The Cadets have a well balanced team with their scoring ability well distributed. This will be the first meeting of the two teams on the basketball court.

Mules Favored

On the following Friday night, the Wildcats will meet the last team on this the 1943-44 basketball schedule, the opponent of early season that inflicted the first of the 'Cat defeats, Muhlenberg. The V-12 players from Allentown are ranked as the best in the state and have an impressive record of 17 wins as compared to 2 losses, these being close decisions to Princeton and Penn. Friday's game, the second half of a home and home series with the Mules, will be played at the Main Line field house. Favored will be Coach Al Julian's charges for their fine record and their previous win. The starting five will be the same as they met earlier in the season. Jim Capehart, former Marshall College star and Hank Baietti of Long Island U. fame will open at guards. Forwards are Davis and Meyerdicks, the latter the only hold-over from last year's Mule five. Operating the pivot will be 6'3" Mel Munson, brilliant transfer from West Liberty State Teacher's College.

tivities. Graduation in 1940 led Jim to follow the footsteps of his three brothers to Villanova where the Commerce and Finance School welcomed him.

As the years fled by, Jim saw the number of his classmates become less and less, so that today Joe McCarthy and he hold the unusual distinction of being the only two graduates from Commerce and Finance for the present class. Business, of course, will be Jim's field and a successful one it can not help but be.

For it is not anti-Semitism to jail a thief who is also a Jew, nor is it racial discrimination to penalize an agitator who is also a Negro, nor is it anti-Christianity to hang a murderer who is also a Christian. No Jewish tenet agrees with the practice of theft; no Negro philosophy holds rioting as just, no Christian dogma calls murder a virtue. But the many suffer for the few, and the just for the sinner, and the liberty of the group is truncated because of the license unjustly granted to the criminal element in their number.

All-Stars Chosen By League Solons

Walters, Kasulin, Kaspar, Nealon, And Kolnaski Selected; Walters Only Unanimous Choice

Joe Walters, chief striking force for Alumni Hall's champion quintet, was the unanimous choice to a first team berth on the Intramural Al-Star basketball five. A six-man selection committee consisting of members of the faculty, and students who had seen the majority of games for the complete season chose Walters, Marines "Red" Nealon, Ray Kaspar and Al Kasulin, and the scoring leader, Ed Kolnaski, as members of the honored five.

Defensive Stars

Kolnaski undoubtedly earned his way to an All-Star position by leading Fedigan out of the bullrushes to third place for second half of the season. Nealon set a new record for scoring when he rang up 47 points against the Day-Hops. Kaspar and Kasulin were the ideal offensive and defensive combination in the league as the Marines vied with Alumni Hall for the length of the schedule.

Extra Man Chosen

Although three Marines placed on the first five, the champions were firmly represented on the second squad as pre-meds Ed Powers, Ed Harvey, and Charlie Critides claimed positions. Dave Ward of Mendel Hall, Paul Simpson of the Day-Hops, and Marine Fred Goetz were likewise chosen for this expanded team, ncessitated by a four-way tie, giving ample evidence of the tight race for the chosen spots.

Receiving honorable mention were Newt Ward, and Jack Welsh of the Day-Hops, Joe Costello, and Dick Madigan, members of Mendel's five, Joe Boyle of Alumni, Ollie Anderson from Fedigan, the Residents' Bill Boyle, and Leatherneck Joe O'Keefe.

member seeing the 1934 Temple game in which Whitey Randour ran the Owls ragged, and of watching the great Smith-coached elevens of '36, '37, and '38 bowl over the opposition.

On the hardwood, we can still see a last minute spurt by Indiana put the finishing touches on a Wildcat five which had little Mike Lazorchak, and the brilliant Duke Duzminski. We felt bad about that, but later in the season after the Hoosiers had won the NCAA tourney we felt a little better. We recall the crack quintet of Main Liners, led by All-State center, Jim Montgomery, which lost to Ohio State in the Eastern play-offs of the NCAA the year before.

We could go on and on mentioning the various little things, some old, some new, connected with Villanova which are now an integral part of our life, but since we have atended the college, the biggest thing that will stand out will be the friendship of the fellows on the Villanovan. The moderator, Father McKee, has been always ready, willing, and able to assist us in any matter whatsoever. Then there are the two red-heads, George Hoberg, and Tom Welch, without whom the Villanovan office wouldn't be the same, and who incidentally didn't do so bad in these Saturday afternoon bull sessions.

All in all, we have had a great deal of fun, and experiences which we feel will be of great help to us in days to come.

after giving indication of disbanding on Tuesday eve. Working in their characteristically formidable manner, Leathernecks Nealon and Kasulin outshot Boyle, Donovan, and Mamizic of the Residents to notch their final win for the season.

Positions Unchanged

Each team held the position in the standings that they had occupied after the previous week's games. Fedigan and the Marines climbed one game closer to Alumni by virtue of Alumni's loss to Fedigan. However, since the Pre-Meds clinched the championship by their win over the Day-Hops, one loss by the leaders had no effect on the league standings.

Combined Orchestra and Glee Club of Catholic Girls' High Schools

All-Catholic Girls' Concert Given; Musicians Chosen From 3 Schools

Program Included Modern Melodies and Classical Scores; Glee Club From West Catholic

Last evening, Monday, March 13, an all-Catholic girl's concert was presented in the Auditorium of the College Field House. The personnel included students from John W. Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School, West Catholic Girls' High School, and Little Flower Catholic High School for Girls, all diocesan secondary schools of Philadelphia.

A combination of students from all three schools comprised the symphonic orchestra under the direction of Jeno Donath and the symphonic band conducted by John Thoms, while the glee club directed by Rev. John A. Murray and the verse choir under the leadership of Margaret Mary Kearny represented only the West Catholic Girls' High School.

After several years of presenting such concerts, the group came to Villanova bolstered by general acclaim wherever they have played. Especially in local circles, but even outside, they have become noted for a degree of professional excellence seldom attained in scholastic circles.

Modern melodies and purely classical scores were handled with equal skill by the youthful musicians. The program included:

Symphonic Band: Victory Fanfare; Raymond Overture; Excerpts from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs"; Finlandia (Tone poem); Over There Fantasie; and With a Song in My Heart from "Spring Is Here."

Verse Speaking Choir: Prayer to Our Lady; Rouge Bouquet; and Modern Lullaby.

Glee Club: The Wind's in the South; Liebestraum; My Little Star; and The Wedding of the Painted Doll.

Symphonic Orchestra: Overture —La Forza del Destino; Poem from "At Evening" Suite; Panamericana Morceau Characteristique; Frasquita; and Americana.

Villanova Students were guests of the group, and were admitted upon presentation of their matriculation cards.

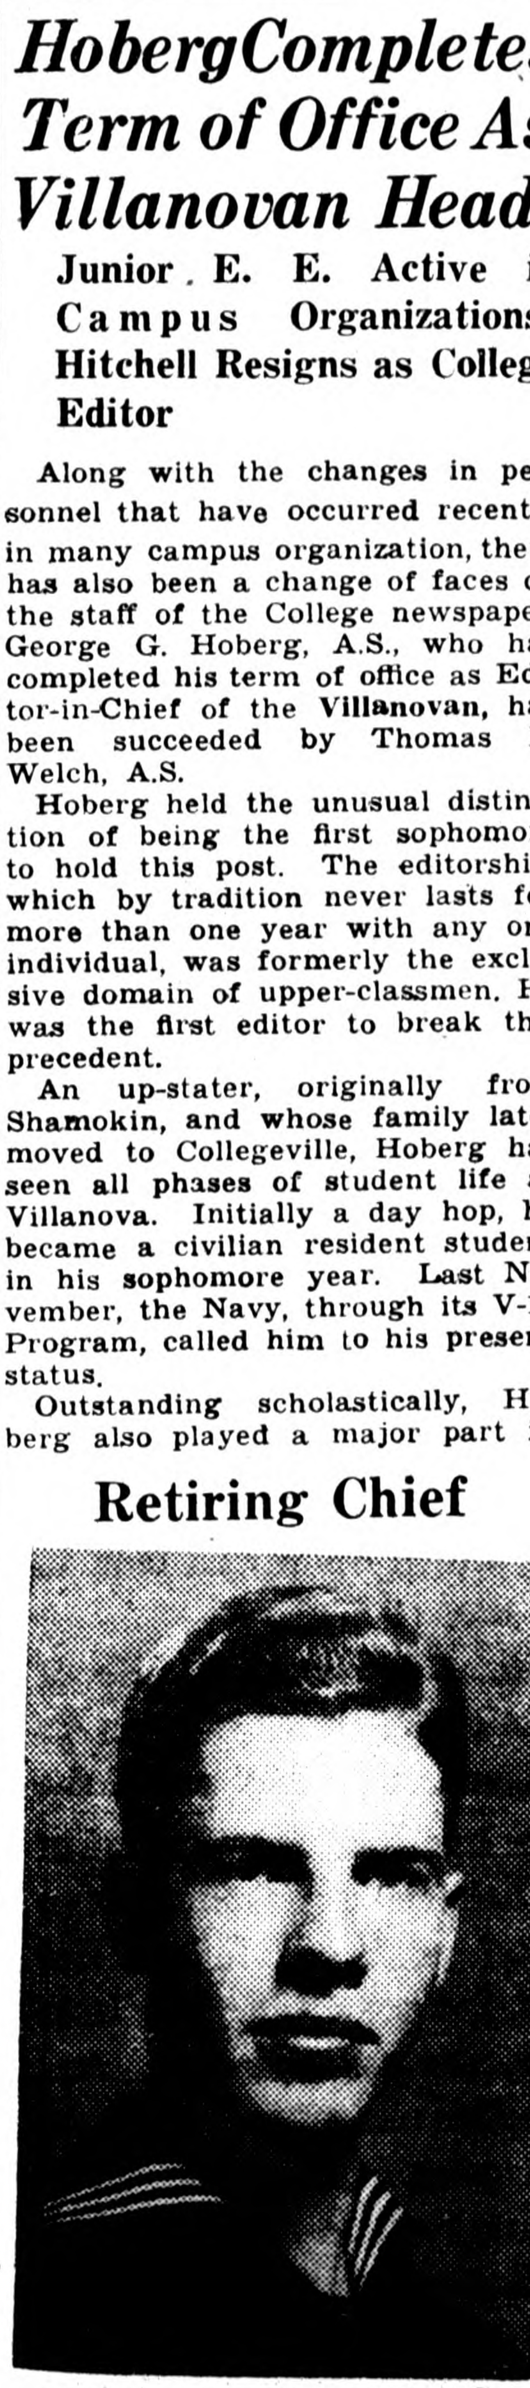
Along with the changes in personnel that have occurred recently in many campus organization, there has also been a change of faces on the staff of the College newspaper. George G. Hoberg, A.S., who has completed his term of office as Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan, has been succeeded by Thomas P. Welch, A.S.

Hoberg held the unusual distinction of being the first sophomore to hold this post. The editorship, which by tradition never lasts for more than one year with any one individual, was formerly the exclusive domain of upper-classmen. He was the first editor to break this precedent.

An up-stater, originally from Shamokin, and whose family later moved to Collegeville, Hoberg has seen all phases of student life at Villanova. Initially a day hop, he became a civilian resident student in his sophomore year. Last November, the Navy, through its V-12 Program, called him to his present status.

Outstanding scholastically, Hoberg also played a major part in extra-curricular activities. He represented the Villanovan in the Student Council, belonged to the Math Club and the College Band. He is at present a member of the A.I.E.E. and the Phi Kappa Pi.

Retiring Chief



GEORGE G. HOBERG, A.S.

In between the studies which are the lot of a Junior Electrical Engineering student, Hoberg will assist Welch and his staff with their new responsibilities.

Along wth Hoberg, the Villanovan has suffered another serious loss in the person of Thomas F. Hitchell, who was College Editor for the last two semesters. An old hand at journalism, Hitchell has served on the Villanovan since the beginning of his freshman year. Besides his formal services on the editorial staff, he frequently "doubled in brass" as columnist and personal humorist for the weekly.

Hitchell is now entering the final

A Word To The Wise

As we begin a new term I would like to reiterate the principle upon which the Administration of the College has placed considerable emphasis under war-time conditions.

"No young man has a right to be in college during the present war unless he has the ability to do college work successfully and unless he diligently applies himself to that work. If a student at college lacks the ability, or having the ability, fails to apply himself, that young man has no business in college. He should apply at once for service with the armed forces or he should secure a job in war production."

Navy regulations and Selective Service regulations now make mandatory the application of this principle. Events of the past few days should convince any doubting Thomases still remaining in the student body. The Administration and Faculty are anxious to help each and every student to render maximum service to our country.

Lent—An Oasis

Perhaps at no time in the history of Christianity in modern times has the Church been so well vindicated as she is in our present conflict. Standing serenely and soundly in the midst of this world chaos the teachings of Christ rise up as a beacon light and a haven for all who seek guidance and refuge from the terrors of war, bitter suffering and loneliness.

The conservatism of the Church in being so old fashioned as to adhere to the Ten Commandments, worshipping God at Sunday Mass, fasting and abstaining from certain foods (which today we call rationing), reverencing the Sacrament of matrimony, educating our children in the fear and love of God is paying rich dividends today. The grace that flows into the souls of men and into the souls of their children on the battlefronts of the world from leading a life so close to God's law is the source of the interior peace, the real solace, the courage and the strength that enables them to stand up under the sufferings and the heartaches that are bound to be their lot in this ever-widening conflict.

Sunday brings us to the middle of the Season of Lent. Lent is austere, yet it is this very austerity that begets the vigorous spirit capable of performing heroic acts so necessary for victory. Unlike rationing, Lent is not just for the "emergency". It is a way of life which conditions man to face and overcome the battles of life.

An insight into the evolution of the spiritual life of China's First Lady, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, is given us in her contribution to the war effort. She tells us of the burning desire she had to help her husband, the General of China's armed forces, in freeing their country from foreign foe. She made speeches, did relief work and toiled. Her intentions were the best, she says, but something was lacking. There was no staying power, she acknowledges. And why? She answers her own question: because I was dependent on self. The Japanese invasion came. Famine and flood followed quickly and from enemy action she saw many of her people suffer and die. All these things and more, she tells us, made her feel her own inadequacy. Something was wanting. As the war wore on, Madame Chiang says, "I began to see that what I was doing for China was only a substitute for what my husband needed. I was letting him head toward a mirage when I knew of an oasis. Understanding that and feeling my own inadequacy, I was driven back to God.'

"Give" is the cry that is heard on all sides. The response in blood donations, bonds and increased taxes has been generous. But with our casualty lists mounting daily, and the flower of our youth reported as "missing" and "wounded in action", does not our generosity seem a bit inadequate? Is there nothing more that we can give? George W. Carver, the humble negro scientist of soybean fame, says yes. "With my prayers," he says, "I mix my labors and sometimes God is pleased to bless the results."

In a very particular way Lent is a season of Prayer. Start today: give the Boys a prayer over there.

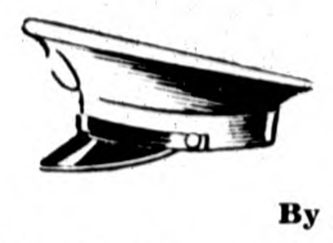
Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

NOW that the new semester has started, we notice many new faces and miss a few old ones. Among the missing faces is John Bittig's, who used to write this column. John is now at Parris Island where he expects to "rest up" for a few weeks until he goes to O.C.S. Take it easy, John.

With the discontinuance of the A.S.T.P., a few of our boys were left out in the cold. Among them were Peter Hin and Nick Hemmer. Pete was at the University of Minnesota and has been transferred to Radio School at Camp Crowder, Mo. He writes: "Received the Belle Air and it is the best issue yet—". Nick is also in Radio School, but at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

A few of us from "dear old Alumni" in civilian days remember Dan Shields.. He has been seeing a lot of action in Italy.

Glad to hear that John Sutton, Bob Gretz and Jim Cahill just received their commissions as Second Lieutenants at Quantico. Some of the other Villanova boys are there also and doing well. Bob Nealon and Doug Boyd are both in their fifth week while Chuck Drizin and Ziggy Zamlynski are in their second week. Joe Pezelski is a coach on the rifle range at New River.

John Bambrick, Bob Bolger and Jim Keyes are Midshipmen at Tower Hall, Northwestern University. They say that the studies are tough with 7 or 8 tests a week, including 3 on Saturday. Bob recently received the Villanovan Key for his work on the Sports Staff last year.

We recently received a visit from Jim Hill. Jim is in the Navy Air Corps and has just been transferred from Chapel Hill, N. C. to Peru, Ind. He expects to finish up in six months. While at Chapel Hill, Jim ran into Harry Horan and George Veling. Harry is also on his way to Peru while George wil remain where he is until March 31.

Ray Gadsby, former boxer and Villanova trainer, has been transferred to Ft. Pierce, Fla. from the new amphibian school near Norfolk. Ray is a '42 alumnus.

Sgt. John W. Donahue recently left Camp Lejeune to report to El Centro, California.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

A unique situation exists in our very midst here at Villanova. Legend in the annals of military service is the traditional rivalry between the U. S. Marine Corps and the U. S. Navy.

Now this rivalry is not entirely detrimental to the efficiencies of these services—on the contrary—the opposite is true. Gunnery, seamanship, drilling, and bar-room brawls have provided a few of the instances in which the relative merits of the two outfits have been bitterly contested. Rivalry means competition, and competition, greater efficiency. This brings us back to the unique situation which exists here.

In the Marine barracks (formerly Austin Hall) here at the V-12 unit there were not quite enough Gyrenes to fill the building and a surplus of Sailors last semester, one section of the first deck was used to house them. It immediately received the name "Swabbie Row."

Here it was—that crucial condition—sailors and marines under the same roof. Disaster seemed imminent, but—nothing happened. In fact, the two traditional enemies took to each other. Evenings found them in each other's rooms. The "Swabbies" even adopted John Siano as a mascot — a distinction, of which he is proud to this very day.

With the influx of more Navy men, and the exit of a large number of marines, "Swabbie Row" has become "Swabbie Deck."

The spirit which binds the two groups which occupy Austin has been captured in a song composed by Ray Roberts, with the assistance of his "Swabbie Row" buddies. The tune is that of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," and the words follow:

We are the boys of "Swabbie Row."
All for one, and one for all.
Though the Navy calls us theirs,
We are Captain Morgan's fairs;
—and he says that we are always on the ball.

From the door to yonder head,
You will find us one and all.
Though surrounded by Marines.
In their suits of Forest Greens.
—still the girls all love the boys from "Swabbie Row."

In the morning you will find us
Up and ready for the day.
Though we never swear or cuss
We are always plenty tough;
—and the girls still love the boys of "Swabbie Row."

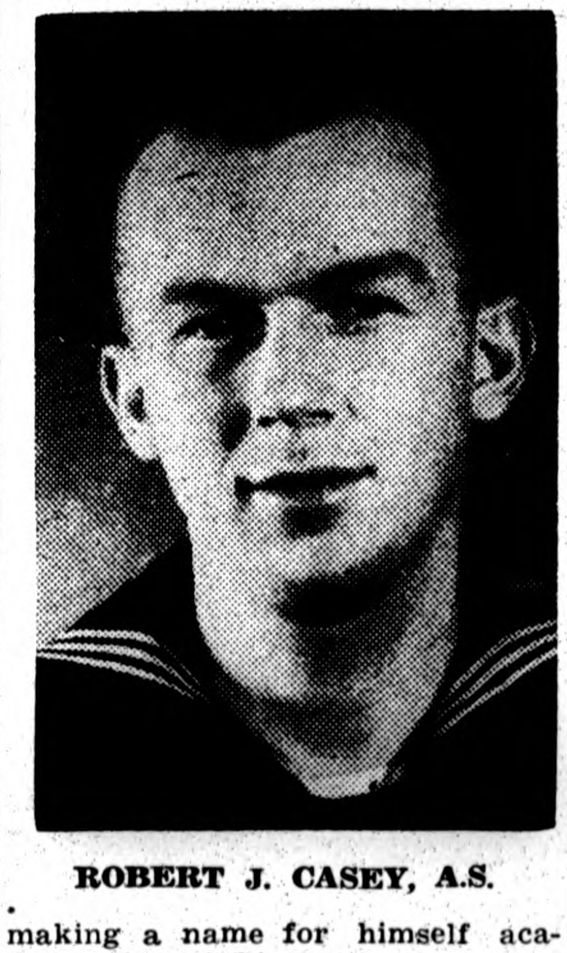
From the dark of early morn,
'Till the black of latest night,
You will find us on the go,
All the boys of "Swabbie Row"
—taking care of all the Captain's cute Marines.

Meet the Boys

THE sole student to grace the limelight this week is one of the few fellows who has been at Villanova long enough to remember the college as it was when the War was only an unpleasant but distant reality, and college life actually resembled its Hollywood interpretation. We refer to Robert J. Casey who is a proud member of that very small group of trainees that is graduating in June.

Deciding not to defy tradition at the very start, Bob was born — May 25, 1923 A.D., to be specific— in Phila., a nearby suburb. Although he's an honor student from way back, Bob realized the futility of a six-year old's matriculating at a recognized college, and wisely chose a grammer school to start with—the Harrington School being the lucky winner.

Following this came Junior and Senior High Schools in the usual order. Both these stages of his education saw our hero taking an interest in school government and making a name for himself academically speaking at the same time.



ROBERT J. CASEY, A.S.

Next came a brief sojourn in the work-a-day world, as a clerk in a dry goods house, on the heels of which followed Bob's entrance into Villanova in October of '41 as an M.E. student. Between hobbies (high grades and photography) Bob has found ample time for numerous other items including membership in the Villanova branch of the A.S.M.E., of which he was recently elected chairman.

He is a member of Chi Epsilon Mu and served on the class ring committee in his sophomore year. The Navy has recently promoted Bob, by making him platoon leader of the third in Mendel's company.

When all is said and done, and the worlds' at peace again, Bob's first plans are to sleep for two years. After that "I'll get to work" (he says).

After Hours

By LeRoy Collegeman, A.S.

EIGHT and a half long, long, months have passed since the Navy came to Villanova. Those eight long, long months have seen many faces come and go at the top of this column, but still it continues along its endless path of uncovering the uncoverable. . .I, in my own feeble way will try to carry on this work until a new face appears in the place of my own . . .Here goes. . .

First of all the Marines in Austin Hall would like to extend their thanks, through this column to the Swabbies who have just taken up their abode in that hallowed hall . . .It seems that the muster happy new men found themselves so bored that they generously went around and made all of the Marines 'beds . . . it's a nice gesture but I'm sure that they won't make a habit of it.

OLD FACES, OLD TRICKS

Quite a bit happened over our heavenly holiday that might be of interest to our large reading public. . .voila. . .

It's a good thing for Wayne Jones that the Marines 'motto happens to be "Semper Fidelis" (Always Faithful—to the unitiated) and that some of his comrades in arms believes in it. . .While wandering through the Baltimore station on his way back to school he was rescued from boarding a train to parts unknown by some fellow Marines who became interested in him when they noticed the dazed, naive (?) look on his face and the radio and handleless suitcase in his arms. . .luckily they looked at his ticket and sent him on the right track in his quest for Villanova.

They talk about the South American beauties quite a bit but they always seem to miss the Central American Charmers. . .They must be plenty all right. . .judging from the fact that Maurice Labaerrere traveled all the way back to Cuba just to see his family and a little girl named Gladys. . .he only was with her for the four nights he was at home.

From Baltimore there also come tales of Roman Paska and Eileen, who writes him everyday and twice on Sunday; Charlie Strickroth and Bill Smith's girl friend of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Steve Terry, a long way from Indiana, and giving the Baltimore girls a go; John Murray and his blonde better half . . .and last but not least Burt Cox and his own little Jinx . . .

A Few, we know, were given brains,
Others given beauty,
To some a sense of artistry,
To some a sense of duty;
Some were given fickle ways,
Some got ways sincere,
Some got wealth, some got health,
The Spinsters — they got Leap Year!

NEW FACES, NEW TRICKS

Ed McAdams, from the deep south, hailing from Tennessee and Georgia, appears to be the up and coming successor to Sinatra and least in the hearts of Lt. August's Wednesday Naval Org. class. . . While waiting for the good Lt. to show up, Ed entertains the boys with choice selections from the Tennessee hills such as "Mountain Dew" and "Cannonball Mail" . . . Come in and have a listen.

Harvard Man: Who knocked on my door just now?

Janitor: It was me.

Harvard Man to second H. M.: What is he trying to say?

OLD FACES, NEW TRICKS

Jack Griffin, formerly of Alumni Hall, spoke loud and long on his coming opportunities to gain experience in the modern labs, watch operations, etc., when he arrived for his tour of duty at the Brooklyn Naval Hospital.

He has arrived and is now running an elevator. . .

George Goetzke has arrived too, right in the middle of the Ivy League. . .He is at Yale and claims that they haven't converted from their former country club style in anything but their curriculum. . . bacon, steaks, and fresh grapefruit every week. . .smoking allowed in the dining hall, liberty from 3 to 8 every day. . .and a suite of rooms for himself, McCarthy and Hamilton. . .they each have a closet AND a dresser. . .but there is one drawbrack. . .270 miles from Baltimore and Anne. . .

We must leave now but before we do a little info from you. . . we have heard that exercise kills germs. . .could anyone tells us how to get them to exercise?

THE worries of an edition, the search for material and the driving of the reporters, so easily shrugged off by Dave Ward, have fallen on my shoulders. The woes he suffered and the joys he derived are all mine, plus an additional task of attempting to do half as good a job as he did in his term as Sports Editor. However, here we are so away we go to fill my two semesters.

All sports in general and in particular are, at this time of the year, either being dusted off to be placed in the trunk until next season or brought out for the budding season in view. Basketball jolted to a vicious halt when in the final game Norfolk N.T.S. hit them with 50 better points worth of good playing, finishing the poorest court season in Wildcat history as to record books but good for the spirit shown by players and students alike. Baseball is still in the offing and our favorite intra-murals are still in the process of replanning. However, a scouring glance brings a few ideas on that unheralded group of sportsmen, the track team. They now have finished their season and the record shows none of the brilliant triumphs of last year, but such things as these are excused by the obstacles overcome and the boundless enthusiasm shown by the runners.

Outstanding in his role as anchor-man was Ed Fitzgerald who has left the fold for Navy pre-flight school. His acknowledged ability coupled with a varying other three runners formed a quartet that brought a number of victories to the school.

Statistics show a win in the Millrose Games and a third in the quadrangular meet at West Point which Army took, and which proved that John Siano was the man one was to call on when the shot was to be thrown. In a very fast race the Wildcat runners Golden, Schmidt, Reagan and Fitzgerald took a second place as their share of the N.Y.A.C. meet. The N.A.A.U. was in a sense disastrous, for Golden being fouled, lost us the race but still primed the team for the I.C.-4A meet in which the incomparable four placed second to Tufts in the fastest race of the indoor season, 3:24:2.

So the season is finished. We offer congratulations on their successes and I am looking forward to writing many columns in the coming months on an outdoor track squad which, even with our losses, should be formed and has all the best of chances for an excellent season.

Bonafiglia, Horgan and Rosa Take Individual Crowns; New League Starting

The Phillies are champions of the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League by virtue of winning the playoff match with the Ship's Company. Having held first place against the latter's late season drive paced by Bill Thompson, Jordan Olivar, and Chief Horgan, the Phillies finally yielded just enough to allow the Ship's Company to push in for a first place tie. The big gun of the Phillies was Jack "Red" Conway who places sixth in the High Average column.

Angelo Rosa, secretary of the league, announced that the league was ready to begin once more just as soon as enough teams have entered. The response to this question raised at the conclusion of the past schedule was enthusiastic, and it is therefore hoped that the teams will organize promptly so that the new season may begin.

Bonafiglia Tops

The Junior Civils, led by Joe Bonafiglia and Rosa, Number One and Three respectively in the High Averages, made an early rush for top spot, but they relinquished it very soon after to the Mendel Third-deckers. Mendel Third-deck held the lead for a longer period, giving it up toward the close of the first half to the Phillies. They then slid down to finish fourth behind the steady Junior Civils.

Bonafiglia took first place in both High Single and High Three beside High Average. Since he was only permitted by league rules to select one crown, he chose High average for which he had 171.96. Rosa took the High Single award with a score of 224. Chief Horgan of Ship's Company claimed the High Three title with a 562.

Army, Muhlenberg, and Norfolk NTS Contributed To Final Losing Streak

Past Wildcat Season Worst in Court History With Record of 8 Wins in 17 Games; Frascella's 203 Points and Consistently Fine Playing Best of Season

The '43-'44 Wildcat squad started off the season where last year's team left off and added four victories before succumbing to a well-balanced Muhlenberg team at Allentown. Loyola's civilian outfit, composed mainly of freshmen, was on the short end of a 51-35 score as the 'Cats won as they pleased. Next came Swarthmore's V-12 aggregation, and another high-scoring game went into the win column. Playing without the services of Frank Frascella, Jack Ramsey, and Don Osterman, a determined couple of boys won a 43-32 victory from the Navy Yard Marine Unit. In a mock football game, Princeton's closing rush left them on the short end of 42-40 score as the game ended in a scramble of players under the Tiger basket.

Muhlenberg overcame an early deficit and broke the flood gates in the last quarter to hand the 'Cats their first defeat, 53-38. Sampson Naval Training Station repeated the dose by pulling away from an outmanned hometeam, also in the final period, to gain a 51-36 victory.

Extra Periods

Team-play came into its own as the F. & M. Diplomats were frozen out 41-36 at Lancaster and walloped 48-29 on the local court. Followers of the Bucknell Bisons were treated to the best game of the season as the Severancemen, led by Frascella and Feeney, overcame a 19 point deficit and won in two extra periods, 43-42. Frascella's steal and length of the floor dribble for a lay-up tied the score and his foul in the second extra "five" won the game.

Father Time deprived the 'Cats of another "Merriwell" finish after they rallied for 11 points in the final four minutes of a thriller with Fort Dix. However, fate denied them a chance to tap in the tying basket as the second hand hit zero with the ball dropping on the outside of the hoop. Rider was the second Jersey opponent for the locals and a measure of revenge was gained with a 48-41 triumph. A word of praise should be given to

Wildcats Choose An All Opponent Team Of Six Men

Soldier, Sailor All-Americans Feature This "All" Team; Loyola's Lacey Only Civilian Choice

Six men, one each from Army, Sampson, Ft. Dix, and Aberdeen, were chosen on the Villanova All-Opponent basketball team. Those selected were, in the order of the teams mentioned above, Dale Hall, George Milhaven, Hank Baietti, Bill Holzman, Bob Hassmuller, and Angelo Musi.

The old adage, "Experience is the best teacher" is well proven by these selections as it is noted, that only two of the six, Hall and Baietti, are without pro experience. The remainder of the team consists of two All-Americans, one All-Metropolitan choice and one All-Philadelphia selection.

Baietti Leads

However, for the first time in a few years, there was not one unanimous choice, but there were three tied for the last two positions on the first quintet. Leading the balloting was big Hank Baietti, Muhlenberg's great playmaker and high scorer. Next in line were: Bill Holzman, C.C.N.Y.'s All-American who aided in the final walloping of the season which the Wildcats took when they traveled to Norfolk; and Dale Hall, Army's captain-elect, who was also a member of the Cadet football squad which handed the Blue and White a trouncing last September.

Behind these three came George Milhaven of Sampson who fills the bill of the All-Metropolitan selection received while playing at St. John's of Brooklyn; while tied with him was Bob Hassmuller, erstwhile Fordham All-American, and Fort Dix captain whose spectacular set shooting had no small effect on the final outcome of the soldier's game. Right alongside, making a three way tie, was Angelo Musi, Aberdeen Bomber who is rated by many as one of the

New Specialist, Raimo, Former Grid Player Here

"Say, who's the new Specialist?" "Boy, he looks as though he is really put together." These and other similar remarks were heard as Specialist 2/c Art Raimo walked out in front of the P.T. classes for the first time on January 29th, here at Villanova.

Cornering Mr. Raimo in the field house the other day as he was preparing to go to lunch with his two pals (?) Mr. Olivar, head football coach and Chief Specialist "Doc" Horgen, your reporter began to ask some questions. The first question of "Where were you born?" brought a prompt answer of 1906 from Chief Horgen, while Mr. Olivar chimed in with "Doesn't he hold his age well?" However, the 2/c Specialist finally managed to break in with a very weak 1916, and added that the place was Boston. "The time, to be exact," he said, "was April 24, 1916."

He attended Everett High School, and proceeded to establish for himself quite an athletic reputation by playing football and participating in track. After this last statement, Chief Horgen again interrupted with, "You were a shot putter, weren't you Art?"

"No, I was just the general handyman."

But to get back to the interview, Mr. Raimo graduated from high school in 1933 after which he matriculated right here at Villanova. During his college days, "the Jeep," as he was konwn then, played fullback on probably the greatest Villanova eleven of all time. Incidently, one of his teammates was the present coach of the Wildcats, Jordan Olivar.

Being graduated from college in 1938 with a B. S. in Education, Mr. Raimo was backfield coach at St. Joseph's College until the Crimson and Gray gave up the sport for the duration. He then moved on to Ridley Township High School where he stayed until he joined the Navy last September.

As the war wore on, Madame Chiang says, "I began to see that what I was doing for China was only a substitute for what my husband needed. I was letting him head toward a mirage when I knew of an oasis. Understanding that and feeling my own inadequacy, I was driven back to God.'

"Give" is the cry that is heard on all sides. The response in blood donations, bonds and increased taxes has been generous. But with our casualty lists mounting daily, and the flower of our youth reported as "missing" and "wounded in action", does not our generosity seem a bit inadequate? Is there nothing more that we can give? George W. Carver, the humble negro scientist of soybean fame, says yes. "With my prayers," he says, "I mix my labors and sometimes God is pleased to bless the results."

In a very particular way Lent is a season of Prayer. Start today: give the Boys a prayer over there.

Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

NOW that the new semester has started, we notice many new faces and miss a few old ones. Among the missing faces is John Bittig's, who used to write this column. John is now at Parris Island where he expects to "rest up" for a few weeks until he goes to O.C.S. Take it easy, John.

With the discontinuance of the A.S.T.P., a few of our boys were left out in the cold Among them were Peter Hin and Nick Hemmer. Pete was at the University of Minnesota and has been transferred to Radio School at Camp Crowder, Mo. He writes: "Received the Belle Air and it is the best issue yet—". Nick is also in Radio School, but at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

A few of us from "dear old Alumni" in civilian days remember Dan Shields.. He has been seeing a lot of action in Italy.

Glad to hear that John Sutton, Bob Gretz and Jim Cahill just received their commissions as Second Lieutenants at Quantico. Some of the other Villanova boys are there also and doing well. Bob Nealon and Doug Boyd are both in their fifth week while Chuck Drizin and Ziggy Zamlynski are in their second week. Joe Pezelski is a coach on the rifle range at New River.

John Bambrick, Bob Bolger and Jim Keyes are Midshipmen at Tower Hall, Northwestern University. They say that the studies are tough with 7 or 8 tests a week, including 3 on Saturday Bob recently received the Villanovan Key for his work on the Sports Staff last year.

We recently received a visit from Jim Hill. Jim is in the Navy Air Corps and has just been transferred from Chapel Hill, N. C. to Peru, Ind. He expects to finish up in six months. While at Chapel Hill, Jim ran into Harry Horan and George Veling. Harry is also on his way to Peru while George wil remain where he is until March 31.

Ray Gadsby, former boxer and Villanova trainer, has been transferred to Ft. Pierce, Fla, from the new amphibian school near Norfolk. Ray is a '42 alumnus.

Sgt. John W. Donahue recently left Camp Lejeune to report to El Centro, California.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

A unique situation exists in our very midst here at Villanova. Legend in the annals of military service is the traditional rivalry between the U. S. Marine Corps and the U. S. Navy.

Now this rivalry is not entirely detrimental to the efficiencies of these services—on the contrary—the opposite is true. Gunnery, seamanship, drilling, and bar-room brawls have provided a few of the instances in which the relative merits of the two outfits have been bitterly contested. Rivalry means competition, and competition, greater efficiency. This brings us back to the unique situation which exists here.

In the Marine barracks (formerly Austin Hall) here at the V-12 unit there were not quite enough Gyrenes to fill the building and a surplus of Sailors last semester, one section of the first deck was used to house them. It immediately received the name "Swabbie Row."

Here it was—that crucial condition—sailors and marines under the same roof. Disaster seemed imminent, but—nothing happened. In fact, the two traditional enemies took to each other. Evenings found them in each other's rooms. The "Swabbies" even adopted John Siano as a mascot — a distinction, of which he is proud to this very day.

With the influx of more Navy men, and the exit of a large number of marines, "Swabbie Row" has become "Swabbie Deck."

The spirit which binds the two groups which occupy Austin has been captured in a song composed by Ray Roberts, with the assistance of his "Swabbie Row" buddies. The tune is that of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," and the words follow:

We are the boys of "Swabbie Row."
All for one, and one for all
Though the Navy calls us theirs,
We are Captain Morgan's fairs;
—and he says that we are always on the ball.

From the door to yonder head,
You will find us one and all.
Though surrounded by Marines.
In their suits of Forest Greens.
—still the girls all love the boys from "Swabbie Row."

In the morning you will find us
Up and ready for the day.
Though we never swear or cuss
We are always plenty tough;
—and the girls still love the boys of "Swabbie Row."

From the dark of early morn,
'Till the black of latest night,
You will find us on the go,
All the boys of "Swabbie Row"
—taking care of all the Captain's cute Marines.

Meet the Boys

THE sole student to grace the limelight this week is one of the few fellows who has been at Villanova long enough to remember the college as it was when the War was only an unpleasant but distant reality, and college life actually resembled its Hollywood interpretation. We refer to Robert J. Casey who is a proud member of that very small group of trainees that is graduating in June.

Deciding not to defy tradition at the very start, Bob was born — May 25, 1923 A.D., to be specific—in Phila., a nearby suburb. Although he's an honor student from way back, Bob realized the futility of a six-year old's matriculating at a recognized college, and wisely chose a grammer school to start with—the Harrington School being the lucky winner.

Following this came Junior and Senior High Schools in the usual order. Both these stages of his education saw our hero taking an interest in school government and making a name for himself academically speaking at the same time.

ROBERT J. CASEY, A.S.

Next came a brief sojourn in the work-a-day world, as a clerk in a dry goods house, on the heels of which followed Bob's entrance into Villanova in October of '41 as an M.E. student. Between hobbies (high grades and photography) Bob has found ample time for numerous other items including membership in the Villanova branch of the A.S.M.E., of which he was recently elected chairman.

He is a member of Chi Epsilon Mu and served on the class ring committee in his sophomore year. The Navy has recently promoted Bob, by making him platoon leader of the third in Mendel's company.

When all is said and done, and the worlds' at peace again, Bob's first plans are to sleep for two years. After that "I'll get to work" (he says).

After Hours

By LeRoy Collegeman, A.S.

EIGHT and a half long, long, months have passed since the Navy came to Villanova. Those eight long, long months have seen many faces come and go at the top of this column, but still it continues along its endless path of uncovering the uncoverable. . .I, in my own feeble way will try to carry on this work until a new face appears in the place of my own . . .Here goes. . .

First of all the Marines in Austin Hall would like to extend their thanks, through this column to the Swabbies who have just taken up their abode in that hallowed hall . . .It seems that the muster happy new men found themselves so bored that they generously went around and made all of the Marines 'beds . . . it's a nice gesture but I'm sure that they won't make a habit of it.

OLD FACES, OLD TRICKS

Quite a bit happened over our heavenly holiday that might be of interest to our large reading public. . .voila. . .

It's a good thing for Wayne Jones that the Marines 'motto happens to be "Semper Fidelis" (Always Faithful—to the unitiated) and that some of his comrades in arms believes in it. . .While wandering through the Baltimore station on his way back to school he was rescued from boarding a train to parts unknown by some fellow Marines who became interested in him when they noticed the dazed, naive (?) look on his face and the radio and handleless suitcase in his arms. . .luckily they looked at his ticket and sent him on the right track in his quest for Villanova.

They talk about the South American beauties quite a bit but they always seem to miss the Central American Charmers. . .They must be plenty all right. . .judging from the fact that Maurice Labaerrere traveled all the way back to Cuba just to see his family and a little girl named Gladys. . .he only was with her for the four nights he was at home.

From Baltimore there also come tales of Roman Paska and Eileen, who writes him everyday and twice on Sunday; Charlie Strickroth and Bill Smith's girl friend of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Steve Terry, a long way from Indiana, and giving the Baltimore girls a go; John Murray and his blonde better half . . .and last but not least Burt Cox and his own little Jinx . . .

A Few, we know, were given brains,
Others given beauty,
To some a sense of artistry,
To some a sense of duty;
Some were given fickle ways,
Some got ways sincere,
Some got wealth, some got health,
The Spinsters — they got Leap Year!

NEW FACES, NEW TRICKS

Ed McAdams, from the deep south, hailing from Tennessee and Georgia, appears to be the up and coming successor to Sinatra and least in the hearts of Lt. August's Wednesday Naval Org. class. . While waiting for the good Lt. to show up, Ed entertains the boys with choice selections from the Tennessee hills such as "Mountain Dew" and "Cannonball Mail" . . Come in and have a listen.

Harvard Man: Who knocked on my door just now?

Janitor: It was me.

Harvard Man to second H. M.: What is he trying to say?

OLD FACES, NEW TRICKS

Jack Griffin, formerly of Alumni Hall, spoke loud and long on his coming opportunities to gain experience in the modern labs, watch operations, etc., when he arrived for his tour of duty at the Brooklyn Naval Hospital.

He has arrived and is now running an elevator. . .

George Goetzke has arrived too, right in the middle of the Ivy League. . .He is at Yale and claims that they haven't converted from their former country club style in anything but their curriculum. . . bacon, steaks, and fresh grapefruit every week. . .smoking allowed in the dining hall, liberty from 3 to 8 every day. . .and a suite of rooms for himself, McCarthy and Hamilton. . .they each have a closet AND a dresser. . but there is one drawbrack. . .270 miles from Baltimore and Anne. . .

We must leave now but before we do a little info from you. . . we have heard that exercise kills germs. . .could anyone tells us how to get them to exercise?

THE worries of an edition, the search for material and the driving of the reporters, so easily shrugged off by Dave Ward, have fallen on my shoulders. The woes he suffered and the joys he derived are all mine, plus an additional task of attempting to do half as good a job as he did in his term as Sports Editor. However, here we are so away we go to fill my two semesters.

All sports in general and in particular are, at this time of the year, either being dusted off to be placed in the trunk until next season or brought out for the budding season in view. Basketball jolted to a vicious halt when in the final game Norfolk N.T.S. hit them with 50 better points worth of good playing, finishing the poorest court season in Wildcat history as to record books but good for the spirit shown by players and students alike. Baseball is still in the offing and our favorite intra-murals are still in the process of replanning. However, a scouring glance brings a few ideas on that unheralded group of sportsmen, the track team. They now have finished their season and the record shows none of the brilliant triumphs of last year, but such things as these are excused by the obstacles overcome and the boundless enthusiasm shown by the runners.

Outstanding in his role as anchor-man was Ed Fitzgerald who has left the fold for Navy pre-flight school. His acknowledged ability coupled with a varying other three runners formed a quartet that brought a number of victories to the school.

Statistics show a win in the Millrose Games and a third in the quadrangular meet at West Point which Army took, and which proved that John Siano was the man one was to call on when the shot was to be thrown. In a very fast race the Wildcat runners Golden, Schmidt, Reagan and Fitzgerald took a second place as their share of the N.Y.A.C meet. The N.A.A.U. was in a sense disastrous, for Golden being fouled, lost us the race but still primed the team for the I.C.-4A meet in which the incomparable four placed second to Tufts in the fastest race of the indoor season, 3:24:2.

So the season is finished. We offer congratulations on their successes and I am looking forward to writing many columns in the coming months on an outdoor track squad which, even with our losses, should be formed and has all the best of chances for an excellent season.

Dave Ward, Junior Elec. Eng., after two semesters of brilliant work has resigned as Sports Editor of the Villanovan. With his tenure of office filled before his junior year in school, Seaman Ward looks forward to a Naval future with much promise.

Phillies Down Ship's Company In Phi Kap Tie

Bonafiglia, Horgan and Rosa Take Individual Crowns; New League Starting

The Phillies are champions of the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League by virtue of winning the playoff match with the Ship's Company. Having held first place against the latter's late season drive paced by Bill Thompson, Jordan Olivar, and Chief Horgan, the Phillies finally yielded just enough to allow the Ship's Company to push in for a first place tie. The big gun of the Phillies was Jack "Red" Conway who places sixth in the High Average column.

Angelo Rosa, secretary of the league, announced that the league was ready to begin once more just as soon as enough teams have entered. The response to this question raised at the conclusion of the past schedule was enthusiastic, and it is therefore hoped that the teams will organize promptly so that the new season may begin.

Bonafiglia Tops

The Junior Civils, led by Joe Bonafiglia and Rosa, Number One and Three respectively in the High Averages, made an early rush for top spot, but they relinquished it very soon after to the Mendel Third-deckers. Mendel Third-deck held the lead for a longer period, giving it up toward the close of the first half to the Phillies. They then slid down to finish fourth behind the steady Junior Civils.

Bonafiglia took first place in both High Single and High Three beside High Average. Since he was only permitted by league rules to select one crown, he chose High average for which he had 171.96. Rosa took the High Single award with a score of 224. Chief Horgan of Ship's Company claimed the High Three title with a 562.

Past Wildcat Season Worst in Court History With Record of 8 Wins in 17 Games; Frascella's 203 Points and Consistently Fine Playing Best of Season

The '43-'44 Wildcat squad started off the season where last year's team left off and added four victories before succumbing to a well-balanced Muhlenberg team at Allentown. Loyola's civilian outfit, composed mainly of freshmen, was on the short end of a 51-35 score as the 'Cats won as they pleased. Next came Swarthmore's V-12 aggregation, and another high-scoring game went into the win column. Playing without the services of Frank Frascella, Jack Ramsey, and Don Osterman, a determined couple of boys won a 43-32 victory from the Navy Yard Marine Unit. In a mock football game, Princeton's closing rush left them on the short end of 42-40 score as the game ended in a scramble of players under the Tiger basket.

Muhlenberg overcame an early deficit and broke the flood gates in the last quarter to hand the 'Cats their first defeat, 53-38. Sampson Naval Training Station repeated the dose by pulling away from an outmanned hometeam, also in the final period, to gain a 51-36 victory.

Extra Periods

Team-play came into its own as the F. & M. Diplomats were frozen out 41-36 at Lancaster and walloped 48-29 on the local court. Followers of the Bucknell Bisons were treated to the best game of the season as the Severancemen, led by Frascella and Feeney, overcame a 19 point deficit and won in two extra periods, 43-42. Frascella's steal and length of the floor dribble for a lay-up tied the score and his foul in the second extra "five" won the game.

Father Time deprived the 'Cats of another "Merriwell" finish after they rallied for 11 points in the final four minutes of a thriller with Fort Dix. However, fate denied them a chance to tap in the tying basket as the second hand hit zero with the ball dropping on the outside of the hoop. Rider was the second Jersey opponent for the locals and a measure of revenge was gained with a 48-41 triumph. A word of praise should be given to

"Say, who's the new Specialist?" "Boy, he looks as though he is really put together." These and other similar remarks were heard as Specialist 2/c Art Raimo walked out in front of the P.T. classes for the first time on January 29th, here at Villanova.

Cornering Mr. Raimo in the field house the other day as he was preparing to go to lunch with his two pals (?) Mr. Olivar, head football coach and Chief Specialist "Doc" Horgen, your reporter began to ask some questions. The first question of "Where were you born?" brought a prompt answer of 1906 from Chief Horgen, while Mr. Olivar chimed in with "Doesn't he hold his age well?" However, the 2/c Specialist finally managed to break in with a very weak 1916, and added that the place was Boston. "The time, to be exact," he said "was April 24, 1916."

He attended Everett High School, and proceeded to establish for himself quite an athletic reputation by playing football and participating in track. After this last statement, Chief Horgen again interrupted with, "You were a shot putter, weren't you Art?"

"No, I was just the general handyman."

But to get back to the interview, Mr. Raimo graduated from high school in 1933 after which he matriculated right here at Villanova. During his college days, "the Jeep," as he was konwn then, played fullback on probably the greatest Villanova eleven of all time. Incidently, one of his teammates was the present coach of the Wildcats, Jordan Olivar

Being graduated from college in 1938 with a B. S. in Education, Mr. Raimo was backfield coach at St. Joseph's College until the Crimson and Gray gave up the sport for the duration. He then moved on to Ridley Township High School where he stayed until he joined the Navy last September.

Wildcats Choose An All Opponent Team Of Six Men

Soldier, Sailor All-Americans Feature This "All" Team; Loyola's Lacey Only Civilian Choice

Six men, one each from Army, Sampson, Ft. Dix, and Aberdeen, were chosen on the Villanova All-Opponent basketball team. Those selected were, in the order of the teams mentioned above, Dale Hall, George Milhaven, Hank Baietti, Bill Holzman, Bob Hassmuller, and Angelo Musi.

The old adage, "Experience is the best teacher" is well proven by these selections as it is noted, that only two of the six, Hall and Baietti, are without pro experience. The remainder of the team consists of two All-Americans, one All-Metropolitan choice and one All-Philadelphia selection.

However, for the first time in a few years, there was not one unanimous choice, but there were three tied for the last two positions on the first quintet. Leading the balloting was big Hank Baietti, Muhlenberg's great playmaker and high scorer. Next in line were: Bill Holzman, C.C.N.Y.'s All-American who aided in the final walloping of the season which the Wildcats took when they traveled to Norfolk; and Dale Hall, Army's captain-elect, who was also a member of the Cadet football squad which handed the Blue and White a trouncing last September.

Behind these three came George Milhaven of Sampson who fills the bill of the All-Metropolitan selection received while playing at St. John's of Brooklyn; while tied with him was Bob Hassmuller, erstwhile Fordham All-American, and Fort Dix captain whose spectacular set shooting had no small effect on the final outcome of the soldier's game. Right alongside, making a three way tie, was Angelo Musi, Aberdeen Bomber who is rated by many as one of the

Term Is Officially Opened by Mass

Fr. Stanford Addresses Assembled Navy and Marine Trainees Before Ceremony

The third semester under the Navy V-12 Program was officially opened with Solemn High Mass in the College chapel Monday, March 6, at 8:30 A. M. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President, prior to which, he addressed the assembled Navy and Marine students in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., was Deacon, and Rev. V. A. McQuade, O.S.A., sub-deacon.

In his address to the V-12 students, Fr. Stanford pointed out the benefits of the long-planned program. He has little respect or patience for any student who enters the Program in a half hearted way. In addition he said:

"There is the finest spirit of friendliness and cooperation between the Naval staff and the Administration and Faculty of the College. We are working together for one end, namely that you men who are in training, may get a maximum of benefit — mentally, spiritually and physically As a result of your stay here, it is our expectation that you will be able to render more intelligent service to the Navy and Marine Corps—and through these great armed services, that you will give the highest type of service to your country in a time of greatest need.

"As you begin a new term, I not only urge you to use your utmost efforts to succeed in your studies, but I tell you that to do so is your serious duty to your government. It is also your obligation to your comrades in arms on the battle lines who wear your uniform, but stained with the blood and sweat and tears of mortal combat. We are here, Navy staff and College staff, interested in you and sympathetic with your difficulties. We will assist you in every way possible to do your full duty. May the next four months be fruitful and happy for you ,and may God bless your every endeavor."

lap for his Bachelor of Science degree in education, all of which had begun by a journey from Bayonne to Villanova. Although first and foremost in his extra-curricular activities, the Villanovan failed to hinder him from participating in other school affairs. Various dance committees testify to this, particularly the Decorations Committee for the Soph Cotillion of '43, of which he was chairman.

A top ranking honor student, former member of the Math Club, the German Club, and the Phi Kappa Pi, he is at present confining his his activities to aiding the new Villanovan staff and his office as treasurer of the Catholic Inter-Collegiate Interracial Council.

To both Hoberg and Hitchell go crowning laurels for their service to Villanova in general and the Villanovan in particular. Under their leadership and guidance, the paper survived and flourished during its most critical period—that of the transition of Villanova to active duty with the navy.

this school (Rider) for carrying on a basketball schedule against some of the best teams in the East with only 25 boys in the entire school. After being hopelessly outclassed in the first half, they came back fighting: brought the dark spector of defeat to the local partisans.

Navy Teams Triumph

The Little Quakers gained sweet revenge by nipping the Wildcats 41-38 at the Swarthmore field house. Meeting for the second time, Bucknell. proceeded to even its score by taking home a neat 49-39 victory. Cheered on by former students transferred here under the V-12 program, Loyola's improved freshmen team gave the locals a battle before succumbing 55-50 in their effort to gain their first victory over Villanova in the ten game series.

Opening the second half with a rush, the locals closed a 10 point Middie lead into a 2 point advantage only to become the victim of a Navy counter-attack that resulted in a 35-27 victory for the Annapolis men. Sampson took up where the "future Admirals" left off and administered a 56-44 drubbing, much to the delight of the trainees who witnessed the game.

Resorting to a weave, to counteract the lack of scoring punch, the locals were unable to regain the victory path, and Aberdeen Proving Ground walked off the court with a 31-25 victory. Dale Hall's 23 points topped the entire 'Cat production as Army's high scoring Cadets won a 34-22 verdict. With the exception of Navy this was the second lowest margin of victory amassed by the West Pointers.

Norfolk Wins by 50

Muhlenberg won its second game from the locals by a 46-32 score despite Frascella's 20 points. Norfolk Naval Training Station put a fitting climax to the worst season in Villanova history by throwing in everything but the waterbucket in administering a 69-19 defeat in a game that started slowly and ended like a cyclone. The Tars hit the hoop for 51 points in the last half with everything thrown going in for a basket.

Highlights of the season were: the all-around play of Frank "The Body" Frascella; Phil "I can't see the basket" Jakeway's defensive play in the final games; Bob "I don't believe in shooting" Forrest's unappreciated backboard duty, and Jack "go way and let me sleep" Ramsey's courage in playing despite constant stomach trouble.

Freshman Chosen

Strangely enough, the Army and Navy were represented equally on this sextet of a coachs' dream, as there were three soldiers and three sailors selected. Hall, Hassmuller, and Musi were of those khaki clad, while Milhaven, Holzman, and Baietti were the seamen in favor.

Selected for the second quintet were: Jim Longenecker, Navy captain who led the Middies' attack against the 'Cats; Jim Lacey, sensational Loyola freshman; Jim Coughlin, former St. Joe's player and Fort Dix's leading scorer; Don Ahern, Sampson's player-coach; and Ken Stranigan, Wyoming star of a few years back.

Service Club To Sponsor Review and Dance Apr. 15

Same Group That Entertained in January To Bring Own Band and Chorus of Sixty

On Saturday evening, April 15, the Yankee Doodle Service Club of Jenkintown, Pa., will stage a review and dance in the College Field House for the Navy and Marine students of Villanova. The club plans to bring about 60 girls and their own orchestra, but final arrangements have not been completed as yet.

Students will be permitted to bring their own dates, but the Student Council will take care of securing escorts from among the trainees for the sixty girls in the show.

Preceding the dance, the talented group will stage a musical show entitled "Spring Review" which will last about an hour. Many of the girls, although amateurs in the profession, impressed all who witnessed their previous performance with their professional talent.

The Yankee Doodle association first came to Villanova on Friday evening, January 28, at which time they put on a two hour show. Bringing a cast of about thirty, and aided by talented members of the Marine Corps unit, they played to a capacity crowd of the student body, both service and civilian, in the Auditorium of the College Field House. Judging from comments among the students after the show, similar performances by the group would be welcomed on the campus

The Review will start about 8:00 P. M., and the following dance will last till 1:00 P. M. There will be no charge for admission, and it is expected that a wholehearted and complete turnout of the student body will appear.

Seminary Guild Card Party and Dance on April 25

On Tuesday, April 25, 1944, the Augustinian Seminary Guild will hold its Eleventh Annual Card Party and Dance. This affair is staged each year in behalf of the young seminarians of the Augustinian Order. The funds raised through this social help in educating these young men for the holy priesthood.

Last year the entire student body was invited to attend, and a great many responded to the invitation. The same hope is held this year as was held last — that as many as possible will aid in making the affair a success.

The Director of the Guild, Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., has the following committees among the priests aiding him in his efforts to make the 1944 party one of the social highlights on the campus: Chance Books: Fathers Donnellon, McGrath and Deehan; Refreshments: Fathers McMenamin, Russell and Kemme; Ushers: Fathers Falvey, Giorlaimi and Gavigan; Publicity: Fathers McKee, McCarthy and Sofranko; Patrons: Fathers Lunney and Burke; Program: Fathers Meaney and Klekotka. Tickets will be handled by Fr. Coffey himself.

Through the kindness and interest of Commander Milner and Captain Morgan, both the Navy and Marine students will be allowed to attend.

Boyle Elected

At a meeting held Thursday, March 16, in the Mendel Amphitheater, immediately after evening services in the College Chapel, the Sanctuary Society elected William Boyle President for the coming semester. A Junior in the Electrical Engineering school, Boyle has been a member of the Society for four semesters. He fills the vacancy left by Thomas McQuade, who graduated in February.

Also decided at the meeting were plans for a Benediction club which will begin this week. Its purpose is to instruct students in the manner of serving Benediction.

Library Lists Rare Periodicals In McGarrity's Irish-Amer. Collection

By PVT. WM. J. CARTER, USMCR

In an effort to make many of the rare and outstanding items in the Joseph McGarrity book collection available to history students and scholars throughout the country, the staff of the Villanova College Library has recently prepared a list of the more important periodicals in the collection. This list is to be included in the new supplementary volume of the Union List of Serials.

Joseph McGarrity, one of the foremost exponents of Irish-American freedom in the United States, donated about 15,000 items of Irish-American history and literature to the Library just prior to his death in 1940.

The Union List of Serials of the United States and Canada, contains a listing of periodicals in the outstanding libraries of the two countries. A supplementary volume is now being prepared for publication, and the College Library, which has one of the best and most complete collections of Irish literature in the country, is endeavoring to complete a list of its latest additions for the publication.

Have Local Interest

Two of the periodicals, the "Constitutional Diary and the Philadelphia Evening Advertiser" and the "Sentinel of Freedom," contain many items of local interest to Philadelphians. Included in the former is an interesting notice of General George Washington's death. An observant student will note that, while Washington died on Saturday, December 14, 1799, the news of his death was not published in Philadelphia until the following Wednesday. This attests to the slow communications of that time since the distance the news was relayed was only from Mount Vernon to Philadelphia.

Journalists and students of journalism will also be interested in the comparison of the two inch death notice of General Washington, which appeared on page three, to the streamer headlines that are given to less important men in todays' newspapers.

Notice of Lottery

Included also in the issue of December 18, 1799, is the notice of a lottery for the purpose of completing the building of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Augustine in Philadelphia. This was the first church to be erected in the United States by the Augustinian Fathers, and towards the lottery, General Washington himself contributed fifty dollars.

Forty-three years after the church was completed, it was destroyed in 1844. In a series of anti-religious demonstrations, the Know-nothings burned and pillaged the church. It was only through the work of the priests that a large part of the Augustinian Library was saved. The salvaged books were sent to Villanova for safekeeping. At the time of the Know-nothing demonstration, it was feared that Villanova itself might be burned. In order to safeguard the students who were attending the college at that time, they were sent to houses in the neighboring vicinity after classes and remained at the homes during the night.

Books on Display

The "Sentinel of Freedom" contains an inserted circular notice concerning the burning of Princeton on March 6, 1802. The notice was written in the form of an appeal to the friends of religion, science, and civil liberty, as well as to the alumni of the university, and the "wealthy and benevolent of every description" for funds to repair the seminary. The appeal itself was directed and signed by

Salty Sick Bay Assistant Hails From Uniontown; Formerly Employed As Embalmer

In an atmosphere of smoke emanating from a long black cigar, and with a lingering odor of salt, your reported interviewed Walter E. Griffith, Pharmacist Mate First Class, the latest addition to the Ship's Company at Villanova.

Walter E. Griffith hails from Uniontown, Pa., where he was born in 1909. Emphatically, Lt. Comdr. Prince's assistant announced that he attended Redstone High School, and not Uniontown High. "We could beat them at anything from football to hop-scotch," he said. With the subject of football, we primed the pump, and the informative results were that Griffith played right guard for his school team which won several county championships.

WALTER E. GRIFFITH, Ph.M. 1/c

Following graduation from hign school, Griffith turned from athletics to a more artistic profession, namely music. Manipulating a sweet sax, he played mainly with road bands and travelled extensively.

More serious lines of endeavor soon attracted him however, and following somewhat in the footsteps of another of our sick bay staff, Pharmacist Mate Hall, he matriculated at the Renouard Training School of Embalming. After graduating, he applied his knowledge until the nautical life beckoned.

Griffith's naval career began in 1942, when he traveled to Pittsburgh and enlisted in the V-6 Naval Reserve. He was sent to the

Phi Kap. To Hold Dance; Drive For Back Dues Begun

Pres. McGuinn and Other New Officers Assume Posts; Lectures, Plant Trips, Movies Planned for Semester

At a meeting held Wednesday, March 15, at 7:00 P. M. in the Amphitheater of Mendel Hall, the recently elected officers and members of the Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, discussed p[illegible] for a Spring dance and prop[illegible]ctivities during the coming semester. Movies on baseball were shown after the business of the meeting was finished.

Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., President of the Frat, expressed satisfaction at the attendance at the meeting, which reached nearly 75. McGuinn, Senior Mechanical Engineer, succeeded John J. McManus, A.S., who graduated in February and is now stationed at Camp Peary, Va.

Other officers elected at the close of last semester include: Hugh F. Gillespie, A.S., Vice President; William E. Farrell, A.S., Secretary; Thomas M. Schubert, A.S., Treasurer; Charles H. Harrington, A.S., Representative to the Student Council; and Martin J. Roddy, A.S., Sergeant at Arms.

Spring Dance Planned

One of the more important items discussed was the plans for the Engineers' Spring dance. Decisions as to the type of dance and the price of tickets were resolved into a consideration of what bands were available at the time. A band committee was then appointed and results of their investigations will be announced at the next meeting.

President McGuinn also plans to reorganize the Frat. Activity cards will be made out for every member, on which will be kept a strict record of the member's activity in the Phi Kappa Pi, attendance at meetings, work on committees and general cooperation in the organization. Contents of these cards will aid in determining a member's eligibility for a Key in his Senior year.

To Hold Lectures

Membership cards will be distributed at the next meeting to the 200 engineers now active in the Frat. At this time a drive for back dues will be inaugurated in an effort to replenish the funds.

Votes from the floor approved plans to have lectures during the semester by distinguished men in the field of engineering. Inspection tours to various manufacturing plants were also planned. As a result of the general enjoyment of the baseball film shown at the meeting, the Frat will endeavor to secure other films on technical subjects, sports and comics, for coming meetings.

The Frat also emphasized that although the lectures, movies and other activities are strictly for Phi Kappa Pi members, they will not be made entirely exclusive. Due to the number of students who are ineligible for membership, any restriction on attendance would be unfair.

A Good Idea

Christopher Morley, in his pre-Foyle days, once remarked that the American public has become so accustomed to bad and half-rate entertainment, that any mediocre play, picture, or performance is taken for granted as the work of a transcendent genius. The thing Mr. Morley especially noted bears all the irony of the situation; he marveled at the wonderful hush which falls over an audience immediately before the curtain goes up, the hush which is so complimentary to the entertainers, writers, and producers of the ensuing show. These show people, however, have fallen into a habit of indifference to kind flattery, and mark their platonism by their failure to really entertain the audiences which thus honor them.

This, however unappreciative it may be, is not the only wrong perpetrated by the theatre world. It has been guilty of propagandizing false and evil philosophies, of eulogizing historical personages whom the records will show to have been wicked men, of spreading the gospel of communism, the creed of dissent, the manifestoes of every type of leftism and radicalism, and of generally marring the beauty of its art with the cânker of sensationalism.

Thus it is that Hollywood has fallen into ill-repute, has acquired the title, and the dishonor accruing, of being a hotbed of leftism. The American public has come to consider the home of the film industry as a furnace of communism, as a huge clique dominated by radicals and crackpots. But we are now told that our ideas are presumptuous and false.

You see, a committee has just been formed to dissolve Hollywood's evil reputation. It is the Motion Picture Alliance for the Preservation of American Ideals. It is a good idea, and it has long been needed. This group, enlisting representatives of all phases of the movie trade, has set itself up to antagonize and put reverse pressure on the colossal lies, stupendous fallacies, and all other adjectival rot which the motion picture has so often foisted upon the public. The Alliance claims that these bad traits do not emanate from the majority of Hollywood citizens and workers, but that they are concocted by a 'small, highly-organized, cleverly-led, and extremely articulate minority." A surface knowledge of the mannerisms of the movers to the left will show that the proposition of the Alliance is capable of holding water.

The trick of the communists has ever been to build up their case so that it appears to be the chosen religion of the majority. Not only the cinema, but the radio, the newspaper, and the lecture forum are used in establishing this opinion. This is the way of the cornered beast. He is in terror at the nearness of the pursuer, yet he sets up such a terrible howl that the latter is frightened into an overestimation of his game's strength, ferocity, and yes, even his numbers.

At the present time, because, no doubt, of the condition of the country at war, crackpots of all leanings are ensconced in the swivel chairs of more than a few high offices; we realize their presence because they tend to be audible. It is highly favorable to the American cause that these jokers acquire enemies. This has just been done by the members of the Alliance, and it is certain that this body of right-minded citizens will receive all the support and encouragement that is its due.

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

WELL, this seemed to have been old home week so many visits from some of the old pals. It was swell seeing Tom Nary again, all decked out in his new R. O. T. C. uniform. Tom was one of the few from here to receive a transfer. He was sent to Yale and he really loves his work. "The only things missing are the fellows and priests."

The Merchant Marine whom you saw on the campus (most of the time with Fr. Burke) was Eddie Reilly. He's made a few trips across and expects to go for Officers' Training soon.

The Marine with the "18" on his arm, which stands for the 18th Defense Battalion, was P. F. C. Walter Wentling. "Lem," as we used to call him, is on his last leave after which he expects to shove off to parts unknown.

Maurice Bingham also paid us a visit. He has just finished Signal School in the University of Illinois and is now on his way to New London, Conn., for Submarine School.

We recently received an "Immediate Release" from New Orleans, headquarters of the Eighth Naval District. It stated: "New Orleans, March 4—Lt. (jg) Charles F. McGee, USNR, of Salem, Mass., has completed his training and has reported to the Naval Armed Guard at New Orleans for assignment to duty as commander of a naval gun crew aboard a merchant vessel.—The Armed Guard officer graduated from Villanova College in 1934, where he played varsity end for three years.—"

We have news from Joe Brogan and Tim Schneider, two of our Freshman year cheerleaders. Joe is at the Coast Guard Depot in Portland, Oregon, while Tim was just graduated from Aviation Ordnance School with the rate of a 3rd Class Aviation Ordnance Machinist Mate. He is now at the Jacksonville Air Station.

Jim Harkins, Dick Ryan, Frank Moscariello, Jim Finnegan and a few others were to celebrate St. Patrick's Day by graduating as Ensigns from Northwestern University. We know Dick was commissioned because he practically flew back to Philadelphia and didn't fail to be among this week's visitors. He looks great in his officer's uniform. We certainly hope the others came through too.

After Hours

HERE I am again, still at this hectic job of "trying" to uncover the uncoverable. . .it gets to be pretty difficult at times too, what with all my subjects (or victims) just starting off the semester and not so well on their way yet towards making news as they will be later on when things really get rolling.

OUT OF THE HUT. . .

The only activity of note this past weekend went on down at that haven for study worn sailors and marines, the Hut. . .It seems that there was quite a delegation from fourth deck Mendel and surprisingly enough not one of them looked sleepy . . .it must be all that extra sleep they picked up during the week. . .They all seemed to be there. . .Joe Sulock, Hugh O'Reilly, Bob Leahy, Eskimo Bill Koness, and quite a few other BMOC's. . .

The winner of the feature of the evening, the Jitterbug Contest, was Andy Murphy. . .he displayed quite a number of new steps never before seen around here, or anyplace else for that matter. . .His charming partner was just one of the many very nice girls Mrs. Cummings provided for the pleasure of the restricted men.

Marty Roddy got several very surprising rewards for winning the elimination dance contest. . .Martin must remember in the future that being over-gallant sometimes brings unexpected results. . .also quite a bit of embarrassment.

OUT OF THE HAT. . .

The boys of Alumni hall really give Joe Dunigan credit when it comes to girls. . .he sure can pick them and not out of the hat either . . .He, at last accounting, had four of the nicest bits of femininity that ever hit Washington, D.C., his home town. . .He claims that while there are nine girls to every boy in Washington some other fellow must have fourteen because he has only four. . .Don't be downhearted Joe, things are tough all over.

When the subject of true love comes up there is one sailor's name that must never be omitted, mainly because of the fact that when Bill Farrell is around all you can hear is Mary, Mary, Mary. . .it's a grand old name but it can be overdone. . .

This is just the type of weather that Larry Bradley of Portland, Maine, thrives on. . .Since being disappointed in love a short while ago he has taken up Ice-fishing as a source of pleasure and this latest stunt of the weather man is right up his alley. . .don't despair Lawrence, there are plenty of fish in the sea. . .see?

. . .So long now, see you in the Villanovan. . .

Meet the Boys

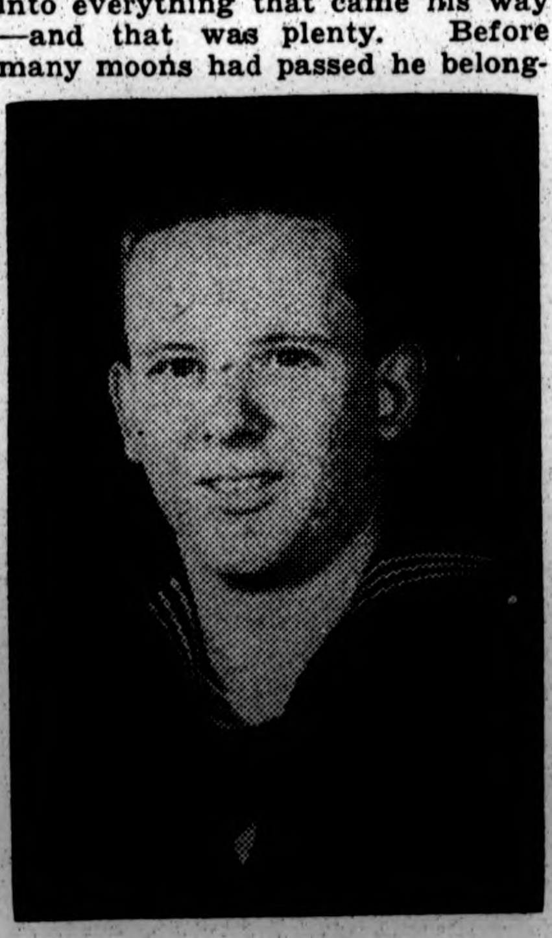
UNDER the microscope this week we have John Hairsine of Mendel Hall and points South. Not so far South, however, that our specimen should feel obligated to speak with a mint julep drawl; for 'tis Delaware that lays claim to Jack—both as a birthplace and as a source of education.

We can supplement the above by adding that it was the air of Wilmington that was first inhaled by our subject and the knowledge of the profs of Archmere Prep. in nearby Claymont that shortly thereafter filled his brain.

While at this institution Jack made quite a "serial-number" for himself both in sports and studies. He played both varsity football and basketball in his senior year, and then nimbly jumped the fense and showed his scholarly side by his graduation in June of '41.

After prep school Jack became an outdoor man for several months in his capacity as a counsellor at a boys camp. From then on in, however, our hero's story is strictly a Villanova one.

Enrolling in the fall of '41 as a M. E., Jack wasted no time getting into everything that came his way—and that was plenty. Before many moons had passed he belonged to more societies than Mrs. Roosevelt—well at least almost as many.



JOHN E. HAIRSINE, A.S.

Swimming, bowling for Phi Kappa Pi, playing in the College band; and even A. S. M. E.ing did not stop Jack from being a good student in his spare time. At present "J. E." is rapidly winning hordes of new friends by serenading them on his melodious bugle at six A. M.

After his military career is over, Jack plans to return to his old hobby of building gas-powered model airplanes . . .

What some fellows will do for fun. . . . .

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

TO the new men who arrived this semester, and to you "veterans" who didn't get around much the last two, this piece is especially dedicated.

It concerns Villanova's good (?) fortune in being located in the proximity of so many girls' (oops, pardon) women's colleges. By virtue of this geographic position it is not difficult, even for the most gruesome of us, to meet some of the "characters" from these neighboring schools. At least one play, tea-dance, or formal is held each week, to which Joe V. Twelve is invited.

Joe usually enjoys himself at these affairs, for he invariably meets a girl who, "reminds him of his sister." A poll of the "oldtimers" shows that many of the current romances started in this way.

A consensus of opinion shows too, that each of these institutions produces its own "type." This is as it should be, for a girl should get distinction from college, if nothing else. The situation provides a limitless field of observation for the Psychologist, Sociologist, and Wolf. The fruits of my endeavors in the field consist merely of my reactions to each "type"—they follow.

Brenda Bryn Mawr

Strangely sincere about her studies
Is Brenda and all her beautious buddies
Possibly a little demure,
And conservative—to be sure,
Odd tho' that one of her joys
Is her preference for the Princeton boys.
But the Bryn Mawr Type has "lots of fun."
You'll discover this when you've dated one.

Isabelle Immaculata

Very congenial and quite intellectual;
Her interests are strictly intersectional.
Just call her on the phone and you'll Find her intentions are unmatrimonial.
You'll find that she's a cosmopolite.
Could this be due to the school's great height?
For she goes to school on a hill that's lofty.
Maybe it's from climbing this that Isabelle's no softy.

Rosie Rosemont

Down the Pennsy tracks, over Rosemont way,
Rosie spends a busy day.
Our nearest neighbor, but for some reason "distant,"
To her, we are practically non-existent.
We are surely perplexed by her attitude.
What could have caused this horrible feud?
Perhaps she has a reason for shunning us socially,
Could she have heard how we react emotionally?

Harriet Harcum

Major in Music, the Arts, and the Dance,
Harriet is seen during the week wearing pants.
Harriet wears no skirts to the knees.
—she prefers dungarees.
On week ends, however, when the V-12er's invade,
Harriet dons her "peachy" brocade.
Then she's off with Joe for the weekly show,
And proceeds to forget all she used to know.

Charlotte Chestnut Hill

Quiet, naive, and most discreet—
Here's a girl you certainly should meet.
Not only is this Miss esthetic;
She's also quite "magnetic."
A personality that's vivacious
—I might even say, pertinacious.
But Charlotte is not the stubborn kind;
She's rather agreeable—I think think you'll find.

Miss U. S. O.

And I mustn' forget the Canteen hostesses.
The girls who makes the weekend just what it is.
Each week they come and develop callouses,
And corns, bunions, and paralysis.
Perhaps you think that P. T. is tough—
—Well, dancing at the Canteen is pretty rough.
So here's to the working girl who gives her best,
For the V-12er's, and all the rest.

Wildcat Outdoor Track Squad Begins Practice For '44 Season

Indoor Relay Team Already in Trim for Coming Meets; Harrington, Schmitt, Rideout Only Holdovers from Last Season's Squad; Large Schedule Being Prepared

Succeeding the indoor relay team, an outdoor cinder squad under the tutelage of Ensign S. Maniaci is in the process of formation. A call for candidates has been issued and already members of the new team are working out. A schedule for the coming season is being formed.

Among those already practicing are the remaining runners from the past season's indoor relay team. With the transfer of Fitzgerald, Reagan and Foreman, there remain Phil Golden, former St. Joseph's quarter-miler, Chuck Harrington, member of last year's Wildcat team, Burt Cox and Jim Morris, a late season transfer from Penn. These men together with additions from those newly arrived trainees, will compose the middle distance men. Among those middle distance men new to Villanova is one John Anderson from Brooklyn, N. Y. who was rated as an exceptionally good quarter miler when he ran for the New York Athletic Club in Madison Square Garden.

Siano For Discus

For the distances will be a holdover from last year, Don Schmitt, and John Atkinson a Navy transfer from St. Josephs' College. George Rideout, who ran last year for Villanova and who has already run in some meets this season, will lead the Wildcat hurdlers. In the field events will be John Siano, Georgetown football star who played here last season and who will fill the bill as shot putter and discus man. In a meet earlier this year with West Point, Siano making his debut in weight throwing proved himself quite adept, coming in second by inches, in a large field. Pairing up with him will be John Donahue who is also a marine trainee and weight man. Burt Cox, quarter miler, will also perform in the broad jump. Many new men have signed up for the team and it is with these that Mr. Maniaci intends to round out a representative squad.

Swarthmore Listed

Only tentative engagements for the coming season have as yet been made. The team may, if prepared, run in a special meet in Camden on April 1st in which other nearby colleges will be represented. An engagement with Swarthmore in the coming season has been listed by the Little Quakers, and it is highly probable that they will, again this year, compete in the Penn Relays and the Middle Atlantics. The schedule of collegiate meets is as yet incomplete but it is to be one comparable to that of last year.

The list of candidates for the team is still open and those desiring to run are to give their names to Ensign Maniaci at the fieldhouse. In order to enable those on the team to practice they are automatically excused from the regular physical training classes.

DICK GRAY STARS

Responsible in part for the success of the Greensboro Air Force basketball team in this past season was a former captain and court star from Villanova, Dick Gray. Playing together with him were All American George Senesky, John Hahnken, ex-Georgetown ace, John Jorgenson. Dick played on the '41-'42 Main Line basketball team and was captain in that his senior year. For his court work, Phog Allen, Kansas U. basketball mentor said: "Dick Gray is perhaps the finest basketball player I have seen in recent years, both for his brilliant defensive play and his fine scoring ability."

FOREMOST always, in Wildcat extra-curriculars, has been intra-mural sports. Softball, baseball, swimming, basketball, touch football, and boxing all in their turn have contributed to a full and interesting program here at school. With the coming of a service unit to the campus and the great stress laid by the Navy on body work together with brain work, a more extensive program came into effect.

The success of this program has been evident in the manner in which it was received and since carried out. The ending of last semester brought to a close that semester's quota of intra-mural sports which had included a swimming tourney, a basketball league, and a boxing tournament that was highly successful.

Now we have a new semester and we want a new intra-mural program. Acceding to our request is the seldom praised creator and conductor of all such leagues and tourneys, Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics. Already Father McKee has begun work on a plan for an even larger program for this academic year.

This schedule of intra-mural sports lists another swimming tourney and boxing tournament. In keeping with the seasonal trend will be a softball league, which will be run on the same basis as the one of last summer. Added to this will be a touch football league for the long cool spring days that are here already. Similarly this league will comprise teams from all the barracks.

The success and continuance of such a program will depend on the enthusiasm and dispatch with which the participants themselves handle it. Father McKee may arrange the program and start it rolling but its existence will depend on the individuals who make up the working part of the program. It will afford an excellent opportunity for exercise to those who are not on varsity teams and serves as an outlet for the many pains and worries incurred in the pursuit of a stiff accelerated program of studies.

By way of a sidelight, there is brought to mind a fact which I might class as another incentive to participate in intra-mural sports. Many fellows feel that they do not have the ability to compete against others seemingly more gifted than they on many varsity teams. Strikingly, it has many times been intra-murals that brought the necessary confidence and polish to these dubious ones and laid the groundwork for class A ability on the varsity squad in subsequent years. Let these and other arguments convince you, all of you, that the intra-murals are for your benefit and use and if we all assume the attitude that they are mine, they will be an even greater success.

Playing For A's

high-scoring star of last year's Wildcat basketball squad and for three years a member of the baseball team here, has signed a contract to play for the Philadelphia Athletics. Woods, who after graduation from here entered the Army, received a medical discharge. While he played here he made quite a name for himself as a pitcher, at which position he will probably be placed with the A's.

Frat Renews Bowling League on Saturday

At a meeting held last Friday night in Mendel Hall, the members of the Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, voted in favor of renewing the bowling league which had run most successfully in the past semester. It is, as was that league, to be composed of ten teams and to be under the guidance of Angie Rosa and Joe Bonafiglia.

It was announced that the league would open next Saturday at the 69th St. Bowling Center at the usual time of two o'clock. Of the ten teams which are scheduled to compete only seven have been fully organized and entered. Since so few teams are to be allowed to compete, it is probable that the other three are in the final stages of organization.

Rule Changes

Certain changes have been made in rules, to cover the eligibility of non-frat men in the bowling league. The rule was to the effect that these men could bowl, but that the initiation fee for entrance would be higher than that levied on frat members. Together with this initiation fee will be the usual cost of team bowling, $5.00 per team. This five dollars will cover the cost of bowling, tips, and leave a certain amount which will be added to the prize money.

It was determined that this semester the teams would be composed of six men, each having an extra man as an alternate in the event of absence of one of the regular five. They also decided to make the league more interesting by upping the prize from the forty-five dollars which was awarded last semester to some higher figure.

54 Candidates Report At Call for Baseball

Large Variety of Experience Had As College Players and Pros Reply; Five Players From Last Season Return

Thursday's call for candidates for the 1944 edition of a Wildcat baseball team produced the startling number of fifty-four volunteers. Varying in experience from a player in the International League to boys fresh from triumphs on high school diamonds, they represented the largest turnout for baseball in many years.

Indicating definite choice in their selection of a position were eleven outfielders, nineteen infielders, six pitchers, and three catchers. Thirteen men named two positions of equal preference and two stated no choice.

A sifting through of the candidates reveals a great number of players of experience from large Eastern Colleges, due of course to the fact that Villanova is a Navy V-12 school. However, the standout in those applying was not a college star but a sailor with Class AA experience. The sailor is Gordon Mueller, who boasts experience as a pitcher with the Baltimore Club in the International League. He pitched for them one and a half years.

Five Holdovers

Back for this season are only five men from the Wildcat team of last year. They are: pitchers, Jim "Red" Lafferty and Gene Wienert, George Warner, shortstop, outfielders, George Shahood and John Corr and infielder, Charlie Mamzic. Added to these will be representative players from such schools as Georgetown, Loyola, Boston College,, Catholic U., St. Vincent's, Penn State, Holy Cross, Penn and others. These men have all had high school experience and in many cases sandlot and Legion ball to augment their college experience.

At least twenty-five men have had semi-pro ball experience. Many have played as much as three and four years of such ball. In sailor George Holmberg, there is a shortstop who after high school ball in Batesburg, South Carolina, played seven years of amateur ball in a South American league.

Practice Held

From the gridiron to the diamond come John Siano with high school and two years of Georgetown playing, Al Sondheimer, ball player from Catholic U., and Jackie Welsh, who has had sandlot experience. Recently playing on the basketball court and now trying for a place in baseball are Phil Jakeway, who played American Legion ball in Michigan, Andy Fontana, with sand-lot experience, Jack Ramsay, a semi-pro player and Bob Formaini who played two years in the Lake Shore (Class E) league.

The first practice was to be held Monday afternoon on the Mendel Hall field. As yet no head coach has been named but the appointment is in the offing. Their first game will be played sometime in April.

Due to their intensive course of studies and the fact that they are in a service program, the schedule this year will not be as great per week as that of last year. However a promising note was found in the notice that the authorities intended if possible to continue the sport right on through the summer since, due to the accelerated program, all students would be here during that time.

Vince McNally Takes Asst. Post At Holy Cross

Vince McNally, assistant football coach to Clipper Smith here at Villanova, has accepted the post of assistant to Ank Scanlon at Holy Cross. McNally succeeds Lud Wray, former All American at Penn, as Scanlon's assistant.

Vince will be remembered by Villanova followers for his association with Clipper Smith in turning out the greatest of Villanova gridiron teams. He was well known for his ability in producing great wingmen and backs. It was during his regime that the present football head, Jordan Olivar, played here.

Notre Dame Star

McNally got his start in football here in Philadelphia at Catholic High—whence he proceeded to Notre Dame, there to establish himself as a great end and even better basketball player. After various coaching jobs he ended up on the West Coast where he tied up with Clipper Smith who was at that time producing victorious elevens for Santa Clara. When Smith got his call to Villanova, McNally came with him in his role as assistant coach.

When Clipper Smith received his commission in the Marine Corps as a captain, McNally left to take a post as head physical instructor in the Army Training Program at Georgetown University. Although he tried at various times to get into the services he was hindered from doing so by old injuries received when he played football.

VINCE McNALLY

Redskin Scout

Due perhaps to the fact that the major part of the Army Training Program is being disbanded in April, McNally accepted this post at Holy Cross. His predecessor at Holy Cross, Lud Wray, formerly coached at Penn as head coach and later as assistant to Scanlon when he held the coaching position at St. Joseph's Prep. The reason given for his leaving was that he and Scanlon could not come to an agreement on terms.

During his reign at Georgetown Vince also acted as a scout for the Washington Redskins, professional football team. Often opposing him in a friendly sort of way was a chum from Villanova, Doc Jacobs, who was scouting for the Eagles.

CHISICK WOUNDED

Word has been received that Andy Chisick, center on what was perhaps the greatest gridiron team in Wildcat history, was wounded in action on the Marshalls. Chisick is renowned and known to all followers of Villanova teams for his brilliant playing while here. Andy is even greater today for the honors he has received while in the Marine Corps. Because of his valorous action earlier in the war, he received a field promotion to second lieutenant and has since risen to captain.

President Talks On Post-War Education

On Thursday evening, March 16, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova College, and a member of many educational committees both for the Navy Department and civilian government, spoke before an audience of 100 at the Catholic Philopatrian Literary Institute at 1923 Walnut St. The title of his address was "The Role of Higher Education in World War II."

Because college men taken from their studies by the armed forces will be anxious to complete their education quickly, the present accelerated college courses will have to be continued for three or four years after the war ends, Fr. Stanford said in his speech.

Concerning the stress to be placed on the schools and colleges, Fr. Stanford said that "the post war period will find educational facilities taxed to the utmost." Meanwhile, he asserted, it is important that means be found to carry the colleges through the "lean years" after the war.

A Sky Dirge

Alas for foolish Icarus, who long has slept
Beneath the Aegean wave;
Unsung his prayers still, his vigil unkept.
Nor cloak, nor kiss, nor chant, nor pyre
For him whose warmth and youth dared brave
The stern Sun's fire.

Yea, weep for him, for he is cold

But streak not face with drops of bitterness
That weaken age, that make youth old,
For that other, glad-eyed lad, whose carefreeness,
As he soared beneath Heaven's nebulous dome,
Rang the nether skies with laughter.

Weep not for him who glided free
Over patched land, over moted tree,
And, ah!, how quickly after Broke, like a comet, from the vaulted sky
And blazed a fiery tapestry.

Weep not for him, for he is home.

Who strongly plied stiff, steely wings,
Who tried impossible things.

Like the flash of a heathen scimitar slicking on the hone,
Like the sparkling, burning whiteness of Aurora's fingered cone,
Like the gliding glint of brightness that sheaths a singing blade,
He spangled skies with day-stars of his own.

In silver-winged majesty he rushed across the sky,
In a burst of silver brilliance he coursed clouds high on high,
In a riot of silver motion did he soar and slip and fly,
And in a sailing veil of silver did he die.

The wash of seas and the shift of the sands
Form sounds that never cease,
And Icarus moans for a pagan pray'r,
His head yet uncovered, his breast yet bare,
But the chill and the stillness increase.

While he of the silver, the bright,, white wing,
Who among cloudy arches found ease to roam,
Whom air bore aloft, whom flame bore home,
Finds warmth in the coat and joy in the ring
And All in the kiss of peace.

Pharmacist Mate

Philadelphia Naval Hospital, and upon completion of his training there, was assigned to Grove City College with the rating of Pharmacist Mate Second Class. At this station his main work involved dispensary duty.

Transferred from Grove City College, he was assigned to duty with the Pacific Fleet. Rather quiet about his active service overseas, we did learn that his ship was the famed air-craft carrier U.S.S. Langley. Knowing the reputation of our "flat-tops" there can be little doubt that Griffith saw plenty of action.

When the Langley arrived at pearl Harbor, Griffith found orders awaiting him, calling him back to the states. From San Francisco, he crossed the country to Philadelphia where he was assigned to the V-12 Unit at Villanova.

Questioned about Villanova, Pharmacist Mate Griffith stated: "I like the duty, and it will really take a lot of it to kill me."

O'Connor Student Council Chairman; Hall Delegates And Officers Chosen

Fitzgibbons, Editor of Belle Air Elected Vice-Chairman; Fourteen at First Meeting

During the past week, ballots were distributed in the Halls on the campus for the election of representatives to the Student Council. Each hall is represented in the Council in proportion to the number of students residing there. At a meeting held yesterday, March 27, in 215 Mendel Hall, under the Chairmanship of Francis O'Connor, A.S., the new group of delegates elected officers for the coming semester.

Mendel, Alumni, Fedigan and Austin Halls are each represented by two students, while Delury, O'Dwyer, Simpson and Good Council Halls send one delegates each to the Council. Also on the Council are representatives from Campus organizations and heads of publications.

O'Connor Succeeds Bansbach

Chairman O'Connor, a Junior Mechanical Engineer and former Vice-Chairman of the Council, succeeded Herbert Bansbach, A.S., when the latter graduates in February. He is one of the few Juniors ever to achieve this position, as the post is usually taken over by a Senior.

The delegates elected from the various halls are as follows: Mendel Hall—Hugh Gillespie, A.S., and Joseph Hoffman, A.S.; Fedigan Hall—Timothy Brennan, A.S., and Francis McBride, A.S.; Austin Hall —Pvt. Michael Berry, and Thomas Sugg, A.S.; Alumni Hall — John Atkinson, A.S., and James Cassin, A.S.; Delury Hall—William Fraind; O'Dwyer Hall — Thomas Boyle; Simpson Hall—Louis DiJacimo; and Good Council Hall — Patrick Reagan.

Publications Represented

Along with these hall representatives, it has been the custom in the Council to have the heads of campus publications and delegates from fraternities and other organizations in the group. In accordance with this, the following students will represent their respective activities: Thomas P. Welch, A.S., Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan; John Millet, A.S., Co-Editor of the Villanova Engineer; John Fitzgibbons, Editor of the Belle Air; Charles Harrington, A.S., representative of the Phi Kappa Pi; and John Reddy, Delegate of the Delta Pi Epsilon. ,

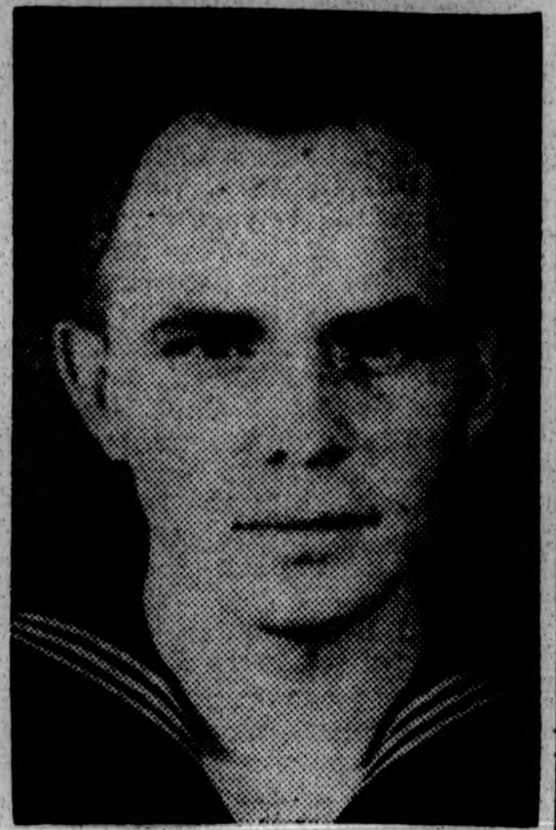
At the first meeting of the semester, the important business was the election of a Vice-Chairman and Secretary-Treasurer. After nominations from the floor, votes were cast and John Fitzgibbons was elected Vice-Chairman and Patrick Reagan, Secretary-Treasurer.

The voting followed the advice of Chairman O'Connor who suggested that a civilian receive the post of Vice-Chairman since he will succeed the Chairman in that office, and will be better able to carry out his duties not being restricted by Naval regulations.

Noted at the meeting was the fact that there would be little work for the Council this year in comparison to others. Before the Navy came to Villanova, the principle activity of the organization was the orientation of freshmen along with holding the election of class officers. Last semester the group sponsored the "Winter Hop" which proved to be a great success. This year however, there is no date open to them for a dance but the Council is in charge of arrangements for the "Bunny Hop," the dance to be sponsored by the Yankee Doodle Service Club on April 15.

Daily Masses—

Due to a change in the daily schedule on the campus, the 6:40 A. M. Mass will be discontinued for the remainder of the current semester. Daily Masses will henceforth be celebrated at 7:00 and 7:30 A. M. At St. Joseph's Altar a Mass will begin at 7:15. Stations of the Cross are held in the College Chapel on Tuesday evening at 6:30 P. M.



FRANCIS O'CONNOR, A.S.

A.S.M.E. Meets

Preparing to get under way on the new semester's work, the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers met Friday, March 24, in 215 Mendel, under Chairman Robert Casey, A.S.

At this meeting, applications were taken for membership, and chairman Casey asked the members present to remind others that freshmen are invited to join the Society as student members. The next meeting, a regular evening session, will be announced later.

It is hoped that a larger attendance will be had at these evening meetings as the noon-day gatherings interfere with many classes.

Also discussed at the Branch meeting were plans to have several speakers with Engineering experience for future meetings. The customary inspection tours of manufacturing plants and factories sponsored by the Society every year are also on the ticket for this semester. For the immediate future, a smoker is being planned.

Mass Kit Given by Students to Chaplains' Aid

Student Offerings on Sundays Pay for Complete Kit; Third from Villanova

Through the Chaplains' Aid Association, Villanova recently gave the third Mass-kit for use in the Armed Forces of our country. From the voluntary offerings taken up at the students' Masses in the College Chapel on Sundays and from other contributions the sum of $150.00 was collected to buy one complete outfit. The Chaplain's most treasured possession is his Mass-kit. It contains everything necessary for the celebration of Mass.

It was hoped that this third contribution could be presented to a priest in the Marine Corps since the Chaplains in the Army and Navy were the recipients of Villanova's first and second gifts. But this presented a very difficult task and the college was asked to withdraw its request. A priest candidate for naval chaplaincy is not assigned to the Marines until after he has completed his training but he needs his kit on entering the Chaplain's School at William and Mary College in Virginia.

In acknowledging the check for the kit, Mrs. Thomas Berley, the treasurer of the Association, said in part: "We are indeed most grateful to the students of Villanova College for this third fine contribution of a donation for the purchase of a complete Mass-kit. We thank you all most wholeheartedly for this grand cooperation in our task of aiding the Chaplains. Of the Chaplain-recipient's gratitude you will undoubtedly learn from himself, as we shall enclose a gift card in accordance with our usual custom."

Civilians Note—

It is of utmost importance that all civilian students report to the Registrar's Office on their eighteenth birthday in order that proper steps may be begun to establish their correct Selective Service Status.

New Yeomen 3c Smith and Fortune Near Home on First Assignment Here

Stock in the charm department of Ship's Company took a decided jump on Friday ,March 17, when two WAVES arrived to supplement the staff of the Navy Office. The newcomers, Gayle Fortune and Edith Smith ,Yeomen 3/c, are destined to replace Yeoman 1/c Azarva and Yeoman 2/c Freeman. At present they are learning their duties from these two men.

YEOMEN 3/C GAYLE FORTUNE and EDITH SMITH

Both of the new WAVES find themselves comparatively near home on this, their first assignment since finishing yeoman training. Miss Fortune comes from Pottsville, Pennsylvania, where she attended the local high school. The school choir was her only extra-curricular interest while there.

After high school, Miss Fortune shook the coal dust of this small, up-state town from her shoes and travelled to New York, where she attended the Packard Business School. Here, too, she held a secretarial position for three years in the famous RCA building.

Miss Smith, also a native Pennsylvanian, claims nearby Glenside for her home town. After four uneventful years at Abington High School, she matriculated at the Lansdale School of Business.

Following graduation from this noble institution, Miss Smith worked for two years as a stenographer in the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot before she transferred her allegiance and enlisted in the Navy.

From there on the lives of the two parallel exactly. Both reported for active duty on November 4 of this year. Together they endured the rigors of the WAVE boot training at Hunter College in New York. Transfer to Cedar Falls, Iowa, for yeoman training came immediately afterwards for both of them.

Each received identical orders assigning them to this station as their first post after they were awarded their rating as yeomen.

Despite the dismal weather that greeted them on arrival, both girls expressed satisfaction with their appointment and are prepared to enjoy their tour of duty here.

Engineering School Leads Winter Term Honor Roll

Place 68 on List With Science School Second; Proportional Improvement Over Past Semester; Eight Make Perfect Averages

By JOHN ATKINSON, A.S.

Improvement in scholastic standing among the students of Villanova was evidenced by the Honor Roll for the winter semester. As released by the Registrar's Office, the Roll lists 149 students who succeeded in attaining an average of 3.00 or better.

Although representing a numerical decrease from last semester's mark of 162, proportionally, the record demonstrates a slight improvement with 21 percent of the student enrollment making the Roll as compared to the former 20 percent.

The Engineering School dominated the honors, placing 68 men on the list, while the Science School came second with 29 honor students. Commerce and Finance men on the Roll numbered 16, and the Education School placed two men. Freshman honor students, unclassified in reference to any particular school, totalled 33.

Eight Perfect Records

Notably absent from the ranks was the Arts School whose numbers have been extensively reduced due to the emphasis placed upon technical subjects by the war. By classes, Both Freshmen and Sophomores contributed 33, Seniors numbered 31, and the Juniors led with 42.

Among those making the Roll were 8 men with perfect 4.00 ratings. Leading their respective classes in their particular schools were: Frederick Gerngross, A.S., Senior Engineer; Louis Jakovic, Junior Science; Philip Jakeway, A.S., Pvt. Joseph Morin, and James O'Brien, Junior Engineering; Alan Schneider, A.S., Sophomore Engineering; and Louis Slater and Daniel Fleisher of the Freshman Class. Jakovic and Jakeway were the only ones of last semester's 4.00 men to reduplicate their feats.

Miss Straight "A"

Also leading their respective classes, but missing the straight "A" average, were: Albert Nemez, Senior Science; Louis Masciocchi, Senior Commerce and Finance; Pvt. Sabino Carone, Junior Education; Ralph Cail, Sophomore Commerce and Finance; and John Atkinson, A.S., Sophomore Science. Of these, only Cail and Frederick Gerngross, who went into the 4.00 classification, maintained their class leadership of last November.

The complete Honor Roll reads as follows:

Senior Science — Albert Nemez, Paschal Corbo, Robert Wilcox, James Lamb, William Kvokacko, Howard Jacobson, Harvey Schiff, Frank Vengrofski, and James Henry.

Senior Commerce and Finance—Louis Masciocchi, Inguald Kongsgaard, George Benchert, James Dever, Natale Frazzini, Joseph H. McCarthy and John Reddy.

Delta Pi Epsilon Dance On May 13

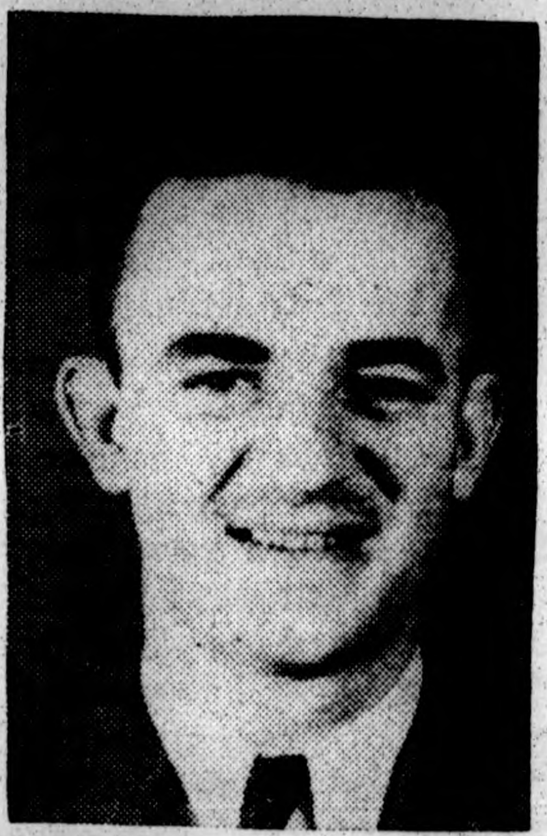
Fourth Annual Financiers Frolic to Feature Name Band; Gallagher Elected Chairman

Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance fraternity, comes into the social limelight again on May 13, when the members sponsor a spring dance, the Fourth Annual Financiers Frolic, in the College Field House. Edward J. Gallagher, a senior, has been elected chairman, and under his leadership, elaborate plans have been made.

This date is six days more than a year since the Frat's last social activity, namely the Inter-Frat Ball, which proved a high success due mainly to the untiring work of the D.P.E. members on important committees. The Ball took the place of the Frat's Third Annual Financiers Frolic, a muchly anticipated event. This semester, the C and Fers are striving to make the Fourth Annual Frolic the biggest and best yet.

Chairman Gallagher, a member of the Frat since his freshman year, and also Circulation Co-Manager of the Villanovan, has formed elaborate plans. He has already appointed Chairmen and members of the various sub-committees.

Dance Chairman



EDWARD J. GALLAGHER

Band Committee Chairman, William Barrett, has announced that a big name band is being contracted. Which of the name bands will be selected of those that will be in this vicinity at the date, is not yet certain.

John Reddy, Chairman of the Ticket Committee, has announced a new system for selling tickets which should prove beneficial to the students as well as the Frat. The price of tickets purchased before April 10 is $3.75; for those purchased before April 30, $4.50 and from May 1 until dance time, the price will be $5.50.

This system was devised in preference to the deposit system from which the depositor receives no consideration. It is imperative that there be an advance sale of tickets in order to obtain the retainer fee for the orchestra agent, which is 50 percent of cost. Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from any of the Frat members. For the success of the dance and

Atlantic Chatter

WHEN the Atlantic Charter was first introduced to the American people, there were a few objections: that some fundamental liberties were forgotten, and that two of the freedoms mentioned could very well be classed under the heading of security. These complaints died out, however, when it became evident that neither Russia nor Britain offered another war aim which could compare in fairness, justice, and charity with the war aim elucidated in the charter. Russia saw fit, and sees fit now, to disregard the rights and liberties of the countries she intends to possess after the war; Britain has no intention of dissolving the Empire, hence, has little care about the rights and liberties of her colonies.

We alone, of all the world, had an answer to the question, "Unconditional Surrender . . . then what?" Our answer lay in the Atlantic Charter. Insufficient though the charter was, it still gave us a worthy motive. With the latest diplomatic trends of the United States, however, has come a growing disregard for the principles and morals contained in the charter, and, with this disregard on the part of our leaders, there has come a doubt, on the part of the American people, of the sincerity of the document. This is to be expected.

It has ever been a political condition in America that those who fail to attribute common sense, and, above all, a sense of fair play, to the American people, fall into grave error. Those who now believe that they can go on hoodwinking the people with slogans and formulae, with untruths and half-truths, will pay dearly for their error.

To imagine that the American people are ignorant of the facts that Russia is fighting for Russia and not for democracy, that England is waging war to sustain the Empire, that Eire's neutrality is being violated, that Spain is being forced by economic pressure to join Allied forces, that Turkey is being led by the nose into the war, that Poland and the weak States of Europe are being, and are slated to be trammeled, that Finland, in the Finns' eyes, is waging a just war, that India is truly the victim of aggression, that imperialistic tendencies and acts in general are responsible fro the present conflict, and that the combined philosophies of Washington and Monroe hold the only promise of peace for the United States — to imagine Americans ignorant of these things is the very depth of folly.

Ask the barber, the grocer, the family doctor, the man-in-the-street; yes, ask your sailor, your soldier, your marine. They will tell you of these things, and you, who believe them ignorant, you will be astounded at their wisdom and their comprehension.

Let not those who are our leaders believe that we are still laboring under the delusion that the Atlantic Charter will be applied to all nations. Let them not believe that we have faith in their ostensible intentions to thus apply it. For we have seen the charter selectively applied; we have even seen it made the tool of deceit.

We do not miss the charter, for it now represents nothing; but we must have a just war aim to take its place. Since our present diplomatic relations are unjust, where will we find the moral code from which to build such an aim? Where, leaders of the people, where? Or will we have another huge practical-joke on the American people?

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

WE'VE just received news (via Fr. McGrath and the the Alumni Office) that Capt. James J. Hanley, USMCR, has arrived at his home in Garden City, Long Island after a year's absence in the South Pacific.

A recent release from the headquarters of an Army Air Forces Bombardier School stated that Aviation Cadet Donald J. Duffy has reported at Carlsbad, New Mexico, where he will receive flight training in high-level bombardiering and dead-reckoning navigation.

A few of you Villanova old-timers will be surprised and also happy to hear that Pvt. C. R. Wilson, '29 stationed at Ft. Harrison, Indiana, is a proud father of a baby boy, born Feb. 24, 1944. Congrats!

The latests news from some of our ex-Marine friends (the smarter ones who transferred to the Navy) is that Tom Eadon, George Beuchert and John O'Donnell have taken the final step towards becoming Ensigns. They are at Northwestern's Midshipman School.

Well, I guess you'll agree that it put a little more drive in us all, seeing the first group of Villanova's V-12'ers come back with the pretty gold stripe on the sleeve: George Temple is being sent to Harvard to learn a little something about Radar; Chris Kiefer has already been assigned to a ship, as were a few others; Frank Moscariello was one of them and is going on an LST; Jim Conley, another, was assigned to a light cruiser and is now waiting in Norfolk; Bill Sullivan and Dick Ryan are going to Boston to be assigned; Mauro Ciccarelli, "Dutch" McCarthy and several others also paid us a visit.

P.F.C. Bill Oehrlein, who was a member of last year's "Hall of Champions," is in a Bombing Squadron in Italy. Bill is in a hospital now, recuperating from something he didn't mention.

Another Marine Corps hero is Capt. Ted Gaelish. Capt Gaelish was called into the Marine Reserve in the middle of his Senior year, '42, and has been in the Pacific for months. He caught Malaria but has been sent back into battle again.

WINCHELL'S latest efforts rated a Dies' committee investigation—mine, a few uncomplimentary comments from the Rosemont girls. Sabotage of last week's project, one of my few into the field of rhyme, was averted by your ever-alert editor when he discovered an alien line in the copy which had been inadvertently left within reach of certain characters at the printing office (The "Rambler" patronizes the same printer.)

It was a nice try, anyway, girls, but since you are connected with the "racket" too, you must realize the truth in the adage, "Nihil Quasimus Sinatra." (You can't please everyone.)

I should like to add, however, that any view, opinion, or corn of any kind found in this column is my own, and does not constitute an endorsement by the Marine Corps, Navy, or Villanova College—they don't even endorse "Wheaties."

SALTINESS—

Saltiness is that quality, or rather condition, which distinguishes a veteran from a "boot" in the Naval Service. The term "Salty" refers to something, or someone, associated with, living on or near, or at least having seen salt water in large quantities. Men in the Naval Service usually qualify under one of these categories, but in this age of specialization we actually find people in this outfit who discover their duty far from the sea.

A true "Salt," (shortened form of "salty person") finding himself in this situation soon becomes desperate, for unsalted air is inhaled only with difficulty by people who are accustomed to sea-flavored breezes. These people are considered, by virtue of their condition "legitimate" salts.

Legitimate saltiness is unimportant except that it provides a standard at which the "ersatz—" or "pseudo-salt" must shoot. Saltiness, by the way, is desired by the majority, and since conditions do not permit all to obtain it naturally, a group which obtains it artificially (the "pseudo-salts") is naturally created. It is to this group that my efforts are directed this week.

Incorporated in legitimate saltiness are certain specific idiosyncrasies — namely three — peculiarities in dress, mannerisms and speech.

Clothes that show signs of wear, and yet are "sharp" are primarily characteristic. Lots of "spit n'-polish"—time must be spent on shoes and all metal gear. With a bottle of bleach and a "blitz-cloth" Joe V. Twelve produces in a few hours a salty look which would

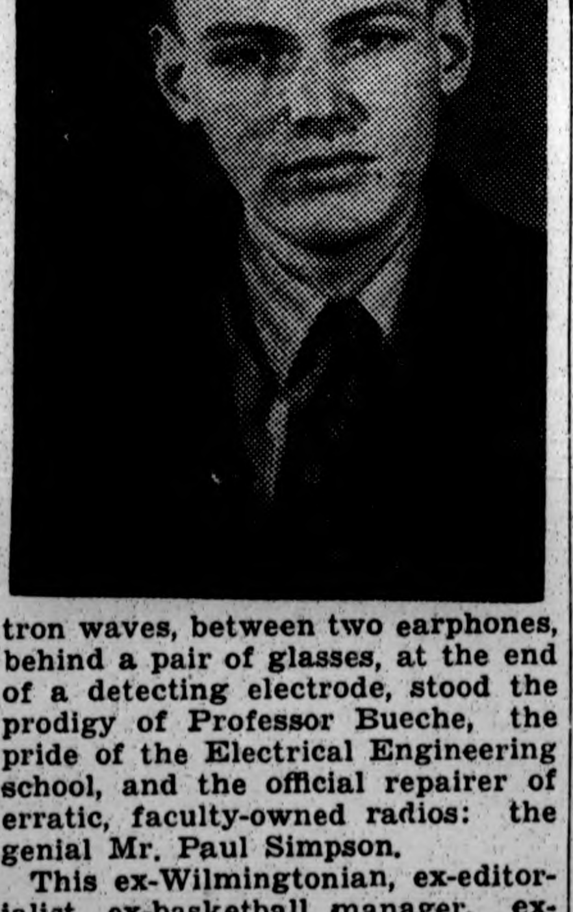
THE only way to find Paul Simpson is to acquire a "walkie-talkie" and come in on the beam. Following any other procedure usually leads the searcher through all the dark labryinths of Mendel Hall basement and, eventually, into the cement-pit. The hide-out of the radio-men, of Mr. Simpson in particular, known to the initiated as the "Inner Sanctum," is so inaccessible to the neophite that strategy is necessary in lieu of the proper beam-catching apparatus. The writer, calloused to the wiles of those of the engineering bent, "shadowed," in the best Tracy style, a radio in the hands of Dean Morehouse.

The chase led through the locker-room, the dynamo laboratory, the telephony laboratory (without telephones), and, finally, into a chaos of futuristic radio apparatus, electrical equipment, and ozone; this was indubitably the "Sanctum," for among the wires and resistors, the magic eyes and tremulous electron waves, between two earphones, behind a pair of glasses, at the end of a detecting electrode, stood the prodigy of Professor Bueche, the pride of the Electrical Engineering school, and the official repairer of erratic, faculty-owned radios: the genial Mr. Paul Simpson.



This ex-Wilmingtonian, ex-editorialist, ex-basketball manager, ex-St. John's High School student, ex-refiner of Atlantic Oil, this present tenor soloist in St. John's Church Choir, this instructor in the Engineering Science Management and War Training Program, this consistent Villanova Honor Holl student, this twenty years of electrical genius, in a modest and pleasant manner, removed his earphones, pushed fifteen or twenty important-looking buttons, shook the electrons out of his hair, and offered us the best (and only) chair in the room.

We removed a complicated maze of tubes, etc. and sat down.

By LeRoy Collegeman, A.S.

FOUR THIRTY—deathly quiet descends over the Villanova campus . . . the halls are all deserted and outside spring is very apparent . . . the restricted men have all gone on liberty and the only souls to be seen are the few old standby that stay here because they love the dear old place, plus the fact that they are restricted for disciplinary reasons and must remain in this cradle of education.

Spring is here and all the young men's fancies have lightly turned to thoughts of, Oh well you know . . . or should by this time anyway.

AH SPRING! . . .

The majority of fancies seemed to be turned at a private little party given by some of the boys in Philly . . . Among those who had their fancies lightly turned were Gus "Jitterbug King" Gillespie, Phil Jakeway with Anita doing the turning, Bob Leahy, Joe Heim and Bill Farrell from Mendel; Phil Golden, Jack McCann and Bud Hunter from Alumni and Leo "the lion" Noll from Fedigan . . . Tis rumored that a super time was had by all, especially one young man who did not get to sleep before 7 the next morning due to the fact that Mary wanted Bill Farrell to "stay just a little longer."

The big topic in perfect couples in Fedigan hall is Frank Frascella and his own little Bones . . . after nine months the boys who live with him know her only as Bones and a familiar sound along about 6:30 in the evening is "Bones Calling Mr. Frank Frascella from Trenton."

The buds are coming out and beginning to flourish under the new order of spring but one romance that was just beginning to flower has been nipped in the bud by the new liberty regulations . . . I'm speaking of the relationship being brought into bloom by Joe "Ugly Pills" O'Keefe and Jan of Stage Door Canteen fame . . . That such a beautiful friendship must be terminated due to regulations is only one more of the many proofs that "War is hell," on love affairs . . .

AH WILDERNESS! . . .

The wilderness, such will be the fate of one Frank "I'm a second Sinatra" McBride of third deck Fedigan, if he doesn't stop giving out with the newest lyrics and the oldest tunes around the barracks. There have been Swoon Crooners and there will be Swoon Crooners, but your neighbors all heartily agree that you won't be one of them . . . no, not even if your voice changes.

Where does a man go when his heart is broken? The wilderness, of course, so states Frank "She used to love me, but no more," Frazio of Alumni hall. He hasn't been the same since he and Elinor had a parting of the ways two long months ago . . . Well Frank to quote someone or other "As slenderness goes, so goeth romance . . ." and yours seems to have gone.

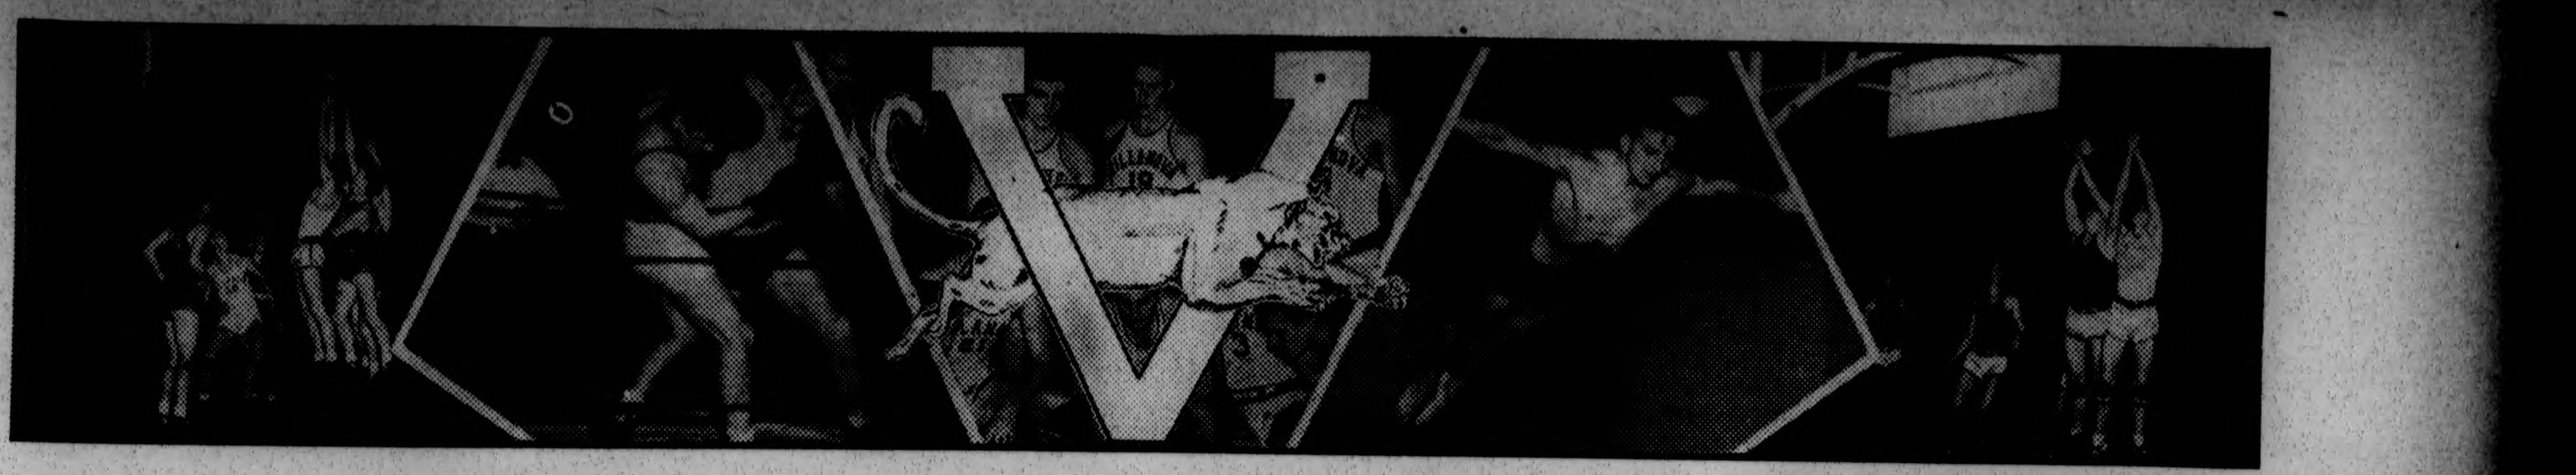
AH PHOOEY! . . .

The title of this section has nothing to do with its contents but it had continuity . . . or something . . .

There is one of our basketball stars who seems to like the nicer things in life or such is the impression we got when we saw Bob Forrest at one of the nicer theatres with one of the nicer young ladies we have seen. A definitely not Junior Miss whose name he says is Sylvia.

We, who are uniformed salute you; or so the V-12'ers at Ursinus College believe. When "Wild Bill" Dennis was up there recently boosting a lovely civilian's morale he received, and returned, several salutes from misguided swabbies who probably mistook the marksmanship medals on his chest for bars on his shoulder. Just a taste of things to come Bill, or maybe they were waving to that cute coed walking beside you.

Eight o'clock—a loud moaning and sobbing is heard sounding over the campus, the halls are full of red-eyed and weeping boys. . . you see it is the first week that they have had to be in at 2000 and the pain hasn't had time to wear off yet . . . with this happy thought in mind we will close for another week. Don't study too hard.



VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Blue And White Well Represented In Major Leagues

Etten and Garbark, Yanks, Merullo of Cubs, All Former Wildcat Ball Players

By DAVE WARD, A.S.

Now that baseball season is not just around the corner, but actually upon us, it might be well to make known to some of the new students at Villanova, one of the outstanding records which the Blue and White athletes have made in the past. This phenomenon, for that is what it really is when one gets right down to it, is that over the past five years, approximately ten Main Liners have cavorted over big league baseball diamonds, and of these ten, about four are still around.

Those active at present that your writer is reasonably sure of are Mike Garback, and Nick Etten, Yanks; and Len Merullo of the Cubs. On the more or less doubtful list are Mickey Vernon, Senators and Ben Geraghty, Braves, while those definitely out of the majors now due to various and sundry reasons include Ray Stoviak, formerly of the Blue Jays (nee Phillies), Frank Skaff, long ball hitter and first base replacement for the A's last year; and Mike Lazorchak, who was up with the Chicago White Sox for a while.

With A's and Phils

The active list of Etten, Garback, and Merullo is liable be changed almost any day now as the big first sacker, and slugger of the Yanks, Nick Etten, has been called before his draft board.

Oddly enough, Etten first came into the majors with the Athletics in 1938. However, his fielding did not measure up to big league standards, and as a result, he was returned to the minors. Then about two years later he came back to Philadelphia, only this time it was with the National Leaguers. He stayed with the Phils under Hans Lobert through the 1942 season, and was then sold to the Yanks during the winter, where he has been since.

Draft Boards Decide

Mike Garback is a newcomer to the big time this year, but from all reports, he is the man slated to fill the shoes of probably the best catcher of the past decade, Bill Dickey. Mike came to the champions from Newark in the International League where he has been for the past three seasons and where he established quite a reputation as a slugger.

Regarded as one of the better shortstops in the game at present is the last man on the active list, Len Merullo, who wears the very fancy duds at the Chicago Cubs. This year will mark the third sea-

Former Ring Coach Assigned Sea Duty

Word has ben received from the Navy Department that Lieutenant Ray Gadsby has left this country for duty with the Amphibious Forces of the Navy. In the minds of sports connoisseurs, Gadsby is remembered for a number of things foremost of which is the fact that he was a member of the last American Olympic boxing team. He was then planted in the memories of Villanovans by the fact that he was made boxing coach here at Villanova. He also introduced soccer at the Main Line school.

While here at Villanova he developed the Intercollegiate Boxing champ, Tonly Sala. When he left here, he coached the team at the Naval Academy until he got his commission. After the war he intends to return to Annapolis.

Announcement Of Boxing Tourney Opens Semestral Intramural Season

Stiff Training Schedule Given to Hopefuls in New Tourney; Many Participants in Old Match to Be Featured; Marine Bill Russel Chosen Boxing Coach

By FRANK R. SOLIS

Due to the popularity and success of last semester's boxing exhibition, it was decided that a special tournament be held this semester. The set date is rather vague and depends on the speed with which the boys can whip themselves into shape. As things look now it may be a week or two after Easter. The reason for this short training period is the views that most fellows take, that being, that a one night stand is not worth the many hours lost in training. Realizing this point, the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of Villanova's version of the Golden Gloves Tournament, has shortened the duration of training and has set up a rigorous schedule somewhat similar to last semester. This schedule will be posted at the Field House. The training program calls for a gym workout 3 days a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday. This workout will consist of 8 min. of rope skipping, 15 min. of mat exercises, 15 min. of heavy bag punching, three 2 min. rounds of sparring, and a 10 min. period of calisthenics. The other three days, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday will consist of road work. A two minute sprint with hands held high, repeated five or six times, is the recommended procedure. This will do much to develop wind, which is one of the more valuable assets of a good boxer.

Russel, Coach

The schedule will be hampered somewhat by the lack of punching bag facilities. It is the intention of the moderator to have four light bags installed for training purposes but due to the hold up of the ordered mounting apparatus, the speed bag workouts will be delayed. The sparring ring however, is now in readiness for those desiring its facilities.

The participants of this semester's tournament will be without the coaching of Lou Lopez who has graduated but will be ably guided by Father McKee and Pvt. Bill Russel.

Some of the veterans of last year's tourney who will probably take an active interest this semester are John J. Murphy and Willard Adams, featherweights of no mean repute. In the welterweight division we have such outstanding sluggers as John J. Smith, Thomas Baxter, John J. Brahm, Edward Finneran, William A. Lamb, George Burkhart, and Al Sondheimer. Among the heavier classes will be J. "Herb" Lamb, John Atkinson, Joseph McGovern, Roger Lattanza, and Richard Breen. The last two are particularly noted for their fur-

Bowling League Begins With A Three-Way Tie

Saturday afternoon the Phi Kap bowling league began another tourney at the 69th Street Bowling Center. With an entirely new set of names for the teams, the season started out in great form with a newcomer to the league, taking high single with a 204.

Lead in the league was immediately taken by the league leaders of last semester, the former Ship's Company now known in bowling circles as the Giants. Tied with them was the winners of last semester's league, the Lions then called the Phillies, and making a three way tie were the Eagles who stand in such a high position by virtue of a forfeit.

One Team Dropped

The individual highs for the day were as follows: Individual High Three—Thompson-Giants, 543, Olivar-Giants 530; Bonafiglia-Bears 529, and Malloy-Rams 525. Individual High Single—Malloy, 204; Olivar, 193; Bonafiglia, 191; Thomson, 190. Team High Three—Giants, 2541, and Bears, 2313.

One team has dropped out of the league and a notice has been posted by Angie Rosa, chairman of the league that anyone wishing to play in the league should turn in his name to the chairman and in that way another would be formed.

An incentive to the formation of another team is the announcement of the league committee that the prizes this semester are to be larger and more numerous than those of last season. Members and non-members may qualify for a place on this team. A slight additional charge will be made for non-members.

Tentative Ball Schedule Includes Penn, Army, Navy

Unfinished Roster of '44 Opponents Lists Twelve Eastern Collegiate Teams; Games Named for a Season Lasting Up to July

The arrival of Spring (4 inches of snow that lingered all week) found Villanova's prospective diamond representatives limbering up in the Field House under the watchful eye of Chief Lisco. A tentative schedule marks resumption of relations with West Point and Annapolis and the continuance of the series with the University of Pennsylvania. Other games are listed with Muhlenburg, Penn State and Swarthmore. Negotiations with several schools and Service teams will give the 'Cats every opportunity to show their ability with the horsehide and hickory.

Army and Navy can be expected to field better than average teams and Penn has been strengthened by the addition of V-12ers to augment the holdovers from last year's Eastern Intercollegiate League co-championship team that bowed to the 'Cats 6-5. V-12 and Marine trainees will also be in the majority on the other teams listed to cross bats with the local contingent of sailors and gyrenes. River Field was the scene of a Penn rally that threatened to erase an early Villanova lead. However with the tying and winning runs on base in each of the last three innings Frank Chaplar pulled himself together and stifled the Quaker bats.

Swarthmore, New

Penn State met the 'Cats in a polar bear marathon that lasted 12 innings before they won 3-2. Reds Lafferty handcuffed Muhlenberg and was rewarded wtih a 5-2 decision.

Swarthmore is the lone newcomer to this year's schedule in its present form. Prospects for the Little Quakers loom bright with the ever present aid from Uncle Sam. It is hoped that the completed schedule will have twelve games with the season starting the middle of April and ending in June.

With a break in the weather the first outdoor practice was set for yesterday afternoon and will continue at 1600 (4:00 P. M. for the benefit of the civilians) until further notice. At the present time no concessions are being made to those members of the squad having afternoon labs.

Chief Spec. Lisco Assumes Duties; Diamond Coach

Appointment of Member of Ship's Company Confirmed by Navy Office; Team Has Already Started Practice

In an announcement from the athletic office, Chief Specialist John Lisco has been appointed coach of the 1944 Villanova baseball team. Lisco, a former baseball star at New Jersey State Teacher's College, is a member of the ship's company, here. He assumed this position in addition to his duties on the station.

Chief Lisco traces back his baseball ability to his four years of fine playing at Cathedral High in Trenton, N. J. Here he played on the varsity for four years in addition to having the distinction of being a three letter man in track and football. He matriculated at the State Teacher's College where he continued his brilliant ball playing on the diamond and on the football field. His major in college was Physical Education which enabled him upon graduation to obtain a position as gym instructor at Trenton Junior High School. Together with his other duties, he coached track and baseball.

JOHN LISCO, C/Sp.

In '42 he enlisted in the Navy and upon graduation from Instructor's school, he was given the rating of Chief Specialist and after a tour of duty at Camp Allen, he was sent to Purdue U. for their V-12 unit. It was from Purdue that he came to Villanova.

Already, Chief Lisco has begun practices. He has had the pitchers and catchers working out in the field house due to the inclement weather. A wealth of material has shown up for the team and it will be quite a job to sort out a team for the opener sometime next month. He presumes that there will be a good team representing the school but as yet it is too early to make any definite statement about their prospects.

When the weather permits, practice will be held on the Mendel Hall field. As yet it is undecided where the varsity games will be played. Formerly they were played on the field behind the football stands but due to conditions brought on by the V-12 here, the games may also be playe on the Mendel field.

Leading Strength Test Marks Made

According to releases from Ensign Maniaci, Athletic Officer, the last strength test taken by the V-12 students stationed here produced some exceptionally high scores. Among the students stationed here previously, three are especially worthy of note:

Name	Score
Pvt. George Hooper	78
Paul M. Smith, A.S.	76

A very high average was also attained by Pvt. Frank Eye, a transfer from Muhlenberg College, whose mark of 83 places him second at this institution. While at Muhlenberg, Pvt. Eye scored a phenomenal 92 which put him close on the heels of Smith of Swarthmore College whose record-breaking 93.4 has received much publicity of late.

If we can take the last available marks as a norm, the two top men, Butler and Eye, should be among the five highest for this district

Interesting to note is the improvement shown over a four month period. The first strength test given showed a high score for this Naval District of 72. Among the later marks, the above mentioned 93.4 was tops with a corresponding increase in average — a truly remarkable increase for so short a time.

Eight Perfect Averages On Roll making clear the nature of our visit.

"Yes", he answered, closing the conversation.

After a practical demonstration of a semi-automatic telegraph key, he reached among the junk and bother and turned on some music. We tried a different approach:

"What are you studying?", was our question.

"Electrical Engineering; I am a senior," was his reply.

"Hobby?"

"Radio."

"Where do you spend your time?"

"Here."

"How long have you been interested in you-know-what?"

"Since junior year high school; I received my amateur license then."

"To what conditions do you attribute your unnatural and perverted love of the ether waves?"

"My buddy, RT 1/c Dan Antrim, and myself were both 'hams' at a very early age. Theer were six or seven others in the vicinity of my home. We all knocked ourselves out with radio, had a club in school dedicated to the study of radio, and while not actively engaged in playing around with radio, we listened to programs on the radio."

"What specific business do you intend to take up in the radio field?"

"Dan and I intend to outfit our own lab and busy ourselves in the making and marketing of special equipment."

"Honestly, have you no other loves except radio?"

"I like music."

"Why?"

"Because it comes over the radio."

"Have you any 'nick-names'?"

"W3HTI," he answered, picking us off the floor, "that's my radio call-signal."

son that Len has been with the Windy City Nationals, and it is rumored 'round the circuit that it will be his best yet unless Uncle Sam and his draft boards decide that they have a better use for a first-class shortstop.

Whereabouts Unknown

On the doubtful side of the ledger, Mickey Vernon was the Washington first sacker during 1943, but as yet, we have heard nothing at all about his whereabouts. This same situation exists in the case of Ben Geraghty who filled in at the keystone sack for the Boston Braves last year, and whether these boys have already been called to serve in the armed forces, or have been sold to other clubs we don't know.

The next three are players who came up to the majors but who were sold or farmed out to the minors. Skaff was one of Connie Mack's boys last season but the venerable old gentleman has a man by the name of Dick Siebert hanging around the initial sack, and consequently, the A's don't have much use for anyone else. As a result, Frankie was sold to the Baltimore Orioles during this past winter, and in all probability, more will be heard from him as he's quite a long ball hitter.

Grid Star

Ray Stoviak, who came up with the Phils in 1938 was better known as a left-handed passer on the football team. He was on Clipper Smith's dream teams of 1936-'37-and '38, and was a teammate of both Art Raimo, serving with the navy on the campus at the present time, and Jordan Olivar, head football coach. In 1940, Stoviak decided against the continuation of his baseball career, and in favor of a coaching job. Since then he has done quite well for himself at one of the big military academies in New York state.

Ray strangely enough is the only outfielder in the group so that it would seem as though Villanova really goes in for the infielders.

Last but not least is little Mike Lazorchak, who was a third baseman with the Chicago White Sox in 1941 but either went into the service, or was farmed out to a minor league affiliate of the Chicago American League Club. Mike's case parallels Stoviak's in that he also was better known for his ability in another sport. Mike's forte was basketball and he was a member of the Main Line quintet which handed Temple's National Champions (of 1938) one of their few defeats in that year.

Condolences

A great blow has been struck at the morale of the students of Villanova, for news was received via the city tabloids that the renowned rendezvous of stout-hearted Wildcats, THE MILL, Lancaster Pike and Conestoga Road, was injured by the destructive tongues of fire and would for a time be closed to all of its loyal customers. In this hour of sadness the Villanovan offers heartfelt sympathy to all concerned.

Associated invariably with his distinguishing dress is the bearing of this type of person. Timidness, bashfulness, and reserve of any kind are out of order, and are replaced by a super-confidence in himself and his convictions. (Even if he's wrong — and knows it.) In short, the "Salt" is rude, crude, but effective.

Thirdly, but by far the most important, is the mastery of a Salty vocabulary, as well as ability to use it effectively. "Stow that gear in your ditty-bag on the double; we're shoving off,"—Joe tried this one out on the heart throb last week and she was on time for the date for a change—they eat it up. The tone used in this instance was naturally a little more gentle than the one used on Saturday when Joe "took over, and drilled the platoon."

At that time, his voice was sharp, deep and loud It sounded something like this:

Ylep, toop, rip, faw
Wawn, (pause), rrip, foh
Lup, te-oo, ree, aw

Following are a few "musts" for the repertoire of any "Salt."

Gismo—anything for which you can't think of another word.

Armored heifer—canned milk.

Police—clean up, shine.

Severance, Referee

Besides these promising veterans, quite a few tip-top boxers, products of the fleet and college champs, who arrived at the beginning of the semester, will probably participate. Considering these facts, the tournament promises to be an overwhelming success.

The third man in the ring will probably be basketball mentor, Al Severance, who has done such a fine job of refereeing in the previous exhibitions. All those desiring to participate are urged to hand their names in to Father McKee, Pvt. "Bill" Russel, or to sign their name and weight on a list placed on the sports bulletin board of the Villanovan office, Room 109 Mendel, for that purpose.

Ping-Pong

An announcement has been made to the effect that a table tennis tournament is to be held in the Hut and is to be under the chairmanship of James Shea A. S. who is himself quite an exponent of the game. According to the announcement the tourney is open to anyone and will be conducted according to the national rules.

It will be a worthwhile venture to enter the tourney for it will not only furnish excellent entertainment but also cash rewards. In addition to these pecuniary gains there will be extra liberty for the victors.

Lt. W. Garrity Killed Piloting Bomber in Africa

Word has been received that still another Villanova alumnus, William F. Garrity, has given his life in the performance of his military duty. Lt. Garrity, a graduate of the Arts School in 1940, was the pilot of a medium bomber that crashed during a takeoff from a flying base in North Africa—a crash resulting in the deaths of four other crew members as well. At the time of his death he was attached to the Ferrying Command; a duty he assumed following artillery training in 1941.

In the year between his graduation and enlistment the lieutenant-to-be worked in the Phila. Record a classified advertising salesman.

While here Lt. Garrity was interested in numerous fields of endeavor and was on the editorial staff of the VILLANOVAN in his senior year.

Pilot Garrity is survived by his wife and a four-month-old son, Dennis John. His death brings the total number of Villanovan fatalities in the present conflict up to seventeen.

Guadalcanal and Tulagi Veterans in Marine V-12 Unit Describe Battles

By PVT. WM. CARTER, USMCR

If anyone thinks that the reporters and staff writers of the Villanovan have an easy time producing stories from the information the men of the fleet will condescend to impart to them, this reporter will erase all such thoughts. I was given the assignment of interviewing five of the Marine trainees who are Guadalcanal veterans. I thought that this be an easy task since they would have a lot to talk about. On the contrary, it was like squeezing blood from the proverbial stone. I wish to make it known that the following stories are but minute extracts from the myriad of experiences these men have had.

Missed Boot Camp

John J. Maguire enlisted in the Marine Corps in October, 1940. He is one of the very few enlisted Marines who did not go to "Boot Camp." Instead John was sent to Quantico, Va., where he was assigned to instrument control work in the artillery. In this capacity, he travelled to Parris Island, S. C., the Caribbean area, back to Parris Island, then to New River, N. C., and finally to San Francisco, over a period of about 18 months.

Soon after reaching San Francisco he was shipped to the South Pacific area and there he participated in the initial landing on Guadalcanal. Maguire's outfit was placed at Henderson Field in order to defend it from Japanese infantry attacks. It was not long after this that the Japanese made things hot by sending a naval force to shell the field. Unable to return the fire with their 105's, the Marines were helpless. It was then that our esteeemed Navy came to the rescue and forced the Japs to withdraw because of bombardment from American planes.

Joins Marine Raiders

Three weeks later John was attached to an infantry unit of the famed Marine Raiders. The Raiders contacted the Japs at the famous and now battle-scarred Matanikou River. The Nips were promptly eliminated.

Maguire finally left the island in December and arrived in San Diego, Calif., eight months later. Following a 30 day furlough he was sent to New River to attend artillery school and thence to Villanova College. John was formerly a sergeant.

Dallas Texas, is the home town of our next veteran, Eddie Benson Becker. At the age of 19, he joined the Marine Corps and was sent to San Diego to complete eight weeks of basic training after which he remained at the base and was attached to a field artillery regiment. While so serving, he attained the rank of Private first class and later became Corporal in September.

On Routine Patrol

He was then transferred to an infantry outfit and sent to the South Pacific area where he assisted in the Guadalcanal campaign. Becker's unit did routine patrol work and aided in the general defense of the island. He was promoted to sergeant in December, and left Guadalcanal in January for the U.S.A.

Soon after arriving on the West coast, Eddie was sent to New River as an anti-aircraft instructor. He came to Villanova in March.

On January 15, 1942, the Corps hailed to its ranks Earl R. Gimpel. After spending seven weeks at the beautiful (?) San Diego "boot" camp, he was assigned to 81mm. mortar infantry as an assistant gunner and was persuaded to remain an additional 5 months, training in that capacity. After a few practice landings, Gimpel's outfit proceeded to Tulagi where a

Augustinians In Philippines Safe

Former Teachers at St. Augustine's College Moved to Manila; Two from Phila.

Doubt and uncertainty about the fate of four American Augustinian priests in the Philippines was finally dispelled when word was received that they are alive and safe. The four, Rev. Henry C. Carr, O.S.A., Rev. Leo J. McCarthy, O.S.A., Rev. John V. Casey, O.S.A., and Rev. Alfred J. Monte, O.S.A., all of them Villanova graduates had been engaged in teaching at the College of St. Augustine in Iloilo on the Islands up to the time that the Japanese captured the Philippines. What had happened to them was not known until it was learned recently that the Fathers had been removed from the College to a camp at the Santo Tomas University in Manila. Otherwise the priests were not harmed.

Wrote To Provincial

This information came from a repatriate who was among those brought back on the exchange ship, the Gripsholm. The gentleman, who had been a roommate of Fr. Casey at the Santo Tomas Camp, wrote briefly to the Provincial of the American Augustinians, Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O.S.A., that all four priests are safe and well.

A short time before, the parents of Fr. Monte had received word from their son through Red Cross channels. Fr. Monte wrote then: "I am anxious for you to know that I

Plans Completed For Guild Party

Support of its annual Card Party and Dance on the part of Villanova students and their parents, relatives and friends living in and about the Philadelphia area is the earnest request of the Augustinian Seminary Guild. Its Director, the Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., has announced that the party is to be held on April 25, in the Field House at 8:30 P. M.

Interest on the part of the student body was a large factor in making the last party of this type a success. It was pointed out that this year the Party will continue along much the same lines. In addition to the two prizes going to each table, there will be five door prizes. Card games of pinochle and bridge will be augmented by other games of chance and skill lending a carnival spirit to the night.

Of special interest to the younger set, particularly the service men, will be the dance beginning at 10:15 P. M. Swing and sweet will be furnished by the recently revised "Villanovans." Along the escort line, in addition to their own selection of dates, the Guild director has contacted the leading girls colleges in the vicinity with the assurance that there will be a worthwhile turnout of feminine attractions. By the judgement of the previous Party-Dances all may expect a most enjoyable time.

As was announced previously, Navy and Marine students will be permitted to attend, provided they have their tickets. It seems improbable, however, that any liberty will be granted to leave the campus.

Financier's Frolic Tickets On Sale Now

Plans for the Financier's Frolic on May 13th have been formulated and contacts have been made with several bands but no word has been received from them at the present time. Band committee chairman William Barrett expects to have arrangements completed by Easter.

Tickets, at the reduced rate of $3.15, may be obtained in the Villanovan office after 12:30 every afternoon or from any member of the fraternity. Remember the price will be increased after April 10th to $4.50.

Comdr. Milner Leaves for Active Sea Duty Again

Completes Ten Months' Tour Of Duty As Head Of Villanova V-12 Unit; Lt. Comdr. Hannah Takes Command At Informal Ceremony

Terminating ten months of what were for him comparatively inactive duty, Commander Edward J. Milner, USN, yesterday relinquished his post as commanding officer of the Navy and Marine Trainees stationed here to return to duty with the United States Navy afloat. Replacing him as head of the Villanova unit came Lt. Commander Edward Hannah, USNR, a veteran of World War I and of many years active service.

Although the exact nature of his new assignment cannot be disclosed for obvious reasons, it has been revealed that Commander Milner will be transferred to active duty in the South Pacific, a theatre of operations not new to him in his service career.

Active Sea Life

In previous assignments with the Asiatic fleet, Comdr. Milner has engaged in patrol activities on the Yangtze River and various other points along the coast of China, served for a time as executive officer on the coastal gunboat USS Tulsa. He was in Peking, the old capital of China, when it was invaded by the Japanese in 1937.

This duty in the Orient, combined with numerous assignments with the Atlantic fleet and several positions of an athletic nature, gives an idea of the active sea life which has been Comdr. Milner's since his graduation from the United States Naval Academy in 1920. His assignment here gave him his only prolonged visit to his natal city, Philadelphia, since that time.

Successful Command

Adequate testimony to the success of his command here is the following statement issued by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college.

"Commander Edward J. Milner USN, leaves Villanova to assume a new command in the Pacific carrying with him the goodwill and best wishes of everyone on the campus. During the ten months that he has served as the Commanding Officer of the Navy V-12 Unit at Villanova, he has had the respect and admiration, not only of the ship's company and trainees, but of the administration and faculty as well.

Great Cooperation

"The smoothness and efficiency with which the Naval Unit has functioned at Villanova is a tribute to the leadership of Comdr. Milner. That he had the peronal loyalty of his staff is well attested by the number who seek to serve under him in his new command. The cooperation of Administration and Faculty of the college with the Navy Department in the V-12 Program has certainly been a pleasure with him as Commanding Officer.

"Comdr. Milner has become identified so closely with the college in ten short months that on his departure something of Villanova seems to have been taken away. In bidding him Godspeed and the best of success in his new command. I am parting with one whom I consider as a warm personal friend."

Evidence of his regret at leaving Villanova is given in the following statement issued by Commander Milner.

Appreciates Spirit

"Navy orders have called me to another assignment. It is with sincere regret that I am leaving Villanova. The past 10 months have been most pleasant and fruitful. I am happy to have had a personal part in activating the Navy College Training Program at Villanova. The administration and the Fathers and Professors on the faculty have been most friendly and cooperative. The interest of my ship's company, the fine spirit amongst the trainees, all have been most helpful.

"I am sure that the V-12 program is making an important contribution to the war effort, and that its success at Villanova has been second to none other in the country.

"My stay at Villanova will remain as one of my treasured memories. It has been most inspiring to work in such close cooperation with the President, Father Stanford, and his able collaborators.

"I trust that all associated with the College will continue their excellent work. To all who have helped in the program, I express personal thanks for making it such an outstanding success, and bespeak for my successor Lt. Comdr. Hannah, the same cooperation and friendly spirit which I was privileged to enjoy."

Notice —

Because of the needed secrecy demanded by the Naval Department, complete information in regard to the personnel leaving with Comdr. Milner and their destination, was not allowed to be printed. However, this entire story along with an introduction to the new Ship's Company will appear in the next issue of the Villanovan, April 18. There will be no issue next Tuesday.

A Job — — Well Done

THOSE wits who wrote in past year-books the cliched line about the "Good Ship Villanova" little realized how prophetic were their words. The College, at the advent of the V-12 program, was converted into a Navy school, and the skipper, Commander Edward J. Milner, USN, took the bridge and guided his crew through the rough waters of scholastic and military endeavor. The rather difficult job of making Naval Officers of youthful collegemen fell to the Commander; to us who have been around here for quite a while, the results of his work, and that of his staff, are obvious in the training, the bearing, and the achievements of the lads the Navy sent to Villanova.

Last summer, a group of college fellows, some men from the fleet, and some very recent and very green high school graduates descended upon the campus in a chaos of short haircuts, zoot suits, and inexperience. Saturday a well-drilled group of seamen and marines marched snappily in review with the composure and confidence which comes only with the knowledge of capability. This change had its origin in the efforts and the discipline exercised by Commander Milner and his staff of Naval and Marine Officers.

There is no need to throw orchids at this time, the facts speak for themselves. We are losing, in the transfer of Commander Milner to active duty, the services of a capable, industrious, dutiful officer, one who enforces the regulations and fills all the requirements of the United States Navy's tradition and spotless honor. Congratulations to the Commander on his assignment to the South Pacific; good luck, Godspeed, and a safe journey home.

The Garbage Wagon

Last week we read a very stirring editorial in a Philadelphia newspaper of fairly decent repute. The work bemoaned delinquency in the American youth, and suggested measures to be adopted in the curing of this obvious evil. So far so good.

Splashed across the front page of the paper, however, was the lurid account of the infamous Chaplin case. The parading of this invitation to vice certainly is inconsistent with a desire for juvenile moral schooling.

The American Press has been begged, in humblest manner, to please "drive the garbage wagon down a side street". The plea has been unheeded; the press has hidden behind the shield of freedom to explain the licentiousness involved in steering the waste of a materialistic civilization down the center of the town, thus contaminating everything in sight. The cry is: the people want to read this type of story.

Possibly some people do; there are people, also, who wish to obtain narcotics for criminal reasons. But a narcotic in the wrong hands is a poison, so that this is denied the dabbler in crime. Yet a poison of the mind, a narcotic of the soul, the purple saga of the cankerous rot of a festering, atheistic civilization, is freely granted to all who wish to partake of its viciousness, be they young or old, weak or strong, good or bad.

Yes, we reiterate the old saw about liberty and license: they are not the same thing. "License is the ability to do as you like; freedom is the ability to do as you ought." This is the key to the solution of every modern evil. All that is lacking is the strength to turn the key.

IN need of a doctor? See Jim Corrigan. Perhaps, he may not be able to serve you personally at the present time, but we are positve that he will render some very good references in Hazleton, Pa. With six other Dr. Corrigans residing in the same town, Jim should encounter no difficulty in keeping the business in the family.

Jim was born just James Corrigan in Hazleton, Pa., back in the good old summer time of 1922; the twenty third day of August for those who demand preciseness. It was some time later that the Corrigan heir added that middle "A" to his name.

JAMES CORRIGAN

During his sojurn at St. Gabriel's High School, Jim was elected president of the Athletic Association and was also named Student Manager of School Athletics. Running on the Varsity Track team and winning the Hazleton Oratorical Contest in his senior year, glimmer in Jim's memory of his high school days. Graduation day in June 1940 was followed by a year at Malvern Preparatory School for our Hazleton youth.

Malvern was a stepping stone to Villanova, whose School of Science welcomed Jim in Setpember, 1941. Lambda Kappa Delta was happy to have him sign on the dotted line soon after. The Sanctuary Society, the German Club, and the Student Council also claimed Corrigan as a member.

Sanctuary Society Vice President

His artistic talent was displayed by his work on the decoration committees for both the Sophomore Cotillion of 1942 and the Blue and White Hop last Fall, and also the Sophomore Ring Committee. Jim considers his being elected Vice-president of the Sanctuary Society last semester as the highlight of his extra-curricular activities at Villanova. With a B.S. degree in Science awaiting him in June, Jim is looking forward to entering Jefferson Medical College in September.

Camp To Campus

WE must start off by regretfully announcing a mistake in last week's column. It was Pvt. C. R. Weiser, and not Pvt. Wilson who became the proud father. So sorry everyone—especially you, Mr. Wilson.

Now that the baby situation has been straightened out, we'll get on with our business:—S2/c John Dorsavage, an ex-Mendellite of last year, is with the 86th N.C.B. (Seabees) somewhere in the Pacific — Pvt. James A. Kivlin, ex-43, is in the Medical Detachment at Camp McCain, Miss.'—Bob Flad, PhM 3/c, ex-'45, is at the Naval Hospital in Chelsea, Miss.

Charlie LaBelle was happy to report to Midshipman School at Northwestern last week as was Oscar Hinski. Oscar was a Bainbridge where he had a rating of a PhM 3/c.

Dr. Joseph J. Toland, 3rd, '38, of Philadelphia has recently received his commission as a First Lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps.

One of the many trios of characters from Alumni last year is quite broken up now, as are most of them; it included Joe Doris, Ed McGettigan and Jerry McCann. McGettigan is in the Army Air Corps in St. Louis, while Jerry is in the Small-Craft Training Center in San Pedro, Calif. Joe paid us a visit a short while ago and at the time was stationed at Long Beach, Long Island (the garden sport of America). He was waiting to ship out on an Attack Cargo.

Tom Quigley was down to visit us this week and is now a Second Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps.

Pvt. Ed Fanelli writes from Meteorology School at Brown University that he has successfully passed his 3rd quarter exams but doesn't have much to look forward to with most of the Army schools closing down.

A/c George Harris is now at Kirtland Field, Albuquerque, New Mexico, and hopes to be commissioned as a Bombardier on June 10th—Pvt. William Forebaugh is at Lowry Field, Colorado—Pvt. Norman Schoonover has been assigned to the Finance Office at Dalhart, Texas.—Bill Swan, author of the once popular column "Cat Capers" for the Villanovan, is now a Midshipman at Notre Dame.

By LeRoy Collegeman, A.S.

SCALPEL, suture, sponge. . .such is the talk of the real operators of Dr. Kildare and Dr. Gillespie fame . . . but it differs greatly from the type of language the Villanova operators use . . . they go more for the comb, kreml, clothes-brush sort of lingo before they start to operate . . . and quite a bit of operating went on this past weekend too.

OPERATING ROOM:
STAGE DOOR CANTEEN—

Among the more famous doctors in attendance this weekend at the Phila. Stage Door Canteen were Foster Blough, and Brenton Morse whose pretty cooperatee (is there such a word) was Hostess Betty . . .At a table in the center Marc Abribat, Jack Weldin, Les Peterson and Tom O'Connell were performing an extraction of address on some pretty miss. . .At one of the more sheltered operating tables Larry Schmitt and Tad Pula were indulging in a little post mortem chat with two lovely conferees on a bridge game that had just broken up . . . Some of the consulting physicians present were Frank Habenicht, Walt Huber, Bill Dawson, Walter Meserve, George Haupt and Bill Harding .

OPERATING ROOM: PIE SHOP—

Aside from operating on Louie's pies and sandwiches, a great many of Villanova operators perform there daily, mostly for the benefit of the freshmen . . . An operation that backfired recently was the one that Joe DiPasqua tried to put over down at Rosemont along with Andy DiMasi, Dom Marsica, Lou Dicerchio and Rom Gianini . . . it seems that hearing of the formal the Rosemont misses are having on April 22, they decided to refresh some young ladies' memories of the fact that they were still alive and hoping and planning to receive invites . . . All the operations came off successfully except the one attemped by Andy . . . you probably need a few more years' operating experiences . . .

OPERATING ROOM: E. E. LAB—

When the operators are needed they cannot be found . . . this past week when one of the super-operators could have assisted at an operation down in the E. E. Lab, none could be located . . . The occasion was the birth of an undisclosed number of kittens to that guardian of the lab, the cat . . . The births took place during the wee small hours of the morning and completely unnerved the electrical engineers who had assumed that she was a he . . . A good many owe her an apology for all the slips of the tongue that they committed while she was around...

Having covered all phases of operations it's about time to count our sponges, sew up the muscles and close the wound, thus doing away with all the pain until we take the dressing off to look at the incision next week.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

THE colored preacher, after finishing a discourse to his congregation about free salvation, asked one of the "brethern" to take up the collection. A parishioner got to his feet and protested, "Parson, I thought you said salvation was free—free as the water we drink."

"Salvation IS free, Brother," the minister retorted immediately, "IT'S free and water is free, but when we pipes it to you, you pays for the PIPING."

SEASONAL NOTE—

Spring has sprung,
The grass has riz,
I wonder where the flowers is?

As you have noticed from the opening lines of the letters that you've had thrown at you by the Mail Sgt. lately—that "certain season" has arrived. Those not accustomed to this climate, however, are warned not to be too surprised if they are swimming outdoors on next Saturday, and wake up Easter morning to find six inches of snow.

Along with victory gardens, spring fever, and baseball, at this time comes another quite common sight, the "Blind - date Bug." The species is characterized by his warped sense of fraternity which urges him to get his "friends" dates with girls whom they have never seen. For obvious reasons the "Bug" is especially active now as the Social bud begins to blossom.

Of course, this fellow isn't to be condemned indiscriminately—he serves a purpose, and besides, usually has good intentions. We all have an urge, at times, for adventure—the mysterious—a gamble. Here's your chance. Practically all the elements of a major skirmish are incorporated in the mere contraction of a "blind-date"—the tenseness before the "conflict," the meeting of the forces, the struggle and—the outcome?? The Law of averages provides us with the chances of success in the project, and with wartime revision they aren't so bad.

My advice to you if you are contemplating to "take the chance" is to remember those inevitable thoughts that seem to come only the moment before she appears—while you wait calmly (?) in the parlor.

"Gosh, maybe she won't be good-looking. If she is I'll be sap enough to try and kiss her. If she kicks up a fuss, her old man will throw me out. If she don't, it's no fun—and if she kisses me back, it'll take six months to get rid of her. —what the heck am I doing here?.'

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Spring Practice Begins With 33 Men Reporting

Olivar to Form New Squad About Nucleus of 13 Veterans; No Centers To Be Had

With old Jupiter Pluvius interrupting the proceedings twice last week, Villanova's 1944 gridiron stalwarts beat down the growing grass of Goodreau Stadium in the first wartime spring football drills.

Taking up where he left off last fall, Jordan Olivar welcomed some 33 candidates out for the team, of whom 13 were members of last year's aggregation. Ollie plans to spend about a month and a half on this spring workout, but he says that the length of the drills will "depend on how well we get along."

No Center

Back again for the new edition of the Wildcats, and figured to be the standout performer on the forward wall, is big Jim Lalikos who filled in at the end of last season after Jim Harkins had left for Midshipman School. Don Collins is another who saw some action in the line and will probably team up with Lalikos at the other tackle. Returning at ends are four men: Gene Peyton, Dick Evans who is out with a bad knee at present, Len West and Bill Kuzman, while flanking the center will probably be Bill Ryan and Alex Colman, two short stocky lads who will really fill the spots left vacant by Gene Konopka and Max Chepenuk. Ollie's real work lies in developing a pivot man, as both the first and second string centers of 1943 are now gone off to the wars.

Light Backs

Returning in the backfield is 6 ft. 200 lb, Bob David who will probably lead the attack of the Main Liners. This lad, who played some freshman football at Notre Dame, has since gained added experience, and should make more than one opponent of the Blue and White

To Be Commissioned

C/SPEC. JULIAN HORGEN

Word has been received from the Navy office that the well known Chief Specialist Julian "Doc" Horgen is to receive a commission sometime in the near future. Chief Horgen was one of the original ship's company which came to Villanova when the V-12 plan came into being here. His past is quickly outlined by noting the fact that he was a star athlete at U. of Wisconsin and matriculated there, graduating with a Bachelor of Science in Physical Education. While here, he was assistant to Ensign Maniaci in the Navy Physical Fitness Program.

What his commission will be and where he will be transferred is still unknown to Chief Horgen. His commission has been ratified by Washington and he expects to receive it and his new orders in a few weeks.

Due to the continually inclement weather, the baseball team had to be content to practice indoors a good deal of the time. Above some of the pitching staff works out in the field-house. Above are Gordon Mueller, Gene Weinert,

Twenty-five Boxers Work Out Under Spec. Raimo

A full week of boxing workouts has produced a much improved group of aspiring pugilists. A lot of sweat has been lost by these boxing hopefuls as they round into shape for the coming tourney. Thus far, the workouts have consisted of a 6 lap jog around the cinder path with hands held high followed by stomach exercises and 6 minutes of rope skipping and heavy bag punching, and then, perhaps, a little sparring. A few of the tyro's have tasted leather for the first time during the sparring melee's of the previous week and have emerged with a seemingly insatiable appetite for the treated cow hide mitts. Hence, the coming tourney may be predicted as a hot, slam bang affair vieing for honors with last semesters affray.

So far there are 24 men out for the tournament but since it is only the first week, a few more may be expected to join the pugilistic ranks.

Raimo, Coach

The team has been ably coached by Art Raimo PI 2/c who boxed here himself a few years back under the tutelage of Coach Joe Foley, who preceded the famous Ray Gadsby as boxing mentor of the Wildcat mittmen. He was quoted by Coach Foley as being "a find, having natural ability and willingness to mix when the going is tough." His record shows a successful boxing career being overshadowed only by a contemporary, Tony Sala, inter-collegiate light-heavyweight champ. In his first season of boxing he won all but one match, losing that by a close decision.

Art fought in the 165 and 155 lb. classes, coming down from 180 lb., his football weight. The fact that he could lose so much weight is readily apparent when we consider the rigid training curricula of the old days. The warm up period consisted of a four mile run, five minutes of setting up exercises, and a half hour of bag punching. After this, the actual lessons, sparring, etc., took place. So those who complain of the present stoic system may take consolation in the fact that it could be harder.

The date has not been definitely set and, as has been said before, depends upon the rapidity with which the trainees are able to get into condition. From present indications ,the tourney may take place within the next three weeks.

Tournament Play Begun in Table Tennis Matches

Sondheimer Seeded Number One with Magner, Two; 64 Men Entered

By JAMES SHEA, A.S.

On Monday night play commenced in the table-tennis tournament, with eight players starting action at the Hut. Among the array of 64 players, there is a wide range of ability. Heading the list, seeded number one, is Alan Sondheimer, a formidable southpaw from Washington, D. C., who has an exceptional record of victories in Washington tournaments. Lacking tournament experience, but wielding a powerful forehand drive, is Ed "Chick" Magner, who was seeded number two. The rest of the field is composed largely of beginners, although there is a great possibility of a dark horse springing from this group, and stealing the show.

Many of the beginners have an eye on the consolation championship, in which only those eliminated in the initial round of play are allowed to participate. The next few weeks should produce some real competition.

Mrs. Cummings, Angel

The use of the Hut as the scene was donated by Mrs. Cummings, who set up this popular place of amusement originally. She also put up the fifteen dollars in prize money, and has backed the tournament from the beginning.

A/S Shea, the tournament chairman, has announced that about four matches will be played each night, in accordance with the schedule which will be posted from day to day. The referee of each match will enforce all rules and handle the equipment.

Up-to-date draw sheets will be posted on Mendal bulletin board, as well as in the Hut. Any information on the tourney may be obtained from the tournament chairman at 205 Alumni Hall. Everyone is invited to the matches and each evening so far there has been an avid group of spectators.

Swimming Meet Planned for After Easter

Austin Benefited by the Addition of Sailors; Alumni Defends Crown

Plans for an Intramural Swimming Meet have been announced by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Director of Intramural Athletics. As yet however, a date has not been set for the tourney, but it is expected that it will be shortly following the Easter leave. Assisting Father McKee in arrangements are Charles Daley, A.S., and Specialist 2/c Cover T. Brunt, Navy swimming instructor.

Practice for the meet is held every afternoon following the last swimming class. Those who desire to compete are requested to first turn their names in to their representatives appointed for their respective halls and then report for practice. These representatives have been appointed as follows: Fedigan Hall—Charles Daley A. S. and Lyman Whelan A. S.; Mendel Hall—Bill Koness A. S.; and, Alumni Hall—Joe Dunigan A.S.

Austin Combines

Following dispute as to whether the sailors living in Austin Hall should compete with the Marines, Father McKee stated, "Since the scoring of intramural athletics is arranged according to resident halls, the sailors of Austin Hall will compete together with the Marines as representatives of that hall." However, representatives for Austin and for the civilian students still remain to be chosen.

Alumni Hall will be out to defend their title won in the first tourney held here last summer. In this tournament Alumni beat out Fedigan Hall by only one point. Although many of their stars who produced their last victory have gone, they are expected to produce a strong team.

Similar Events

The events this meet will be the same as those of the last one. A 100 and 50 yd. freestyle race, a medley relay, a 100 yd. freestyle relay, 50 yd. backstroke and breaststroke event and diving exhibition. The individual races will be run off in heats and the best time will determine the winner. Assurance is given that this meet will not be run off at an inopportune time such as the last meet, held in February.

Fifteen Games For First Half Diamond Season

Approved Schedule Lists Seven Home Games; Navy, Penn State, Penn Reappear on 'Cat List

By DICK SOMERS

Jack Frost's death throes, accompanied by wind and rain, are cooperating to add a few gray hairs to Coach Lisco's abundant thatch as he endeavors to find a winning combination for the opening game with Navy on April 12 at Annapolis. Gordon Mueller, Gene Wienert, and "Reds' Lafferty have made favorable impressions in their bid for starting Mound assignments and a search is now being made for three or four men to assist them. The prospective fence-busters have had few opportunities to show their ability but several have made favorable impressions. Training rules have been established and the squad will be "trimmed" this week.

After the jaunt to Crabtown, the Cats have an open date on April 15. The following week will find the locals facing West Point up on the plains. This will be the ninth game for the Cadets and should prove the caliber of the Liscomen. Keeping up the military appearance, the Philadelphia Navy Yard Marines will furnish the opposition on Saturday April 29 on the home diamond.

Four Home Games

Journeying to State College on May 6, the Cats will repay the visit of the Nittany Lion last year and also try to reverse last years defeat. A four game home stand will open when Muhlenberg comes down from Allentown on May 13th. Divided loyalty will prevail on the campus the following week when Loyola of Baltimore will cross bats with the locals. Swarthmore V-12ers move in on the 24th for the first of two games with the Cats. Another newcomer, Ursinus ,will close the May playing on May 27.

Return games with Swarthmore and Muhlenberg will be played on June 3rd and 10th, on respectively alien diamonds. In last minute arrangement, four more games were added to the already complete schedule. A home and home series is to be played with the Thunder-

Giants Lead In Phi Kap Bowling

The second week of bowling came to an end with the Giants, once known as the Ship's oCmpany, taking the lead. Rolling a team high, from scratch, of 2320, the Giants hold a score of seven wins against one loss.

Men from a fifth place team, the Steelers, took two places in the high single and first in the individual high three. Dominic Femiano rolled 164,133,214 to take high three and high single; Al Sondheimer also of this team rolled 197 to place second in high single.

Eagles, Second

Team high single was taken by the Bears, led by the secretary of the league, Angie Rosa, who rolled a high 191. The winners of last year's league, the Eagles, then known as the Phillies are in second place with six wins against two losses.

There will be no bowling this Saturday due to the fact that the Easter Holidays intervene. One team, the Cardinals, is as yet incomplete, so they have had to forfeit both weeks.

Veterans' Discuss Experiences

Six Japs For One

It was less than a hour before contact was finally made with the Nips. Earl's mortar platoon immediately dug a gun emplacement, set up their mortars, and calmly proceeded to fire over the head of the American Infantry to cover their advance. As they slowly moved up, the platoon found it necessary to proceed through a pass which lay between two big rocks. While so moving, a sniper hit one of the men in the shoulder. The sniper, who was so well protected by one of the rocks that he couldn't be killed by grenades, was finally eliminated when a demolition squad blew him out with dynamite. Later it was discovered that there HAD been 6 snipers altogether. Soon after this, the platoon proceeded to a graveyard where they continued to produce more Jap ancestors in their dreams.

Patrols were sent out every day for Jap snipers. It was on one of these patrols that three Jap aviators were discovered in a native village and were told to surrender. The Nips, apparently anxious to join their ancestors, declined and attempted to swim out of danger. Sympathetic Marines, anxious to please them, promptly obliged and the aviators are now great heroes in Japan. (They are also very dead.)

Whistling Willy

After receiving word to shift operations to Guadalcanal, Earl's outfit left Tulagi and made a safe landing on the island. Once there, the platoon proceeded to the front line where they dug in with the mortars. During a big push later that day, they were fired upon by a Japanese gun fondly known as "Whistling Willy." Willy which couldn't be found, and nuisance bombings caused many a sleepless night.

A few days later Gimpel's unit went back to Henderson Field to recuperate, after which the unit returned to the U.S. Thirty days and one furlough later Earl was transferred to New River for a two and a half month's tour of guard duty at Onslow Beach.

Due to recurring malaria attacks, he was then assigned to duty in the Philadelphia Naval Aviation Supply Depot. Later, after applying for the V-12 Program, he spent another six weeks at New River for physical conditioning and arrived at Villanova in March. On the 21 of that month Gimpel was once more transferred because of Malaria and his present station is New River, duty unknown.

In Communications

Michael A. Berry joined the Marine Corps on April 6, 1921 and spent the usual 3 months at Parris Island taking his basic training. After this he was transferred to Quantico for signal school duty. His next duty was that of guard at Norfolk, Va., and then he shipped to the Caribbean area as a specialist linesman in communications. While in this area he was promoted to Private first class. In the summer of 1941, Berry took part in Atlantic coast manuevers and then he went to New River.

During the accelerated combat training that followed the declaration of war, Mike received his Corporal's rating, and five months later, just prior to leaving the states, he was promoted to Sergeant.

After arriving in the South Pacific, Mike, who was now attached to division special troops, took part in the first wave to hit Guadalcanal. A few weeks later the infantry took from the Japs and handed over to Berry's outfit, communications installations worth $200,000 or more. During a Jap dive bomber attack on the captured equipment, Corporal Edwards, a close friend of Mike, remained in the radio shack in order to take incoming codes. He was killed by a direct hit from a 500 lb. bomb. A week before this, Mike's wire chief had been killed by shelling from a Jap destroyer. The tent which housed the communication's platoon had over 200 shrapnel holes in it.

Mike also took part in the Battle of Matanikou River, but he declined to talk about it.

His outfit shoved off from Guadalcanal in December, and five months later he returned to the States on Memorial Day. Following a 30 day furlough, he went to New River where he was attached to the Third Airdrome Battalion for one month. In September he enrolled in the V-12 program and arrived here in November.

Worked in PX

Frank A. Cassiano enlisted in the Corps Reserve in August 1940. Like Maguire, Cassiano did not go through Parris Island "boot" training, but he was sent to Quantico, where he was attached to an artillery field outfit. He remained there until December, when he made Pfc. and soon after became Corporal. In January, he went to P. I. for artillery practice; and in May, he shipped to the Caribbean. After coming back to Quantico, Frank was assigned to the post exchange as bookkeeper for a period of four months and then to New River, at the same job, for eight months more.

In April, Cassiano left the United States and landed on Guadalcanal just two weeks following the initial landing. At that time there was no P. X. merchandise, so "Cass" was assigned to work with the Personnel Intelligence in an administrative capacity.

Lose Supplies

In September the first merchandise came in, and consequently Cassiano resumed his P. X. duty.

Whenever the post exchange ran out of merchandise, the personnel would volunteer (ha, ha!) for patrol duty.

In October anti-aircraft opened fire on Jap bombers. One of the bombers, mortally hit, scuttled his bombs, two of which struck the P. X. storeroom, and the few remaining supplies were demolished.

Cassiano's platoon sergeant, a lad from North Carolina went on patrol with eight hand grenades strung along his bandoleer. Upon spotting the silhouette of a Jap patrol, he threw all eight grenades in 30 seconds flat. Cassiano's outfit inspected the area in the morning and discovered that the sergeant had accounted for 18 Japs.

Frank left the islands in December, and upon arriving in the United States, was sent to New River where he remained until November 1. At that time, he was sent to Dartmouth for training with the V-12 program as a basic engineering student. He was transferred to Villanova in March.

Played Varsity Football

Here he enjoyed membership in the French Club, the Chemistry Club and displayed surprising dramatic ability in the senior class play. But the major episode of John's stay at Mt. Carmel High was his playing running guard on the varsity football squad (something he will never forget!!).

Arriving at Villanova in September 1941, John enrolled in the School of Arts and Education. Majoring in Chemistry, and minoring in Biology, his B.S. degree in Education will qualify John to teach both those subjects in any secondary school, or go on to study medicine, which he has already chosen as his career.

Appointed Sacristan

Since he first set foot on the campus John has been one of the outstanding members of the Sanctuary Society. His ardent devotion to that organization resulted in his being named Sacristan in his junior year, a position which he has held since then. Football again aroused John's interest and he played with the 150 lb. football team in 1942.

A member of Epsilon Phi Theta, May has five brothers in the Service, which tends to show even Centralia is helping to win this war. Following graduation in June, Hahnemann Medical School will open its portals to Johnny in September.

Two Philadelphians

The original group of priests who went to Iloilo have since returned to the States, being replaced by the four presently imprisoned there. Fr. Monte had the doubtful fortune to arrive at his post at the college a few scant weeks before the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Fr. Monte, who hails from Philadelphia, left here in the late summer of 1941. Ft. Carr, also a Philadelphian, was assigned to the Philippines in 1939; while Fr. McCarthy and Fr. Casey, from Boston and Lawrence, Mass., respectively, departed in 1940. For all four it was the first appointment on leaving the seminary.

The only drawbacks on the fellows is the fact that both are rather small, for Al weighs only 140 pounds, while Bucky tips the scales at about 165. Returning at the quarterback spot to fill the vacancy left by the graduation of Johnny Dzitko are two Charlies, Callicano and Feeney. The former saw action during the '43 season while Dzitko was out with an injury.

In addition to these veterans, twenty newcomers to the college are trying out for the team, and out of these men, both old and new, will come the 1944 squad which will represent Villanova on the football gridiron.

PKP Meets Tomorrow To Make Dance Plans

Phi Kappa Pi, the Engineering Fraternity of Villanova, will hold a meeting in room 215 Mendel Hall at 7:00 P. M. tomorrow evening, April 19. The purpose of this meeting is to elect a dance committee and in general start the ball rolling for the fraternity's summer dance. Matters concerning the type and price of band, etc., will be discussed. As this is one of the big functions of the year all members are urged to attend.

Les Brown Here On Apr. 29 With Spotlight Bands

Word has been received from the Navy Department in Washington that arrangements have been completed for the Coca Cola Spotlight Band Program, featuring the music of Les Brown's Orchestra, to be broadcast from the College Field House on Saturday evening, April 29.

Following the broadcast at 9:30, there will be a dance lasting for two and one-half hours, for which the college authorities have donated the field house. Lt. August, in making the announcement, stated that all hands are expected to be present in order to show appreciation for having a nationally famous program brought to this station.

Announcement that arrangements have been completed marked the culmination of prolonged effort on the part of Comdr. Joseph Tinney, District Public Relations Officer, to have such a band brought here.

Drum Corps Adds 15 New Musicians

Completion of the last semester and the subsequent transfer of many trainees seriously depleted the ranks of the Navy and Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. The extensive replacements necessitated have been made and student support has guaranteed the continued function of the Corps.

Organized at the beginning of last semester, the purpose of the Corps was to lend color to the drills and reviews. It was begun and has continued under the supervision of its moderator, Capt. Robert L. Morgan, USMCR. Support and maintainance of the organization is by voluntary contributions of time and work on the part of the students.

Replacement for John B. Scola, A.S., former Drum Major, who left in February for Midshipman School was the chief problem facing Capt. Morgan. However the vacancy was quickly and well filled by the appointment of Robert A. Beal, A.S., in charge of the Corps.

New Men All Sailors

Assisted by Pvt. Donald Rugen and Joseph Ringlestein, A.S., who have been appointed Sergeant Bugler and Sergeant Drummer respectively, the Corps succeeded in obtaining the services of the following new men: Buglers — Apprentice Seamen A Coll, C. Andrews, G Aulbach, C. Canamucio, H. Bernton, H. Yost and G. Banning. Drummers — Apprentice Seamen E. Crotty, J. Winner, W. Thompson, S. Kent, M. Sheridan, F. McBride, E. McAdams and C. Cummings.

Backing up these new recruits and lending their experience to the perfection of the Corps are the following veterans: Buglers—Pvts. D. Rugen, L. Schmitt, K. Lynn and A. Jamison; Apprentice Seamen S. Farmer, R. O'Connor, P. Higgins, C. Farinella, L. Blazic, J. Hairsine, A. Blue and A. Menalis. Drummers —Apprentice Seamen J. Ringlestein, H. Stofman and J. Hatfield.

Six Former Marine V-12 Students Commissioned

On April 12, the first of Villanova's Marine Corps trainees were commissioned as second lieutenants. These men were graduated from Officer Training at 10 A. M. on Wednesday, and three hours later they were assigned to Reserve Officer Candidate's School.

The newly commissioned officers are Ferdinand H. Merkel, Robert L. Nealon, John D. Dempsey, Douglas L. Boyd, Louis P. Vuona, and Stephen C. Woodruff.

Lt. Comdr. Hannah, 22-Year Veteran, New Head Of Unit; Medical Officer And Yeomen Transferred For Sea Duty

Lt. Comdr. Prince, Y 1/c Azarva and Y 2/c Freeman Leave for Duty in Comdr. Milner's Ship's Company

During the past week, along with a change in command of the V-12 Unit, several members of the ship's company have been transferred for active duty afloat. Lt. Comdr. Robert Prince, USNR (MC), Yeoman 1/c Ernest Azarva and Yeoman 2/c Clayton Freeman have left the station to assume posts under Comdr. Edward J. Milner, USN, former commanding officer of the Villanova Unit, as members of his new ship's company.

Replacements for the positions vacated by these men have already been filled. Lt. Robert Norton, USNR (MC), has been transferred from the Philadelphia Navy Hospital to become new Medical Officer for the Villanova Unit. Replacing the Yeomen came two Waves, Yeomen 3/c Edith Smith and Gayle Forunte, who arrived several weeks ago to learn the routine of the Navy Office from the yeomen they replaced.

Sea Duty New

Sea duty will be new to all three when they join Comdr. Milner's staff. Lt. Comdr, Prince began his naval career in 1942, after being commissioned in the Reserve, with his assignment as Senior Medical Officer at the Receiving Station at Bainbridge, Md. Prior to his coming to Villanova, he was assigned to Edgewood Arsenal where chemical warfare was taught.

Before attending, and graduating in 1931 from, the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, Dr. Prince spent six years as durggist. In his civilian career he was associate surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital in Patterson, N. J., his home town.

Experienced Yeoman

Yeoman 1/c Ernest Azarva, one of the original ship's company, held the post of Ship's Clerk and Secretary at this station. His service in the Navy prior to his transfer to Villanova gave him a variety of experience. Enlisting in September, 1941, he was first stationed at the Receiving Ship at the Navy Yard in Philadelphia, where he received his "boot training." Following this duty, Yeoman Azarva held accounting positions at Staff Headquarters and the District Supply Office.

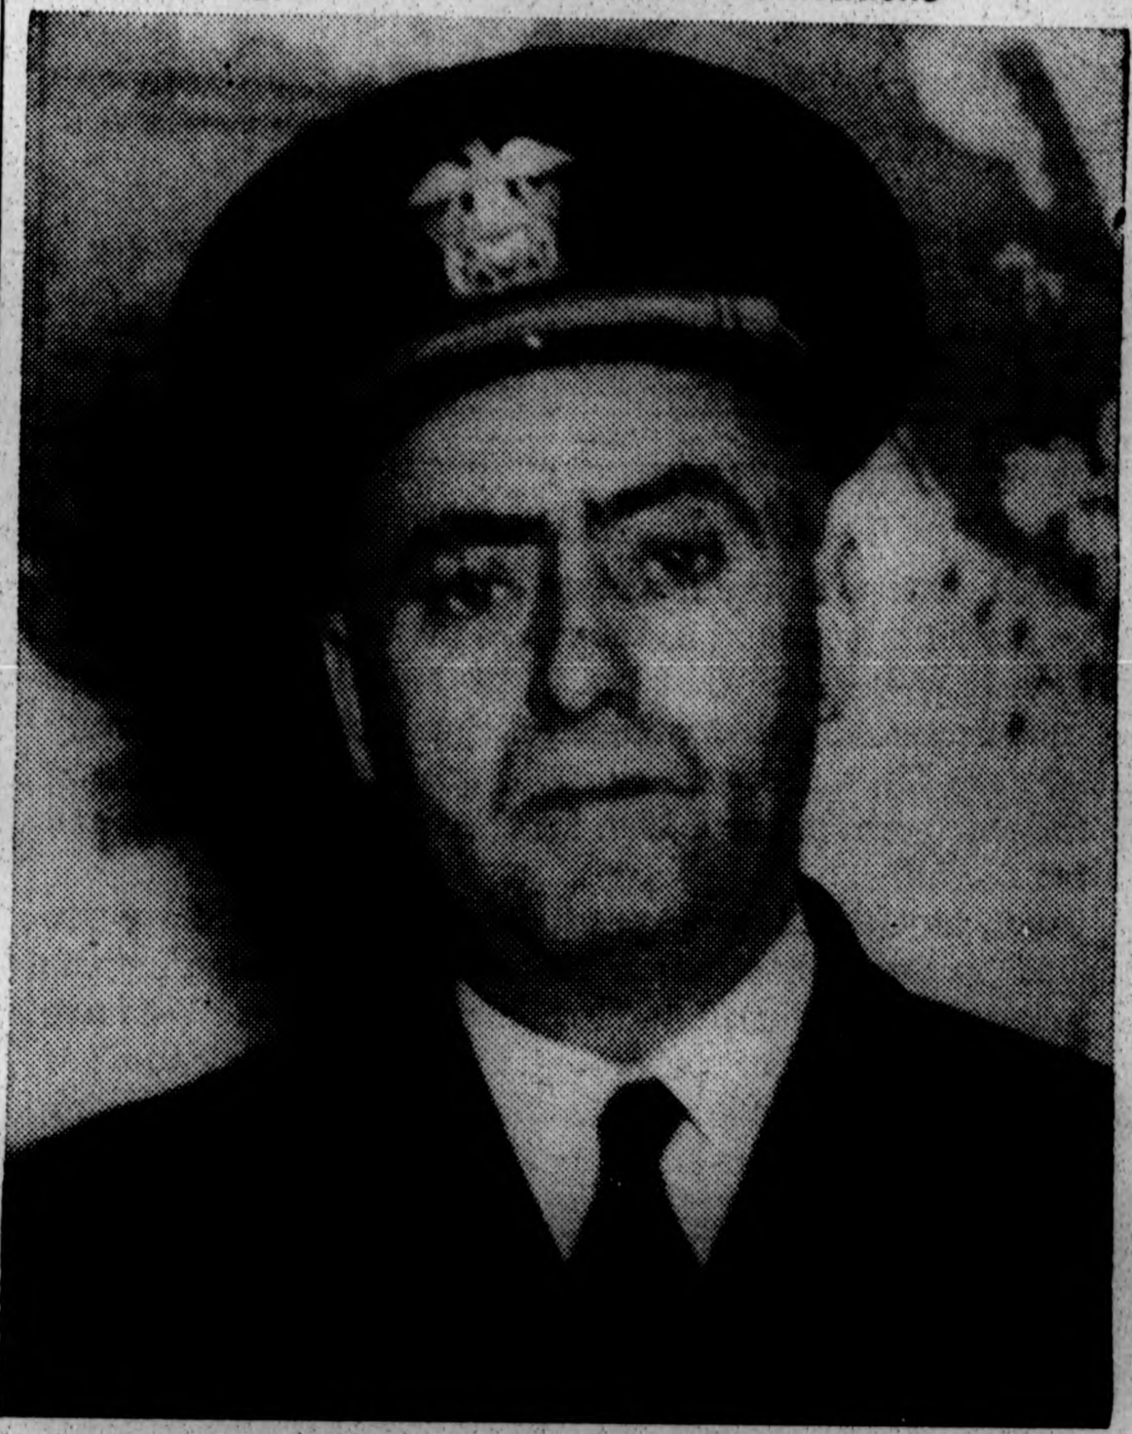
LT. COMDR. R. PRINCE, USNR

Work Appreciated

Another Ship's Company member to leave for sea duty in the Pacific, Yeoman 2/c Freeman, enlisted in the Navy in July, 1942, and a month later was sent to Cape May Naval Base. After boot training he was stationed as yeoman at the base. He was here for about a year, after which he was sent to Villanova. While here he received his promotion from the third class rating which he had on his arrival.

To all three, the staff of the Villanovan joins with the faculty and students in wishing them Godspeed and great success in their future undertakings.

New Commanding Officer of V-12 Unit Began Navy Career as Radioman 2/c; Graduate of Electrical Engineering; Former Officer in Communications



LT. COMDR. EDWARD HANNAH, USNR

Last week, the command of this station passed into the hands of a man who, but for one five-year interval, has been associated with the Navy since 1917. During that time he has occupied many varied positions, for the Radioman 2/C Hannah of that year is the Lt. Commander Edward Hannah, USNR, of today.

Born in Dunkirk, New York, on November 6, 1897, Lt. Comdr. Hannah lived in that town for fourteen years. At that time his family moved across the continent, and over a period of years made their home in several cities along the west coast. At the age of 18, he matriculated at the University of California.

Studies Cut Short

Mr. Hannah had completed but two years in the study of electrical engineering when the first World war broke out in 1917. Immediately he enlisted in the Navy and was sent to the service school at Maer Island, from which he graduated with the rating of Radioman 2/C. From here he shipped out on the U. S. S. Oregon.

Advancement came quickly for the young specialist during the next two years. Following assignments with the Pacific Coast Communications Superintendent at San Francisco and the District Communications Office in Honolulu, he was mustered out in 1919 with the rating Chief Radioman.

Reenlists in Reserve

With this honorable discharge from the Navy numbered among his prized possessions, Mr. Hannah returned to his studies at the University of California. Here he continued to specialize in radio and graduated in 1921 as an electrical engineer.

In that same year he became associated with the Federal Telegraph Company at San Francisco, now know as the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company. He remained here in the capacity of Commercial Superintendent until he reenlisted in the Naval Communications Reserve, as a Chief Radioman, in 1924. Two years later he was commissioned an Ensign in that reserve.

Active in Communications

From 1924 on, Comdr. Hannah was very active in Naval communi

2 Bands Signed For DPE Frolic

At elections held prior to the Easter vacation, John Fitzgibbons was returned to the office of president of the Commerce and Finance Frat. for a second term. The other officers are: Edward J. Gallagher, Vice President; John L. Malone, A.S., Secretary; John A. Reddy, Treasurer; Pvt. Leonard J. Cuff, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Robert D. O'Connor, A.S., Studeht Council Representative.

William Barrett, Chairman of the Band Committee, reported the following situation existing in the musical field: the prices for one-nighters are exhorbitant, leaders demanding a high percentage of the receipts in addition to a flat guarantee; bands signed to hotel contracts tend to leave their regular men there and make a personal appearance with a pick-up band, and several that were under consideration are now in the West or on theater tour and thus are unavailable.

This situation made it possible for us to secure Johnny Warrington and his band, featured nitely on WCAU, and Len Mayfair, an up and coming young band, to provide continuous dancing for the Financiers Frolic on Saturday ,May 13. Tickets may be secured from any member of the Fraternity for $4.50 any time before May 1.

Six Japs For One

It was less than a hour before contact was finally made with the Nips. Earl's mortar platoon immediately dug a gun emplacement, set up their mortars, and calmly proceeded to fire over the head of the American Infantry to cover their advance. As they slowly moved up, the platoon found it necessary to proceed through a pass which lay between two big rocks. While so moving, a sniper hit one of the men in the shoulder. The sniper, who was so well protected by one of the rocks that he couldn't be killed by grenades, was finally eliminated when a demolition squad blew him out with dynamite. Later it was discovered that there HAD been 6 snipers altogether. Soon after this, the platoon proceeded to a graveyard where they continued to produce more Jap ancestors in their dreams.

Patrols were sent out every day for Jap snipers. It was on one of these patrols that three Jap aviators were discovered in a native village and were told to surrender. The Nips, apparently anxious to join their ancestors, declined and attempted to swim out of danger. Sympathetic Marines, anxious to please them, promptly obliged and the aviators are now great heroes in Japan. (They are also very dead.)

Whistling Willy

After receiving word to shift operations to Guadalcanal, Earl's outfit left Tulagi and made a safe landing on the island. Once there, the platoon proceeded to the front line where they dug in with the mortars. During a big push later that day, they were fired upon by a Japanese gun fondly known as "Whistling Willy." Willy which couldn't be found, and nuisance bombings caused many a sleepless night.

A few days later Gimpel's unit went back to Henderson Field to recuperate, after which the unit returned to the U.S. Thirty days and one furlough later Earl was transferred to New River for a two and a half month's tour of guard duty at Onslow Beach.

Due to recurring malaria attacks, he was then assigned to duty in the Philadelphia Naval Aviation Supply Depot. Later, after applying for the V-12 Program, he spent another six weeks at New River for physical conditioning and arrived at Villanova in March. On the 21 of that month Gimpel was once more transferred because of Malaria and his present station is New River, duty unknown.

In Communications

Michael A. Berry joined the Marine Corps on April 6, 1921 and spent the usual 3 months at Parris Island taking his basic training. After this he was transferred to Quantico for signal school duty. His next duty was that of guard at Norfolk, Va., and then he shipped to the Caribbean area as a specialist linesman in communications. While in this area he was promoted to Private first class. In the summer of 1941, Berry took part in Atlantic coast manuevers and then he went to New River.

During the accelerated combat training that followed the declaration of war, Mike received his Corporal's rating, and five months later, just prior to leaving the states, he was promoted to Sergeant.

After arriving in the South Pacific, Mike, who was now attached to division special troops, took part in the first wave to hit Guadalcanal. A few weeks later the infantry took from the Japs and handed over to Berry's outfit, communications installations worth $200,000 or more. During a Jap dive bomber attack on the captured equipment, Corporal Edwards, a close friend of Mike, remained in the radio shack in order to take incoming codes. He was killed by a direct hit from a 500 lb. bomb. A week before this, Mike's wire chief had been killed by shelling from a Jap destroyer. The tent which housed the communication's platoon had over 200 shrapnel holes in it.

Mike also took part in the Battle of Matanikou River, but he declined to talk about it.

His outfit shoved off from Guadalcanal in December, and five months later he returned to the States on Memorial Day. Following a 30 day furlough, he went to New River where he was attached to the Third Airdrome Battalion for one month. In September he enrolled in the V-12 program and arrived here in November.

Worked in PX

Frank A. Cassiano enlisted in the Corps Reserve in August 1940. Like Maguire, Cassiano did not go through Parris Island "boot" training, but he was sent to Quantico, where he was attached to an artillery field outfit. He remained there until December, when he made Pfc. and soon after became Corporal. In January, he went to P. I. for artillery practice; and in May, he shipped to the Caribbean. After coming back to Quantico, Frank was assigned to the post exchange as bookkeeper for a period of four months and then to New River, at the same job, for eight months more.

In April, Cassiano left the United States and landed on Guadalcanal just two weeks following the initial landing. At that time there was no P. X. merchandise, so "Cass" was assigned to work with the Personnel Intelligence in an administrative capacity.

Lose Supplies

In September the first merchandise came in, and consequently Cassiano resumed his P. X. duty.

Whenever the post exchange ran out of merchandise, the personnel would volunteer (ha, ha!) for patrol duty.

In October anti-aircraft opened fire on Jap bombers. One of the bombers, mortally hit, scuttled his bombs, two of which struck the P. X. storeroom, and the few remaining supplies were demolished.

Cassiano's platoon sergeant, a lad from North Carolina went on patrol with eight hand grenades strung along his bandoleer. Upon spotting the silhouette of a Jap patrol, he threw all eight grenades in 30 seconds flat. Cassiano's outfit inspected the area in the morning and discovered that the sergeant had accounted for 18 Japs.

Frank left the islands in December, and upon arriving in the United States, was sent to New River where he remained until November 1. At that time, he was sent to Dartmouth for training with the V-12 program as a basic engineering student. He was transferred to Villanova in March.

interlude at Mt. Carmel Catholic High School in Mt. Carmel, Pa., where out "favorite coal-cracker" soon discovered that education involved a great deal more than unmerciful turmoil.

Played Varsity Football

Here he enjoyed membership in the French Club, the Chemistry Club and displayed surprising dramatic ability in the senior class play. But the major episode of John's stay at Mt. Carmel High was his playing running guard on the varsity football squad (something he will never forget!!).

Arriving at Villanova in September 1941, John enrolled in the School of Arts and Education. Majoring in Chemistry, and minoring in Biology, his B.S. degree in Education will qualify John to teach both those subjects in any secondary school, or go on to study medicine, which he has already chosen as his career.

Appointed Sacristan

Since he first set foot on the campus John has been one of the outstanding members of the Sanctuary Society. His ardent devotion to that organization resulted in his being named Sacristan in his junior year, a position which he has held since then. Football again aroused John's interest and he played with the 150 lb. football team in 1942.

A member of Epsilon Phi Theta, May has five brothers in the Service, which tends to show even Centralia is helping to win this war. Following graduation in June, Hahnemann Medical School will open its portals to Johnny in September.

Two Philadelphians

The original group of priests who went to Iloilo have since returned to the States, being replaced by the four - presently imprisoned there. Fr. Monte had the doubtful fortune to arrive at his post at the college a few scant weeks before the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Fr. Monte, who hails from Philadelphia, left here in the late summer of 1941. Ft. Carr, also a Philadelphian, was assigned to the Philippines in 1939; while Fr. McCarthy and Fr. Casey, from Boston and Lawrence, Mass., respectively, departed in 1940. For all four it was the first appointment on leaving the seminary.

feel a little sore after a game. At the halfbacks are two speed kings, Al Sondheimer, and Bucky Williams both of whom are veterans of more than one contest of last season. The only drawbacks on the fellows is the fact that both are rather small, for Al weighs only 140 pounds, while Bucky tips the scales at about 165. Returning at the quarterback spot to fill the vacancy left by the graduation of Johnny Dzitko are two Charlies, Callicano and Feeney. The former saw action during the '43 season while Dzitko was out with an injury.

In addition to these veterans, twenty newcomers to the college are trying out for the team, and out of these men, both old and new, will come the 1944 squad which will represent Villanova on the football gridiron.

PKP Meets Tomorrow To Make Dance Plans

Phi Kappa Pi, the Engineering Fraternity of Villanova, will hold a meeting in room 215 Mendel Hall at 7:00 P. M. tomorrow evening, April 19. The purpose of this meeting is to elect a dance committee and in general start the ball rolling for the fraternity's summer dance. Matters concerning the type and price of band, etc., will be discussed. As this is one of the big functions of the year all members are urged to attend.

Les Brown Here On Apr. 29 With Spotlight Bands

Word has been received from the Navy Department in Washington that arrangements have been completed for the Coca Cola Spotlight Band Program, featuring the music of Les Brown's Orchestra, to be broadcast from the College Field House on Saturday evening, April 29.

Following the broadcast at 9:30, there will be a dance lasting for two and one-half hours, for which the college authorities have donated the field house. Lt. August, in making the announcement, stated that all hands are expected to be present in order to show appreciation for having a nationally famous program brought to this station.

Announcement that arrangements have been completed marked the culmination of prolonged effort on the part of Comdr. Joseph Tinney, District Public Relations Officer, to have such a band brought here.

Drum Corps Adds 15 New Musicians

Completion of the last semester and the subsequent transfer of many trainees seriously depleted the ranks of the Navy and Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. The extensive replacements necessitated have been made and student support has guaranteed the continued function of the Corps.

Organized at the beginning of last semester, the purpose of the Corps was to lend color to the drills and reviews. It was begun and has continued under the supervision of its moderator, Capt. Robert L. Morgan, USMCR. Support and maintainance of the organization is by voluntary contributions of time and work on the part of the students.

Replacement for John B. Scola, A.S., former Drum Major, who left in February for Midshipman School was the chief problem facing Capt. Morgan. However the vacancy was quickly and well filled by the appointment of Robert A. Beal, A.S., in charge of the Corps.

New Men All Sailors

Assisted by Pvt. Donald Rugen and Joseph Ringlestein, A.S., who have been appointed Sergeant Bugler and Sergeant Drummer respectively, the Corps succeeded in obtaining the services of the following new men: Buglers — Apprentice Seamen A Coll, C. Andrews, G Aulbach, C. Canamucio, H. Bernton, H. Yost and G. Banning. Drummers — Apprentice Seamen E. Crotty, J. Winner, W. Thompson, S. Kent, M. Sheridan, F. McBride, E. McAdams and C. Cummings.

Backing up these new recruits and lending their experience to the perfection of the Corps are the following veterans: Buglers—Pvts. D. Rugen, L. Schmitt, K. Lynn and A Jamison; Apprentice Seamen S. Farmer, R. O'Connor, P. Higgins, C. Farinella, L. Blazic, J. Hairsine, A. Blue and A. Menalis. Drummers —Apprentice Seamen J. Ringlestein, H. Stofman and J. Hatfield.

Six Former Marine V-12 Students Commissioned

On April 12, the first of Villanova's Marine Corps trainees were commissioned as second lieutenants. These men were graduated from Officer Training at 10 A. M. on Wednesday, and three hours later they were assigned to Reserve Officer Candidate's School.

The newly commissioned officers are Ferdinand H. Merkel, Robert L. Nealon, John D. Dempsey, Douglas L. Boyd, Louis P. Vuona, and Stephen C. Woodruff.

Lt. Comdr. Hannah, 22-Year Veteran, New Head Of Unit; Medical Officer And Yeomen Transferred For Sea Duty

Lt. Comdr. Prince, Y 1/c Azarva and Y 2/c Freeman Leave for Duty in Comdr. Milner's Ship's Company

During the past week, along with a change in command of the V-12 Unit, several members of the ship's company have been transferred for active duty afloat. Lt. Comdr. Robert Prince, USNR (MC), Yeoman 1/c Ernest Azarva and Yeoman 2/c Clayton Freeman have left the station to assume posts under Comdr. Edward J. Milner, USN, former commanding officer of the Villanova Unit, as members of his new ship's company.

Replacements for the positions vacated by these men have already been filled. Lt. Robert Norton, USNR (MC), has been transferred from the Philadelphia Navy Hospital to become new Medical Officer for the Villanova Unit. Replacing the Yeomen came two Waves, Yeomen 3/c Edith Smith and Gayle Forunte, who arrived several weeks ago to learn the routine of the Navy Office from the yeomen they replaced.

Sea Duty New

Sea duty will be new to all three when they join Comdr. Milner's staff. Lt. Comdr, Prince began his naval career in 1942, after being commissioned in the Reserve, with his assignment as Senior Medical Officer at the Receiving Station at Bainbridge, Md. Prior to his coming to Villanova, he was assigned to Edgewood Arsenal where chemical warfare was taught.

Before attending, and graduating in 1931 from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, Dr. Prince spent six years as durggist. In his civilian career he was associate surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital in Patterson, N. J., his home town.

Experienced Yeoman

Yeoman 1/c Ernest Azarva, one of the original ship's company, held the post of Ship's Clerk and Secretary at this station. His service in the Navy prior to his transfer to Villanova gave him a variety of experience. Enlisting in September, 1941, he was first stationed at the Receiving Ship at the Navy Yard in Philadelphia, where he received his "boot training." Following this duty, Yeoman Azarva held accounting positions at Staff Headquarters and the District Supply Office.

LT. COMDR. R. PRINCE, USNR

Work Appreciated

Another Ship's Company member to leave for sea duty in the Pacific, Yeoman 2/c Freeman, enlisted in the Navy in July, 1942, and a month later was sent to Cape May Naval Base. After boot training he was stationed as yeoman at the base. He was here for about a year, after which he was sent to Villanova. While here he received his promotion from the third class rating which he had on his arrival.

To all three, the staff of the Villanovan joins with the faculty and students in wishing them Godspeed and great success in their future undertakings.

New Commanding Officer of V-12 Unit Began Navy Career as Radioman 2/c; Graduate of Electrical Engineering; Former Officer in Communications

LT. COMDR. EDWARD HANNAH, USNR

Last week, the command of this station passed into the hands of a man who, but for one five-year interval, has been associated with the Navy since 1917. During that time he has occupied many varied positions, for the Radioman 2/C Hannah of that year is the Lt. Commander Edward Hannah, USNR, of today.

Born in Dunkirk, New York, on November 6, 1897, Lt. Comdr. Hannah lived in that town for fourteen years. At that time his family moved across the continent, and over a period of years made their home in several cities along the west coast. At the age of 18, he matriculated at the University of California.

Studies Cut Short

Mr. Hannah had completed but two years in the study of electrical engineering when the first World war broke out in 1917. Immediately he enlisted in the Navy and was sent to the service school at Maer Island, from which he graduated with the rating of Radioman 2/C. From here he shipped out on the U. S. S. Oregon.

Advancement came quickly for the young specialist during the next two years. Following assignments with the Pacific Coast Communications Superintendent at San Francisco and the District Communications Office in Honolulu, he was mustered out in 1919 with the rating Chief Radioman.

Reenlists in Reserve

With this honorable discharge from the Navy numbered among his prized possessions, Mr. Hannah returned to his studies at the University of California. Here he continued to specialize in radio and graduated in 1921 as an electrical engineer.

In that same year he became associated with the Federal Telegraph Company at San Francisco, now know as the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company. He remained here in the capacity of Commercial Superintendent until he reenlisted in the Naval Communications Reserve, as a Chief Radioman, in 1924. Two years later he was commissioned an Ensign in that reserve.

Active in Communications

From 1924 on, Comdr. Hannah was very active in Naval communi

Our Motives

What motivates the interests and activities of Catholic college students engaged in interracial work? In answering this question we find that our first motive is due to the fact, not necessarily that we are college students, but simply that we are Catholics, and as such, profess a belief in, and are obliged to strive for a true brotherhood among men and Justice for all.

Then, as Catholic college students we find that we are impelled by an even stronger motive, that of bringing the Negro race to the Church and keeping them there. We have had the opportunity for a thorough Catholic training to show us that being a Catholic entails the obligation of spreading the Church, and that as a strong Catholic laity, we can and should do as much in this regard as priests and religious. Thus, we work to break down prejudice in the hope that we may thereby win the Negro to the true Faith.

Finally, from a purely social angle, we have an added motive to promote the Negro cause, for history has taught us that where there are sores on the body of society the "isms" we so fear and detest can creep in.

Some Catholics would be surprised to learn that we find our first motive for interracial work in the very fact of our Catholicity. This is because they do not know what membership in Christ's Church really means. Christ gave us two commands, the love of God and of Neighbor; the second, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." He told us clearly in the parable of the Good Samaritan who our neighbor is, and He presented obedience to this commandment of love as a necessary condition for salvation. Can we call ourselves Catholics, or even Christians, if we fail to obey one of Christ's fundamental precepts? And dare we call unequal, dare we look down upon those for whom the Son of God gave up His life and would have done so had there never been a white person on earth? The Negro needs our friendliness, our brotherly love, our Faith. There is our motive for charity and justice!

As regards our second point you may ask why Catholic college students should be especially motivated by a a desire to convert the Negroes to Catholicism. Except for those in religious life there is, perhaps, no group of people with a greater opportunity to obtain a full appreciation of the Catholic Church and what it stands for than Catholic college students. We who have studied advanced courses in religion and all of our secular subjects in the light of the Church's teachings, who have been shown the beauty and magnitude of true Catholic life should be naturally impelled to Apostolic work even if there were no direct command of Christ, to "go teach all nations." We feel an especial interest in winning the Negro to the Church because he is so much within our power to help.

These then, in brief, are the three motives which promote the work of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council. First that Christian charity and justice, that the bare essence of our Catholic Faith demands that we recognize the rights which the Negro holds in common with all men.

Second, the supernatural motive which springs from our desire to bring all men to the true Faith, and to see the Kingdom of Christ on earth.

And finally, the social motive whereby we wish to perfect and strengthen our society on every side that it may serve all of the individuals, for whom it exists, to its fullest extent.

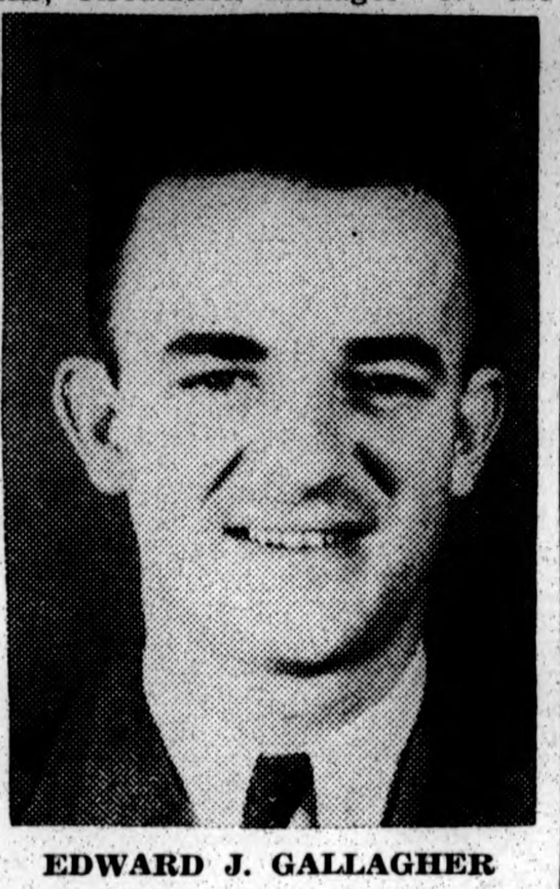
Meet the Boys

So far as most people know, East Lansdowne, Pa. has nothing in common with Atlantic City, N. J. We at Villanova, however, have and hold the information that these two cities are responsible for the greatest Alphonse-Gaston combination to grace the campus these many years. Edward J. Gallagher was born in the resort town, and John A. Reddy first saw light of day in the woody, Pennsylvania suburb.

While Ed drove away at the triple-R routine at St. Madeline's, Jack was knocking himself out at St. Cyril's; while the former varied his secondary education at West Catholic, Ridley Park, and the Pierce Schools, the latter studied at West Catholic and let it go at that.

JOHN REDDY

At C&F, in the good old days when that School was referred to as "Shangri-La," the careers of these lads merged, and they have been together ever since. Ed, fresh and businesslike because of his experience as an automobile salesman on his father's plantation, became a marketing major, and in the Spanish Club, the DPE, sundry Band Committees, the Student Council, and, finally, in the capacities of Copy Editor of the Belle Air, Circulation Manager of the Villanovan, and Chairman of the Financiers' Frolic distinguished himself as a born organizer and an expediter of no little ability.



EDWARD J. GALLAGHER

Jack, also a member of the DPE, now holds the purse strings of that group; he has been on several Band Committees, is now on the board directing the Financiers' Frolic, and is the present Business Manager of the Belle Air. He is noted for his patience under pressure, and this trait helps keep harmony in the tempestuous offices of the year-book.

Jack, who is a day-hop, and Ed, who also carries his lunch, are both about to give their all for Uncle Sam; Jack has been recently accepted for service in familiar organization called the U.S. Navy, and Ed's fate is in the hands of the good General Hershy.

When these two fellows leave Villanova, we will lose the services of a unit, for the team of Reddy-Gallagher functions that way. We do not know two more diverse characters, and yet we have never seen such close cooperation in all things as is evidenced by this combo.

"I thank you, Mr. Gallagher." "You're welcome, Reddy-boy."

Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

OHH! It sure is great to be back again after those four miserable days of doing nothing, eating plenty and of course all the rest of the monotony that goes with a leave.

We ran into Joe McFarland on our way home last week. He had just gotten out of boot camp. We also understand that his buddy Bill Butler, is a Midshipman at Harvard University Navy Supply School. He expected to be there for a year (much to his distaste), but will be commissioned shortly. Geroge McFadden is up there with him.

A/S James Callahan was recently discharged from a hospital, where he had been laid up after a plane crash, at Presbyterian College Air School. While he was in Alabama he noticed Joe Lord's name in headlines—chosen No. 1 basketball player. Joe was the unanimous choice for the All-Star team at that Cadet Center. Great going, Joe. Jim also mentions that he heard from Bill Helmig who is getting ready to go to New Zealand for a rest after many months of action in the South Pacific.

Some more news of the South Pacific battles comes of two of our fine priests who went into the service as Chaplains. Fr. Handron, who had charge of our band, has been in about every battle they had in the last two months over there. Fr. 'Donnell is another who has seen plenty of it. In fact, about three quarters of his unit were wiped out. Thank God, he came through all right.

Pvt. Turner Cottrell was just released from the hospital where he has been laid up with a very bad arm for ten months. He has been "discharged to duty" at Camp Lee, Va.

Gene Hannon is over in England now and is very disappointed that he hasn't heard from his old classmates. Come on, you guys give with the letter-writing.

A sight for sore eyes was Bill Savage when he dropped in to see us last Monday. He had been looking forward to those coming nine days at home. Before he left his base, he ran into "Juke" Powell and they had one of those old-friendly chats. Nothing like seeing old friends again!

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

AS the last traces of the haze caused by last week's "Holiday Hangover" disappear we find the inevitable annual blossoming of the social season. Joe V. Twelve discovers his date-roster being quickly filled for weeks to come. Brenda Bryn Mawr, Rosie Rosemont and Isabelle Immaculata came up with dances on successive week-ends while we are planning a few brawls ourselves for the near future.

The little boy rabbit and the little girl rabbit were chased into a cave by a pack of foxes. Squatting there, as rabbits are wont to squat, and panting for breath after a hard run, the little girl rabbit looked out at the foxes poking their snouts into the narrow mouth of the cave, and asked the little boy rabbit, "What will we do now?" The little boy rabbit thought for a moment, then sagaciously replied, "Guess we'll just have to stay here 'till we outnumber them."

This is the news that you have been waiting for — I quote from "Yank," the army's weekly: "If an enlisted man or officer is elected President, Vice President, State Governor, a member of Congress, of a state legislature or judge of a Federal or State court, he can be discharged or released from active duty for the purpose of assuming office." (Get the girl friend busy electioneering; there is an election soon.)

On the other hand, civilian life isn't a bed of roses these days. What for instance, would be your reaction to the following proclamation recently issued by Uncle Sammy, if you still wore that zoot suit. "A statement of possible income must be filed by everyone, including married men who are are fathers or non-fathers, if his annual Victory tax exceeds the deductable percentage of his approximate dispersion. Computation of the precise statistical minimum must be based upon the fundamental ratio of expendable assets. Failure to comply with this request will be dealt with severely."

Here's one for the quiz fans — During a recent visit to a Bavarian restaurant I witnessed the following conversation between a bewhiskered patron and a foreign-looking waiter.

F-U-N-E-M?

Sure—I thought they might be sabateurs, too, but the translation proved quite innocent. (You can find it on the back page.)

After Hours

By LeRoy Collegeman, A.S.

SPRING is here, the grass is green, the trees are budding and best of all the fish are biting. . .nope, there's nothing like dangling a line in front of a nice looking specimen of bass or perch . . .but something almost as good is handing a line to a nice looking specimen of femininity and don't think that quite a bit of that hasn't been going on lately too. . . Let's look over the favorite fishing spot this past weekend . . . it was the field house and the occasion was the nifty shindig put on by the Jenkintown Yankee Doodle Service Club . . .the boys were just angling around and the girls were all fishing for compliments and well did they deserve them too . . .

After casting around a bit our eyes happened to fall on Foster Blough, Paul Reynolds and Clarence Call getting a few tips from the girls who should know all about the water—the WAVES. . . Then there was John Bradley and Frank Solis with two of a kind, twin sisters Helen and Pat . . . their family really struck it rich in the beauty line. . .Charlie Mamzic seemed to be using extra heavy cord because we noticed that his line was strong; but then he was fishing for a very worthy prize. .

There to one side were the stags . . .worthy catches for the right kind of bait. . .we weren't fishing but we noticed the three Joes: Costello, Sulock and Carroll along with Walt Huber, Bill Boyle and many others. . .they seemed to be having a lot of luck and a good time to boot. . .

Accompanying John Bradley's sister Jane was John Burke and the fact that he was under the watchful eye of brother didn't detract from his enjoyment of the evening. . .

Tom O'Connell was gallant to the Nth degree. . .he offered to go out of his way just to ride back in the bus with the girls who entertained just to see that nothing happened to them. . .very nice of him. . .And now a tribute to George "This mike is broken again" Doak and his thirty talented and beautiful girls. . .they really put on a wonderful show. . .let's hope they come back and real soon too.

Looking over the calendar of events for the next few weeks we notice some more great "fishing" opportunities. . .On the 25th there is the Card Party and Dance and on the 29th the Coca Cola Parade of Spotlight Bands brings Les Brown to our Field House . . .and if this past weekend was one that got away always remember that there are plenty of fish in the sea.

All Star Boxing Bouts Set For Next Friday Night

The time — 8:00 P. M.; the place — Field House; the occasion — All Star Boxing Bouts. The intramural boxing tournament of last semester will be repeated this semester by popular demand. Sensing the rabid interest of the students in this sport, Fr. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Intramural Sports, has endeavored in every manner to make this semester's tournament surpass all those preceding it.

As stated before, the bouts will begin at 8:00 P. M. and will in all probability last until 10:00 P. M. This otherwise unenjoyable interval of the day will be crammed with a dozen or more fast stepping, slam banging bouts ably engaged in by not only some of leather slingers of the preceding semesters but also a few newcomers who have had quite a bit of experience in the fleet. Included in this latter category are Paul Smunk, William Burke, and Jack De Labarra who look very promising.

Returning "Vets"

Another newcomer but only to the Intramural Boxing ranks is "Bill" Russell who seconded and helped with the coaching last semester. Bill may box this year and will probably help out as a second until the time of the bout. A few of the veteran mittmen returning are: "Bill" Lamb, "Jim" Tucker, George Burkhardt, Paul Reynolds, Roger Lattanza, Joe McGovern, John Atkinson, "Reds" Brahm, and Jim Lamb, brother of Bill, who is a veteran of last Spring's tourney and is remembered by the pre-V-12 Villanovans for his slam banging three rounds with "Windy" Barret. Roger Lattanza, who gave an excellent exhibition last year with Dick Breen, probably one of the best boxers seen on the sod of Villanova for some time, looks very good and will not disappoint the fans this semester.

The wrestling of the previous tourney will not be continued in the present exhibitions due to the lack of aspiring maulers.

Musical Interlude

Furnishing the in-between bout entertainment will be Gene Konopka and the Villanovans who made a big hit last semester. The master of ceremonies and announcer will be none other than Tom O'Connel who handled this category rather well last semester. The time keeper will be William Carter of Austin Hall. Contributing a helping hand and handling the fighters will be Art Raimo PI 2/C and Bill Russel.

Four Meets Remain On Track Schedule

Following the Annapolis meet there remains but four meets on the outdoor schedule of the track team. These meets may be supplemented at a later date with more, as yet unscheduled, opponents. The present schedule lists the Penn Relays at the University of Pennsylvania on April 28-29. Following these on May 20 are the I.C.4-A Championships. For the first time in many years, Philadelphians will have the Championships here in their home town instead of New York. For various and sundry reasons the site of the Championships will be Franklin Field.

On May 27, the cindermen will engage Swarthmore at their field. Rounding out the season for this year will be a meet with the V-12 trainees from Muhlenberg. This meet will also be away at the Mule Stadium at Allentown.

Although there is a fair number of men out for the team, there is a definite need for more, if a representative team is to be formed.

Chief Specialist Lisco Changed To Recruiting Post

Chief Specialist John A. Lisco, U. S. N. R., recently appointed baseball coach has been transferred to a new station by the Navy Department. This disappointing news was received by the candidates for that team as they fell out for practice on Tuesday afternoon, April 4. As yet, however, his position as physical training instructor has not been filled.

Chief Lisco came to Villanova last November in a minor switch in the Ship's Company. With previous experience as instructor at the SeaBee camp at Camp Allen and at the V-12 Unit at Purdue University Lisco was received here, not by a welcoming committee, but by a severe case of grippe. Due to the resulting stay at sick bay, December saw the first contact between Chief Lisco and the trainees. For three months, he drilled and exercised the sailors and marines, and in early March he assumed the additional duties of baseball coach.

C/SPEC. JOHN LISCO

"Hit and Run"

Although his job of coaching was only a little over a month, Chief Lisco did remarkably well. His organization and handling of an unwieldy and large group of over fifty candidates was only exceeded by his enthusiasm. "Hit" and "Run" were his two orders, for as he said, "Hitting will win games" and likewise, "If you can't outhit a team be able to outrun them on the bases".

Recruit Duty

Although he has already been assigned to various stations as physical instructor, Chief Lisco now encounters something different for at his new post he is doing recruiting work. He has been assigned to the Naval Radio School at Hollidaysburg, Pennsylvania.

Chief Lisco's orders did not come in that group which included the change of Commanding Officers. His were separate orders and a replacement is expected in the near future.

SWIM MEET

All those who are participating in the coming intramural meet will be allowed to swim on afternoons which they have free and substitute this swimming for their regular P.T. period. Those doing so will turn their names in to their respective Hall captains.

Middies Swamp Track Team In Season Opener

All First Places Swept by Midshipmen in 93-13 Defeat; Siano, Golden Place in Pouring Rain

The Navy "took to its element" at Thompson Stadium on Saturday to outclass the Villanova trackmen in their initial test of the season. On a rain-soaked track and a straightaway that was covered with an inch and a half of water, the Midshipmen splashed, jumped and threw their way to first place in each event.

In their first 1944 outing, the "Ensigns-to-be" displayed a well-balanced team which should do well in the coming season. Considering the condition of the track, Van Velzer's 10 second hundred was the outstanding performance of the day.

Siano Second

George Brown, I.C.4-A, champion, took first place from Villanova's John Siano in the shot put with a heave of 44 feet, four and one-quarter inches.

The meet, originally scheduled as a quadrangular affair, was finally run between the two teams when Loyola and Virginia dropped out. Due to the downpour, which ended simultaneously with the last event, the high jump and pole vault events were called off.

Villanova's thinclads showed definite need of training. Hampered by unfortunate weather, the majority of the team entered its first meet in far from peak condition. Several members of the Main Line team were unable to perform at all due to injuries and lack of conditioning.

Men Needed

Jim Skane, manager of the team, announces that, "There are still spots open on the team for men who have some ability, and who are willing to work—especially pole vaulters, high jumpers and hurdlers.

West Point to be First Game After Annapolis Rainout

Pending Game Not Probable Due To Complications; Probable Varsity Nine Already Seeded Out; Al Severance Is Acting Coach

A new season and a new squad was met with old traditional baseball luck last Wednesday. The initial game of the schedule was rained out when the team went down to Crabtown to engage the 1944 Annapolis nine. No sooner had the team left Philadelphia than word was received from Annapolis that it was raining there and that there would be no game. But when team arrived, the sun was beaming and it seemed we would play after all. Such was not to be for once more the rains came and the game washed out leaving the opening holes of the schedule empty.

Attempts to schedule a game to fill the only open date on the spring program ran into a snag and the team will have an opportunity to adjust batting eyes before the trip to West Point on April 22.

On paper there is more power in this year's lineup than the one that represented Villanova last year. Gordon Mueller, from Baltimore, "Reds" Lafferty, the pride of Kennet Square who pitched for the locals last year, and Gene Weinert, former McCall American Legion twirler who was also on last year's team head the pitching staff for this year. Dick Naslund, Bob Formaini, and Phil Jakeway (the brains of the staff) are out to give them some competition for starting roles. Holding up this sextet of flingers are John Siano of football fame who holds a slight weight advantage over George Lewin, a local boy who has also played some football in his day.

Severance Coach

Jack Fetting and Al Sondheimer are fighting for the reception post. Two converted outfielders, Dick Breen and Johnny Corr are battling for the keystone sack. "Squeeky" Warner is back at his old post in the shortfield. On the hot corner visitors will meet "Silent John" Ramsey, who distinguished himself on the basketball court during the past season.

Roaming the outer gardens, in some combination as yet undecided, spectators will find Johnny Killelea, Frank Bloom, John Anderson, Danny Horgan, Ed Burns, and

Intramural Touch Football Begins On Monday Night

With the weather just a little too cold and the darkness of evening approaching too rapidly for baseball, Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics, has arranged a touch football league modeled after the highly successful one which was run last fall. The circuit will be composed of four teams, one from Mendel, Austin, Fedigan and Alumni and comprised of six men to a team. Games were started last night at 6:00 P. M. and continued till 7:00 P. M., when the Marines met Mendel while Fedigan battled it out with Alumni.

Few Rules

The league will run for two straight weeks up to and including Thursday, April 27. Each team will play the other halls three times during the course of the schedule with the winner of the most games proclaimed the champion of the Campus. Rules of the circuit are very few, the only requirements being that the game be two hand touch, with no spikes or cleats allowed, and the games to be forfeited if the team doesn't show up within 15 minutes of the official starting time which is 6:00 P. M.

Assisting Fr. McKee with the various halls are Joe Ringlestein, A.S., Fedigan, Dave Ward, A.S., Mendel, Pvt. Tom O'Connell, Austin, and Joe Walters, A.S., Alumni. These men have been selected by the moderator to organize the teams within their own halls.

Alumni Transfers

In Mendel, each of the decks will field a team and will rotate so that each will play the other dorms once. The other three representatives are picking their six best men cations, and served as the commanding officer of numerous units. On September 16, 1940, he was recalled to active duty as executive officer of the U. S. Naval Reserve School, U. S. S. Boston, Receiving Ship San Francisco.

In May 1942, utilizing his knowledge in the field of communications and his ability for organization, the Navy Department ordered Comdr. Hannah to Harvard University to assist in the construction of the Naval Officers Communications School. He remained as executive officer of the newly conceived and established school until February, 1943.

At that time Comdr. Hannah was assigned to a post which he is only permitted to describe as "duty outside the continental limits of the United States." On March 1, 1944, he reported to this campus as commanding officer of the V-12 Unit.

In commenting on his appointment Comdr. Hannah had this to say:

"During the brief period of time since my arrival here on this campus, there has been abundant evidence of the fine spirit of cooperation which the Navy enjoys at Villanova College. I cannot stress too strongly the excellent co-operation which I have had thus far and I look forward with confidence to working in close harmony with the President, Father Stanford, and with the other officials of the College. In fact, the friendly spirit which I have encountered everywhere on the campus is most heartening.

"In taking over the command of the Navy V-12 Training Unit at Villanova College, I was immediately impressed with the efficiency and smoothness with which the Unit functions. In saying this, I pay tribute not only to the College officials but also to the excellent pioneer work of my predecessor, Commander E. J. Milner, who has been advanced to a new command on the Pacific."

On the arrival of the new commanding officer, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the College, had the following comment to make:

"I am most happy that Lt. Comdr. Edward Hannah has been assigned as the Commanding Officer of the Navy V-12 Unit at Villanova College. He comes to us highly recommended by his superior officers. We are proud to welcome him to our midst.

"Commander Hannah has had a long career with the Navy and the rich background of experience he has gained will fit him for his duties at Villanova.

"It is my hope that he will be at home with us at once and that his tour of duty here will be most pleasant for him. I can assure him of the enthusiastic cooperation of the administration and faculty to the end that the Naval Training Unit at Villanova may uphold and increase the prestige thus far attained."

The favorite of the league is undoubtedly Fedigan as Joe Ringlestein welcomed with open arms both George Shammo and John Ramsey stars of last fall's Alumni Hall champion team, in a transfer at the semester. As a result of this, Joe Walters is having some trouble trying to replace these men but with a whole hall to choose from, the job shouldn't prove to be too difficult. Subject-Matter Exams

It is important that it be understood that the Subject Matter Examinations of the Armed Forces Institute will have the greatest single weight with the College in determining what credit may be granted to individual applicants seeking advanced standing. Grades attained at the completion of correspondence courses whether conducted by the Armed Forces Institute or by a cooperating university will have minor significance. Therefore, all prospective applicants are strongly urged to apply to the Institute for the Examinations whenever they feel they have attained mastery of a particular subject. It is to be noted that these examinations will be administered only on the initiative and request of the individual.

In cases of students who have at least 2 terms of residence at Villanova College prior to entering the Armed Services and who have obtained additional credit while members of the Armed Services, consideration will be given to waiving the rule of residence during the senior year.

Lt. McClintock Arrives As New Exec.; Lt. August Leaves Unit For Sea Duty

Former Professor of Psychology Comes From Penn State to Assume New Post

As part of the sweeping changes which have been effected in the administrative personnel of this Unit in the past few weeks, Lt. James A. McClintock, USNR, a man trained specifically for work in the V-12 Program since his enlistment a year ago, has been appointed Executive Officer of this station.

Born in Cherokee, Iowa, on April 1, 1903, Mr. McClintock spent his boyhood days in Washington State and in Roseburg and Salem, Oregon. After graduation from Roseburg High School in 1921, he worked for a year and a half with a banking concern before matriculating at Willamette Universtiy in Salem. From here he was graduated with a B.A. degree in psychology in 1927.

Attracted by the ministry, Mr. McClintock next attended the Drew Theological Seminary in Madison, N. J., where he was awarded a B.D. degree in 1930. Further study at New York University brought him an M.A. in Psychology in 1930 and a Ph.D. in Philosophy and Religion in 1934. An additional year and a half studying psychology at Columbia University and the University of Oregon completed his graduate work.

LT. J. McCLINTOCK, USNR

From 1930 until 1943, Mr. McClintock was a faculty member at Brother's College of Drew University, and is at present on leave of absence from his duties as Professor of psychology and Director of Personnel at that institution.

Outstanding among Mr. McClintock's memberships in numerous national and sectional psychological associations are the four years during which he was president of the New Jersey Association of Psychology and Treasurer of the American College Personnel Association.

Prior to receiving his commission in the Navy on April 21, 1943, Mr. McClintock did considerable work, both for the government and privately, in the fields of civilian morale and psychology. He has lectured and written extensively on the latter subject. He also Completes 10 Months Duty as Executive Officer; Joins Comdr. Milner's Staff

Along with other changes in the ship's company during the past two weeks, the Navy V-12 Unit of Villanova lost the services of one of the most respected and well liked officers on board—Lt. Harry W. A. August, USNR, former executive officer.

LT. HARRY AUGUST, USNR

Mr. August left last week for the West Coast where he will join Comdr. Edward J. Milner, USN, former Commanding Officer of the V-12 Unit here, to become a member of his new ship's company.

Lt. August was commissioned in March, 1943, following a versatile career in journalism, which saw him as editor and practically author of a small town newspaper; reporter and later News Editor of the Pittburgh Press; and Professor of Journalism at Duquesne University.

From the classroom to the drill field, Mr. August will be missed. The Villanovan joins with the Villanova ship's company, faculty and students in wishing him great success in his future work.

63 Take Competitive Scholarship Exams

The annual Competitive Scholarship Examinations for Villanova College were conducted on Saturday, April 22, 1944, in room 215 Mendel Hall. Sixty-three students from high schools in this vicinity took the exam. The men with the three highest marks will receive a $1,000 scholarship to the College.

St. Joseph's Prep School of Philadelphia led in the number in attendance from one school with 22 students. West Catholic sent 12; Malvern Prep. 5; Lancaster Catholic, 6; Northeast Catholic, 4; Roman Catholic, 2; Reading Catholic, 2; and the remainder of the participants were from 9 local high schools.

National Salute With Les Brown

The Navy V-12, its officers and men, will receive a national salute on Saturday, April 29, when "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" will present Les Brown and His Orchestra in an entertainment at Villanova College, it was announced by George S. Deery of the Philadelphia Coca-Cola Bottling Company, sponsor of the affair.

In addition to a regular show there will be a twenty-five minute coast-to-coast broadcast over 173 Blue Network Stations, spotlighting the V-12 Unit, its personnel and accomplishments.

Les Brown, although one of the best known arrangers and sax players in the country, never succeeded in catching on as a band-leader until about three years ago. Les would save money that he made as an arranger and side man. When he had saved a certain amount, he would step out and organize an orchestra. After a few months the band would flop and Les would return to arranging and sax playing until he gathered together another nest egg.

About three years ago the name of Les Brown started across the horizon and its popularity kept increasing until in a recent poll conducted by Radio Daily, Brown was acclaimed among the ten leading band-leaders in the country.

"The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands," sponsored nationally by The Coca-Cola Company, is heard six nights a week from Navy, Army, Marine, Coast Guard and Merchant Marine bases, as well as from war production plants. The series is now in its 84th week and has traveled more than 617,000 "spotlight" miles.

Subject Matter Exams Help Set College Credits

Because of prominence given to Subject Matter Examinations in the policy announced last week for granting credit for training courses to returning service men, we are able to present this week, with the cooperation of College Administration a further classification of this matter, in question and answer form.

What are these Subject Matter Examinations?

Subject Matter Examinations are special examinations prepared at government expense in various fields of study by expert groups of examiners. The War Department contract for this work has been placed with the University of Chicago under the directorship of Ralph W. Tyler. The examiners are drawn from the staff of the University of Chicago as well as from other universities and colleges.

What is the purpose of these Subject Matter Examinations?

Through these Subject Matter Examinations, which are constructed with an eye to the qualitative and quantitative requirements of a typical college course, it is hoped that individual colleges will have a definite basis for evaluating the training courses given in a variety of ways under varying circumstances.

It is generally recognized that there are many training courses given under the auspices of the Armed Services which have significant value as far as college credit is concerned. The problem is how to evaluate these courses and give them the proper measure of credit. While such training courses may be strictly on a college level and while records may be available as to the grades or standings which a man has attained in these courses, there are real difficulties in the way of the individual college attempting to evaluate them as to the comparable value with similar courses in college.

Thus a course in calculus may be given as part of the regular training program of Army and Navy or it may be voluntarily taken up through the facilities of the Armed Forces Institute. The grades which the individual attained in this course may be a matter of record. This will not be of much help to a college in evaluating the record since the scope and quality of the work done may be very difficult to ascertain. To meet this difficulty, the expedient of Subject Matter Examinations has been devised.

How are these examinations prepared?

These examinations are prepared through the cooperative efforts of educational agencies with the aid of appropriate college professors. Thus, Mathematics professors in a number of recognized colleges would be asked to state the content, scope and objectives of a standard college course in Calculus. Lists of questions and problems which the average Calculus student in college ought to be able to handle are prepared. Then an examination is constructed. It is sent to various professors for criticisms and suggestions. In the light of these, it is again revised and then it is tested on students at various institutions. In the light of this experience, a final draft of the examination is prepared.

How can the relative worth of these examinations be judged?

By the use of such examinations over wide areas and by many individuals, it is possible to build up national norms. To enable the individual colleges to establish institutional norms and to have first hand experience with such examinations, parallel tests have been prepared in order that colleges may use them with their own students

DPE Features Johnny Warrington At Annual Financiers' Frolic On May 13

JOHNNY WARRINGTON

Len Mayfair Also Signed to Provide Music for Continuous Dancing; Both Are Popular Local Bands

Johnny Warrington and his new music for dancing America will come to Villanova College on May 13, 1944, playing for the Delta Pi Epsilon's fourth annual Financiers' Frolic to be held in the field house.

Edward J. Gallagher, chairman of the dance, announced the contracting of this popular band, together with Len Mayfair's orchestra, to provide continuous dancing for the evening. Both bands were obtained through the efforts of the Band Committee headed by William Barrett.

Features of Johnny Warrington's orchestra are the fine vocals of lovely Dawn Fredericks and Bon Bon who was formerly with Jan Savitt; and Davey Stephens, master of piano concertos. These, together with Johnny's colorful choice of dance music and his imaginative arrangements, combine to make his orchestra highly popular in this locality.

Joins Savitt

Warrington started on his musical career playing in high school and college bands side by side with such present day music masters as Ziggy Elman, Sonny Dunham, Cottie Williams, Les Brown and Johnny Long. He played with the latter two while a student at Duke University.

He joined Jan Savitt's orchestra after graduating from Duke, and soon became his leading arranger and featured saxophonist. After staying three years with Savitt, Johnny decided to form his own band and selected only top-notch musicians to play with him.

Gets Wide Acclaim

Today, Warrington's success is apparent in the popular acclaim given him by music magazines and newspapers of colleges where he has played. His now famous music for dance loving America promises to make the Financiers' Frolic an outstanding success.

The ticket committee wishes to remind all concerned that tickets are $4.50 until May 1, after which date, and until dance time, they will be $5.50. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Commerce and Finance School Frat or in the Villanovan Office, room 119 Mendel Hall, from 12:30 to 1:30 every day.

Phi Kap Meets To Plan June Dance

Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, held a short meeting last Wednesday evening at 7:30 in room 214 Mendel to discuss the business of the next few months. President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., presided over the meeting.

After considering the difficulties encountered by the Commerce school fraternity in attempting to secure the services of a well-known band, members of Phi Kappa Pi presented and passed a motion that a local orchestra be signed for their forthcoming dance.

Three men who have had some experience in dealing with orchestras were then appointed to investigate conditions in the musical field and secure the best available at moderate rates. Those selected were: Pvt. Raymond W. Kasper, Senior Chemical engineer, who did similar work in high school; Joseph H. Heim, A.S., Junior Basic engineer, who has also had experience in such matters; and Robert C. Cramer, Junior Chemical engineer, who is himself an excellent trumpet player.

Date Uncertain

Although the exact date of the dance has not yet been set, President McGuinn announced that it would probably be held the first week in June. Because of the decision to sign a small orchestra, ticket price will be moderate.

With the business concerning the dance completed, a short discussion of the financial status of the fraternity was held. Members were urged to keep themselves up to date in the payment of dues in order to avoid finding themselves several dollars in arrears when the time comes for them to receive keys at the end of their senior year.

Next Meeting Set

To this end a list of the amount each man owes the fraternity will be posted on the engineering bulletin board in the near future. This procedure was approved by a unanimous vote of the members before being adopted.

Membership cards were then issued to those present and the meeting was adjourned. Another meeting will be held in a week or two at which further plans for the dance will be made and an interesting movie will be shown.

Student Demands Bring Library Hour Changes

Due to present demands made on the College Library, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, announced the following changes that have been made in the hours that the library will be open. Monday to Friday, the hours are from 8:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M., and on Saturday, from 8:00 A.M. to 12:00 Noon. During the past, the library has been closed from 5:15 to 7:00 P.M. It will now be open during that period.

Baldwin Plant Trip Planned By A.S.M.E.

Robert J. Casey, A.S., president of the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers has called a meeting of its members Thursday evening at 7:00 P. M. in room 215 Mendel Hall. At this meeting, plans for the coming plant trip to the Baldwin Locomotive Works will be discussed.

Movies which should prove of great interest to M. E.'s will be shown. The film, entitled "Building a Bomber," deals with the details of construction of the Martin B-26 bomber.

The Philadelphia Section of the A.S.M.E. will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at the Engineers Club. Many members of the Student branch here plan to be present.

Neutrocities

WE are led to believe that the stifling of neutral embassies in Britain has been demanded by a need of secrecy. If this is true, the situation is anything but favorable. The invasion date is still a mystery to the American public; the reasons given for the discontinuation of neutral diplomatic correspondence seem to say that the mystery is not universal among the allies.

Does the drastic step taken to assure deception and surprise imply that there are traitors among the allied chiefs? This is hardly possible. What, then, is the true reason for this imposed silence? One theory holds that Germany has been infected with the jitters because of constant talk of invasion, and that this recent move increases the fever of fear. This makes sense.

Another school of thought has it that the neutrals, whom the United States and Britain seem to be troubled with, are thus warned of Allied power, and are threatened with dire consequences for failure to side with the Allies.

This brings up the subject of neutrality, although the topic has found new argument in the present policy of the Allies. Until recently, it was taken for granted by altruistic internationalists that neutrality was possible. This neutrality was able to be accomplished in one of two ways: sell to both belligerents, or sell to neither of them.

Because of economic necessity, the neutrals in this war have deemed it wise to deal with both sides. This is their prerogative. Turkey has sold to both the Allies and the Axis. To discontinue sales to either, portends war to this nation. It does not matter to Turkey which side rends her soil and blackens her landscape. She fears Russia as much as she fears Germany—perhaps more.

Eire, although not officially engaged in the present war, has sent thousands of volunteers into the British forces, and has demanded only one right of a neutral, that of retaining foreign embassies. Furthermore, according to the Irish law and policy, the North of Ireland is as much a part of her nation as the South was a part of the United States during the Civil War; we, by arbitrarily considering the North as English soil, were guilty of diplomatic effrontry and, to be perfectly honest, of actual occupation of neutral territory.

How is it posible to consider the North as British in one light and then to insist that it is part of Eire in another thought. It will be remembered that in the closing of the border between the North and the South, a distinct separation was made to the effect that the North was Britain; yet in a conscription of manpower for the British Army it was deemed unallowable to draft those of the North since they were definitely citizens of Eire. Such inconsistency cannot be tolerated in the determination of international policy.

Sweden has done business with both parties in the strife and has retained all her rights of neutrality; Spain, who had help from the enemy in the darkest moment in her history, has been fighting a terrible battle against actual involvement in the present war. She, too, has sold goods indiscriminately to both sides.

We do not demand of these countries that they stop business relations with both sides; we demand that they stop selling to the enemy. This policy has been effective, for we have been able to frighten the weak and small and politically ill nations into our way of thinking.

The blanketing of their embassies in Britain is the latest move to prove our sincerity and the force of our-not-too-tacit threat. Military and political expediency may direct this action, but the pages of history will weigh its honesty.

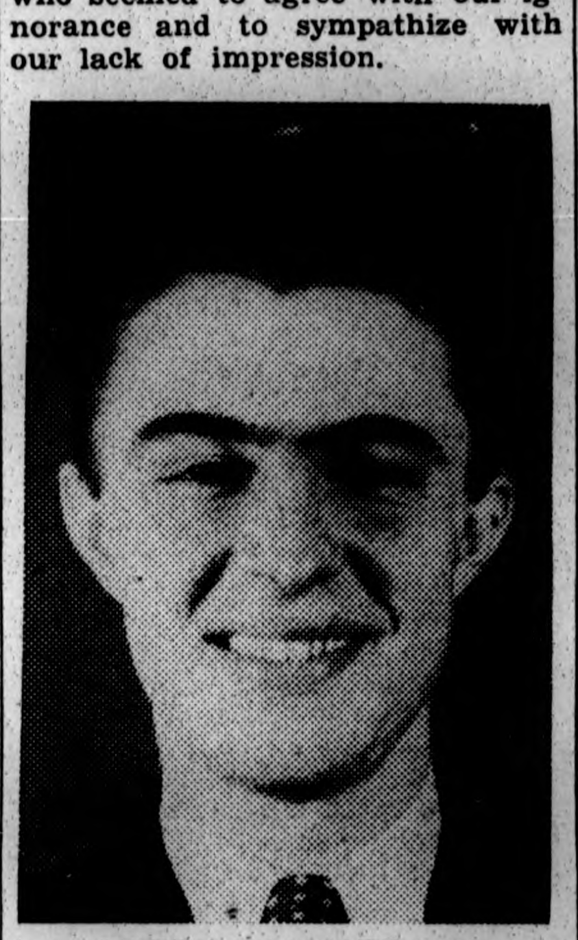
WHEN we first entered Vilalnova we were the unfortunate victim of adverse circumstances. This was in the Fall of 1941 and the science of argumentation was then a major sport. The heavy atmosphere of the pie-shop was often further burdened with weighty invectives, gross misstatements, and slightly adulterated quotations from the current books-of-the-month.

The subject under discussion when we first descended into the day-hop dungeon, was poetry. We made an easy target for the debaters because our regular freshman hat and pin, to say nothing of the bizarre effect the sophomore contingent had produced in our dress, made us more than a trifle outstanding. As we passed the crowd which sat and stood around one of the round, white tables, somebody grabbed us, and, presenting us to the members of the confab, asked us if, "I met this morning morning's minion . . ." meant anything to us. It did not, and we often reflect that it still does not. At any rate, we immediately found ourself with new friends, fellows who seemed to agree with our ignorance and to sympathize with our lack of impression.



THOMAS McFARLAND

There were various subdivisions of argument in the circle. There was the classic-clique, which comprised the exponents of the forms and figures of the past along with any present work which approached these. Tom McKimmey, who had every name in the world of sports on the tip of his tongue, was the current scholar of the drama. There was the quiet, soft-spoken Howie McCall, he of the fiery pen; there was the stolid, austere Paul McBryan, a mathematician with a flare for the arts; there was Tom Devine, poet and editor-to-be; there was the scholarly and conservative Bill Schubert; and, of course, there was the humorist and poet, Johnnie Fullam.

Tom Sullivan was the student of the group; Ward Guncheon, Big Deal Gallagher, and Bob Canfield were the businessmen. Tom Doyle was the editor of the Villanovan; Joe McCabe and Bob McIntyre represented the related arts of oratory and acting.

The "moderns," who were the instigators of the discussion at hand, enfolded the wan, slim "Orson" Welles, whose poetry read like a Greek treatise on Einstien, the long-haired "Omar of Main Line mead," Chris Kiefer, and the illustrious John Quinn, the poet-realist, the poet-modern, the poet-for-the-sake-of-being-a-poet.

The man who had trapped us, and who had entered us as exhibit "A," spoke with a Russian dialect that he had picked up somewhere in New Jersey. He was the erstwhile "Mayor of Austin Hall," the wit of the college, Frank Buckley, who gave not a warped hoot who won the argument, so long as opportunity was afforded to turn the blasting hose of biting sarcasm on all the members present. He happened to be, for the moment, on the side of the classic-lovers, and my ignorance seemed to carry his point.

The moderns protested that the man-in-the-street does not ordinarily ken any of the greats, so that his unfair opinion in the present case had nothing to do with the worth of the work he so blandly disregarded. In the ensuing scuffle for verbal predominance, we ventured our own weak opinion more than once, but we were al-

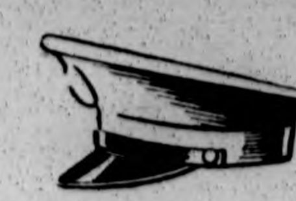
Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

WE'VE mentioned before about Dan Shields being over in Italy, but Fr. Grimes received another letter from him recently and we feel he deserves a little more honorable mention. At the time we didn't quite realize what he'd really been through. The fact is that he's been in the very thick of it and is one who understands the hell that war is. He was just back from the front lines when he wrote Father and he gave a very vivid description of what was going on around him. He was writing by the dim light of a candle, another soldier was trying to do the same but was having a hard time concentrating. He could hear the guns firing off in the distance while a group of men across the way were have a great time with a few bottles of wine. Dan says that the Germans are very good fighters and also very tricky and that it won't be any quick and easy job to make them give in.

It's too bad we can't mention all the fellows who are doing the real fighting, but, unfortunately, we don't know where most of them are. We have heard from Harry Binder, though, who is over in England. There is only one complaint that Harry has and it's really a tough one for him—he doesn't like the English women. Too bad, Harry, we all understand your plight.

It seems that a lot of our fellows have gone western on us. They've migrated to Texas. Gene Ruane is at the Army Air Forces Gunners School in Laredo . . . A/C Bob Roualt is an instructor at the U. S. Naval Air Station in Dallas . . . P. F. C. Thomas Gowen is attached to the 716th Tank Bn. doing clerical work at Camp Howze . . . A/C Thomas F. Burns has been transferred from Ellington Field to Childress . . . A/C Jim Donahue is now at San Marcus . . . and Norman Kordwitz has left ASTP at Columbia, Montana, for Camp Bowie, where he is attached to the Medical Unit, 667th F. A. B.

P. F. C. Rog Reardon came through with a letter from a hospital in New Caledonia. Rog included a very good description of their Chapel, with a picture to go with it. He said that the fellows made it themselves and it is so well put together that it makes them all feel like they are going to Mass in their own church back home.

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

Whether he be from Musty Gulch or Brooklyn, the Service Man has an eternally persistant cry wherever he may be—"There's no place like home." He may be stationed on the east side of heaven, but, since it isn't "home," he'll find something wrong with it. Philadelphia is hardly the worst place that a person could be stationed, but it receives more than its share of criticism. With apologies to Mr. Kipling, I should like to present a Barrack's Room Ballad" which it has prompted.

ODE TO PHILADELPHIA

Now, in Pennsy's miserable
clime,
Where I used to spend my time
In the service of "his highness"—
Franklin D.
I spent my weeks in hibernation,
For Saturday's consolation,
For that's the only time that I was free.

Into Philly I would go
Perhaps, to see a show,
But more likely to pursue a course more drastic.
For Philly is a town
Where everything shuts down
At 12 and then assumes a spirit quite monastic.

Considering its name
And its much-disputed fame,
One might think that it would be fraternal.
Perhaps one time it was,
And perhaps it changed because
The sailors moved in, in waves so plentiful.

To me it's not quite clear,
In fact, its' might queer
To find that people live here willingly.
How out of all creation;
O'er the length and breadth of the nation,
They chose to live in Philly, confuses me.

If Willie Penn could view
What they have done to You,
Since first he swiped you from the aborigines.
He'd rise right out of his grave
Storm City Hall with a bloody wave,
And have the Republicans down on their knees.

REPORTS FROM THE FRONTS

THIS weekend past saw quite a bit of action in all the sectors around the area dominated by Villanova College Personnel.

The largest group encounter occurred in the area now held by the troops quartered at Rosemont College. The actual maneuvers took place in the Rosemont College gymnasium and the camouflage experts must have worked overtime because no one vould have recognized the area as what it had been . . . the artificial stars and imitation water fountain were masterpieces of decoration.

Approximately 50 troops from Villanova and a goodly lot of outside partisans were closely engaged by the Rosemont girls . . . old masters themselves of evasive tactics . . . From neutral sources we have learned that the Commanding General (or Admiral if you so prefer) was that Master of the "Drill" Field Doc Hobson, local Dental talent from Bryn Mawr, Pa.

He was ably assisted by Jim Fitzgerald, Will Adams, Jim Conway, Tad Pula, Larry Pilot, Kevin O'Malley and their Comrades in Arms—Kay, Betty, Peggy, Ann, Nancy, and Pat respectively.

In Reserve waiting to be called to the front at any minute were Joe Dunigan, Jim Tucker, Joe Connolly, Ed Grestas, Tom McFarland, Jim Diamond, Don Wiegar, Tom Corbett and Bill Cavanaugh with their own little assistants act as guide, companion and entertainer all in one breath.

All in all the entire foray came off with great success for all concerned, due mainly to the efforts of Jerry Doner and his men, the Rosemont Juniors.

Another encounter that turned out to be very embarrassing for our side took place in the downtown Philadelphia theater of war. Walt Meserve, one of Villanova's Marine Trainees, was the major participant and a sergeant in the Marine Corps Woman's Reserve was the minor. Trainee Meserve had told this Sergeant that he expected to ship out to San Diego and went so far as to have a buddy of his, stationd there, mail a letter from there as proof that he was really in said station . . . All went well until Trainee Meserve encountered aforementioned Sgt. on Market St. last Saturday night . . . Their only conversation was a cold stare and a "Long way from San Diego, aren't you PRIVATE Meserve" by the Sergeant. Report complete as far as available information is concerned.

Boxing Tourney Successful WithOneDrawinNineBouts

Atkinson, Solis, Russell Score Brilliantly As Favorites Topple; No Wrestling Matches; Commander Speaks After Matches

The Fourteenth Annual Intramural Boxing Show roared to a thudding close in the field house last night to finish off what was perhaps the best tourney in many years. With nine bouts, an injured announcer, music by the Villanovans and oodles of celebrities present, the affair filled all the slam-bang requisites of a good boxing show.

Rushing right off in the first bout were two newcomers to the Main Line ring, A. S. Tony Menalis and A. S. Jack Lychak, who tugged and tore to a well deserved draw, the only draw of the evening. In the second setto were two old-timers, Frank Solis and Bill Lamb, both of Mendel Hall, who put on one of the best exhibitions of the night. Weighing in at 145 and with lots of experience showing in their scrap, they threw much and potent leather with Solis having the better of it for the distance. This marked his first tourney win having fought to a draw in the last show.

Pushed From Ring

"Reds" Brahm of Mendel Hall outpunched a heavier Tom Flynn of Alumni to take the decision and better his record of a draw in the last tourney. A return match between A. S. Tom Baxter of Mendel Hall and Pvt. John Smith of Austin produced the same decision of a Smith victory, only this time it was awarded thus, due to foul committed by Baxter in the first round. Paul Schmunk, a rangy pre-med from Alumni Hall traded equal leather with heavier Paul Reynolds right into the third round only to fade and lose a close decision. In bout five, Harold Dorwart outwrestled Jack Legget, even going so far as to push him out of the ring to score victory number one of his fight records.

Coach Fights

Joe McGovern returned gloriously on the victory trail from his Paradee defeat of last February, by outslugging Billie Burke of

Creator of Judo To Give Exhibition On Tues., May 2

The Yankee Doodle Service Club will return to this campus on Tuesday evening, May 2, at 8:00 P. M. presenting the American Combat team of 1944, under the supervision of Professor Harry Olsen, who is instructor of Close Combat and Jiu Jitsu at the Wm. Hermann Institute of Physical Culture here in Philadelphia.

Mr. Olsen is holder of the black belt which is one of the highest degrees in this art. He will wear this belt during the exhibition. Olsen, born in Denmark in the latter part of the nineteenth century, has made a close study of this art his whole life. After gathering all the knowledge he could in his own country, Mr. Olsen came to the United States in 1919. Upon arriving he studied all forms of American wrestling, boxing, and close combat work and then with the knowledge he had gained from the Merchant Mariners on his way over, he originated his own form of Jiu Jitsu, the American form which he called Judo. With the famous Col. Anthony Drexel Biddle now in the Marine Corps, Mr. Olson has taken over his classes in

Fedigan Takes Lead In Slow Football Start

Many Injuries Mar First Week of Intramural Football; Mendel Takes Second With a Tie

Fedigan Hall led by George Shammo and Milt Anderson took the lead in the Intramural Touch Football League, which got underway last Monday night, by winning three out of their four games. Mendel Hall is pressing hard on their heels as it took a tie in their last game of the week to relegate them to second place. Behind these league leaders come the leathernecks from Austin Hall while bringing up the rear is the defending champion, Alumni, a result of losing three contests.

The league got off to a very surprising start when Alumni with Joe Walters pitching strikes to pass receivers beat the highly touted Fedigan Club, 25-6, for their only win and Fedigan's only loss. In what actually can be termed a bloody battle, five of Alumni's starting team were injured to the extent that four of them were unable to play for the remainder of the week.

Koness Scores

That same night, Mendel took the Marines into camp by a 6-0 score. This game was also on the costly side for one of the teams, as Tom O'Connell, Marine Captain, sustained a broken leg as a result of a hard block. The contest was close throughout and the sailors scored only on a lucky break when the Marine safety man slipped while following Bill Koness out for a pass with the result that the gob smothered the ball for a touchdown.

Tuesday night saw Fedigan break into the win column most convincingly by trouncing the Marines 18-0. Milt Anderson, varsity end on last year's Wildcats, led Fedigan in the scoring as he caught a pass on the last play of the game for a touchdown and also scampered the length of the field behind beautiful blocking from his teammates to cross into the end zone unmolested.

Mendel also won their game from the injury riddled Pre-Med sextet with Bob Formaini heaving the oval to Johnny Beletti twice in the open for six-pointers.

Marines Win

Wednesday night, Mendel, which incidentally plays by decks, lost their only game to Fedigan by a 12-0 score. George Shammo and Milt Anderson again were the thorns in the sides of the Engineers with Bob Kane doing no little work towards the final outcome.

The Devil-Dogs won their only game of the week on this third evening when the Alumni team went down before their onslaught to the tune of 12-0. The Marines scored on the first play of the game after the kickoff and after

Doerfler Leaves For Sea Duty With Rest Of Old Crew

Sgt. Benjamin W. Doerfler, instructor of physical training and drill here at Villanova for the past nine months, left yesterday for a new post under commander E. J. Milner, USN, former commanding officer of the V-12 Unit, who was also transferred to a new station recently.

Sgt. Doerfler was one of the original members of the ship's company, arriving here the last week of June, 1943. Previous to duty on this campus he had served on a Navy cruiser which made two different trips between this country and Europe. In addition he had served on a ship which patroled the North Atlantic before the war. Returning to the states, he was stationed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard for about six months, where he worked in the Fourth Naval District Communications Office. After that he was sent to Quantico, Va., to train for taking a post in the V-12 Program, and after three weeks of intensive work was ordered to Villanova.

SGT. BEN DOERFLER

After arriving here, Sgt. Doerfler became one of the most respected as well as one of the best liked non-commissioned officers on the campus and the Villanovan wishes to extend to him, on behalf of the trainees, sincere good wishes and plenty of smooth sailing.

Phi Kap Bowling Loop Disbanded

It was announced last week by the secretary of the league, Angie Rosa, that the Saturday afternoon bowling sessions would no longer be continued. The reason for the dissolving of the fraternity league was laid in part to the fact that there was not enough spirit shown by the students and as a result no tenth team had been formed, making an incomplete league.

A second and more apparent reason was, that many of the civilian students who comprised a good number of the participating teams had been drafted, leaving an insufficient number to make competition worth while. This discontinuation is the first of its kind in the history of the frat and it will remain until the men for the formation of ten teams have been gathered. The need for the league is readily noted in the demand for intramurals, and it is thought that the league will be resumed in the near future.

Marine Nine to Play Here April 29 in First Game

Many Former Professional And Semi-Pro Players In Lineup; Donat, Basketball Star, To Start For Leathernecks

With a rainout and a victory tucked away, the Villanova baseball team will swing into its third game of the season on Saturday against the Navy Yard Marine nine. This will be the opening game for the Marines' collection of semi-pro and professional ball players.

Their squad has now been cut to fourteen men and the probable starting nine, many of whom have just returned from overseas duty, has been tentatively selected. The opening battery will have on the mound P. F. C. Marcus Hunger who relies on his experience in the Eastern State Twilight League to carry him. Before his entry into the Marines, he had a tryout with the Athletics. Backing him up will be a Class A League catcher, Cpl. Frankie Richard who formerly performed on the farm team of the Cleveland Indians.

No Second Sacker

Going around the circuit, there is found at first base, Cpl. Jack Nee who played professional ball in the Penn State League and is the property of the Cincinnati Reds, to be claimed after the war. At the keystone sack there is to be had a choice of a number of "would be other position" players, and this spot is yet to be filled. Cpl. Paul Donat, star of the Marines court five and former N.Y.U. player, plugs the gap between second and Sgt. Ike Koff at third base, a man who played ball here in Philadelphia for the Fisher A. C.

Giants Tryout

Roaming the pastures of the outfield will be the University of Penn's contribution to the Marines, Stew Carrol, who will shag all flies in right field. P.F.C. Ed Lingman, a player for Edgemont A. C., covers the wide open spaces of center field with his buddy, P.F.C. Jackie Beech, a semi-pro player who has a tryout with the New York Giants to his credit, patroling the left field.

Left to fill the second base spot or supplant the others at their positions are: Pat Barone, Ed Kollhoff, Mike Salamata, Bob Ridley,

Cadets Outhit Locals 3-1 In Season Opener

Three Errors Allow Two Runs to Go Across; Mueller Pitches Beautiful Game

Jupiter Pluvius was conspicuous by his absence as Villanova opened its 1944 baseball season at West Point on Saturday. "Jitterbug" Severance raised his blood pressure and added a few more grays hairs as Ted Geltz soft-balled his way to a 3 to 1 decision over Gordon Mueller in a brilliantly-played game.

Army jumped into the lead when Bob Chabot opened the last of the first with a single off Mueller's glove, went to third on a passed ball and scored when Jack Nance singled to center.

Two Errors

Evidence of things to come was shown in the third when the 'Cats stranded men on second and third. In the fourth the Cadets took advantage of Jack Ramsey's boot and parlayed it into their second run. Jack Nance was the recipient of the gift and promptly went to second on a passed ball. He stayed there while Janeczek and McConnell flied to right and center respectively then rode home when Bryan Leeper's long fly bounced off Eddie Burns' glove for a double.

The 'Cats answered this in the fifth by coming back and threatened to make the game a rout when Jim DiSalvo singled and immediately stole second. John Anderson sent an easy grounder to short and DiSalvo scored when Josey let it go through his legs. Ramsey took advantage of Geltz and walked. However, Mueller's attempt to bunt resulted in a pop fly and after Warner flied to center Anderson became over anxious and was thrown out attempting to go to third after the catch. Another threat failed to produce any increase in the 'Cat total when two men died on base in the sixth.

Double Play

The final Army run came across in the seventh when Dick Walterhouse singled to center and rode home on Capt. Jerry Capka's three-baser to right.

Geltz walked himself out of the game in the eighth by passing Warner, Fetting, Breen, and Burns in order. However, Ray Janeczek's snap-throw caught Fetting off first and averted disaster. LaBoon came in with bases packed and forced Johnny Siano to ground into a double-play to end all Villanova chances for the ballgame. Dick Breen was an unfortunate victim of circumstances when he picked a lull in the breeze to blast a drive on the left field fence with two men on base.

No Walks

Praise is to be given to the pitcher, Gordon Mueller, who went the route for the Wildcats and did not issue a walk. With the exception of the two hits he allowed in both the first and seventh innings, he had the Cadets in close check when men were on the bases.

With one game under their belts to bring out the flaws the locals should show a decided improvement when they meet the Marines from the Philadelphia Navy Yard in the home opener on Saturday, April 29.

Team Enters Eight Events In Penn Relays

The Villanova Wildcats will be well represented in the coming Penn Relay Carnival Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29 respectively. It has been announced by the coach of the team that the track team will be represented in eight events evenly divided over the two days of competition. As yet no definite choice of runners has been made for each event. A list of the men from whom the entries will be chosen has been made up and depending upon their showing in practice this week, a choice will be made.

In the one mile relay are. J. Anderson, P. Golden, J. Morris, B. Cox, C. Harrington, and D. Walker. The sprint medley has five men: L. Hunter, R. Beal, G. Rideout, D. Walker, J. Anderson. The two mile run has Cullen and Riemer. In the running broad jump are: Burt Cox and Bob Hoot. Javelin: J. Griffiths, W. Meserve, J. Michael and S. Ruby. In the discus throw are: J. Severson, P. Lalikos, P. Smith, and J. Evans. The shot put has: J. Siano, P. Lalikos, F. O'Connor, and J. Donohue. Finally in the shuttle hurdles are: L. Schmidt, G. Rideout, E. Cecil, and J. Killeles.

These events are spread out over the two days and the team is in better condition than it was in the Annapolis meet. A look at last year's team shows winners in quite a few events and it is probable that this team will equal that mark if not better it.

ways rendered silent by mere mention of G. M. Hopkins, S. J., the poet whose lines had meant so little to us.

The discussion finally came to an end, and we there and then formed a resolution to find and absorb available information concerning Hopkins, so that we would not be forced, whenever argument arose, to assume the vocal characteristics of a clam. It was our intent to know the poet, and this we proceeded to do. When we had finished our study we descended into the dank labyrinths of the pie-shop. We looked around for the debaters we had met in our early college days. They were nowhere to be found; they had all graduated.

Since the time of this disappointment, we have ventured, once in a while, to produce some effect with our knowledge of the poet, but have never been able to use it in any concrete way. Everyone either agrees with us from the start, or the mention of Hopkins leaves him as cold as a raspberry ice. This annoys us.

After being trained for duties with the V-12 during indoctrination at Columbia University, Lt. McClintock served with the Unit at Pennsylvania State College from June 29, 1943, until April 15, 1944. His chief duty was that of Educational Liaison Officer.

After a week at Villanova, Lt. McClintock issued the following statement:

"Since coming on board, I have been greatly impressed by the fine spirit of cooperation evident in the relations between the college and the navy. It will be my chief purpose to work with the Commanding Officer, ship's company, and the college officials in making this V-12 Unit second to none in the Fourth Naval District."

Assisting Mr. Olsen will be Alfred Gardner and Tony Gombino who have also been awarded the brown belt by Col. Biddle. Gardner was a runner-up in one of the Golden Gloves tournaments. Also present will be George Eberley welter-weight champion of South Jersey.

Demonstrating various types of Judo arts including protection against enemy guns, knives and clubs will be Edward Dubest, Francis Jones, and Al Untiss.

that, Alumni's only threat was staved off and the final outcome unchanged.

The last night of games, Thursday, saw Fedigan avenge their only defeat when they handed Alumni an 18-0 shellacking. With the omnipresent Anderson on the sidelines with a stiff leg, Shammo took over and ran rings around his former teammates to hand them their third straight loss.

Mendel slipped out of a first place tie with the Fedigans when the gyrenes held them to a 0-0 tie. The ball moved up and down the field the whole game with, first the leathernecks and then the swab-jockies threatening. However neither had that one touchdown play in their repertoire that evening and the contest ended in a tie.

Since it is the initial fracas for the Marines, very little can be said as to the potency of this aggregation but such an array of material should produce a better than average ball club. and thus build up their own institutional norms.

When and where are these examinations administered?

These Subject Matter Examinations are administered to individual members of the Armed Services upon request to the Armed Forces Institute at Madison, Wisconsin, or to one of the overseas centers of the Institute. They are forwarded through military channels to the local Commanding Officer of the person to be examined and are administered under military auspices. Examinations are then returned for grading to the Armed Forces Institute.

How will the amount of credit be determined?

This will be determined by the individual institutions in accordance with its own standards and procedures. Records furnished by the Armed Forces Institute, including such grades as may be obtained on Subject Matter Examinations, are for the information and guidance of the individual institution. Assignment of credit value and all judgments as to the acceptability of the work done pertain to the individual institution.

In the semi-final round, two heavyweight leather slingers, John Atkinson, husky sailor and Jim Tucker representing the Marines, gave a beautiful exhibition, with Atkinson's better condition showing to good advantage and enabling him to outpoint Tucker and win a good fight.

In the windup bout, whirlwind Roger Lattanza met a worthy opponent in the fighting coach Bill Russell who in a cool, methodical manner, outpointed him in a very close fight. Although Roger threw the more leather, it was Russell's sure blows that won for him the fight.

PKP Fraternity Signs Leo Zollo For June Dance

Band, Price And Name Set At Recent Meeting; Tickets Available Soon

Plans for the dance to be held on June 10 by Phi Kappa Pi campus engineering fraternity, began to take definite form last week as Co-chairmen James O'Brien and Angelo Rosa reported progress by all committees.

Most outstanding among the decisions made was the selection of Leo Zollo's orchestra to provide music for the evening. This choice was consistent with the decision of the fraternity to obtain the best available among local talent.

Named June Hop

At the same time, the co-chairmen announced that, after consultation with the publicity and ticket committees, they had determined a name for the dance and a price for the tickets.

Having abandoned their search for an unusual name for the affair—a search which lead to such suggestions as the "Slide Rule Stomp" from some of the more enthusiastically technical minded of the members — they named it the June Hop.

Ticket price was set at the moderate fee of $1.75, to which must be added $.35 tax. Co-chairmen Martin Roddy A. S. and Frank O'Connor A. S. and their co-workers on the ticket committee—delayed thus far by by lack of information on band, name, and price expect to have tickets printed and placed on sale in about a week.

Survey Musical Field

The band committee, which consists of Pvt. Ray Kasper, Bob Cramer, A. S., and Joe Heim, A. S., in making their report, stated that they had contacted numerous bands in the vicinity in an effort to find one whose ability and price would meet the moderate requirements of the forthcoming dance.

Exhorbitant prices for mediocre ability seemed to be the order of the day until finally they came in touch with the agent for Zollo's band. Fortunately, they had an open date on the evening of the dance; and a workable agreement was reached.

Popular In Service

The choice seems to be a happy one, since Zollo has already proved himself quite popular with the servicemen in this area. Both last year and this year, his band has been generously received at the Labor Plaza in downtown Philadelphia, one of the most popular service canteens in operation anywhere in the country last summer.

In regard to decorations, little has yet been decided. The name of the dance leaves room for wide leeway in making this choice. The members of the decorations committee expect to hold meetings in the near future, and they will soon decide upon a motif around which to plan their decorating.

At the joint meeting of the committees held in room 214 Mendel last Thursday, Rosa and O'Brien urged all to work in close harmony in order to make the endeavor a success.

We Need Your Cooperation

If this copy of the Villanovan is arriving at your home each week addressed to your husband, son, or brother who is in the service, won't you please forward it to him as first class mail. If he is stationed in this country and does not receive the paper, please send us his address so that he may placed on our mailing list. Your cooperation in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Schubert Named Managing Editor Of School Paper

During the past week, an addition to the editorial staff of the Villanovan was effected when Thomas Schubert, A.S., an experienced newspaper man, returned to his former position with the school paper as Managing Editor.

Schubert, a Junior Mechanical Engineer, gained his experience while working on the staffs of both high school and college papers, having held the post of College Editor of the Villanovan during his second year here.

THOMAS SCHUBERT, A.S.

Coming to Villanova on a scholarship from Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia, Schubert enrolled in the Liberal Arts School. He remained in this curriculum for only one year, then switched to the Engineering School.

Schubert is also active in many other college functions. At present he is Treasurer of Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, and a member of the College branch of the A.S.M.E. He was a member of the staff of the Belle Air in his first year here.

Warwick Hotel Site of Alumni Reunion Banquet

Final arrangements have been made by the Alumni Reunion Committee for a reunion banquet to be held at the Warwick Hotel in Philadelphia, on June 6, at 6:30 P. M.

James Carr, of the class of 1934, of Somers Point, New Jersey, representing the 10 year class, will act as toastmaster; and John T. Coan, of Swampscott, Massachusetts, representing the Silver Jubilee Class, will be the principal speaker.

This affair is to take the place of the regular two-day Alumni Reunion which was formerly held on the campus but was discontinued last year due to war-time conditions and the inauguration of the V-12 Program at Villanova.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible through the Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A., Alumni Secretary. The price of the reservation is $3.75.

Regular Meeting Of ASME Set For Thurs.

The Villanova student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will hold a meeting on Thursday, May 18, at 6:45 in Room 215 Mendel Hall. Two interesting motion pictures will be shown, "The Magic of Steam", and "The Surface Condenser."

The first picture presents some aspects of the operation of the steam turbine while the second gives the details of construction and operation of the surface condenser. All members are urged to attend, and interested non-members will be welcome. The May issue of "Mechanical Engineering" will be distributed at the meeting.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The A.I.E.E. trip to the Franklin Institute on Thursday May 18, has been postponed one week. Plans for this trip will be discussed at a meeting of the college branch this week. The time and place of this meeting will be posted on the main bulletin board. All underclassmen desiring to make this trip should give their names at this meeting so that all arrangements in regard to classes can be made.

After the business of the meeting, a movie entitled "A Modern Zeus," treating of the causes and effects of lightning, will be shown. A talk on the same general topics by James O'Brien, President of the Villanova Branch, will be heard.

Phi Kappa Pi will hold a regular business meeting in Mendel Hall Ampitheatre this Friday evening at 7:00. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss further plans for the dance.

At the same time, President McGuinn has announced, membership cards will be distributed to those who have not yet obtained them. A motion picture will also be shown, but the nature of the film is not yet definitely known. There will either be a baseball film depicting the 1942 World Series, or a technical film borrowed from the A.S.M.E. describing aircraft combustion engines, as developed by Wright.

All members of the fraternity are urged to attend promptly.

Villanova Salts

By JACK DEMPSEY, A.S.

First man to be interviewed in this issue is Michael Krak, an Alumni boy for the past six months. It is rather appropriate that Mike be given "top billing" today, since his service record certainly rates high in this league.

After completing his "boots" at Great Lakes, Seaman Krak was sent to Signal School at Butler University for three months. From there Mike went to Norfolk, but didn't get to see much of the town, since within a week he was courting the mermaids (Atlantic version.)

As signalman aboard a naval transport, Mike saw his share of the war—and a little more. He saw Africa at its worst and managed to be present when the Sicilian campaign got under way.

Mike clearly remembers steaming into Palermo Harbor one day and being thoroughly surprised by some well-hidden German troops. The biggest shock, of his service career however, came when a "friendly Spitfire" started to bomb his ship. Ever since that unforgettable moment, Mike has been a firm believer in perfect aircraft identification.

Next in line comes Paul Schmunk, a recent addition to Company C. Paul is especially worthy of note in that he is one of the few men to have entered the regular Navy with a rating.

Because of experience gained in a ship-yard, Paul entered with the rate of S.F. 3/c. After training at Newport for two months, he was transferred to Lido Beach, L. I., and almost immediately placed on a ship.

Paul next touched English soil—that of Liverpool to be exact. A few days later he was in Londonderry, North Ireland. After spending a year at that station, Paul receieved his orders to report here March 1.

The next two men to be acclaimed have careers so similar that they would put most twins to shame. The men in question are C. Lawson Brenner, a Fediganite, and Richard A. Luley, a resident of Mendel Hall.

Except for their places of birth—"Blackie" Lawson is from New Jersey, while Luley hails from Indiana and their subsequent schooling, the two have lives that are almost identical. Both enlisted at the same time, and were assigned to the same boot camp,

Delegates of 131 Colleges Attend Navy Conference

President, Fr. McQuade And Lt. Comdr. Hannah Represent Villanova; Fr. Stanford Named Chairman Of New Committee; Admiral Jacobs Speaks

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the College, Lt. Comdr. Edward Hannah, USNR, Commanding Officer of the V-12 Unit, and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Assistant to the President, represented Villanova College and its V-12 Unit at a two-day conference of representatives of the 131 Colleges and Universities throughout the country now engaged in the V-12 Program held on Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13 at Columbia University.

An over-all reduction of approximately 25 per cent in the enrollment of 70,000 students under the Navy's V-12 Program on November 1 was announced at the Saturday meeting by Vice Admiral Randall Jacobs, Chief of Naval Personnel. It is important that it be understood that this reduction in V-12 personnel has reference only to the number of incoming trainees and will not affect the number of students now in training under the Program.

New Committee Formed

Speaking to 200 representatives of educational institutions, including many Unit Commanders and all District Commanders, at the opening of the conference, Admiral Jacobs assured them that present quotas of V-12 students would be maintained during the July 1-Nov. 1 term.

At a dinner meeting held Saturday evening, Admiral Jacobs named a committee of three to study into the possibilities of some type of continuing organization for the 131 Navy V-12 Colleges and to make appropriate recommendations. Chairman of the committee is Fr. Stanford, President of Villanova. Assisting him are President H. E. Heald of Illinois Institute of Technology and President E. H. Wilkins of Oberlin College in Ohio.

Program to Continue

Admiral Jacobs pointed out that by July 1, 1944, the Program will have delivered to Reserve Midshipmen's Schools, Supply Corps Schools, and Marine Officer Candidates' Schools more than 23,000 qualified officer candidates. He added that "when the over-all requirements of the Navy decreases, the V-12 Program must be curtailed."

"All I can say at this time is that the V-12 program will continue as long as the Navy needs additional young officers to fight the war," he declared. "The size of the program will depend on the magnitude of the need." However he stated that the size of a unit would not be reduced below a minimum of approximately 250 students necessary for smooth operation.

More Fleet Men

Admiral Jacobs reported an increase in officer candidates who have seen active service. "We are bringing back hundreds of promising enlisted men from the Mediterranean, the Atlantic and the Pacific to offer them the training you provide," he told the educators. He estimated that approximately 20,000 men had become V-12 students.

"We are bringing them back because we consider them of more value to the Navy as officer candidates in training on shore than as enlisted men in combat at sea," the Admiral said. He warned against questioning the patriotism of the trainees confined to schools. "They are serving where the Navy needs them most," he asserted. He also praised the effective work of the V-12 program and predicted that it "will affect American education for a long time to come."

Lt. Roach Arrives As New Medical Officer; Replaces Lt. Norton

Last Saturday, a new medical officer arrived on the campus to relieve Lt. Robert F. Norton, U.S.N.R. (M. C.), who will report soon to the Naval Hospital for treatment. Lt. (Jg.) Robert B. Roach, U.S.N.R. is the new replacement.

Lt. Roach received his medical training at nearby Temple University, after completing pre-medical studies at Wake Forrest. Previous service with the navy includes 10 months of duty at the Naval Training Station in Norfolk, Virginia, and four months at Cape May, New Jersey.

Lt Norton, the retiring medical officer, has only been with the unit a short time.

The Press Hoax

THE newspaper is a wonderful vehicle of information. The man-in-the-street, the ordinary citizen, finds the newspaper a means to some sort of education. The printed line broadens his scope of the things of state and of international politics. It also gives him an attitude of distrust towards the demi-gods of the age.

He knows, for example, that movie stars, though honorable and heroic on the silver screen, are not necessarily poetic and romantic characters in every day life. He knows, too, that the statesman is subject to the same temptations as he is, and that the politician is liable to the siren wail of greed.

Perhaps the most important fact the fellow of the rank-and-file gains from the perusal of the modern newspaper is that newspapers sometimes lie, sometimes print half-truths, and sometimes twist the truth itself into an unrecognizable monstrosity of persuasion.

The virtue of the journalist is twofold. Firstly, he must tell the truth; secondly, he must not tell truths the transfer of which will instill in the minds of readers a yearning for evil. To say that a man was publicly accused of criminal attack is possibly without stain or sensationalism or of literary malpractice. To go into the lewd details of the criminal's indiscretion, and to print these rotten facts across the pages of the daily newspaper, is to contribute to public indecency, to public crime, to public immorality.

Just as the most profound philosophies are based upon simple axioms, so is that which should guide the journalist. It goes without saying that the news-gleaner of the populace should personally be convinced of the absolute worth of the truth. If he does not think truth constitutes virtuous intent, he is in the wrong profession.

But, then, he has much to undergo in the daily carrying out of his life's work. He must lean to the political side of him who owns the paper, or find a new job. He must write up the stories that are assigned to him, or try to break the habit of eating thrice daily. He must base his code of journalistic morals on the things his employer believes in and lives by, or face the fact of being banned from the newspaper game entirely, and of being black-balled in every reporters' club in the nation.

It can be said truthfully, although one cannot find it printed in any other sheet save an uninhibited newspaper, that the present plight of the popular-writing art can be traced to the owners of daily newspapers. The owners frame the policies of the newspapers;; the owners, therefore ,are responsible for their loose journalistic ethics, for their prejudices, for their scandals, for their lies.

Single inaccuracies or lone errors are excusable; even these infrequent misstatements call for a public reaction. When an error is consistent in the policy of a paper, one cannot but believe that it constitutes an intentional lie. There are many blatant examples of such deceptions of the public. Space does not permit the enumeration of all the fallacies foisted upon the public.

A mild amount of research will reward the scholar with an unvarnished view of forgotten truths.

—THOMAS McFARLAND

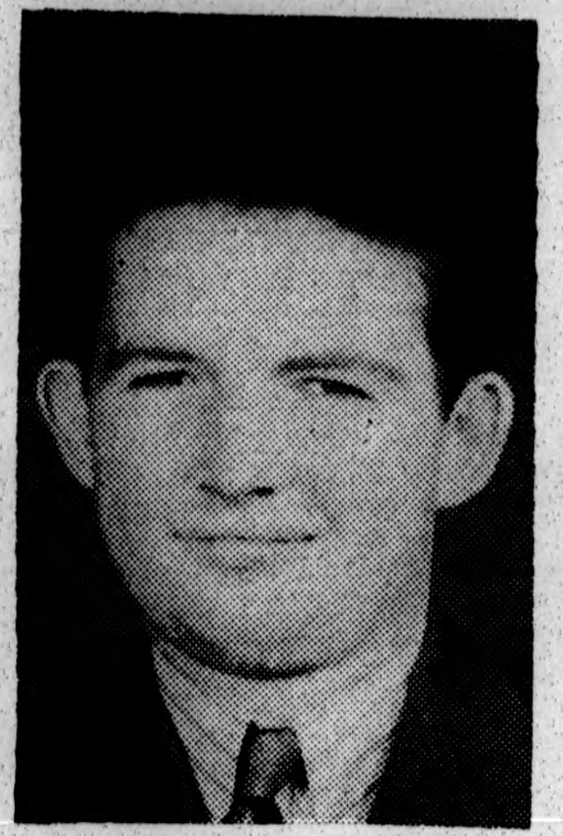
CHARLES THOMAS BOYD, Jr., was born in Boston, Massachusetts, on October 23, 1923. Soon after this great occasion in the Boyd clan his family moved to Everett, Mass., which is Charlie's present address. Here young Mr. Boyd attended St. Joseph's Grammar School and Everett High School.

The date of Charlie's arrival on the campus gives him the doubtful distinction of being one of the oldest living Villanovans still in captivity. He entered the Commerce and Finance School in September of 1940, and has been putting in time as a Marketing major there ever since.



CHARLES BOYD

But not by studying alone hath Charles earned the right to be called a Villanovan. He has been a member of the Spanish Club and Delta Pi Epsilon, commerce school fraternity. In connection with the latter organization, he served on the refreshment committee of the Financiers' Frolic last Saturday night.

An active sports enthusiast, he played with the 150 lb. football team in his sophomore and junior years, and has been a constant participant in intramural league softball.

A B.S. degree in Economics in June will end Charlie's college career, and there the extent of his future planning ends. His motto seems to be to live for the present and let "nature take its course."

CO-STARRED with Boyd this week is another four-year inmate, John A. Malone. Born in Lancaster, Pa., on January 21, 1923, John graced that noble town with his presence continuously until Lancaster's loss became Villanova's gain (or sumth'n.) in September, 1940.

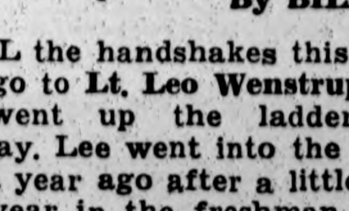
JOHN A. MALONE

A professed dilettante, Malone "dabbled" in football, track, and dramatics at Lancaster Catholic High School. His roommate says that he has been dabbling in all sorts of things ever since; but since we coudn't get any statement from the principal, we'll have to let that go.

Since coming here, Paddy has found that the study of chemical engineering has taken up the major portion of his dabbling time, and has confined his extra-curricular activities to Phi Kappa Pi—the engineering fraternity.

Concerning his future, Malone is no more and no less certain than all the other young men of today. He will graduate in June, is at present being given a lot of consideration by his draft board, and believes he may follow their advice that the army is a fine place to begin a chemical career.

Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

ALL the handshakes this week go to Lt. Leo Wenstrup who went up the ladder the hard way. Lee went into the Army about a year ago after a little over a half-year in the freshman class He became a non-flying cadet in the Army Air Forces and was sent to Yale for schooling; soon after, he went to OCS and received his bars. At present, he is stationed at Mitchell Field, Long Island.

If anything did our hearts good, it was seeing Jack McManus with the gold stripe on his sleeve. If you can remember 'way back to last semester, Jack was Mendel's Company Commander, with a hundred and one other activities to go along with it. Anyway, everyone is glad he made it, for he was one swell fellow we knew would come through. Jack is heading for Davisville, R. I., where, with his commission as a Civil Engineer, he will join the Seabees. We understand that Lou Iademarco is going there also.

Some of our Navy Air Corps boys are really on their way to the top; namely Harry Horan, George Burns, and Bill Lowney. They are all at Glenview, Ill., after having finished up at Peru. Good flying, guys!

News from the Mahoney boys:—Joe is at Hamilton College studying languages for the Army Intelligence Service, while Bill, formerly Rollins College's ASTP, is in the Infantry.

From the west coast comes word that our ex-Villanova Marines are running into one another now and then. Cp'l Jack Gallagher is stationed out there with his wife, who was at one time a Rosemont lass. Lt. "Jake" Mauch is quite a regular frequenter of Camp Elliot's officer club, where, incidently, he runs into the kid brother every so often. Lt. Jack McMahon met Lt. Ed Kasky in one of the local spots near Camp Pendleton, where he is stationed.

After much work on Tom, we found out that Lt. Bill Schubert is over in England in the Armored Engineers.

Forgot to mention before that that was Ensign "Doc" Brennan who was with Jack McManus the other day. He is also in the Civil Engineer Corps and is going with the Seabees.

This is about the last line, anyway, so I might just as well fill it up the best way I can.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

Dear Joe,

Thank you for the lovely Mother's Day present. I think it is the nicest slip that I have received for a long time. You must tell me where you got it—I have never before seen any just that shade or that kind of material. The only mark that I could find on it was G.I.—USMCWR. Isn't it odd that some company should have "USMC" in its code?

By the way, son, are you still seeing that girl-marine supply sergeant that you told me about. I think that your taking her out to boost her morale was a fine thing to do. I am proud of you.

Your cousin Wilbur arrived home the other day. He just finished Midshipman School, you know, and he is strutting around with his gold stripe like the admiral. Aunt Min and Uncle Harry are a little confused. It seems that Wilbur talks a new language and has a new name for everything. I am afraid that he is a little "over-indoctrinated."

We gave him a little party down town last night and while we were waiting for dad a slightly inebriated lady, who was leaving the hotel, said to him, "Get me a cab."

Wilbur became highly indignant, and he replied, "Madam, I'll have you know that I'm an Ensign in the navy."

"O.K., okay," the lady retorted, "then call me a rowboat."

You know that you always get a bad chest cold about this time of the year, and I know that you will he laid up for a week if you do not do something for it. At the first sign of sniffles you should go to bed that evening about 8:30 after drinking hot lemonade, and get up at ten the next morning.

Don't do any sort of physical exertion and keep out of drafts. Lie down and rest during the day at any time that you are fatigued. I will send a note to the man in charge so that he will excuse you from those silly drills and calisthenics.

I had your laundry box all packed today but had room left for either those text books you asked for or the cake and candy that I promised you. I supposed that you get plenty of cake and candy, and that you needed the books . . . so I sent them. Was that all right?

Haven't the Rosemont girls given you a tumble yet? From what you told me about them I gather that they might just be lonesome . . . why don't you give them a break?

All our love, Mom.

After Hours

By LeRoy Collegeman

HEARD at the Financier's Frolic last Sat. eve.: "Ah for an air-conditioned field house," "Ah for our white uniforms," the rains came, "AH" . . . Dispensing with the usual drivel about where and when the above mentioned affair took place, we will launch ourselves right into the sordid or solid (depending upon whether you had a blind date or not) details of said affair.

The sponsors of this affair should be complimented upon the succe$$ of the dance despite the obvious disinterest shown by far too many Villanova students. (That was a rebuke.) Also on the list for compliments should be both groups of music makers, the hat-check boys and last but not least all the C and F'ers who did all the leg work in selling the tickets.

The dance was very, very Mary for at least three of the fellows that we heard about . . . present and enjoying themselves with their Marys were Johnny May, Jim Corrigan and Bill Farrell (yep it's still the same Mary) . . . Carlos Cuadros had a date who hailed from way up in Buffalo and he claimed that even the storm coudn't spoil his evening. Speaking of imported peaches, we were, or didn't you get it, Tom Hitchell had his own little Flo in for the dance all the way from Bayonne . . . 'twas worth it we'd say after seeing the young lady.

Home talent was featured at one point during the evening when Brad Johnson sang "GI Jive" with the Johnny Warrington aggregation, then to make things cozy Len Mayfair dedicated "happy birthday" to Tom Boyle and a young lady, name of Rosemary, we think.

To give the boys in the bands a rest that none of the dancers got due to the continuous music the two bands took half hours shifts and it may be said that the arrangement worked out very nicely, too.

More out of town news; or is Yeadon out of town, well any way Paddy Malone, Frank Perna and Joe Pesce were featuring three very lovely young ladies from that locality . . . Bill Koness and Bob Leahy were together (don't get the wrong idea, read on) with two Misses, from Wash., D. C. Needless to say that Bob's hit (from hit to Miss in one line) was none other than Ann of Trinity College . . .

Now that we have fulfilled our duty to our public. . . good night!

Locals Romp To Third Straight Over Mules, 11-3

Lafferty And Greeley Share Honors In Pitching Victory; Burns And Siano Make Marks

Villanova won its third straight game and handed Muhlenberg its second straight loss by an 11-3 score behind the six-hit pitching of "Red" Lafferty and Marty Greeley. "Red" went six innings and allowed five hits good for one run before his arm gave out. Marty was the victim at fielding and saw the one hit he allowed turned into two enemy runs. "Kayo" Marks was touched for thirteen hits and the five errors by his mates plus "Two outitis" nullified his six strikeouts.

Al Sondheimer, Jim DiSalvo, and Dick Breen paced the attack with three hits apiece. Eddie Burns continued his streak and has now hit safely in all four games. Breen knocked in three runs but John Siano took the lead in this department by chasing one man over to give him a total of eight for the season to date.

Warner Brilliant

. . The fielding gems of the day were evenly divided. Larry Ogden tried to plow up a section of centerfield when he made a diving barehand stab of Breen's liner but dropped the ball when he hit the ground. "Squeek" Warner was more successful when he ran into short left to knockdown Marks' grounder and throw him out by two steps.

Muhlenberg scored first when McGraw opened the second with a single to left. Hill popped to Fetting but Baietti followed with another single and Sondheimer threw McGraw out when he tried to make third. Egli blasted a double to left and Baietti scored easily. Their final runs came in the eighth on a walk to LaCoe, Ramsey's error on Marks' roller, Ogden's roller to the mound that Greeley threw to third in a vain attempt at a force-out. Schroeter's single and an infield out sent the runs over the plate.

Four In Third

The 'Cats also started in the second when Burns reached first by striking out at a wild pitch. Breen sent him to second with a single and two infield outs completed the power necessary to move him over the plate. Lafferty, Sondheimer and DiSalvo opened the third with singles, then, after two were out, Breen sent a low liner to right-center that Ogden failed to hold and two runs came over. Then DiSalvo scored on the delayed half of a double steal and Breen scored the fourth run of the inning when Egli booted Fetting's grounder. The "Two outitis" continued in the fourth when Sondheimer singled to left, DiSalvo sent a perfect hit-and-run single through the hole into right and then broke for second, Al was trapped off third but scored when Baietti dropped the ball. Jim went to third on the play and crossed the plate on Schroeder's errors. The disease continued in the fifth when a walk, singles by Siano and DiSalvo, Sondheimer's double, and a fielders choice produced three more 'Cat runs. The final local run came in the eighth when Warner walked, moved to third on Burns' double, and home on Breen's single.

In their last three games the Wildcats have collected 37 hits good for 43 bases and 34 runs. Enemy pitchers have contributed 22 bases on balls, 11 wild pitches, and hit 4 batters ,while their fielders have made 12 errors. Over the same span the opposition has garnered 24 hits good for 31 bases and 10 runs. The local pitchers have allowed 14 walks and 3 wild pitchers and there have been 8 miscues in the field.

Residents Win Three To Take League Lead

The Students, by defeating Mendel, Alumni, and the Marines' A team on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings of last week by scores of 11-4, 10-5, and 15-9 respectively, pulled out in front of the Intramural Softball League which opened on Monday night, May 8. Mendel claimed second place by virtue of 7-5 and 8-7 decisions over the Marines A team and Alumni's Pill Tossers after their initial setback at the hands of the league leaders. These same two losers are tied behind the Engineers for third place as a result of wins over Fedigan and Leathernecks B team while the B Gyrenes rest in fifth spot with a record of one win in three games and Fedigan brings up the rear with a .000 average after three contests.

Mendel Falls

The opening night of the league, the Students got off to their good start at the expense of the Engineers from Mendel by an 11-4 victoryy. After a scoreless first inning, both Pat Reagan and Charlie Mamzic hit singles with a flyout sandwiched between and then Helwig drove a long ball into right field scoring three runs. The Mendelites got two of these back in their half of the inning when after Pula walked and Wagner smacked a single to left field, they pulled a double steal which put men on second and third. Haarhaus proceeded to place a single to the right of the second baseman which sent both runners across the plate.

Starting off the third canto, Jack Quinn got on first on an error and scurried home after Lou Maciouch hit a ball to deep center which had "four bagger" written all over it. Mendel came back with 2 runs in their half of the inning on a base-on-balls, and error, and a single.

After this it was all over for Mendel. The Students came to bat and they proceeded to do just that as they pounded the Engineer's pitchers for six more runs in the next two innings to make the game a walkaway.

This same night The Marines B team fell victims to the Pre-Meds from Alumni Hall, 10-3. Alumni scored 4 in their first time at the plate and then continued to pour it on. In the fifth inning of the game, Tom Flynn poled a round tripper to center field with one man for the Pillmen.

Two Home Runs

Strangely enough, their fellow Marines defeated Fedigan by the same score, 10-3. High man in the contest was Frank Eye who poled two long home runs past the center fielder to lead his mates to their first victory.

Wednesday night the B Marines won their only contest of the week against Fedigan by a 7-5 score. Neither team was able to score in the opening inning but Fedigan took a 4-0 lead in the second on 4 singles, 2 walks and 2 errors. In the fourth inning 3 Leathernecks crossed the plate, and in the fifth, 4 more to sew up the tilt for the Devil Dogs.

Mendel won its first game on that night by taking the Marines A ten into camp, 7-5. Scoring once in the first, second and fourth inning and with a 4 run splurge in the third, the Mendelites were never headed and managed to stave off a last inning rally which netted the Leathernecks 4 of their 5 runs.

Fedigan Loses

The Students won their second on Wednesday by downing Alumni, 10-5. Losing 3-0 going into the second half of the third inning, they combined a walk, a hit, and two errors to tie up the game. Their next time at bat, they again scored three men; this time on walk, two hits and an error. Alumni came back in their half of the fifth with two runs but the Students quenched any hopes by scoring 4 more in their half of the inning.

Fedigan lengthened their losing streak to three during the next evening's games as they fell victims to the slants of Alumni's Paul Smith and the hitting of his teammates. Going into the second session with a one run lead, the Fediganites lost it when the Alumnites drove in their pitcher to tie it up. Fedigan again scored one in the third but this time Alumni came back with two, and then six more in the fourth to put the game in the provebial bag.

Two Returning Veterans Head Wartime Version Of Greyhounds Diamond Team; New Coaches For Team With Reitz Drafted

Another weekend finds the baseball team staying home, this time to meet the Greyhounds from Loyola College in Baltimore. This game will mark the first and only game of the season with a non-service outfit. Having no military unit on the campus they will field an all civilian team.

Although their prospects are none to bright they boast the return of two veterans from last year's championship team, plus approximately twenty other ready and willing candidates. The team this year will run without the services of their former coach Lefty Reitz, who was recently drafted. Lefty is an alumnus of Villanova who played varsity basketball and baseball here. Coaching in his place will be two former Greyhounds, Gabe Poggi and Chuck Burke.

Two Holdovers

Returning men from last years team are Ed McGarry and Tim Parr. Parr lines up as their number one pitcher and is expected to carry the main burden of the mound staff. In McGarry is found a power house batter who had a .340 average in championship play last year.

Infield positions have been filled already with Knobby Harris at first, Ed McGarry at his accustomed position at the keystone sack and Skinny Simms at shortstop. Joe Bronushas will hold down third base. The opening battery will have Parr on the mound with Charlie Krause backing him up in the catchers spot.

A final set outfield has not yet been decided on. Tentatively they are filled by Lou Franz in left field with Frank Goldsmith roaming the spaces of center. John Boone has been the logical choice for the right field position. On the bench will be Ed Hart, Sal Cammarara and Frank Cashen.

This game is to be played here at the stadium field and is the only one of the season with the Greyhounds.

Marine Corporal Replaces Sgt. Doerfler In One Of Ship's Company Changes

Replacing Sgt. Ben Dorfler as Physical Fitness and Drill Instructor is Corporal Eugene "Mike" Breem of the United States Marine Corps.

Corporal Breen was born in North Andover, Mass., on July 9, 1914. He attended Lawrence High School where he took a pre-college course. Following graduation Breem went to Hampton Beach where, for a period of eleven years, he was manager of a restaurant.

Soon after the year 1943 had been acclaimed as the New Year, Mike went into the United States Army.

CORPORAL MIKE BREEM

He was sent to Fort McClelland, Alabama, and assigned to duty as a drill instructor. The same year on May 31, he was discharged from the army in order to enlist in the Marine Corps.

As is the fate of all who wish to be Marines, Mike was sent to Parris Island to take his "boot" training. After his basic training was finished he was shipped to Newport, Rhode Island, and attached to a guard unit there.

Two weeks ago the Corporal was ordered to report to Villanova to assist Ensign Maniaci.

Scrimmage Scheduled

The long and arduous weeks of spring practice will draw to a close tomorrow when Coach Jordan Olivar runs the team through an intersquad scrimmage scrimmage to discover their contact flaws. The game will be played between two teams designated as the Blue and the Red.

A scrimmage scheduled with Penn last week was called off because as yet the Quaker team is not ready for contact work.

Swim Meet Set For Friday Night

With the coming of the warm weather season many students have been attracted by the lure of the refreshing coolness of the swimming pool. In view of this fact it seems most logical that a swim tourney should be held at this time. The result—an Intra-mural Swim Meet will be held this Friday night, May 19, at the Field House. The meet will probably last from 8:00 P. M. till 10:00 P. M.

Most of the participants this semester are in excellent condition partly due to the fact that they were excused from regular P.T. classes provided they reported for swimming that afternoon. Another contributing factor is the length of time during which this practice was permissable. Also the weather conditions promise to be ideal for such a meet. In view of all these advantages, most of the veteran participants should better their time, thus contributing to a better and greater meet. This semesters tourney promises to be the best seen at the Field House in some time.

Daly Favorite

The organizer of the swim meet in Fedigan Hall is Charley Daly, who was Inter-scholastic Champion of Maryland and who has won every event he has entered at Villanova. According to latest reports, Charley has a red-hot team in the making. Back stroke artist for Fedigan will probably be Joe Ringlestein. Also splashing for Fedigan will be fleetman Charles Brenner who will swim the 50 yd. freestyle for the Fediganites.

Great Lakes. Both boys next found themselves at Aviation Machinist Mates' school at Dearborn, Michigan. From there they were sent to advanced training at Norfolk and finally to Aero Free-Gunnery School at Terminal Island, California.

When they were ready to be shippped out, "Blackie" and Dick were lucky enough to draw the same duty; and so they soon found themselves—still as close as Mike and Pat—at Banika in the Russell Islands, a section that should remind us of the Guadalcanal Campaign. Their next station was at Bougainville in the North Solomons, where both saw anti-air craft action.

Joins Short Snorters

The inseparable pair flew to San Francisco on the first leg of the long road to Villanova and thus became members of the famous Short Snorters — a club in which membership is limited to trans-oceanic fliers.

Also present today is Edgar Larsh of Baltimore, Maryland, who was all of 17 when he went through training at Bainbridge. Upon finishing there, Ed was moved to Chicago, where he went for four months to Signal School.

When he had completed this phase of his training, Ed was sent to San Francisco from where he was assigned to the U.S.S. Detroit, which—as any "Naval Org" man will tell you—is a light cruiser. While he was serving as a signalman during a Northern voyage, the ship was heavily bombed—an experience Ed refers to as "a lot of fun." We'll take vanilla.

One Year in Hebrides

Now we see a man who should be sporting a hash-mark pretty soon, Lee F. Straub, who has been wearing dark blue for about three years now, Following his enlistment at the age of seventeen, Lee was given his basic training at Great Lakes. After this Seaman Straub was sent to Hospital Corps School in Brooklyn and then received some practical training at the dispensary at Great Lakes. From there he went to Moffett Field Calif. for eight months training before shipping out.

We next hear from him from Espuerto Santos in the New Hebrides, where he was stationed for about a year. Also about this time, Lee saw action on the Mastonia, a transport operating in that area.

His next move—and his last so far—was to Villanova where he is now intensely occupied in Pre-Med. Studies.

In Fleet Marine Force

Following close in line is Donald R. Witchey, an Ohio boy who has roamed far from home. Don enlisted on Dec. 15, 1941, and, like his predecessors in today's column took his "Boots" at Great Lakes. From there Don went to Hospital Corps School at San Diego and then to Oakland Naval Hospital in California.

Following this, a transport took "Witch" to U.S.N. Mobile Hospital No. 2 Pearl Harbor. About this time Don saw some action with the Fleet Marine Force. After work in the South Pacific area, Don was "ferried" back to the Navy where he was given duty on the U.S.S. Indianapolis. While so serving he received his V-12 orders, and came here via the Frisco route.

Does Anti-Sub Work

Number eight in today's lineup is another Ohio boy, Albert E. Pierce, also a destroyer of germs. Al enlisted Nov. 1, 1942, and took the long trail that lead to Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Leaving "Boots" with a Sound Man's Stripes.

He was then transferred to San Francisco to await overseas duty. He didn't have long to wait, however and a few weeks later his mail was going to Neumea, New Caledonia. Al was assigned to patrol duty around the Solomons and for eight months was engaged in anti-Sub-activities. While laying over in the New Hebrides, Al's V-12 orders reached him.

Because of the type of duty to which he was assigned, he became very well acquainted with the natives of the islands. Al wants it known, therefore, that if any of the trainees are anxious to date Polynesian girls but are deterred through an ignorance of Tagalog he would be only too glad to offer his assistance.

Shipwrecked in Atlantic

We now turn our attention to one Alfred H. Carey of Milford, Delaware, a former radioman extraordinary. This Al joined in the summer of 1942; and he, too, hit the dusty road to Great Lakes. Following this, Al attended Radio School at the University of Chicago.

From there our victim was transferred to active duty aboard the U.S.S. St. Augustine. While so serving he saw action in the Atlantic. The climax of this activity came only a few months ago when the ship was sunk. Al was fortunate enough to find a raft, from which he was rescued after several hours by a Coast Guard ship that had picked up their distress signal.

After this harrowing experience, Al was shipped home for a while and then given shore duty at Bainbridge. While at the training station, he got his orders to report to this unit—orders completed on the first of March.

Assisted at 100 Operations

Making it an even ten today is Frederick J. Koch — another Alumni boy. Fred joined two years ago and—not wanting to be different—went to Great Lakes. After this came Hospital Corps School in San Diego and then a chance to practice what he had been taught at the Oakland Naval Hospital.

From sunny California it was quite a jump to Samoa, but he managed to make it in the fall of 1942. He hit the jack-pot in his duty, since he was assigned to operating room work at the base hospital there—the only air-conditioned place for miles around.

After assisting at nearly 100 operations, Fred received his V-12 papers and came here, where he is now learning how to wield a scalpel instead of watch it .

Does Radar Work

Last to be interviewed today, and only airman in the group, is Harry Dahlen of Fedigan Hall. Harry enlisted about two years ago and went to Great Lakes (naturally) for his training. After that he was switched to Jacksonville, where he received his aviation radioman training and rate. The duty gave him an opportunity to work the ultra-secret Radar.

After completing his training, "Good Duty" Dahlen went to Norfolk, where he first was assigned to an assembly and repair unit. Soon, however, Harry was assigned to a duty closer to his heart, Atlantic Patrol. In his capacity as radioman, he flew on Patrol from Canada to Florida, and did a stretch of duty in the Canal Zone.

Condolences

The staff of the Villanovan joins with the faculty and students in expressing its sincere sympathy to James Quinn and his famil upon the death of his father, John Francis, on Thursday, May 11, 1944. The college chaplain celebrated the student's mass for the happy repose of his soul on Friday May 12. He was buried from St. Hugh's Church.

The Work After The Dance Before

Frolic Features Dancing Variety

Rain and thunder notwithstanding, last Saturday night the Financiers' Frolic marked Villanova's contribution to the Spring social season. Sponsored by Delta Pi Epsilon, both Johnny Warrington and Len Mayfair gave their best, providing four hours of solid dancing pleasure, well rewarding those who braved the inclement weather.

The real spot-light centered on "Bon-Bon," the negro male singer featured with Warrington's organization. Warrington's band proved to be difinitely on the "smooth" side, which Mayfair "swung out," answering the jitterbugs' prayers.

Popular spot of the evening proved to be the "Blue Room." Here 300 odd couples patronized the Coca-cola company, motivated as much by the heat as by gratitude for the Les Brown "Spotlight Band" Dance.

From nine to one, Mayfair and Warrington alternately held the floor. Special event of the evening was Villanova's own Brad Johson and his rendition of G. I. Jive.

The novelty of continuous dancing was well appreciated by all who attended.

Entered in the 50 yd. freestyle swim is Andy Murphy and "Red Meteor" Welch. Swimming the backstroke will be Hugh O'Reilly.

Mendel in Second

In the last games of the week, Mendel clinched second place by coming from behind to win in a close 8-7 contest over Alumni. With Paul Smith holding them hitless for the first two innings while his teammates garnered a three run lead for themselves, Mendel scored twice in the third canto. Alumni added three more in the first of the fourth but again the Engineers came back and this time broke through for six runs to win the ball game.

This same night, the Students knocked the Marines A out of a second place by trouncing them 15-9 in a slugfest. Hopping right on the offerings of Red Nealon, Marine pitcher, the Students collected 8 runs in the first inning and were never headed thereafter. The Leathernecks scored twice in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings but the Students kept pace with them during these frames and emerged the victors.

Requirements Set For Membership In Phi Kappa Pi

McGuinn States New Policy At Meeting; Dance Tickets Distributed To Committeemen

At a meeting held last Friday night in room 215 Mendel, members of Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, discussed plans relative to the general policy of the fraternity as well as details of the forthcoming June Hop.

President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., presiding over the meeting as is customary, expressed the conviction that too many inactive members are being maintained on the fraternity roster. He stated that in the future the fraternity will seek strength in unity rather than in numbers.

As soon as possible a method will be devised to determine which members are interested in the activities of the fraternity in a positive way. Around these, no matter how small the number, the future Phi Kappa Pi will be built and no one else will be considered a member, according to McGuinn.

New Activities Sought

This new policy will include more careful consideration of applications for new memberships. Initiation will be held next semester, in keeping with the new time schedule of one initiation every other semester instead of one every calendar year.

At that time only those who definitely meet the requirements laid down in the recently revised fraternity constitution will be admitted. Some laxity was shown in this regard last November.

As an incentive toward more active membership, McGuinn stated that the June Hop and the contemplated initiation will definitely not be the only activities sponsored by the fraternity in these two semesters. Some other social functions will be held, and suggestions from the floor as to what form they should take were earnestly solicited.

At the same meeting, co-chairmen of the ticket committee, Martin J. Roddy, A.S., and Frank J. O'Connor, A.S., distributed tickets for the June Hop to the members of the committee who were present. Each member has been assigned to a particular deck in a specified hall, and a canvass will be conducted by the men in the near future.

Congratulations are offered on behalf of the Villanovan staff and the entire student body to Cpl. and Mrs. Charles McGrath on the birth of their son, Aloysius Charles. The blessed event transpired on May 17.

Already well-liked for its inofficious manner and capacity for hard work, Cpl. McGrath increased his popularity on the campus considerably by passing out Habanellas to several members of the faculty and navy staff to celebrate the occasion.

Another promise from the printers gives the harassed editors of the Villanova Engineer, campus technical periodical, courage to make another announcement of publication date. They now expect the next issue of their magazine to arrive on the campus Wednesday morning and be distributed soon after.

Members of the Villanova Branch of the A.I.E.E. who wish to make the scheduled trip to the Franklin Institute on Thursday, May 25, should give their names to one of the officers before Wednesday. The meeting planned for yesterday has been postponed indefinitely.

Medical Officer Is Former Athlete At Wake Forrest

Lt. Roach Replaces Lt. Norton As Doctor For V-12 Unit On Campus

Replacing Lt. Robert F. Norton, USNR (MC), as the medical officer for the V-12 students at Villanova College, is Lt. Robert B. Roach USNR (MC).

Lt. Roach was born on October 11, 1918, in Gastonine, North Carolina. He attended Lowell High School, where he majored in science. He was a letterman on the baseball, football, and track teams. After graduating from Lowell High in 1935, he worked in Gastonine in the supply depot for a period of one year.

In September of 1936 he entered Wake Forrest College as a Chemistry major in preparation for a medical career. He participated in baseball, track, swimming, and tennis and won letters for all sports except baseball. He was a member of the Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Mr. Roach was a student at Wake Forrest in both the pre-professional and professional schools, for periods of three and two years, respectively. He graduated in 1941 with a Bachelor of Science degree. From there he went to Temple Medical School, and while there he enlisted as a reserve ensign in the Navy.

LT. (JG) ROBERT ROACH, USNR

In 1943 he received his degree as a Doctor of Medicine from Temple. In March, 1943, he was commissioned a Lt. (j.g.) and transferred to the Norfolk Navy Hospital, where he served his internship over a period of ten months. Following his tour of duty at Norfolk, he was transferred to the Cape May, N. J., U. S. Naval Base, where he took up his duties as assistant medical officer.

On May 13, Lt. Roach received orders to report to Villanova College as the medical officer in charge of the V-12 Unit.

Interracial Council Closes Season Here

The Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council closed its activities for the school year with a meeting held at Villanova College, Thursday, May 18, 1944. About 100 students and teachers from nearby schools and colleges attended the seminar in Simpson Hall.

The members in attendance investigated the non-Catholic approach to the race problem exhibited in two books: "New World A Comin" by Roi Ottley and "Brown Americans by Edwin R. Enbree. Round table discussions were held on the contents of these books and their effect on the race problem was discussed.

By JACK DEMPSEY, A.S.

First to be highlighted in this installment of the "Fleet Men" series is Warren D. Magnusson, the fellow who is conspicuous even when buried in a crowd because of the bright red slash of color cutting across the white of his jumper sleeve.

"Guns" enlisted many long years ago, 1938 to be exact, at the ripe old age of seventeen. Since he had reserve training, he avoided the usual "boots" and in a few weeks was seeing green water from the decks of the U.S.S. Wheeling, a gunboat serving on East Coast patrol.

Saw Anti-Sub Action

After two years of this duty he was transferred to the U.S.S. Sapphire, another gunboat, which operated out of Boston. Shortly after our entry into the war Mag, by then a Gunner's Mate, was shipped to the Christiana, a seaplane tender. While so serving "Guns" saw some anti-submarine action in the South Atlantic zone. It was at this point in his naval career that he received his V-12 orders and Villanova became home port for this son of the sea on the first of last November.

Following close on the heels of the preceeding subject, is Wilbur E. Benson, also of Fedigan Hall. "Rebel" Benson, a states' rights man from way back, enlisted in the summer of 1942 and was quickly shipped to San Diego to receive his boot training.

In Aleutian Action

The next few months saw Will doing a lot of shuffling between Frisco and San Diego. Somewhere along the line, however, he took time out and picked up a fire controlman's rating. Shortly after receiving his stripe our hero was transferred to Seattle, from where he was sent to destroyer duty in the Aleutian area at the time when the Atu-Kiska fracas was taking place.

After seeing considerable action in this area, Will got his chance to change oceans when his ship was assigned to screen a task force through the canal and up to Norfolk. This change of position resulted in a change of fleets and the "Rebel" now found himself attached to the Atlantic arm of our two ocean Navy.

Lived On Prunes and Rice

The first of his duties on the Atlantic side was convoy duty and both Gibraltar and Casablanca soon got a chance to hear his Virginia drawl. While serving in this capacity, Ben got his V-12 orders and he too arrived here six months ago.

Although our southern friend has seen a great deal of action, including the destruction of a Japanese submarine, the strongest memory of his Navy life is that of the time when, while operating in the Caribbean area, all supplies were lost and he was forced to live on prunes and rice for about a week. Upon last observation, however, Will looked far from undernourished.

Former Sea Bee

Next in order is Ward F. Cator, a former Sea Bee who has been wearing Navy blue for two years now. In true C.B. tradition, Ward received his basic training at Camp Perry, Va. After this he was sent to Camp Endicott for further training.

From there Ward took the long jump, and the next we hear is that he has safely arrived in North Africa.

While stationed in the "Dark Continent" our industrious Sea Bee aided in the preparatory work for the invasion of Sicily. About this time Ward got the orders which eventually brought him to this campus.

That "eventually" in the above paragraph should really be changed to "immediately" since, as he flew back, it was less than a day a half's journey. A minute amount of time in comparison to the month it took him to go there.

Sailed in Hurricane

Number four today is Spottsyl D. Draper, another Virginian, who joined up a year ago this month. "Spot" spent more than his share of time at Bainbridge, since, after finishing his "boots" there, he was assigned to service school at the same base.

From Maryland "Spot" was sent to New York where he boarded a

Comdr. Lamb Heads Inspection Party In Survey Of Quarters And Trainees

All Facilities Reported Satisfactory; Special Noontime Review Particularly Successful

Regular semesterly inspection by training officers of the Fourth Naval District of the buildings and equipment used by the V-12 Unit at Villanova College was conducted on Friday, May 19. The inspecting party was headed by Commander Scott G. Lamb, USN, Director of Training in the District; and members of his staff included Commander Waterman, USN, Medical Officer from the University of Pennsylvania, and Lieutenant H. J. Skelly, USNR.

The inspection was routine, consisting of an examination of the sick bay, mess hall, and galley, barracks, field house, campus and recreational facilities. It was thorough in every respect and particularly scrutinized were the quarters of the trainees. Each deck of each hall was visited and individual quarters were examined. Also inspected were the Navy Office and the physical training facilities.

Special Review

A special military review of the Drum and Bugle Corps, the Color Guard, the two Marine Companies and the three Navy Companies was held at 1:15 on the Drill Field. In the reviewing stand were the inspecting party and the commissioned officers of the unit Ship's Company.

Commenting on the inspection, Commander Lamb expressed himself as being very much pleased and impressed with the appearance of the Unit. Particularly successful was the special review staged for the occasion. A marked improvement in the appearance of the companies since last routine inspection was noted.

The last inspection of this type was held on January 25, 1944. The inspecting party then was likewise headed by Commander Lamb. Weather conditions detracted from the appearance of the review during this inspection.

The success of the inspection was manifested in the commendations given the officers and men of the unit by Comdr. Lamb. As a result of the good showing at the special review, no drill was held Saturday afternoon.

Personnel Chief Visits President At Campus Dinner

Vice-Admiral Randall Jacobs, U.S.N., Chief of Naval Personnel, was a guest of the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A, President of Villanova College, at a small dinner party held on the campus Friday evening, May 19.

Admiral Jacobs was accompanied by his Aide, Lieutenant Commander C. A. Appleby, U.S.N Commander Scott G. Lamb, U.S.N., Director of Training in the Fourth Naval District, Lieutenant Commander Edward L. Hannah, USNR, Commanding Officer of the V-12 Unit at Villanova, Revs. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice-President of the college, Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A, Assistant to the President, and Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., Registrar, were also present.

During Admiral Jacobs tenure as the Chief of Naval Personnel, the Navy has increased its personnel from a few hundred thousand to its present strength of approximately three million. At a recent V-12 Conference held at Columbia University, the Admiral addressed representatives of Navy colleges on the progress of the program throughout the past year.

Father Stanford is a member of the Admiral's Navy Advisory Educational Council. At the V-12 conference he was named chairman of a committee to study into the possibilities of some type of continuing organization for the 131 Navy colleges.

Great Lakes. Both boys next found themselves at Aviation Machinist Mates' school at Dearborn, Michigan. From there they were sent to advanced training at Norfolk and finally to Aero Free-Gunnery School at Terminal Island, California.

When they were ready to be shippped out, "Blackie" and Dick were lucky enough to draw the same duty; and so they soon found themselves—still as close as Mike and Pat—at Banika in the Russell Islands, a section that should remind us of the Guadalcanal Campaign. Their next station was at Bougainville in the North Solomons, where both saw anti-air craft action.

Joins Short Snorters

The inseparable pair flew to San Francisco on the first leg of the long road to Villanova and thus became members of the famous Short Snorters — a club in which membership is limited to trans-oceanic fliers.

Also present today is Edgar Larsh of Baltimore, Maryland, who was all of 17 when he went through training at Bainbridge. Upon finishing there, Ed was moved to Chicago, where he went for four months to Signal School.

When he had completed this phase of his training, Ed was sent to San Francisco from where he was assigned to the U.S.S. Detroit, which—as any "Naval Org" man will tell you—is a light cruiser. While he was serving as a signalman during a Northern voyage, the ship was heavily bombed—an experience Ed refers to as "a lot of fun." We'll take vanilla.

One Year in Hebrides

Now we see a man who should be sporting a hash-mark pretty soon, Lee F. Straub, who has been wearing dark blue for about three years now. Following his enlistment at the age of seventeen, Lee was given his basic training at Great Lakes. After this Seaman Straub was sent to Hospital Corps School in Brooklyn and then received some practical training at the dispensary at Great Lakes. From there he went to Moffett Field Calif. for eight months training before shipping out.

We next hear from him from Espuerto Santos in the New Hebrides, where he was stationed for about a year. Also about this time, Lee saw action on the Mastonia, a transport operating in that area.

His next move—and his last so far—was to Villanova where he is now intensely occupied in Pre-Med. Studies.

In Fleet Marine Force

Following close in line is Donald R. Witchey, an Ohio boy who has roamed far from home. Don enlisted on Dec. 15, 1941, and like his predecessors in today's column took his "Boots" at Great Lakes. From there Don went to Hospital Corps School at San Diego and then to Oakland Naval Hospital in California.

Following this, a transport took "Witch" to U.S.N. Mobile Hospital No. 2 Pearl Harbor. About this time Don saw some action with the Fleet Marine Force. After work in the South Pacific area Don was "ferried" back to the Navy where he was given duty on the U.S.S. Indianapolis. While so serving he received his V-12 orders, and came here via the Frisco route.

Does Anti-Sub Work

Number eight in today's lineup is another Ohio boy, Albert E. Pierce, also a destroyer of germs. Al enlisted Nov. 1, 1942, and took the long trail that lead to Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Leaving "Boots" with a Sound Man's Stripes.

He was then transferred to San Francisco to await overseas duty. He didn't have long to wait, however and a few weeks later his mail was going to Neumea, New Caledonia. Al was assigned to patrol duty around the Solomons and for eight months was engaged in anti-Sub activities. While laying over in the New Hebrides, Al's V-12 orders reached him.

Because of the type of duty to which he was assigned, he became very well acquainted with the natives of the islands. Al wants it known, therefore, that if any of the trainees are anxious to date Polynesian girls but are deterred through an ignorance of Tagalog he would be only too glad to offer his assistance.

Shipwrecked in Atlantic

We now turn our attention to one Alfred H. Carey of Milford, Delaware, a former radioman extraordinary. This Al joined in the summer of 1942; and he, too, hit the dusty road to Great Lakes. Following this, Al attended Radio School at the University of Chicago.

From there our victim was transferred to active duty aboard the U.S.S. St. Augustine. While so serving he saw action in the Atlantic. The climax of this activity came only a few months ago when the ship was sunk. Al was fortunate enough to find a raft, from which he was rescued after several hours by a Coast Guard ship that had picked up their distress signal.

After this harrowing experience, Al was shipped home for a while and then given shore duty at Bainbridge. While at the training station, he got his orders to report to this unit—orders completed on the first of March.

Assisted at 100 Operations

Making it an even ten today is Frederick J. Koch — another Alumni boy. Fred joined two years ago and—not wanting to be different—went to Great Lakes. After this came Hospital Corps School in San Diego and then a chance to practice what he had been taught at the Oakland Naval Hospital.

From sunny California it was quite a jump to Samoa, but he managed to make it in the fall of 1942. He hit the jack-pot in his duty, since he was assigned to operating room work at the base hospital there—the only air-conditioned place for miles around.

After assisting at nearly 100 operations, Fred received his V-12 papers and came here, where he is now learning how to wield a scalpel instead of watch it.

Does Radar Work

Last to be interviewed today, and only airman in the group, is Harry Dahlen of Fedigan Hall. Harry enlisted about two years ago and went to Great Lakes (naturally) for his training. After that he was switched to Jacksonville, where he received his aviation radioman training and rate. The duty gave him an opportunity to work the ultra-secret Radar.

After completing his training, "Good Duty" Dahlen went to Norfolk, where he first was assigned to an assembly and repair unit. Soon, however, Harry was assigned to a duty closer to his heart, Atlantic Patrol. In his capacity as radioman, he flew on Patrol from Canada to Florida, and did a stretch of duty in the Canal Zone.

Condolences

The staff of the Villanovan joins with the faculty and students in expressing its sincere sympathy to James Quinn and his famil upon the death of his father, John Francis, on Thursday, May 11, 1944. The college chaplain celebrated the student's mass for the happy repose of his soul on Friday May 12. He was buried from St. Hugh's Church.

Frolic Features Dancing Variety

Rain and thunder notwithstanding, last Saturday night the Financiers' Frolic marked Villanova's contribution to the Spring social season. Sponsored by Delta Pi Epsilon, both Johnny Warrington and Len Mayfair gave their best, providing four hours of solid dancing pleasure, well rewarding those who braved the inclement weather.

The real spot-light centered on "Bon-Bon," the negro male singer featured with Warrington's organization. Warrington's band proved to be difinitely on the "smooth" side, which Mayfair "swung out," answering the jitterbugs' prayers.

Popular spot of the evening proved to be the "Blue Room." Here 300 odd couples patronized the Coca-cola company, motivated as much by the heat as by gratitude for the Les Brown "Spotlight Band" Dance.

From nine to one, Mayfair and Warrington alternately held the floor. Special event of the evening was Villanova's own Brad Johson and his rendition of G. I. Jive.

The novelty of continuous dancing was well appreciated by all who attended.

Mendel in Second

In the last games of the week, Mendel clinched second place by coming from behind to win in a close 8-7 contest over Alumni. With Paul Smith holding them hitless for the first two innings while his teammates garnered a three run lead for themselves, Mendel scored twice in the third canto, Alumni added three more in the first of the fourth but again the Engineers came back and this time broke through for six runs to win the ball game.

This same night, the Students knocked the Marines A out of a second place by trouncing them 15-9 in a slugfest. Hopping right on the offerings of Red Nealon, Marine pitcher, the Students collected 8 runs in the first inning and were never headed thereafter. The Leathernecks scored twice in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings but the Students kept pace with them during these frames and emerged the victors.

Requirements Set For Membership In Phi Kappa Pi

McGuinn States New Policy At Meeting; Dance Tickets Distributed To Committeemen

At a meeting held last Friday night in room 215 Mendel, members of Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, discussed plans relative to the general policy of the fraternity as well as details of the forthcoming June Hop.

President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., presiding over the meeting as is customary, expressed the conviction that too many inactive members are being maintained on the fraternity roster. He stated that in the future the fraternity will seek strength in unity rather than in numbers.

As soon as possible a method will be devised to determine which members are interested in the activities of the fraternity in a positive way. Around these, no matter how small the number, the future Phi Kappa Pi will be built and no one else will be considered a member, according to McGuinn.

New Activities Sought

This new policy will include more careful consideration of applications for new memberships. Initiation will be held next semester, in keeping with the new time schedule of one initiation every other semester instead of one every calendar year.

At that time only those who definitely meet the requirements laid down in the recently revised fraternity constitution will be admitted. Some laxity was shown in this regard last November.

As an incentive toward more active membership, McGuinn stated that the June Hop and the contemplated initiation will definitely not be the only activities sponsored by the fraternity in these two semesters. Some other social functions will be held, and suggestions from the floor as to what form they should take were earnestly solicited.

At the same meeting co-chairmen of the ticket committee, Martin J. Roddy, A.S., and Frank J. O'Connor, A.S., distributed tickets for the June Hop to the members of the committee who were present. Each member has been assigned to a particular deck in a specified hall, and a canvass will be conducted by the men in the near future.

Congratulations are offered on behalf of the Villanovan staff and the entire student body to Cpl. and Mrs. Charles McGrath on the birth of their son, Aloysius Charles. The blessed event transpired on May 17.

Already well-liked for its inofficious manner and capacity for hard work, Cpl. McGrath increased his popularity on the campus considerably by passing out Habanellas to several members of the faculty and navy staff to celebrate the occasion.

Another promise from the printers gives the harassed editors of the Villanova Engineer, campus technical periodical, courage to make another announcement of publication date. They now expect the next issue of their magazine to arrive on the campus Wednesday morning and be distributed soon after.

Members of the Villanova Branch of the A.I.E.E. who wish to make the scheduled trip to the Franklin Institute on Thursday, May 25, should give their names to one of the officers before Wednesday. The meeting planned for yesterday has been postponed indefinitely.

Angelo Rosa, left, and James O'Brien, Co-Chairmen of the forthcoming June Hop, sponsored by Phi Kappa Pi, Engineers' fraternity, make early plans. Tickets are already on sale.

Medical Officer Is Former Athlete At Wake Forrest

Lt. Roach Replaces Lt. Norton As Doctor For V-12 Unit On Campus

Replacing Lt. Robert F. Norton, USNR (MC), as the medical officer for the V-12 students at Villanova College, is Lt. Robert B. Roach USNR (MC).

Lt. Roach was born on October 11, 1918, in Gastonine, North Carolina. He attended Lowell High School, where he majored in science. He was a letterman on the baseball, football, and track teams. After graduating from Lowell High in 1935, he worked in Gastonine in the supply depot for a period of one year.

In September of 1936 he entered Wake Forrest College as a Chemistry major in preparation for a medical career. He participated in baseball, track, swimming, and tennis and won letters for all sports except baseball. He was a member of the Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Mr. Roach was a student at Wake Forrest in both the pre-professional and professional schools, for periods of three and two years, respectively. He graduated in 1941 with a Bachelor of Science degree. From there he went to Temple Medical School, and while there he enlisted as a reserve ensign in the Navy.

In 1943 he received his degree as a Doctor of Medicine from Temple. In March, 1943, he was commissioned a Lt. (j.g.) and transferred to the Norfolk Navy Hospital, where he served his Internship over a period of ten months. Following his tour of duty at Norfolk, he was transferred to the Cape May, N. J., U. S. Naval Base, where he took up his duties as assistant medical officer.

On May 13, Lt. Roach received orders to report to Villanova College as the medical officer in charge of the V-12 Unit.

Interracial Council Closes Season Here

The Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council closed its activities for the school year with a meeting held at Villanova College, Thursday, May 18, 1944. About 100 students and teachers from nearby schools and colleges attended the seminar in Simpson Hall.

The members in attendance investigated the non-Catholic approach to the race problem exhibited in two books: "New World A Comin" by Roi Ottley and "Brown Americans by Edwin R. Enbree. Round table discussions were held on the contents of these books and their effect on the race problem was discussed.

First to be highlighted in this installment of the "Fleet Men" series is Warren D. Magnusson, the fellow who is conspicuous even when buried in a crowd because of the bright red slash of color cutting across the white of his jumper sleeve.

"Guns" enlisted many long years ago, 1938 to be exact, at the ripe old age of seventeen. Since he had reserve training, he avoided the usual "boots" and in a few weeks was seeing green water from the decks of the U.S.S. Wheeling, a gunboat serving on East Coast patrol.

American Duty

LAST Sunday was "I am an American Day," and the parades and other exhibitions of patriotic enthusiasm were many and spectacular. This holiday is not an old one, has very scant history, and very little tradition; but the acclamation and advertisement given it by the press will soon change that. It seems strange, however, that there exists need of a patriotic demonstration to bolster the nationalism of the American people.

Certainly there are many, many people in the country who appreciate being an American. There are many people outside of the country who would also appreciate being such. The newly naturalized appreciate their standing as citizens of the United States. Yes, no doubt everyone in America, particularly in such chaotic times, prizes his status of citizenship.

There are too many, sad to say, who appreciate America and the rights and privileges which are connected with American citizenship, but who are reluctant to fulfill the duties and obligations required by their position.

These people wish all the fruits of a democratic republic, but are reluctant to carry out the acts necessary to maintain the health and stamina of the institutions which are responsible for the fructification. Every right presupposes and is correlative with a particular duty. To enjoy the right or privilege and to fail in the duty involved is to do wrong.

Certainly, people like to retain the freedoms which are their birthright; but are they dutiful enough to apply a small amount of energy in assuring the freedoms which are the birthright of their fellows? Certainly, people wish peaceful opportunity to preserve and strengthen the American system, but are they dutiful enough to resist attack on this system when the time is not peaceful and the opportunities for advance are few?

We can name and speak reverently of our cherished rights and become justifiably angry when these rights are violated or overlooked by others. Are we as careful in guarding the rights of others? We can boast of the privileges we possess by American law. Do we recognize the privileges which the law grants our fellows?

No one can deny that members of the armed forces have the right to come back home to the same relatively wonderful land out of which they proceeded into battle. Are we doing our duty here at home when we allow the leaders of the people to cage, one by one, the rights of the departed soldier? Are we not neglecting a duty when we tolerate careless mismanagement in our various government bureaus? Do we not have the duty to keep the house tidy when the master is abroad?

For sure, 'tis an old theme, but the law is as old as man. And, too, we know that if there were no rights, we would have to live out our lives in constant fear of someone's removing the things we love from our own sphere. If there were no duties, our fellow-men would walk in constant dread of us.

We hold our rights most dear because of our natural inclination towards happiness, but unless we fulfill our duties we can never say, "I am a Good American," but rather, "I am an American because someone else is a Good American." The right—duty element is most necessary in the true definition of a true American.

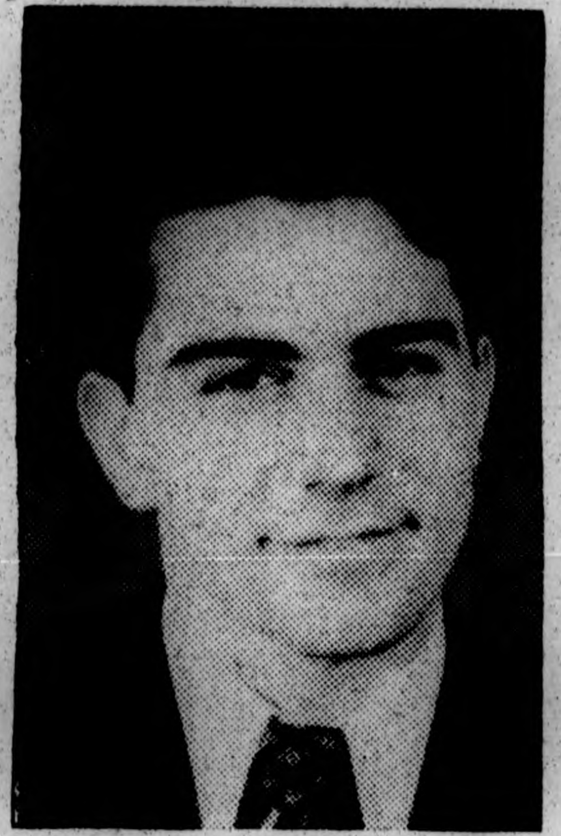
PICTURED are four senior biology majors who will graduate at the end of the present term. The four have been classmates since September, 1941, and all are scheduled to enter medical school at the end of June this year.

John Mezzanotte and Steve Vasselotti have been buddies for a long while, and are proud organizers of a car pool with Mezzanotte's car. They constitute a perfect man; Steve is the student and John has the charm. Not that the latter is wonderfully good-looking, being a trifle weighty amidships, but he has more angles than a geometry book and is overloaded with the kind of sharp jive a wolf should possess.

Steve has been dragging down honors since his arrival at Villanova, much to the disregard of his prowess at pinochle. John is also in the top shelf of his class but possesses the ease and apparent carefreeness which marks the confident technician in any field. Steve is serious and inclined to put too much weight upon the examination tactics of Dr. McClain; he is always reading when not in lab and always in lab when not reading. His slight form, draped to perfection in the accepted fashion (he has to wash his feet to put on his pegged trouser) is usually seen struggling on the harness end of a scad of volumes or at the business end of a miscroscope. He is a truly astute scholar and will certainly do justice to the ancient honor of the medical profession.



STEVE VASSELOTTI

Mezz is not so worrisome as Steve but balances out the friendship with his ability to see humor in every situation. He takes it easy and takes it slow. He would rather do the assignments than worry about them, and when the marks come out his high standing in the panorama of scientific brains proves that his self-assurance is not misplaced.

One cannot imagine either John or Steve doing badly scholastically, yet the paradox of such a union of apparent worrier and an apparent gay blade has astounded the Science School since freshman days. John will attend Hahnemann Medical School this June and Steve will go to Jefferson. It is a pity that the combination will be broken up, but there seems to be hope that the boys will get together in professional life after the few brief years of schooling are over. At any rate, there is no doubt that both will be a credit to Villanova, to the Medical Schools, and to their chosen profession.

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

JOHN McGRATH, ex-'46 has been commissioned a Second Lieutenant as a Navigator in the Army Air Corps. John is a former Mechanical Engineering student until he left for the Air Corps. It's good to hear that, out of a class of several hundred men, he was selected as top man and, as a result, his name was engraved on a loving cup which is kept at the field to record the outstanding navigator of each class.

Peter J. Kite, ex-'45, has received his wings and his commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Marine Air Corps. One phase of this training was a specialized course in dive bombing (SBD's) at Pensacola, Florida. He is at present stationed at the Marine Air Station, Bogue Field, N. C.

I didn't realize that today's column seemed all out for the Air Corps. Lt. Bob Whitaker is also a flyer and he is co-piloting a B-24 at Chatham Field, Savannah, Ga.

A/C Phil Buchy expects to graduate as a pilot on May 23rd from Luke Field, Phoenix, Ariz.

Another navigator is Lt. Tom Doyle, '42, who is on a Flying Fortress. Tom is somewhere in New Guinea and has more than ten missions to his credit in that area. He was recently made Squadron Weather Forecast Officer. Tom's brother, Pvt. Bill J. Doyle is with the 1st Ordinance Training Regiment at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

At last—a Navy man. Ensign Roger F. Samartino, Oct. '43, can be found at Sage Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

A few more boots added to our list are Kevin McChesney and Jack Krut. Kevin has just arrived at Bainbridge while Jack is at Great Lakes, but not exactly a boot.

Newt Ward writes that if he had a nickle for every curse word at Camp Blanding, Fla., he'd be a millionaire.

As a parting scoop we have it that Ed Brennan and Fred Gerngross are both at Annapolis' Midshipman School.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

"YOU will air bedding in the morning."

Airing of bedding is one of the ancient and honored traditions in the Marine Corps. Its origin cannot be traced, but the practice invariably falls on the dampest or coldest morning of each month.

The actual procedure consists in mustering with "sack," and proceeding to the "airing area," and there depositing the bedding until later in the day. At this point, and even up until the designated minute, the time for recovery remains a "military secret."

The "sack" is a general term which comprises one mattress, one pillow, and two blankets. As one might imagine, these objects make quite an unwieldly roll, but an attempt to manage it in any other form but a roll is out of the question.

So, at revielle, after a cheery "Good Morning" to his roommate, Joe Blow, typical "Gyrene," proceeds to attempt this sack rolling process. He finds that the sack is easily rolled, but is reluctant to stay that way. In fact, his first attempt at raising the thing off the springs is met with defeat. Joe and sack end up on the deck.

Undaunted at being thrown by a mass of cloth and cotton, Joe gets a tight grip on it again and charges the doorway. A boost by his roommate pops him through.

Since Pvt. Blow's room is on the third deck, the ladder presents a problem. Joe's courage is renewed when one of his buddies reminds him that even if he should fall he has something to land on. This bit of encouragement steadies our hero enough so that he descends without a mishap.

"Fall in!"—the command comes just as Joe reaches the door so he tries to double-time it, sack and all. He manages three steps, then — calamity. The thing unrolls and Joe hits the deck with the unrolled sack well distributed between his feet.

It is only after humiliation at the hands of his buddies that Joe manages to "fall in." The trip to the appointed spot is attended by a few rather interesting spills since one man's stumbling results in the same thing for several behind him whose lines of vision are impaired by their burdens.

Joe, along with his buddies, finally deposits his sack, but fails to anchor the blankets. As a result, when the time arrives to secure them, the scattered condition of the blankets is taken by some as a license to take any two available—and to choose a mattress which is perhaps a little less bumpy than their former ones.

By LeRoy Collegeman

FOR several weeks now we have been intending to write a column in which we didn't start off in that same old overdone style like "Here we are again," or "It was two o'clock in the morning on the day of the big inspection" but just pitched into all the doings of the previous week and week-end . . . now that our originality seems to be at the end we will avail ourselves of that opportunity . . .

MARINES

The Marines seem to go over big everywhere nowadays and not only in their engagements in the South Pacific . . . Dick Evans especially . . . it happened like this, we think . . . Dick took a certain young lady to the Financier's Frolic and showed her such a good time and so overwhelmed her with his pleasant disposition and sterling character that the young lady reciprocated by sending him a very sweet letter and TWO WHITE GARDENIAS . . . It's a switch on the old procedure but you've got to expect anything during leap year.

Then Larry Bradley and Leonard Cuff took up the banner . . . They attended a picnic given by the Marine Corps Women's Reserve of the Philadelphia Navy Yard this past week-end with two girl Marines that are stationed there . . . they were shooting pretty high because both girls outranked them . . . they were PFC's. . . . .

Another Marine on the ball, Bob David, Football Star, came in for a lot of feminine admiration after the recent scrimmage . . . a very cute young lady was waiting in the stands to greet and congratulate Bob after the scrimmage was over

SAILORS

"Big Vincent" Dillon, the lover of third deck Mendel is on the loose again after a long "confinement" . . . He is doing very well from what we hear . . . It goes to show you that it pays to stay single and make a lot of girls happy rather than "go steady" and make one miserable. . . . .

Another relationship that is currently on the rocks is the one between Joe Costello and Barbara . . . also known as Babs . . . After quite a few announcements, not by Joe, to the effect that they are going steady, we hear that such is no longer the case and their only present relationship is a cool acquaintance. It can happen in the best of families . . .

We're not going to end it in the usual manner this week either . . . we are just going to say that we're sorry that the civilians will have to wait until next week for their "treatment" . . . and let it go at that.

Engineers Dominate Swim Meet In Brilliant Win

Koness Consistent In Mendel Victory; Dailey Of Fedigan Registers Double Win In Best Of Night

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

The Intramural swim meet was held last Friday night without its usual pomp and display. The lack of spectators and cheering section did not detract, however, from the zeal of the contestants. The rivalry was as sharp as ever as the times will testify. The method of scoring was changed from the usual 5, 3, 2, 1 to 5 points for first, 4 for second, 3 for third, and 1 for fourth.

The winner of the meet was Mendel Hall, whose consistent top class entrants finally pulled through to nose out Fedigan 34½ to 29½. Alumni placed third with 21 points followed by Austin who garnered 18 of the tallies.

Brilliant Time

Winner of the 50 yard free style swim was Charley Dailey of Fedigan who traversed the water route in 24.8 seconds. Arriving 1.4 seconds later was Bill Koness, of Mendel, who lost his lead in the final sprint. Carrol of Austin placed third with Andy Murphy, another engineer, nosing out Joe McGovern of Fedigan for fourth.

In the 100 yd. classic, Charley Dailey again led the pack, this time coming in under the 1 minute mark to finish the grind in 58 seconds flat.

Winning in another heat and coming in second in time was Bill Koness who finished the stretch in 1:02.6. Finishing third for Mendel was Dick Wright who was followed by John Atkinson of Alumni.

Close Race

Austin took the breast stroke when their representative Jim Skane nosed out Mendel's specialist Al Curtis by a hairs breadth to take the swin. Skane's time was 38.0 with Curtis arriving at 38.4. Carrol Andrews placed third for the Mendelites while Titus took fourth for Fedigan.

Jim Diamond of Alumni, who swam for St. Joseph's Prep before his college days, tied with his hall mate Ed Fitzgerald to garner 4½ points apiece for Alumni. The time was 34.6 seconds. Finishing in the show position was Hare of Austin. Following their predecessors' example were "Herb" Lamb of Mendel and Fediganite Joe Ringlestein who tied for fourth place.

Fedigan took over the diving exhibition with Ripley taking the stellar position and Andy Fontana and Bob Schiffer tied for fourth. Performing the aerial gyrations for Austin was Habenicht who placed second.

Mendel Takes 100

Mendel confirmed its lead when they took the 100 yard free style relay in the good time of 49.4. First up for the engineers, Andy Murphy, got a fast start, and the consecutive gains made by his teammates, "Red" Welch and Dick Wright, gave Bill Koness a good lead on Charley Dailey, anchor man for Fedigan which garnered second place honors. Austin placed third with Alumni coming in last.

Alumni retaliated however in the last event of the evening, the 75 yard medley relay, when the pill rollers took first spot. Mainly due to the vigorous breast-stroking of Bob Leahy, Mendel took second honors, tallied by Austin with Fedigan finishing last.

General arranger of the meet and starter was Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., enthusiastic intramural organizer. Official scorekeeper was Rev. John A. Klekotka, O. S. A., who was assisted by C. Brunt, Sp 3/c, and L. R. Whelan, A. S.

Cindermen Fail To Score In IC-4A Meet Saturday

The Midshipmen from Annapolis not only "stumped the experts" by winning the I.C.A.A.A.A. track championship meet last Saturday, but went on to amass 81 points, 8 more than the highest number previously score by a team in the meet's 68 year history.

Villanova's few "white hopes" for places failed to come through due to the caliber of the competition, as well as a few unfortunate injurys. Jim Morris was the only Villanova contestant to qualify for a semi final heat.

The Middies ran wild on the Franklin field track, dampened by Fridays rain, and the West Pointers, favored by virtually all track followers, couldn't understand why they were not winning, especially since it had all been determined on paper weeks before.

A few lone contenders, Murray of Holy Cross, in the Javelin, McKinley of Boston College, in the Quarter, and Arthur Greenberg of Rhode Island State came through with places to help the Navy keep the Army's score dawn. As expected, Conwell of N.Y.U. and Burnham of Dartmouth won their specialities these also working against the Cadets.

Haverford Scores 5-4 Win Over New Tennis Team

The first wartime tennis team from Villanova made it's debut last Friday when they dropped a close match to an experienced team from Haverford College.

With wins in three singles matches out of six and one doubles win in three, they fell under a five to four count. The loss was laid to the little practice which the team has had.

Single victories were scored by Jimmy Shea, Bill Glick and Bob Forrest. Losing were Bob Sillery, Allan Curtis and in one of best matches of the day, Gerry Dwyer formerly of Georgetown was defeated.

One Doubles Win

The doubles team of Bob Forrest and Jimmy Shea was the only one of the Wildcat couples to register a victory. The other pairs of Don Sawtelle and Tony Parisi and Gerry Dwyer and Henry Winters both were taken in close sets.

A schedule for the remainder of the season is still in the process of being drawn up. Scheduled for a match next Saturday is the team made up of students in the A.S.T.P. from Temple University.

Recently appointed manager for the team was Howie O'Connel of Austin Hall. It is hoped that with a little more practice the group will round out into a representative team.

Football Star Rogalla Sent Here From F&M

Former U. Of Scranton And Giants Football Player Replaces Ens. Horgan; At Many Stations Previously

By GENE WEINERT, A.S.

Coming to Villanova from Franklin and Marshall College in a three-man deal is Chief Specialist John F. Rogalla.

A native Pennsylvanian, Chief Rogalla makes his home in Duryea, a town near Pittston which is in the northeastern part of the state. Here he attended grammar school and high school. While at Duryea high he played fullback with the football team, wrestled in interscholastic competition, and pitched for the baseball team.

In 1937, he left for the University of Scranton where under the Christian Brothers he studied for four years. Here, once more, football claimed his sports' attention—this time to the exclusion of all other athletic activities.

Picked By Giants

During the years he played, Scranton lost only two games. His work on the field was so outstanding that the New York Giants promptly chose him in the football draft at the end of his senior year.

C/SPEC. JOHN ROGALLA

Rogalla was chosen to play in the annual Blue and Gray classic at Montgomery, Alabama, known as the North-South game. That year another member of the North squad was the well-remembered Nick Basca.

The next football season, the fall of 1940, "Big John" played for the Eastern All-Stars against his teammates to be, the Giants. However, he spent that fall playing with Jersey City with Ken Strong, under the watchful eye of the parent club. Before the next season, Rogalla was playing with the Giants.

Various Posts

In January, 1943, Rogalla enlisted in the Navy, reporting immediately to the Physical Instructor's School at Norfolk, Virginia. After ten weeks of intensive training, the new Chief Specialist spent three weeks instructing at the Newport Combat School in Rhode Island. The second shift in station for Chief Rogalla moved him to the Motor Torpedo Boat School at Melville, Rhode Island. For ten weeks he helped to round into shape the men who man the "mosquito boats."

Once more, the Navy put the finger on Chief Rogalla, sending him to Bambridge N.T.S. for a week of V-12 indoctrination. Reporting to Franklin and Marshall in Lancaster with the opening of

Swarthmore and Ursinus Play Here For First Time

Little Quakers Possess Splendid Pitching Staff And Mediocre Record; Ursinus Here In Only Game Of Season

Swarthmore and Villanova will meet tomorrow for the third time in an athletic contest with the results to date being even. This will be the first of a home and home series and also the first appearance of the Garnet on the local diamond schedule.

To date the Little Quakers have been an in and out team that has failed to generate any consistent attack to back up the splendid pitching of Morton and Lobell. Ursinus lost to Lobell by an 8-3 score. Then the hitting failed and Morton lost a 4-hitter to Navy 1-0 and Army slugged out and 8-0 verdict while the Garnet batters were collecting 3 hits in each game.

A gallant rally fell short by one run and Penn State took home an 11-10 decision. A journey to Princeton found Morton losing a 5-hit effort 2-1. Taking advantage of nine errors plus free transportation from four Franklin Marshall pitchers the losing streak was broken as Lobell won his second game by a 12-6 count.

Lobell won another as Penn was subdued 4-1. Lehigh was the successive victim as Morton set them down 3-2. Ursinus broke the string and gained revenge for an earlier defeat by shutting them out 1-0. In their last start Muhlenbeg came from behind to trim them 7-4.

Ursinus' Only

The Garnet will probably field a team of Skelley at third; Monschein in right; Kachadurian in center; Reese at second; Youngblood, left; Perrotty, catcher; Brodie on first; Barnes, short; and Lobell or Morton, pitching. Other members of the squad are Kriedler, first or outfield; DiBurlo and Ferry outfielders; and Price and Moxley, pinch hitters.

Another newcomer, Ursinus, will make its only appearnce against the 'Cats on the local diamond on Saturday. The Bears conquered Franklin and Marshall 7-5 and will warm up for the fray by playing a return engagement with Muhlenberg, who defeated them previously by a 7-4 score. Another basis of comparison will be the result of the Swarthmore

Locals Make It Four Straight In 5-2 Bison Triumph

Jack Kelly, who played for Pittsburgh last year, stole the show as Bucknell became the fourth straight victim of the 'Cats by a 5-2 count. This young man pitched six brilliant innings after relieving Frank Burns with two on and no outs in the third. He faced 18 batters over this stretch. In fact, after "Shadow" Ramsey greeted him with a single, the next 15 men, 6 via the strikeout rout, went out in order until Jack Fetting coaxed him for a pass with two out in the eighth.

Gordon Mueller pitched win No. 2 and added 8 strikeouts to bring his season's total to 20. Unfortunately, two scratch hits, an error and a passed ball deprived him of the shutout that he deserved.

'Cats Take Lead

The 'Cats jumped into the lead by batting around and sending three runs over the plate in their half of the first. Al Sondheimer started with a bunt down the first base line and stole second. He advanced to third when Jim DiSalvo grounded out and scored when Warner singled to left. After Ed Burns fanned, Breen was hit by a pitched ball and Fetting walked. Siano sent two runs over with a booming single to left. This increased his total runs batted in to 10 for the year.

In the second inning DiSalvo singled to center, went to second on a passed ball and crossed the plate as Ed Burns lifted the ball

Students Take Two Clashes To Retain Unbeaten Streak

The Students continued their torrid pace of this past week, and on Monday night defeated the Marines B team, 7-4, following up with a 13-4 victory over Mendel on Tuesday to hold onto first place in the Intramural Softball League.

Mendel slipped from second to fourth as they lost not only to the Students but also to Fedigan by a most decisive 17-3 score. The A Marines jumped into the vacated position by winning contests, from the Pre-Meds, 6-5, who stayed in third as a result, and their fellow Marines, 9-3. The Pill Men won their only other game of the week 14-11 from a vastly improved Fedigan ten. The C&F'ers jumped over the B Gyrenes by defeating them 15-10 to go into fifth place in the league.

Four in First

The first evening of the week saw the Students stretch their win streak to four by a 7-4 victory over the Marines B team. Scoring four runs in the first, and another three in the fifth over five hits, four errors and a walk, they outscored their opponents who could only manage three in the initial inning, and another in the fourth.

While this was going on at Academy Field, Fedigan was winning its first game of the year on the diamond behind Mendel by a 17-3 score over the Engineers. With etch man in the entire line-up batting at least once during the second and fifth innings, the C&F'ers grabbed the advantage at the beginning and then continued to pour it on for the rest of the game to put the game in their win column.

Mendel Falls

The following night, Mendel again took it on the chin. This time, they had the misfortune of running into the undefeated Students, and the Civilians lived up to their cognomen by administering a 13-4 shellacking. Sparked by Charlie Mamzic's home run, and by the fielding of Pat Reagan, the Students just walked away with the game although the Engineers managed to score once in every inning except the first, second and seventh.

Alumni dropped out of a second place tie with the Marines A club as a result of a 6-5 loss to the devil dogs. The Leathernecks took a 1-0 lead in the first on a double by Bill Russell, and a single by Gene Konopka. Alumni retaliated in the second with two runs, but the Marines scored twice more in their half of the third to take the lead for good. In the fifth the Leathernecks added what at the time looked like three unnecessary scores, but came the last half of the last

American Council Adopts Statement On Congress Bill

Representatives of fifty national organizations concerned with education on all levels, both public and private, met May 5th, 1944 in Washington at the call of the American Council on Education. The pending legislation in Congress providing for the education of returning veterans was considered at length. The following statement was adopted unanimously:

1. The conference wishes to affirm its deep conviction in the wisdom of the traditional policy which reserves control of education to the states and localities, prudently left there, by the Constitution of the United States.

2. We are in agreement with the general purposes of the Clark Omnibus Bill recently passed by the Senate and the Rankin Omnibus Bill now before the House of Representatives. But the educational provisions of these Bills violate this essential and fundamental principle of our form of government by setting up federal bureaucratic control in education.

3. We believe that the educational provisions of the Clark and Rankin Bills present the most serious threat to the existing state and local control of education that has yet appeared in this country.

4. We hold that if this menace to state and local control of education is to be defeated immediate action is needed on the part of all who oppose this invasion of states' rights by federal agencies. To be effective such action must be taken before May 10 on which date it is reported that the House of Representatives will vote on this legislation.

5 The Barden Bill, H. R. 3846, now before the House of Representatives, provides for state advisory committees, state selection of institutions, administration through state educational agencies, state counseling services for returning veterans, and the use of existing educational agencies and institutions. These provisions assure that existing facilities will be used under the direction of the several states, thereby providing greater educational benefits and services to returning veterans than would be possible under Federal Bureaucratic Control. We therefore urge that the Barden Bill should be adopted. As an alternative we urge that the Rankin (H. R. 4357) and Clark (S. 1767) Bills be amended by striking out Title II, Chapter IV, "Education for Veterans," and substituting therefor the provisions of the Barden Bill.

Members of the resolution committee are Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova and representing the National Catholic Educational Association, A. J. Brumbaugh, representing the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, O. C. Carmichael, Chairman of the American Council of Education, J. H. Saunders, representing the National Education Association, and John J. Seidel, representing the American Vocational Educational Association.

Southpaw Dom Ligotti, an N.Y.U. freshman several years ago, and Shegda, a West Chester Teachers right hander, are the mainstays of the mound corps. Rex Gregor, Bill Johnson, and Jack Snyder, also an outfielder, are other members of the staff. Gregor and Johnson have seen action in the South Pacific and Ligotti is also a fleet man. Stan Small, a civilian who captained Philadelphia Central High last year, is the big man behind the plate. His understudy is Elmer Webster, Frankford High via West Chester, who also roams the outfield.

The reception corner is held down by Jack Miller, West Chester, who is a speed demon on the bases. Line drive hitter, Archie Simons, teams with power hitter, Max Sherman, Earlham College, around the keystone sack. Third base is covered by civilian Bob Geist, another member of the power department.

the bend in a curve, Al comes through with a terrific grade. Someone will ask, "How'd you make out Al?" "Not so well," he will say. "What was your mark?" "Ninety-six." And he's not kidding!

For three of his four scholastic years Al did not take part in the back-lawn athletic and pinochle group of the pre-meds. When finally he was coaxed into a game, however, his prowess soon made him the "most likely to be desired as a partner." There has been a movement on foot to have him teach Resnick a thing or two about the popular in-or-outdoor sport, but Nemez has politely declined.

Al Resnick is undoubtedly the worst card-player in the district. Not that we play cards much (it says here) but it is certainly too much to bear to draw him for a partner and spend the rest of the lunch hour having your aces trumped and watching the opposition pile up a huge score.

But Al's lack of skill is confined to the more insignificant of his endeavors. He is a biology major with a ponderous fling for chemistry. He alone of the class had the nerve to take extra courses in such forbidding stuff as Atomic Physics, etc. He thinks in ions and solutions and for good measure in terms of cells and bacteria.

A resident of Philadelphia, Al has let the local medical schools go by the board and has chosen Georgetown as his future alma mater in the acquisition of his M.D, At the present time, however, the highly scientific aspect of Al's knowledge holds no interest for us because we have been trying to wheedle a hot phone number out of him for four months. We do not consider it blackmail to tell of his wolfing activities on the Paoli Local. . .nothing rash, but a line you could cut with a shovel. But seriously, Al is a fine student in two majors.

All four of these fellows have very sparkling careers ahead of them. All are in the first section of their class, and all will enter medical school this June; "Nemee" and Steve to Jefferson, "Mezz" to Hahnemann, and Resnick to Georgetown. We need not say that we wish them all the luck in the world. We are confident that they will make us proud of them.

However, the nod from the Navy at Washington, removed Rogalla from an enjoyable stay at that school.

Reporting to Villanova, Chief Rogalla once more set about the work of imparting physical condition and coordination to V-12 trainees. inning, and Alumni scored three only to have the rally fall one short of tying the game.

The spectators who watched the Marines B-Fedigan encounter on Tuesday really saw a good, old-fashioned slug-fest as the Fediganites were victorious 15-10. Hopping right on the offerings of Jim Griffiths, Marine pitcher, they went into a 7-3 lead during the first inning, and were never headed.

Feds Drop One

On Friday evening the Fedigs lost their first game of the week in another slugging match, 14-11 to Alumni. The whole story of this game is the reverse of the previous one. With Alumni jumping to a 6-0 advantage in their first time at bat, and adding 1 in the second, 4 in the third and 3 more in the fourth, they put down an 8 run rally of the C&F'ers in the last inning with plenty to spare.

The Leathernecks' B team slipped into last place on this night by losing to their service comrades, 9-3. With Charlie Gallicano, and Joe Habenich crossing the plate in the first inning, followed by Cassiano in the second, the A club built up a 3-1 lead and never relinquished it.

Hubka Angry

The final run came over in the third. Fetting and Siano walked and Frank Burns moved to right field with Kelly taking the mound. Fetting was trapped off second and Siano took second from where he scored on Ramsey's single. Hubka was so incensed at the decision that he almost forgot to throw "Shadow" out at third. It was too much Kelly as far as Villanova was concerned from this point on.

Bucknell scored its first run in the third. F. Burns singled to right center and E. Burns' error allowed him to reach second. Jack Hewson pushed a slow roller past short to score him. Run No. 2 came home when Lefkandinos beat out an infield hit, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Kelly's solid single to center. In the ninth Namisniak singled and was forced at second by Reash. Lefkandinos got his third hit, a double to left, putting the issue up to Kelly. However Mueller rose to the occasion and forced him to end the game by grounding to Warner.

destroyer escort at famous Pier 96, The D. E. saw duty in the North Atlantic. The most vivid of Seaman Draper's memories is one of a week-long hurricane encountered shortly before he received his orders to report to this station.

Filling the number five spot in today' line-up is Edward T. McGoldrick, a man who has returned to his native city, Philadelphia, after seeing a good chunk of the Western Hemisphere.

Experiences Earthquake

Ed enlisted almost two years ago and took his basic training at Great Lakes. From there our victim went to radio school at the University of Chicago. After finishing his training and getting his radioman's rate, Ed was sent to Norfolk for a period of two months.

His next stop was the Naval Air Station at San Juan, Puerto Rico. He served at this station for well over a year, earning his second class stripes during his stay.

The thing that stands out most in Ed's mind is the night that an earthquake struck San Juan. He will not soon forget the sensation of having the world shake about him while he tried to stand still.

Serves Aboard Ranger

Making it a sextet today is James J. Carey of Atlantic City, N. J. and points both east and west. Jimmy enlisted in May '42 and served his boots at Newport, R. I. From there he was switched to Norfolk and in a short time was riding the Atlantic swells aboard the U.S.S. Ranger, the aircraft carrier which made history at Casablanca. Jimmy was aboard the Ranger during its engagement with the Jean Bart.

Following this exciting bit of work came Atlantic duty—raids and convoy. Leaving the Ranger in December of '42 Jim was fortunate enough to spend Christmas at home that year. At the start of the new year he was assigned to the U.S.S. Independence, one of the cruiser-to-carrier types. While serving on this ship during her shakedown cruise in the Caribbean area Jim got his V-12 papers and came to Villanova after a short stop-over in Bainbridge.

Witnesses Water Spout

Last, yet far from least of today's specimens, is John J. Coyle, also a Fediganite. John, too, is a local boy since he first saw the light of day in Philadelphia at the start of the "roaring twenties."

Jack enlisted in August of 1942 and went through boots at Newport, R. I. From there he was transferred to Florida and served at several stations in this sunny state. From here he was transferred to Norfolk.

While serving at this Virginia base Jack heard that the U.S.S. New Jersey, which he had worked on as a civilian, was about to be commissioned. So he applied for a transfer to the new battlewagon. His request was granted and Shipfitter Coyle was a member of the crew that put Jersey through her paces during the shakedown cruise. Together with his shipmates Jack witnessed one of those nautical freaks, a water spout, a thing so rare that it will make swell telling to his grandchildren.

La Salle Alumni Honor President

Fr. Stanford Awarded Medal For Advancement Of Christian Principles; Third Presentation

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., LL.D., president of the College, was presented with the Signum Fidei Medal by the La Salle College Alumni Association at a reunion and dinner held in the Warwick Hotel at 7 o'clock last Thursday evening.

This award is given annually by the Association "in recognition of ditinguished service toward the advancement of Christian principles." According to the citation read at the banquet, Fr. Stanford was chosen for his significant representation of the Catholic college among nonsectarian and governmental college groups.

The citation read in part: "Our hearts throb in accents of deep gratitude when we recall how unselfishly and how devotedly you represent the cause of Catholic Education in whatever group you enter. But a very special tribute of heartfelt appreciation is your just due for your distinguished service as a member and as a consultant in various departments vitally concerned with the progress of the war effort and in the securing of a just and lasting peace. You are pleading our cause and that you are doing your work excellently well is amply attested by the grateful comment of the Hierarchy, the clergy, and of Catholics in general. As long as the memory of this conflict lingers in our minds, will your name be held ni grateful benediction by those whose cause you advocate so well."

Fr. Stanford is the third recipient of the medal. His predecessors in the honor are Brother Anselm, former President of La Salle College, and the late Karl H. Rodgers, founder of the Narberth Movement—one of the most renowned examples of Catholic action ever organized by laymen.

Service Record In New Alumnus

The cummer issue of the Villanova Alumnus appeared last week and proved to be filled with the same type of information that has made formed issues popular with Alumni in the service throughout the country and overseas.

A major portion of the book was taken up with the reprinting of the complete service record, brought up to date as usual. In connection with this, it was stated that the file in the Alumni Office listed 1,608 Villanovans in the various Armed Forces on May 1. In addition to this, 17 men from this college have made the ultimate sacrifice.

Also printed in this issue was a letter from the wife of the most recent casualty, Lt. William F. Garrity, '40, who met his death in an airplane crash in North Africa in March. Characterized by a Catholic faith that is humbling by its sincerity, this letter incorporated a statement of belief in her husband's character in a request by the bereft woman for a copy of the Villanovan which carried the news of Lt. Garrity's death as a keepsake for their infant son.

In his customary letter to the Alumni, Fr. Stanford, president, made some important statements clarifying the policy which has been adopted at Villanova to provide for returning service men. This is a matter which has been of interest to many since the college first started losing men who had not completed their courses to the Armed Forces two years ago.

Two important decisions were stated: 1) For those who study in service at a recognized college, the evaluation of courses by that college will be accepted here; and 2) for all who study under the Armed Forces Institute, Subject-matter examinations ,administered by that organization on request, will be the principal basis for evaluating credit.

Lt. Craven Married; Was Villanova Grad

Marine Second Lieutenant William A. Craven and Miss Marion Louise Wahl, both of Philadelphia, were married recently in Oceanside, near Camp Pendleton, California. Fellow officers and classmates of the bridegroom attended the couple at the ceremony.

A Villanova graduate with the class of 1943, Lt. Craven is currently undergoing training with a Marine combat unit at this base. During his college years he was active in student affairs, serving as manager of the track and baseball teams. He was commissioned after completing training at Quantico, Va.

We Need Your Cooperation

If this copy of the Villanovan is arriving at your home each week addressed to you husband, son, or brother who is in the service, won't you please forward it to him as first class mail. If he is stationed in this country and does not receive the paper, please send us his address so that he may placed on our mailing list. Your cooperation in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Villanova Salts

By JACK DEMPSEY, A.S.

Starting the ball rolling this week is George Bacsik, whose long and exciting Navy career began with training at Newport after he enlisted in the early part of 1942. Immediately after receiving his rating of Machinist's Mate, 2/c, he shipped aboard the U.S.S. Duncan, a destroyer.

The Duncan didn't stay in one spot for any length of time, and George often "hit the sack" at night as a member of the Atlantic Fleet and awaken as a member of the Pacific Arm.

A little over a half a year after he boarded her, the Duncan and George parted company. This parting of the ways occurred at Cape Osperance, in the Guadalcanal area, where the ship was sunk. Before she went down, however, the Duncan had successfully disposed of an enemy cruiser and a destroyer.

After fourteen uncomfortable hours in the brine, the crew of the Duncan was rescued by another "can," and eventually wound up at the Naval Base at Numia in New Caledonia.

The next ship George was assigned to was the now famous U.S.S. Boise which brought him to Philadelphia in January of last year. From there George was placed on the Shirlruln and saw duty in the North Atlantic Theater.

During a layover at Norfolk, he got his V-12 orders to report to Drew University on the first of July. George, now an engineer, came to Villanova at the beginning of this semester.

Among his many interesting experiences, the highlights in George's mind are only two: The first one occurred during the height of a tough battle, when his buddy, M.M. 1/c, L'Assigne, turned to him and asked him if he knew if he had taken the coffee pot off the stove, as it was worrying him.

The second surprise came when he and the crew found that a Jap officer, who they had picked up, owed his fluent English tongue to the fact that he was a graduate of U.C.L.A.

Playing second fiddle today (only numerically, however) is James B. Llewellyn who hails from the smokey city—Pittsburgh, to you non-Pennsylvanians. He enlisted in the summer of '42 and got his boots at Great Lakes. From there he was sent to Treasure Island, California, to wait for a troopship to take him to Numia.

Upon arriving at New Caledonia, "Buzz" was assigned to the U.S.S. Langman, a carrier, on which he served for a year in the capacity of Electrician's Mate 2/c. That year was a full one for the Langman, and Jim saw action — and plenty of it — at Guadalcanal, Tarawa, and Betio Island.

At the end of last year, Buzz was transferred to Pearl Harbor where he received his orders to report here on March 1. Buzz answered our "What do you consider your most outstanding experience?" with one word—Tarawa. He still remains aghast at all the things he saw and heard at that now almost lengendary battle.

Number three in this writing is Allan J. Curtis whose "American" now sounds just like yours but who had a decided broad "A" when first we heard him about a year ago. Born in England of American parents, Al held that "man with two countries" position, since he had

Leo Zollo, Popular At Labor Plaza, Signed For Phi Kappa Pi Hop June 10

Best Available In Local Talent To Provide Music For Gala Affair Sponsored By Engineers' Frat; Plans Near Completion; Ticket Salesmen Assigned To Each Hall

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

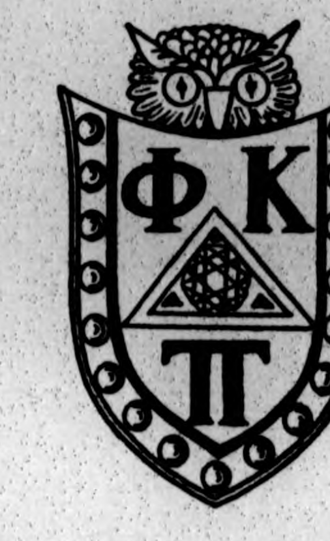
Scattering hither and yon, finishing up various odds and ends, the dance committees have finally settled down to completing arrangements for an enjoyable June Hop. Negotiations through the Orchestra Bureau of Philadelphia have been completed for the procurement of Leo Zollo and his orchestra for the semesterly dance of Phi Kappa Pi.

Leo Zollo may be remembered for his superb playing at the successful "Summer Hop" given by the Student Council back in '42. Since then Leo has continued up the ladder of fame to the high position he holds today.

Popular at Plaza

With his fine orchestra he has been featured at the Ritz-Carlton, Atlantic City, Sky Top Lodge in the Poconos of Pennsylvania, and the Walton Roof and Hotel Ben Franklin right here in our own city. He has also been booked at the Stevens House on Lake Placid, West End Casino on New Jersey's fashionable coast and the celebrated Miami Beach Casino in Florida.

Lingering near home, he completed two successful seasons at the fashionable Main Line Rainbow Terrace of the Covered Wagon Inn near Strafford. Thus Leo Zollo and his "music of a different style" comes to Villanova riding on the crest of popularity and fame to insure a long remembered evening for all.



Probably the best indication of his popularity is the admiration and plaudits he incessantly receives from the servicemen who've had the pleasure of being entertained by his orchestra at the Town Hall Labor Plaza.

To further insure the eminent success of this gala affair, the decorations committee have lavishly planned an appropriate and unique setting for the dance. Just what the settings will be has not been released for public consumption.

Tickets are now being distributed by representatives of the ticket committee in each hall, In Mendel Hall the representatives are Apprentice Seamen F. O'Connor, T. Schubert, G. Alshouse, and M. Roddy; M. McEntee for Fedigan; W. Regli for Alumni; and D. Rugen for Austin. The tickets are $1.75 plus tax. The government fee being $.35; bringing the total up to $2.10. All are urged to purchase tickets before the night of the dance in order that confusion at the door may be reduced to a minimum.

M. S. Villanova Drafted For War

Joins Navy As Mine Sweeper; Becomes U. S. S. Bullfinch

A sequel was written recently to the story of the M. S. Villanova, a Diesel-powered trawler whose launching at Bath, Maine, was reported by this paper in January of 1938.

At that time, the boat was the latest addition to the Boston fishing fleet of Francis J. O'Hara and Sons and embodied all the latest improvements and streamlined design. All steel construction and a special "soft nose" design of the stem to lessen the damage from head-on collisions were the principle features of the new trawler.

The fishing career of the vessel was cut short, however, when the Navy purchased her from her owners in 1940 and renamed her the "Bullfinch." She was transformed from a cargo vessel to a minesweeper, and thereafter was classified as a "Bird Boat."

Ensign Kull Writes

This information about the later life of the "Villanova" came to this office through a letter addressed here by Ensign Fred C. Kull, U.S.N.R., a graduate of the class of 1941.

Ensign Kull's experience with the boat came about in this manner: "I was stationed at Yorktown, Virginia, until about a month ago. During that time I had occasion to be aboard what had at one time been the S. S. Villanova. This seemed quite an incident for me, insofar as I remembered that the Villanovan ran a picture and an article regarding her launching in or about 1938. . ."

Used for Training

Mr. Kull went on to explain the work being done at present aboard the Bullfinch by saying that it is used to demonstrate the exact knowledge of minesweeping gear and armament and is possibly destined one day to be sent to the South Pacific for further duty. Thus far, however, it is still being handled by officer students as a training ship.

Her compliment as a naval vessel is four officers and 34 enlisted men, of whom the commanding officer is a lieutenant. At the time of Ensign Kull's letter, the ship was harbored at the York River—just outside of historic Yorktown, the site of the surrender of Cornwallis.

Chaplains Reunited In Pacific Jungle

A hint at the hardships being endured by Catholic chaplains all over the world and a clear indication of what it means to meet a fellow Villanovan in some obscure outpost of the present global conflict were contained in a letter received this week by the family of Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A., former faculty member.

The letter describes a recent experience of his as a "happy reunion somewhere in New Guinea of Chaplain Dillon, O.S.A., late of the Mission Band, and Chaplain Dunne, O.S.A., late of the faculty, amid a none too pleasant setting of knee-deep mud, torrential rains, snakes, buzzards ,and other pests of reptile life including yellow skinned creatures known as Japs."

American Council Adopts Statement On Congress Bill

Representatives of fifty national organizations concerned with education on all levels, both public and private, met May 5th, 1944 in Washington at the call of the American Council on Education. The pending legislation in Congress providing for the education of returning veterans was considered at length. The following statement was adopted unanimously:

1. The conference wishes to affirm its deep conviction in the wisdom of the traditional policy which reserves control of education to the states and localities, prudently left there by the Constitution of the United States.

2. We are in agreement with the general purposes of the Clark Omnibus Bill recently passed by the Senate and the Rankin Omnibus Bill now before the House of Representatives. But the educational provisions of these Bills violate this essential and fundamental principle of our form of government by setting up federal bureaucratic control in education.

3. We believe that the educational provisions of the Clark and Rankin Bills present the most serious threat to the existing state and local control of education that has yet appeared in this country.

4. We hold that if this menace to state and local control of education is to be defeated immediate action is needed on the part of all who oppose this invasion of states' rights by federal agencies. To be effective such action must be taken before May 10 on which date it is reported that the House of Representatives will vote on this legislation.

5 The Barden Bill, H. R. 3846, now before the House of Representatives, provides for state advisory committees, state selection of institutions, administration through state educational agencies, state counseling services for returning veterans, and the use of existing educational agencies and institutions. These provisions assure that existing facilities will be used under the direction of the several states, thereby providing greater educational benefits and services to returning veterans than would be possible under Federal Bureaucratic Control. We therefore urge that the Barden Bill should be adopted. As an alternative we urge that the Rankin (H. R. 4357) and Clark (S. 1767) Bills be amended by striking out Title II, Chapter IV, "Education for Veterans," and substituting therefor the provisions of the Barden Bill.

Members of the resolution committee are Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova and representing the National Catholic Educational Association, A. J. Brumbaugh, representing the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, O. C. Carmichael, Chairman of the American Council of Education, J. H. Saunders, representing the National Education Association, and John J. Seidel, representing the American Vocational Educational Association.

partment and boasts a record of scholastic achievement which is one of the best in Villanova's annals. He is a member of the car pool mentioned (Mezzanotte's car) and commutes every day from the environs of St. Joseph's College.

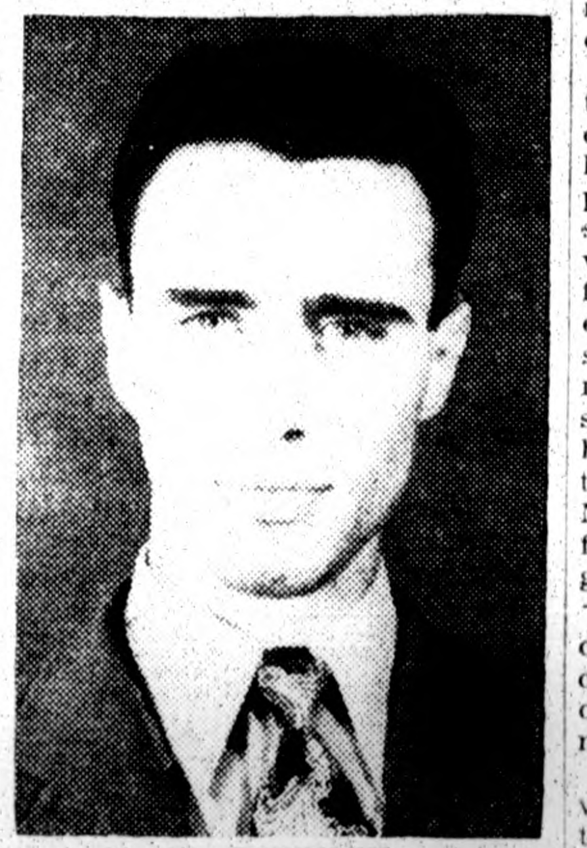
He is the sort of fellow who amazes professors of the good Dr. McClain's ilk. When a test or an exam is such a killer that eighty percent of the class has to rely on the bend in a curve, Al comes through with a terrific grade. Someone will ask, "How'd you make out Al?" "Not so well," he will say. "What was your mark?" "Ninety-six." And he's not kidding!

AL NEMEZ

For three of his four scholastic years Al did not take part in the back-lawn athletic and pinochle group of the pre-meds. When finally he was coaxed into a game, however, his prowess soon made him the "most likely to be desired as a partner." There has been a movement on foot to have him teach Resnick a thing or two about the popular in-or-outdoor sport, but Nemez has politely declined.

Al Resnick is undoubtedly the worst card-player in the district. Not that we play cards much (it says here) but it is certainly too much to bear to draw him for a partner and spend the rest of the lunch hour having your aces trumped and watching the opposition pile up a huge score.

But Al's lack of skill is confined to the more insignificant of his endeavors. He is a biology major with a ponderous fling for chemistry. He alone of the class had the nerve to take extra courses in such forbidding stuff as Atomic Physics, etc. He thinks in ions and solutions and for good measure in terms of cells and bacteria.



AL RESNICK

A resident of Philadelphia, Al has let the local medical schools go by the board and has chosen Georgetown as his future alma mater in the acquisition of his M.D. At the present time, however, the highly scientific aspect of Al's knowledge holds no interest for us because we have been trying to wheedle a hot phone number out of him for four months. We do not consider it blackmail to tell of his wolfing activities on the Paoli Local. . nothing rash, but a line you could cut with a shovel. But seriously, Al is a fine student in two majors.

All four of these fellows have very sparkling careers ahead of them. All are in the first section of their class, and all will enter medical school this June; "Nemee" and Steve to Jefferson, "Mezz" to Hahnemann, and Resnick to Georgetown. We need not say that we wish them all the luck in the world. We are confident that they will make us proud of them.

Last, yet far from least of today's specimens, is John J. Coyle, also a Fediganite. John, too, is a local boy since he first saw the light of day in Philadelphia at the start of the "roaring twenties."

Jack enlisted in August of 1942 and went through boots at Newport, R. I. From there he was transferred to Florida and served at several stations in this sunny state. From here he was transferred to Norfolk.

While serving at this Virginia base Jack heard that the U.S.S. New Jersey, which he had worked on as a civilian, was about to be commissioned. So he applied for a transfer to the new battlewagon. His request was granted and Shipfitter Coyle was a member of the crew that put Jersey through her paces during the shakedown cruise. Together with his shipmates Jack witnessed one of those nautical freaks, a water spout, a thing so rare that it will make swell telling to his grandchildren.

La Salle Alumni Honor President

Fr. Stanford Awarded Medal For Advancement Of Christian Principles; Third Presentation

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., LL.D., president of the College, was presented with the Signum Fidei Medal by the La Salle College Alumni Association at a reunion and dinner held in the Warwick Hotel at 7 o'clock last Thursday evening.

This award is given annually by the Association "in recognition of ditinguished service toward the advancement of Christian principles." According to the citation read at the banquet, Fr. Stanford was chosen for his significant representation of the Catholic college among nonsectarian and governmental college groups.

The citation read in part: "Our hearts throb in accents of deep gratitude when we recall how unselfishly and how devotedly you represent the cause of Catholic Education in whatever group you enter. But a very special tribute of heartfelt appreciation is your just due for your distinguished service as a member and as a consultant in various departments vitally concerned with the progress of the war effort and in the securing of a just and lasting peace. You are pleading our cause and that you are doing your work excellently well is amply attested by the grateful comment of the Hierarchy, the clergy, and of Catholics in general. As long as the memory of this conflict lingers in our minds, will your name be held ni grateful benediction by those whose cause you advocate so well."

Fr. Stanford is the third recipient of the medal. His predecessors in the honor are Brother Anselm, former President of La Salle College, and the late Karl H. Rodgers, founder of the Narberth Movement—one of the most renowned examples of Catholic action ever organized by laymen.

Service Record In New Alumnus

The summer issue of the Villanova Alumnus appeared last week and proved to be filled with the same type of information that has made formed issues popular with Alumni in the service throughout the country and overseas.

A major portion of the book was taken up with the reprinting of the complete service record, brought up to date as usual. In connection with this, it was stated that the file in the Alumni Office listed 1,608 Villanovans in the various Armed Forces on May 1. In addition to this, 17 men from this college have made the ultimate sacrifice.

Also printed in this issue was a letter from the wife of the most recent casualty, Lt. William F. Garrity, '40, who met his death in an airplane crash in North Africa in March. Characterized by a Catholic faith that is humbling by its sincerity, this letter incorporated a statement of belief in her husband's character in a request by the bereft woman for a copy of the Villanovan which carried the news of Lt. Garrity's death as a keepsake for their infant son.

In his customary letter to the Alumni, Fr. Stanford, president, made some important statements clarifying the policy which has been adopted at Villanova to provide for returning service men. This is a matter which has been of interest to many since the college first started losing men who had not completed their courses to the Armed Forces two years ago.

Two important decisions were stated: 1) For those who study in service at a recognized college, the evaluation of courses by that college will be accepted here; and 2) for all who study under the Armed Forces Institute, Subject-matter examinations ,administered by that organization on request, will be the principa lbasis for evaluating credit.

Lt. Craven Married; Was Villanova Grad

Marine Second Lieutenant William A. Craven and Miss Marion Louise Wahl, both of Philadelphia, were married recently in Oceanside, near Camp Pendleton, California. Fellow officers and classmates of the bridegroom attended the couple at the ceremony.

A Villanova graduate with the class of 1943, Lt. Craven is currently undergoing training with a Marine combat unit at this base. During his college years he was active in student affairs, serving as manager of the track and baseball teams. He was commissioned after completing training at Quantico, Va.

We Need Your Cooperation

If this copy of the Villanovan is arriving at your home each week addressed to you husband, son, or brother who is in the service, won't you please forward it to him as first class mail. If he is stationed in this country and does not receive the paper, please send us his address so that he may placed on our mailing list. Your cooperation in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Villanova Salts

By JACK DEMPSEY, A.S.

Starting the ball rolling this week is George Bacsik, whose long and exciting Navy career began with training at Newport after he enlisted in the early part of 1942. Immediately after receiving his rating of Machinist's Mate, 2/c, he shipped aboard the U.S.S. Duncan, a destroyer.

The Duncan didn't stay in one spot for any length of time, and George often "hit the sack" at night as a member of the Atlantic Fleet and awaken as a member of the Pacific Arm.

A little over a half a year after he boarded her, the Duncan and George parted company. This parting of the ways occurred at Cape Osperance, in the Guadalcanal area, where the ship was sunk. Before she went down, however, the Duncan had successfully disposed of an enemy cruiser and a destroyer.

The next ship George was assigned to was the now famous U.S.S. Boise which brought him to Philadelphia in January of last year. From there George was placed on the Shirlruln and saw duty in the North Atlantic Theater.

During a layover at Norfolk, he got his V-12 orders to report to Drew University on the first of July. George, now an engineer, came to Villanova at the beginning of this semester.

Among his many interesting experiences, the highlights in George's mind are only two: The first one occurred during the height of a tough battle, when his buddy, M.M. 1/c, L'Assaigne, turned to him and asked him if he knew if he had taken the coffee pot off the stove, as it was worrying him.

The second surprise came when he and the crew found that a Jap officer, who they had picked up, owed his fluent English tongue to the fact that he was a graduate of U.C.L.A.

Playing second fiddle today (only numerically, however) is James B. Llewellyn who hails from the smokey city—Pittsburgh, to you non-Pennsylvanians. He enlisted in the summer of '42 and got his boots at Great Lakes. From there he was sent to Treasure Island, California, to wait for a troopship to take him to Numia.

Upon arriving at New Caledonia, "Buzz" was assigned to the U.S.S. Langman, a carrier, on which he served for a year in the capacity of Electrician's Mate 2/c. That year was a full one for the Langman, and Jim saw action — and plenty of it — at Guadalcanal, Tarawa, and Betio Island.

At the end of last year, Buzz was transferred to Pearl Harbor where he received his orders to report here on March 1. Buzz answered our "What do you consider your most outstanding experience?" with one word—Tarawa. He still remains aghast at all the things he saw and heard at that now almost lengendary battle.

Number three in this writing is Allan J. Curtis whose "American" now sounds just like yours but who had a decided broad "A" when first we heard him about a year ago. Born in England of American parents, Al held that "man with two countries" position, since he had

Best Available In Local Talent To Provide Music For Gala Affair Sponsored By Engineers' Frat; Plans Near Completion; Ticket Salesmen Assigned To Each Hall

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

Scattering hither and yon, finishing up various odds and ends, the dance committees have finally settled down to completing arrangements for an enjoyable June Hop. Negotiations through the Orchestra Bureau of Philadelphia have been completed for the procurement of Leo Zollo and his orchestra for the semesterly dance of Phi Kappa Pi.

Leo Zollo may be remembered for his superb playing at the successful "Summer Hop" given by the Student Council back in '42. Since then Leo has continued up the ladder of fame to the high position he holds today.

Popular at Plaza

With his fine orchestra he has been featured at the Ritz-Carlton, Atlantic City, Sky Top Lodge in the Poconos of Pennsylvania, and the Walton Roof and Hotel Ben Franklin right here in our own city. He has also been booked at the Stevens House on Lake Placid, West End Casino on New Jersey's fashionable coast and the celebrated Miami Beach Casino in Florida.

Lingering near home, he completed two successful seasons at the fashionable Main Line Rainbow Terrace of the Covered Wagon Inn near Strafford. Thus Leo Zollo and his "music of a different style" comes to Villanova riding on the crest of popularity and fame to insure a long remembered evening for all.

Probably the best indication of his popularity is the admiration and plaudits he incessantly receives from the servicemen who've had the pleasure of being entertained by his orchestra at the Town Hall Labor Plaza.

To further insure the eminent success of this gala affair, the decorations committee have lavishly planned an appropriate and unique setting for the dance. Just what the settings will be has not been released for public consumption.

Tickets are now being distributed by representatives of the ticket committee in each hall, In Mendel Hall the representatives are Apprentice Seamen F. O'Connor, T. Schubert, G. Alshouse, and M. Roddy; M. McEntee for Fedigan; W. Regii for Alumni; and D. Rugen for Austin. The tickets are $1.75 plus tax. The government fee being $.35; bringing the total up to $2.10. All are urged to purchase tickets before the night of the dance in order that confusion at the door may be reduced to a minimum.

M. S. Villanova Drafted For War

Joins Navy As Mine Sweeper; Becomes U. S. S. Bullfinch

A sequel was written recently to the story of the M. S. Villanova, a Diesel-powered trawler whose launching at Bath, Maine, was reported by this paper in January of 1938.

At that time, the boat was the latest addition to the Boston fishing fleet of Francis J. O'Hara and Sons and embodied all the latest improvements and streamlined design. All steel construction and a special "soft nose" design of the stem to lessen the damage from head-on collisions were the principle features of the new trawler.

The fishing career of the vessel was cut short, however, when the Navy purchased her from her owners in 1940 and renamed her the "Bullfinch." She was transformed from a cargo vessel to a minesweeper, and thereafter was classified as a "Bird Boat."

Ensign Kull Writes

This information about the later life of the "Villanova" came to this office through a letter addressed here by Ensign Fred C. Kull, U.S.N.R., a graduate of the class of 1941.

Ensign Kull's experience with the boat came about in this manner: "I was stationed at Yorktown, Virginia, until about a month ago. During that time I had occasion to be aboard what had at one time been the S. S. Villanova. This seemed quite an incident for me, insofar as I remembered that the Villanovan ran a picture and an article regarding her launching in or about 1938. . ."

Used for Training

Mr. Kull went on to explain the work being done at present aboard the Bullfinch by saying that it is used to demonstrate the exact knowledge of minesweeping gear and armament and is possibly destined one day to be sent to the South Pacific for further duty. Thus far, however, it is still being handled by officer students as a training ship.

Her compliment as a naval vessel is four officers and 34 enlisted men, of whom the commanding officer is a lieutenant. At the time of Ensign Kull's letter, the ship was harbored at the York River—just outside of historic Yorktown, the site of the surrender of Cornwallis.

Chaplains Reunited In Pacific Jungle

A hint at the hardships being endured by Catholic chaplains all over the world and a clear indication of what it means to meet a fellow Villanovan in some obscure outpost of the present global conflict were contained in a letter received this week by the family of Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A., former faculty member.

The letter describes a recent experience of his as a "happy reunion somewhere in New Guinea of Chaplain Dillon, O.S.A., late of the Mission Band, and Chaplain Dunne, O.S.A., late of the faculty, amid a none too pleasant setting of knee-deep mud, torrential rains, snakes, buzzards ,and other pests of reptile life including yellow skinned creatures known as Japs."

The Old Spirit

AS long as there is a real Villanovan in the College there will always be an attempt to revive the "old spirit" of the campus. It has reached an all-time low and if we remain in the rut where we are now, this will be nothing but an institution for learning. There will be no extra curricula.

In every college and university in the country, and Villanova is no exception, there is a loyal spirit and deep devotion for the old Alma Mater. A place of learning can hardly exist without this feeling. When we are taught something, we really appreciate it whether we realize it now or not. In each college there is always a traditional way of doing things. No prof or student can change this. It has lasted here at Villanova since before we were born and it will last long after we are dead. A good example is our "hello habit". However, many things have been curtailed because of the war. These restrictions will be lifted some day and Villanova again will go on with her normal way of living.

Until the normal times come again, we cannot just sit back and forget about all the traditions and habits and lose all the spirit which is customary of a Villanovan. Many fellows feel this way and have tried to revive the old spirit. So far they have met with stone wall resistance and they claim the reason for this resistance is because of the three different groups on the campus.

The three groups are the Sailors, Marines and the Civilians. There is no real dissention among these groups because they are seen together all over the campus. The Navy might wisecrack about the Marines, but they generally get two back for every one crack they make. All three play ball, work in the labs, survey in the fields, and even do their homework together. Even though most of them live in separate halls, they eat and go to class with each other.

The real trouble is caused by the fact that there is a different kind of classification for the fellows. Here, again, there are three main groups — forgetting about military status. There are those who came here from another college — they are here only because they were put here. Some of these have nothing to do with Villanova or anything concerned with it. This same crowd will actually oppose everything Villanova stands for. Then again there is the second group, the students direct from high school and finally the students that were here before the war. In this latter group are the worst offenders.

In the first group—the men from other colleges—are the only ones who can be partially excused. They still have in their hearts a loyalty to their old Alma Mater. Regardless of this they can still cooperate and help to keep their stay here from being monotonous and boring. They can still have allegiance to their former school without hindering the effort that is being made to keep them happy here. If they do not appreciate this attempted hospitality they should at least swing along with it rather than oppose it. Most of them do this and feel the advantages of it.

As far as the students from high school are concerned, little can be said. They never knew what college life was like. Some of them have failed in one way only—they will not even try to find out. Some of them have still never been to a college dance. Let's hope that they will see this wrong and accept the help that some of the regular Villanovans are extending to them.

Little praise can be given to the pre-war Villanovans.

Meet the Boys

Eugene Cecil, AS, USNR, is our first guest of the day. Born down south in Tennessee, Gene found Washington his residence at a tender age, and it was while in high school there that the mechanical enginering bug took its grip on him.

Guns and the associated line of gun-smithing took his fancy as did the operation of gasoline engines. Track and the other usual activities of high school were mere sidelines with him.

After graduation from high school, Gene was employed by the British government in Washington, working in the communications department of the British Air Commission.

Two years of this, with the persistent attraction to guns and an interest in Diesel Engineering, led Gene to Catholic University and its Mechanical Engineering School. To help out with expenses and to obtain pin money, Gene worked for the "Washington Evening Star," serving as assistant engineer in the press room, thus adding to his store of valuabel experience.

EUGENE CECIL, A.S.

While at Catholic University, he also helped in repair work on their "atom-smasher," thus giving further evidence of his true calling. During this time, he was employed in the Physics Department there.

Catholic University was also the place for the old cupid angle in Gene's thus far "mechanical" life. "Freshman Chemistry class was the exact location of the meeting," he tells us.

As a sophomore, Gene tried to enlist in the Navy's V-7 Program, but just missed out by lacking some of the necessary scholastic requirements to secure the probationary Ensign's commission awarded at that time. V-12, however, looked good, with the result that last July found Gene at Villanova.

When the semester is completed in June, Gene hopes to be assigned to the Reserve School at either Annapolis or Columbia. "'Post-Bellum' plans," he said, "seem rather distant, but I would like gun work, for instance with the Winchester or Remington companies. They receive most of my money, as it is, for I put all my spare change in fire-arms. Work on internal combustion engines would also be to my liking."

Whichever it is, Gene, we have no doubt concerning the outcome—success.

Introducing Pvt. Wayne Jones, USMCR, we run into a story which might well belong to a modern Gulliver. Born in Washington on the 27th of February, 1923, Wayne was not destined to remain in any one spot for long.

Travel, as necessitated by the posts held by his father, a colonel in the marine corps, became Wayne's most frequent occupation. Besides living in places located all over the states, he also resided at various naval stations and marine barracks in Panama, Hawaii, Guam, Wake, the Philippines, and China.

China in particular proved to be far from a dull pot. In 1928 in Teinsein, Wayne saw a part of the civil war there; and in 1937, he saw the beginning of Japanese aggression in Shanghai. Spain also developed into somewhat of a hot spot during Wayne's stay, for while he was there ,the revolution which deposed Alphonso XIII took place.

During these periods, school of course, proved to be quite a problem. Wayne has attended more schools than the best of tramp athletes, having a total of 28 to his

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

SO many of the fellows have been asking of the whereabouts of Fr. Dunne that it is about time something was found out about him. The other night Fr. Burke came up with about six V-mail letters from him, so take it out on him for not telling us.

Anyway, the first one was from a transport in the South Pacific. He didn't know where he was going, of course, but he was enjoying the trip immensely. As was right in his line, he was organizing an amateur show with the fellows Finally, in about the third letter, we found that he is in New Guinea. Father said that his opinion of the place has greatly changed from the one he had gotten from the Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and D. Lamour pictures, You will remember that they were his favorites.

He says that there is nothing there but mud and rain and heat, but through it all he has been able to keep clean-shaven. We all remember Fr. Dunne for his good-friendship with the fellows and his immortal "Come on, Alumni!"

Some interesting experiences about a Marine M. P. come from Carl Yeager, who for the past seven months has been doing gate duty at Quonset Pt., R. I. He is thankful to be finished with that job and is now stationed on a small island off the east coast with a handful of marines. Carl says that the work is tough but the food and sleep are plentiful. However, he says that his best days were at Villanova and he can't wait to get back to school again. (We have no comments).

John Sutton, who is a Marine Lt., writes that he has just graduated from R.O.S. (Reserve Officer School I think) at Quantico and is waiting to be assigned. He mentions that Joe McCarthy, Johnny Dzitko and Al Postus have just arrived, and that Joe Pezelski received his commission the day that he graduated from R.O.S.

Mike Lingenfelter sends word that he was just moved from New Guinea to the Admiralty Islands. Mike saw a few Jap prisoners and confirmed the newsreels in stating that they look just as emaciated,

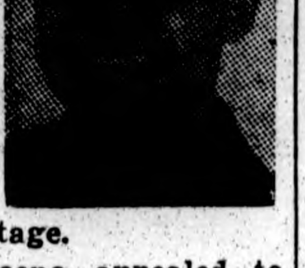
As a reminder to Joe Dunnigan, who is in the Naval Hospital, that we are thinking of him, we all send our best.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

OPERA had always seemed to Joe V. Twelve a thing to be tolerated, but certainly not attended, by normal people. Along with a few hazy Physics formulas, a suppressed feeling of curiosity concerning this art lurked in the back of his cranium; for he would occasionally meet individuals whom he considered sensible, and who said that opera was "good stuff." A chance to secure an "Annie Oakley" to "La Boheme" last week presented Joe with his long awaited chance to "see for himself."

Realizing that the stuff was going to be a "little obscure", Joe hustled to the library to get a simplified version of the plot so that he would, at least, know whether the fat dame (he had heard that there was always, for some reason, an overweight female to sing the high notes) was making love to or screaming at the poor little guy across the stage.



The opening scene appealed to Joe . . . it is a barren, ice-cold room in the Bohemian students' quarter in Paris. Rudolph, a writer, and Marcel, a painter, are arguing whether the former should burn his manuscript or the latter his painting for warmth. Immediately,, Joe's sense of sympathy was touched . . . here was a situation out of which any number of plots could develop. The fuel problem, as well as a less significant lack of food difficulty, is solved by the arrival of a third fellow "artist," who has just sold one of his latest creations. (Joe coudn't find out what this one did for a living but deduced that he was the 17th Century Irv Sacks.)

The romantic element is introduced when Mimi, a cute chick, waltzes in on the boys. Things develop wonderfully; Mimi falls for Rudy's mushy songs and Marcel's old flame, Musette, gives her latest Sugar Daddy the gate to return and make it a happy family, again. As Joe had suspected, the author was too darned realistic, and in Act Four, there is the usual tear-jerking set of circumstances . . . Mimi kicks off, Musette hits the road, and the poor guys are back where they started.

From his perch in the fourth balcony, Joe got a bombardier's view of the panorama. He found the "characters" watching the show even more interesting than the ones on the stage, but, naturally, didn't realize that they returned the compliment.

After Hours

By LeRoy Collegeman

IT'S TOUGH TO BE POOR. . .

Due to circumstances beyond their control the boys of Fourth Deck Mendel, chairman Ed Grostas, would like to purchase a new or used washing machine. . .very cheap. . .apply at above-mentioned place any day, night or afternoon. . .in fact if you are interested, any time will do . . . Adv. Now that I have earned my spending money for the week I can go right into the more interesting drivel . . .

Down in Austin Hall, Bill Carter has been singing "Maybe she's a dream" ever since the Embezzler's Ball. . .this dream was furnished to Bill through the courtesy of Cpl. "Proud Papa" McGrath as a blind date for the E.B. and he, not "PP" but Bill, has been seeing a lot of the young miss. . .There were quite a few other fellows offered this same opportunity but didn't have enough $time$ to take Peggy and their morning-after moans were hardly distinguishable from those of the Norristown Nightowls. . .

The Marines must not be getting enough pay because just recently Tom O'Connell had to sell one of his many cars to Irv Sachs. . .almost. After giving all the details as to the condition of the car, where to see it and telephone number as to how to call about it, to Mr. Irv Sachs personally, Tom decided that the car had a sentimental value far greater than the price offered and at the last minute cancelled the deal. . .if things get real tough Tom, you can always take in washing. . .

IT'S GREAT TO BE LUCKY. . .

All of us has wished at some time or other that th eobject of his affections was close at hand. . .well, one young man, name of Bill Schurr, has had his wish fulfilled in th person of a young lady named Mary who lives about a hundred yards from the edge of the campus. . .that type of relationship seems perfect for the social side of life and while it is not particularly helpful in getting homework done it makes the process of flunking out very sweet.

Will Adams of Alumni hall is another lucky guy in the same boat with Bill, as he too has his most current heartthrob within a stone's throw of the campus. . .her name is Phyllis but Will confides to his friends that he really thinks of her as his "Goddess" . . .and he is going to hate me.

Student's Streak Snapped As They Drop Two Decisions

Mendel Takes Two To Tie For Second Position Along With Marine "A" And Fedigan; "B" Team Finally Wins Two

Last week the Civilian Resident Students finally lost their first game of the current campaign of the Intramural Softball season. The last place Marine "B" team were the victors in this Monday night encounter to the score of 7-5. On Thursday, the Students were seemingly unable to shake off the losing act as they lost once more to the second place Marine "A" team, 9-7. However, Friday found these top-flighters back in their old stride as they buried their Monday eve conquerors deeper into the cellar to a heavy 12-7 score.

Mendel Hall put in a determined bid for second place as they won two games, Monday night Alumni being the victim 10-4, and on Thursday night the engineers shortened the Marine "A" lead by beating that club, 4-2. Thursday proved to be the day which kept the slide-rule boys out of second position when the team they had so firmly drubbed earlier came back to nose them out in a close game featuring a protested play.

Close Play

In the third inning with one out, and Hogg on first, Belletti at second, and Gillespie on third base for Mendel, Bill Connors hit a hot liner down to Gallagher, Alumni's shortstop. Gallagher dropped the ball, and the runners began to move. Gallagher quickly tagged Belletti who had hesitated for a moment, and then ran across second base before Hogg arrived.

A dispute arose when Mendel claimed that Gillespie had scored before the last out, however it was later agreed that the third out had been made before what would have proved to be the tying run had scored. The final score gave Alumni the verdict 8-7.

Two Wins

Marine "B" won their first on Monday, ironically enough inflicting the first loss that the Civilians have suffered. Seeming to like the winning feeling, the "B" Leathernecks came back on Thursday to trounce Fedigan in a free-swinging game played on a wet field by 15-12, Friday night, however, the Bees returned to the red column at the hands of the chastened league leaders, 12-7.

Fat Men Stage Field Carnival

Boston's "Shortwind Flyer" Triumphs Over Brilliant Field; Donaghue Justly Rewarded

On Tuesday afternoon May 23, 1944, Capt. Robert Morgan and Ensign Sam Maniaci, official judges for the strangest and most grueling race to be held in the vicinity of Villanova, gathered together the contestants and gave them last minute instructions. What was this race? The few choice contestants had the dubious honor of matching fight and courage for the title of fastest fat man in Austin Hall.

Instructions called for the race to start with 25 squat thrusts, to continue with the obstacle course and to finish up with a quarter-mile heat around the track.

Seven Entries

The entries as they were lined up in the starting boxes were as follows: Pvt. Frank X. Dolan, the Washington entry; Pvt. Joseph E. Kerrigan Jr., the Heavyweight Express; Pvt. Alexander Coleman, the Strafford Romeo; Pvt. Francis X. Crowley, The Shortwind Flyer; Pvt. Foster W. Blough, the Spars contribution to the contest; Pvt. Howard J. Connelly, Ear Banger extraordinary; and Pvt. John J. Donaghue, last minute entry in lieu of Greg D'Angelo, the Black Markets Choice, who fatally injured his toe (he had adhesive tape to prove it!).

The contestants all eager to show their prowess, were dragged, pushed, and poured into position as the

Swarthmore Sunk 81-45 By Wildcats

Cindermen Take Nine Firsts To Sweep Meet; All Places Taken In Field Events

The Villanova thinclads finally "hit their stride" last Saturday in swamping Swarthmore College 81-45. Several of the races proved to be "thrillers," the times being exceptional considering the condition of the track, heavy with a week's rain, Villanova took first in nine of the fourteen track events, sweeping all places in the shotput, javelin and discus.

High scoring honors went jointly to George Rideout, and Paul Ruby. A win in the high hurdles, plus seconds in the lows and high jump gave Rideout a total of eleven points for the day. Paul Ruby tallied an equal number by virtue of his double win, the shot and Javelin, and third place in the high jump.

Bad Spill

In the opening event of the meet Rideout out-sprinted Swarthmore's lanky hurdler, John Moore to take the 120 High Hurdles. Burt Cox's easy stride carried him to a win in the quarter in 52.8 sec., with Chuck Harrington finishing a close second.

John Atkinson pulled a surprise victory when he led the field by 15 yards to take the half mile. A bad spill in the fight for positions at the first turn destroyed "Red" Well's chances for a probable victory in this event.

In spite of a taped leg as a result of a pulled muscle in the I.C.4-a's Jim Morris pushed Wingers to exceptional times in the two sprints, while he captured a pair of seconds in these races. Joe Smith placed third in the century.

Brilliant Mile

Started by a blistering 61-second first quarter, the mile grind developed into the outstanding race of the day. Villanova's Don Schmitt led the pack for the entire route, but was closely tailed, by the Garnet's Jim Grote whose challenge in the back-stretch was neatly met by the Villanova runner. Don finished 20 yards ahead of Grote, breaking the tape in 4:39.5 . . . Jack Cockroft, in his initial appearance on the cinders "poured on the heat" in the final lap to take a close third place.

The surprise of the day was

Locals Play Swarthmore and F&M in Return Games

Will Face Brilliant Garnet Pitching For Second Consecutive Week; Diplomats Back To Disprove 11-4 Loss

Villanova's baseball team will take the field twice this week in an effort to better its season's record against Swarthmore away on June 3 and Franklin and Marshall at home on June 5. Both teams have been met before. One win for the locals was registered in their 11-4 beating of the Diplomats but Swarthmore reversed the score Saturday, 11-3.

Previous to their win over the Villanovans, the Swarthmore nine had a spotty record of 4 wins and 6 losses. They lost games to Navy, Army, Penn State, Princeton, Ursinus and Muhlenberg while coming up with victories over the same Ursinus club, F. & M., Penn and Lehigh.

The probable Garnet line-up will look something like this: Skelley, 3rd base; Monsvhien, rf; Kachadurian, cf; Reese, 2nd base; Youngblood, lf; Perrotty, c; Brodie, 1st base; Barnes, ss, and either Lobell or Morton, pitcher.

Diplomats Here

The Franklin and Marshall contest will be held at home next Monday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. The Diplomats will come to the Main Line campus seeking revenge for the 11-4 setback which they suffered at the hands of the 'Cats and will field the same nine men as before with the possible exception of the pitcher. Ready to go in the inner cordon will be McGuigan, Ginda, Phillips and Karl, playing from 1st to 3rd base in that order, while set to roam the outer pastures will be Sweeney in center, McLean in left, and Dally in right.

Same Lineup

Out for their sixth win of the season will trot the same combination which has been playing in the past few games. Starting off at bat will be "Slugger Al" Sondheimer playing in left field. Following him will be another big man, Jim DiSalvo who cavorts in the center gardens. Both of these men go a full 140 pounds on the scales and plenty of action can be expected once they get on the base paths. Batting immediately after them will be "Squeeky" Warner who will plug the gap between second and third with "Barrel" Burns, right fielder, hitting in the clean-up slot, followed by Dick Breen. Batting from the sixth position will be "Two Jacks" Fetting with catcher John Siano and "Hot Corner" Ramsey ready to tag that old apple if necessary.

Team Drops Two In Poor Showings

Swarthmore And Ursinus Trim 'Cats 10-3 And 3-1 Respectively; Mueller Good Even In Defeat

The Villanova powerhouse seemed to stall with men on base and go completely dead in the infield as it lost to Swarthmore 10-3 and Ursinus 3-1 in a ten inning game. In these games 24 runners died on base.

Errors of omission by the inner defense were apparent in both defeats. Failure to touch second base on an attempted double play left the door open for Swarthmore and it promptly sent eight runs over the plate to put the game in its pocket. First and third base were left open on a sacrifice in the tenth inning of the Ursinus game and the winning run was the direct result. To date, mental errors have been more costly than the 15 miscues actually charged over the seven games played.

Two Strong Men

At the plate there is a definite lack of extra base power. Out of 61 hits only 7 have been for more than one base. In the seven games played 64 men have been left on base, 33 in the four victories and 31 in the three defeats.

John Siano and Ed Burns, with 12 and 9 respectively, have batted in more than the combined total of their teammates. Ed has hit in every game to date and sports a .500 average while John is hitting a mere .259.

The pitching over the season to date has been excellent. It has been touched up for 54 hits good for 28 runs of which only 18 were earned. Mueller leads the strike out department with 30 of the 45 credited to the mound corps to date. Weinert is the wild man having issued 16 of the 23 walks allowed.

To get a better picture of the pitching situation consider the following break-down of the pitchers records to date: Mueller, in 36 innings—33 hits; 12 runs, only 4 earned; 30 strike outs; 2 walks; 2 wins and 2 losses: Lafferty, in 6 innings—5 hits, 1 run, earned; 2 strike outs; 1 walk; 1 win: Weinert, in 11 2/3 innings—11 hits; 11 runs, 10 earned; 9 strike outs; 16 walks; 1 win and 1 loss: Greeley, in 8 1/3 innings—5 hits; 4 runs; 3 earned; 4 strike outs; 4 walks; Naslund retired three men on flies in one inning.

Good Reliefs

Swarthmore combined eight walks an error, a missed double play, and six hits to build a ten run lead in the first three innings and coasted to victory behind Lobell's steady pitching. The 'Cats were constantly threatening but left 11 men on base. The relief pitching of Greeley and Naslund stood out for the locals.

Gordon Mueller was the victim of errors of omission and commission in his ten inning duel with Bill Shegda. Villanova blew an excellent chance to win in the ninth when George Warner was caught at the plate on his attempted steal with the bases loaded and two out.

Another threat was snuffed out in the tenth when Shegda put on the brakes after walking two men and forced Lewin to pop out in his pinch-hitting role and then trapped Siano off base to end the game.

Swarthmore Scores 8-1 Over Tennis Team

The young Main Line Tennis team fell for their second consecutive loss last Wednesay when a definitely superior Swarthmore team trounced them convincingly, 8-1.

The match was played on the Garnet courts. The only loss for the Little Quakers was when the Villanova captain Jerry Dwyer defeated the Garnet captain, Bruce Stewart in a close match 5-7, 7-5, 8-6.

No Doubles Win

Losses for the Villanovans were suffered by Harold Winkler, Bob Forrest, Jimmy Shea, Bill Glick and Don Sawtelle in singles. In the doubles, Forrest and Dwyer, Parl and Sillery, and Curtis and Hoffman all dropped their matches.

The match scheduled for last Saturday with Temple A.S.T.P. has been rescheduled for today. The condition of the courts would not permit play Saturday.

Very little time to practice is one of the main reasons the team is not doing as well as they expect. The rainy weather of the past week has left the courts unavailable for play. However with more matches in the offing better results are expected.

case may be and the race was on with a push!

Donaghue Leads

Donaghue took the lead by being the first to finish the squat thrusts but Coleman rose from the ground an instant later for a close second. Presently all contestants were on the course with Donaghue in the lead as he climbed over the height obstacle with the "Strafford Romeo" hot on his heels. The rest pushed and shoved each other off in the fight for the lead. (A civil engineer present calculated a 25% overload on the supporting timbers).

At this crucial moment, the Boston Strong Boy, alias "Shortwind Flyer" alias Frank Crowely showed his fighting courage by hanging from the topmost support and plummeting to the ground in order to save a few precious seconds.

The "Strafford Romeo" took the lead when John Donaghue, due to a lapse of memory, missed the rope swing. The Beantown Bomber, Crowely, however, was steadily gaining and was on Coleman's heels when the latter had trouble grasping the parallel bars. They were neck to neck as they raced for the cinder path and the home stretch. Crowely lurched into the lead just before the track was reached with Coleman following close behind. The "Romeo" hung on a close second half way around the track until the "Flyer" with an extra burst of energy (compliments of Wheaties) took the lead in the last stretch to win by an extra-chin as the crowd went wild.

PVT. JOHN DONAGHUE

"Flyer" Champ

Asked for a statement for the press, the champ snapped, "It was (puff) a great race (puff, puff) and I'm glad I (puff) won!" With that remark, the Shortwind Flyer picked himself off the cinders and modestly retired. John Donaghue was the final man to break the tape.

Among the celebraties at the race was Lt. McClintock, Lt. Roach, Chief Rogallo, First Sergeant Lewis and Corporal Breem.

Donaghue Rewarded

Pvt. Donaghue was awarded a specially chosen prize, also by direction of Capt. Morgan. The prize was handed to John only on condition that he would wear it at all times and to take good care of it. John faithfully, with tear stained eyes promised, and there and then was accepted as a member of the "Amalgamated Better-Form Garment Wearers of America." Upon presentation of the prize, a boneless straitjacket, termed in the vernacular as a corset, John sheepishly waddled off to parts unknown. John was informed that he might be "allowed" to wear his prize another 30 days by being caught without it.

It is rumored that the "Garment Wearers Ass'n" is looking for bigger and better models to be appointed by Capt. Morgan.

citizenship in both England and America, till his twenty-first birthday.

Just about the time when he would be forced to make up his mind one way or the other, Al joined the American Navy, although still in the British Isles, and thus evaded the issue. Sent to Londondery, North Ireland for training, Al was booked for work in the Embassy in London and was transferred back to the great city upon the completion of his basic training.

While at the Embassy, Al's V-12 orders came through and he lost no time getting here via troopship and Bainbridge. When asked if his enlistment in the U. S. Navy didn't automatically cancel his British citizenship, Al replied with a nonchalant "Why I never even thought of it."

Making it four is Norman H. Hogg, another engineer-to-be who enlisted shortly after Pearl Harbor and was immediately sent to Newport for training. He remained there for about a month, after completion of his training, serving as a seaman guard.

Following this duty came Signal school at Butler University during the summer of '42. After earning his signalman's stripes Norm went to Norfolk where he boarded the U.S.S. Bogue, a carrier.

Skipper is Villanova Grad

The Bogue was assigned to Atlantic Duty and Norm saw a good deal of patrol and anti-sub work. Those far-traveling V-12 papers reached Norm in North Africa and he reported here on November 1 after a short stretch of duty in ships' company at Bainbridge.

Norm's most interesting memory is a rather cold one. It is the picture of his ship plowing through thick layers of ice when on duty in the far northern reaches of the Atlantic.

John H. Moran, fifth Mendelite and a local boy, enlisted in December 1942. By sheer luck—for the most part bad — he left for boots on Christmas day. After completing basic at Great Lakes, Jack was sent to Quartermaster School at Newport.

Four months later, with his newly acquired rating, he was ordered to Newfoundland to pick up his ship. Jack got there all right but the ship stood him up—so for the next three months he did shore patrol work in that area.

Finally, however, his ship, the U.S.S. Goldfinch, showed up and Jack got his chance to get his sea legs. He must have a good set by now, since (if he wasn't talking with a bit of blarney in his voice) the ship, a small one, had a list of at least 90 degrees for the five months he was on board. "This," he assured us, "was only in mild weather. You should have seen it when there was a good wind." Oh! Well.

By the way, it is certainly of local interest to report that Jack's skipper, Lt. F. X. Connors, was a Villanova graduate.

Aboard Battle Wagon

Last of the seasome four of 251 Mendel is Joseph J. Mattiace, another Philadelphian. He enlisted in January of '43 and got his boots at Bainbridge after which came Machinist's Mate school at Boston for four months. Following this came the usual brief sojourn at pier 72, New York harbor, from where he boarded the U.S.S. DuPont.

While on this destroyer, Joe saw anti-sub action in the Atlantic and North African waters. His ship was attached to a task force with the previously mentioned Bogue. Joe's V-12 orders caught up with him at Portland, Maine and he too came to Villanova via the Bainbridge route.

Joe's chief memory of his sea life is that of the ease with which men in battle performed their duties.

Next in line is George A. Shirn of Williamsport, Pa., who enlisted before history was written at Pearl Harbor. Anxious to get to sea, he turned down an opportunity to go to the electrician's school, and was quickly placed aboard the U.S.S. Texas, one of the big babies in our ever-expanding Navy.

Since we were not as yet in the war, the Texas did neutral patrol work in the North Atlantic. Upon our entry into the actual fighting, however, the Texas started doing patrol and convoy duty in the same area.

Next came the North African invasion and the Texas was there in the middle of it. Following this excitement came a quiet period for George while he was stationed at York, Pa., attending school there. After the completion of his course, he was shipped back to the Texas and again did convoy duty in the Atlantic theater. He received his V-12 orders while aboard ship but managed to get here in time to start on November 1.

George's big memory is concerned with Scotland. It seems up there it's still bright at midnight, and George still hasn't figured out how anyone can see any night life in a place where it never gets dark.

Taking his second bow in this series is Richard Luley, whose Navy life should be familiar to you by now. Although interviewed with the Fedigan group because his former buddy lives there, loyalty to Mendel Hall demanded that he be numbered in their midst today.

At this stage of the game we introduce Erwin G. Benkert who comes from nearby Morton and who labored through boots at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. After this, E.G. — who has been in the Navy about two years — went to M.M. school and emerged with a second class rating.

Rammed by Cutter

He didn't have much opportunity to show off his stripes right away, however, since for the next three months he languished in a Naval Hospital as a pneumonia victim. Following this he was sent to Norfolk and assigned to a ship. He reported, but couldn't find his home-to-be — it had gone to New York. He followed it there hoping to catch it, but when he arrived the ship had returned to Norfolk. And thus it went, New York to Norfolk, Norfolk to New York until our hero knew every conductor on the run.

Finally the Navy Department got disgusted and "Benk" was transferred to the U.S.S. Arkansas which operated along the east coast. It was while so serving he got his orders to report here November 1.

Last to be exhibited this week is Dennis Ray Allshouse who became one of the "boys" way back in 1940 and who was also introduced to Navy Life in Newport, R. I. Following this, Ray was sent to the Canal Zone and there boarded the U.S.S. Tottnall, a destroyer. Since this was prior to Pearl Harbor, Ray, too, did neutrality patrol and later, anti-sub and patrol work.

The event that stands out most in Ray's mind during his two years aboard the Tottnall was the night they were rammed by a P.C. and they were stoved in below the water line. Due to smart operating, however, all was secure inside of an hour.

It was while Ray was at Norfolk waiting for his ship to be repaired that he got his V-12 papers which brought him to Villanova November 1.

Some are working very hard to welcome the newcomers and the strangers. They have done all that is in their power to receive them and make them feel at home. To these men goes a world of compliments. The rest of the group, who are the majority, have failed miserably. They are supposed to be the ambassadors of good will. They must strive to bring back the "old spirit" which will make this a more life-like college.

There are the facts. The solution is simple. Let's all work together and support the work that some of the men are doing to make our college life a complete one. Support all the intramural sports. If you don't play, be a rooting spectator. Let's uphold the old tradition of Villanova — no distinctions. By doing this the old spirit will be revived and we will all be joined together as a crowd of fellows going to school and having a pretty good time doing it.

At every activity, especially the dances, the old atmosphere will again be present. Everyone will know each other and the dances will be once more looked forward to. It's up to each of you.

Rifle practice and horseback riding are among his favorite hobbies.

PVT. WAYNE JONES

In college at Georgetown, Delta Phi Epsilon was his fraternity.

Questioned about his future plans, Wayne answered that the Marine Corps would probably determine that. Definite, however, is his determination to remain in the Marine Corps if he can secure a commission. If not, then diplomacy by way of Georgetown's Foreign Service School will probably be the answer.

Also among his ambitions with a high priority rating is the desire to return to China. Who knows, perhaps the fact that Japan is close by may be the answer to this.

Operating without the services of John Siano the Wildcat Weight section "ran wild" to take all possible places in their specialities. In his victory in the javelin Paul Ruby got off a throw of 172 ft. "Duke" Severson bested the efforts of Jack Evans by inches to take the discus. Paul Smith, Walt Meserve and Jim Griffiths were the other Villanova men to place in these events.

"Butch" Gallicano took the Pole vault event with little trouble and John Killalea scored a third in this event. The High Jump gave the Wildcats two place positions through the efforts of George Rideout and Paul Ruby.

VILLANOVAN

Vol. 18—No. 11 N. A. A. S. X-660 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1944

VILLANOVA COLLEGE LIBRARY VILLANOVA, PA.

College Prepares V-12 Certificates

First Awards Stating Completion Of Training Program To Be Granted This Semester

An announcement has been received from the president's office that the college has prepared a Navy V-12 College Training Program certificate, which is to be awarded to each navy and marine trainee who satisfactorily completes his allotted terms in the course of studies prescribed for him under the Navy V-12 Program.

The certificate will be issued for the first time at the close of the current semester. The list of recipients of this certificate will include not only trainees completing their college training program on June 24th, but also all those who have satisfactorily completed such training in the past and who have already been transferred to other stations.

College authorities had hoped that this certificate award would be given to the trainees at an academic assembly, but the proximity of the completion of the current term and the date of the semester leave makes it necessary to send the certificate to each trainee by mail.

The certificate will bear the name of the recipient, a statement to the effect that the trainee has successfully completed his prescribed course of studies under the College Training Program, and, in witness thereof, the signatures of the president of the college and the commanding officer of the unit.

Other institutions operating in the Navy V-12 program are issuing similar certificates, the purpose of which is to give the trainee an official document that will certify academic success.

Seek Back Issues Of School Paper

At the close of the present semester, Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of the Villanovan, has planned to have all the back copies of the school paper since 1937 cloth-bound by volumes. This is done to afford a permanent record of the history of Villanova during that time.

A permanent and complete collection of the paper in its original magazine form of 1893 to 1928, and in its later regular newspaper styling from 1928 to 1932, are on file in the library. The present tabloid form appeared in 1932 and all copies up to 1937 have been clothbound and are also in the library.

Because of an increase in outside circulation and students permanently borrowing back copies, there are several issues of which there is no copy on hand. The following issues are missing from the files:

Villanovan File: Missing—

Volume 10 (1937-38) No. 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, 10, 12.

Volume 11 (1938-39) No. 1 to 19, (Special Edition).

Volumne 12 (1939-40) No. 6, 10, 12, 14, 17, 18, 19, 20, 22, (Special Edition).

Volume 14 (1941-42) No. 6, 18.

Volume 15 (1942-43) No. 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 20, 21.

Library File: Missing—

Volumne 11 (1938-39) No. 4.

Volume 12 (1939-40) No. 18.

If you have any of these copies in your private files the staff of the Villanovan would appreciate your forwarding them to the office to complete the collections. Any expenses incurred in so doing will be paid by the Villanovan.

Summer Styles Set

Recent announcements made by the college and naval authorities have set the regulations for summer attire. For the civilians, coats and ties may be omitted except at Sunday mass. For the sailors, jumpers are optional with the undress uniform. And for the Marines, no khaki shirts are required.

A. S. M. E. Election Of Branch Chairman Planned For Friday

The Villanova Student Branch of the American Socelty of Mechanical Engineers will hold their final meeting of th current semester on Friday, June 16, at 7 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall.

At this time an election will be held to fill the position of Student Chairman, which will be vacated at the end of this semester when Robert J. Casey, A.S., the present Chairman, graduates. The program of activities for the coming semester will be discussed and tentative plans laid. In addition a motion picture on the development of alloy tool steels will be shown. The June issue of "Mechanical Engineering" will also be distributed at this meeting. All student-members are urged to attend.

Student-members who expect to graduate at the end of the present semester are asked to contact the Secretary, John A. Millet, A.S., 241 Mendel Hall, sometime within the next two weeks in regard to transferring from student to junior membership in the society.

Duffy Chosen Head Of Navy Bugle Corps In Place Of Beal

The now well-established navy and marine drum and bugle corps of this unit came under new leadership last week, when Philip G. Duffy, A.S., replaced Robert Beal, A.S., as drum major of the organization.

Duffy, a basic engineer now in his second semester at this college, brings no little experience with him to his new position. During the last three of his four years at Trenton Catholic High School, he led the school band, and for two of these years he also held the post of drum major with an American Legion Band.

According to the plan of organization which has been used successfully for the past two semester's, Duffy's duties will consist mainly in leading the corps in their actual appearances on the drill field. Joseph Ringlestein, A.S., continuing as Sergeant Drummer, and Pvt. Donald Rugen, continuing as Sergeant Bugler, will be mainly responsible for the musical end of training.

Lts. Schisler and Heckler Reported Prisoners After Thrilling Exploits

As more and more Villanovans are getting into the real fight, more and more tales of their thrilling experiences appear in letters to their parents, friends and Alma Mater. Word has recently been received from First Lieutenants Bob Schisler and Dick Heckler, an alumnus and former student, that they are safe in German Prison camps.

The parents of First Lt. Robert P. Schisler hoped and waited 10 months for word of the safety of their son, last reported a prisoner of the German army. Word finally came recently in a letter and with it came a brief resume of his escape from the prison camp and his five months of freedom in Italy before being recaptured.

LT. ROBERT SCHISLER

Picked Up From Raft

Lt. Schisler's story began February 23, 1943, when he was reported missing after a bombing mission in North Africa. A month later his parents were notified that he had been picked up while adrift on a raft and taken to a German hospital in Italy.

After recuperating, he was transferred to a prison camp in Italy, but after the Allies landed on the boot he apparently was transferred and his communications to his parents stopped. The following excerpts from a letter to his parents tells of what transpired since that time:

Five Months Freedom

"Well I suppose that you wonder what has happened to me. I'll tell you. I managed to escape from prison and lived for five months in Italy as a fugitive. However the Germans recaptured me after five months and now I am back in prison.

"I had a good crack at freedom and hoped to be able to get through to the American troops, but I was unlucky and got caught. I had dreamed of being home by now.

"The Germans treated me very well when they recaptured me and am now O. K. All the while I was living in barns and caves when I was out free. I was in good health and I feel fine, so please don't worry about me."

Previous to receiving their son's letter, Mr. and Mrs. Schisler, who reside in Canton, Ohio, were notified by the provost marshall that he was known to be a prisoner at Camp Stalag, near Munich.

Wins Air Medal

Lt. Schisler, a bombardier, was commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduating from the Army flying school in Midland, Texas, on July 23, 1942. He was a member of the crews cited in February, 1943, for blasting and setting afire an Italian destroyer and disabling another in a battle off the coast of Tunis. He was awarded the Air Medal for that mission.

Lt. Schisler, of the class of 1941 of Villanova, was active in campus activities while a student here. He was circulation manager of the Villanovan in his senior year after three years on the staff. He played in the band in all four years and was secretary of Epsilon Pi Theta in his senior year after one year membership.

LT. RICHARD HECKLER

Third Mission

First Lt. Richard Heckler who was formerly reported missing in action following a raid over Germany on April 18, in what is believed to have been his second or third mission, has now been listed as a prisoner of war, it was learned recently.

Lt. Heckler entered the engineering school at Villanova in September 1939, following his graduation from Malvern Prep School. He withdrew from college in January, 1941, to join the Army Air Corps

He received his "Wings" in January, 1943. Since then he has been training at stations in various parts of the country with heavy bombers. He was raised to the rank of first lieutenant and went overseas in March of this year.

June Hop Plans Completed; Climax of Social Season

Gala Evening Prepared By Frat Members; Gay Decorations, Programs And Refreshments Arranged; Leo Zollo To Bring Twelve Piece Orchestra

Social activities for the current semester will have a termination this Saturday evening when the Phi Kappa Pi will present its dance of the year, the June Hop. The price of admission for this "must" social event of the season has been set at $2.10 including tax. From advance sales, conservative prophecies indicate promising results at the box office, if not a sellout.

LEO ZOLLO

A few of the men who are kept busy dealing the tickets are Al Sondheimer, Tom Schubert and Frank O'Connor of Mendel; Bill Farrel and Ray Allshouse who, although residing in Mendel, make daily trips to Fedigan to satisfy the demand of the Fediganites; William Regii and Frank McEntee take care of the medics, inhabiting 103 and 104 Alumni respectively; and Ray Kasper and Don Rugen who are doing a thorough job of distributing tickets in Austin.

Twelve Piece Band

The band, usualy smaller, has been contracted by the dance committee for 12 pieces with the view of preventing dead spots and weakness of tone due to the sound absorbing curtains. This band has been picked because of the broad type of music produced by Leo Zollo whose "music of a different style" seems to please everyone. This is one of the many reasons that this orchestra, secured through the Orchestra Bureau of Philadelphia and by special permission of the United Service Organization, is in such big demand for college and servicemen's dances.

Discarding stock arrangements, his unique and original themes have universal appeal. Leo has been able to keep his pre-war band of seasoned musicians fairly intact. Hence the choice of this band prevents the tragic loss in quality experienced by so many "big" bands due to poor and inexperienced teamwork on the part of the players.

Best in Decorations

In step with the trend toward the colossal, the decorations committee, due to the efforts of John Belletti and co-workers, has been going full swing to insure the best of decorations available for the Villanova Field House. Being the last dance of the semester and for a few, probably the last dance at Villanova, the decoration committee has strived with its utmost to make it a dance long to be remembered.

They are not alone in their efforts, however, as the program committee, under the guidance of Hugh Gillespie, promise a program that will be well worth keeping, a fitting reminder of student days on the cherished sod of Villanova.

As in the preceding years, soft drinks will be served in the Blue Room under the direction of J. Doyle who has assured a sufficient supply of soft drinks, etc. to satisfy all.

President Conquers In Local Gun Match

According to a reliable report, Villanova won a tricornered intercollegiate pistol match, the news of which was never carried in the local press.

Rumor has it that the match was staged in one of the neighboring estates before a select group, which included at least one admiral and other high ranking naval officers.

The contestants were the prexies of Franklin and Marshall, Muhlenberg, and Villanova Colleges. It is understood that Villanova hit the bullseye with plenty to spare.

Protect Young Minds

IT might seem at first to be a waste of editorial space to harp on a topic so apparently childish as the comics, yet recent happenings along this line have made the question of the influence of these paper heroes one of nationwide importance.

It has long been recognized that some of the more "adventurous" of the series caused a feeling of admiration among the members of the youngest generation—a feeling so strong that it often led to emulation of these modern Tarzans. As long as such sentiments were controllable, there was little that could be said concerning the effect—either good or bad—of these panels on the minds of their readers.

Of late, however, several youngsters have gone so far as to try to imitate the superhuman flying of their funny-page idols. Needless to say, these unsupported journeys into space from an upstairs window were far from successful; and more than one little boy quickly learned the difference between flying and falling.

In the past few months though, two new elements have crept into those well-read comic pages: sex and politics. The sex element has been slowly becoming more and more evident over a long period of time, and has finally reached a point where it is the dominant idea in several of the better-known works.

That such entries are purposeful and malicious is easily seen in the attitude of the creators of these pseudo-funnies. Upon being told recently that his creation was injurious to the morals of his young audience, the author of one of the worst offenders in this regard calmly stated that he wasn't interested in the children at all but in the "children's fathers." What men of this type seem to forget is that, no matter what they may say, the real followers of the comics are the children. And youngsters, even more than their parents, are apt to take anything found in the local paper as gospel and apply it to their lives.

The other new factor—the political element—has become so prevalent in at least one of the most widely circulated works that condemnation is actually beginning to fall on the head of its creator. This particular comic is to be found in almost all of the organized anti-administration dailies, and it valiantly lives up to the desires of all the New Deal-hating editors who anxiously subscribe to it.

The heroine of this particular "funny" now finds herself in a house which harbors all the cut-throats, murderers, dips, forgers, and phonies within a hundred mile radius; each of whom is fully protected by a thoroughly rotten police department. The landlady—who violently dislikes the word "madam" — is truly fond of her boarders since, she assures the listening world, THEY ARE ALL FUNDAMENTALLY FINE PEOPLE. In fact, the bad people are those who interfere in the "business" of these honest folk by doing such idiotic things as laying down laws prohibiting a twelve-year-old girl from doing manual labor. The power of this work is realized when we find that it has a circulation in the country of upwards of thirty millions.

How long will it be before the parents of America realize the trash on which their children are being raised? How long do we dare run the risk of having the next generation read illustrated smut that will create mental cripples and moral perverts? How long shall we allow these sex-mongers and back-biters to influence those for whom the war is really being fought?

We sincerely hope that the answer to all these questions is a resounding "NO LONGER" from the throats and hearts of all clear-thinking citizens.

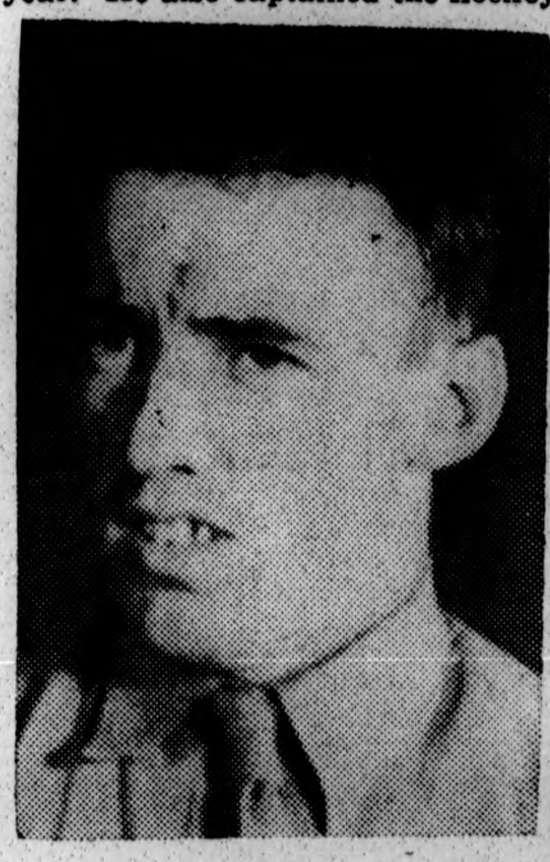
Meet the Boys

By SAM GOLDBERGER, A.S.

QUITE by coincidence, this week's guests are old classmates. Ed Burns and Paul Reynolds, along with John Killelea, made up a threesome at Boston College, and moved to Villanova en masse Last July with the first Marines.

Lead-off man is Ed Burns, who has run up quite an impressive athletic record in both high school and college. Ed went to Arlington High, where he played baseball, football and hockey. He was chosen on the All-Scholastic baseball team in his junior year, and followed up by attaining the same honor in both hockey and football in his senior year. He also captained the hockey team as a senior. In keeping with such a record, Ed was a member of the all-star hockey team which played the all-star Canadian team, and was a member of the Boston Olympics Junior Team.



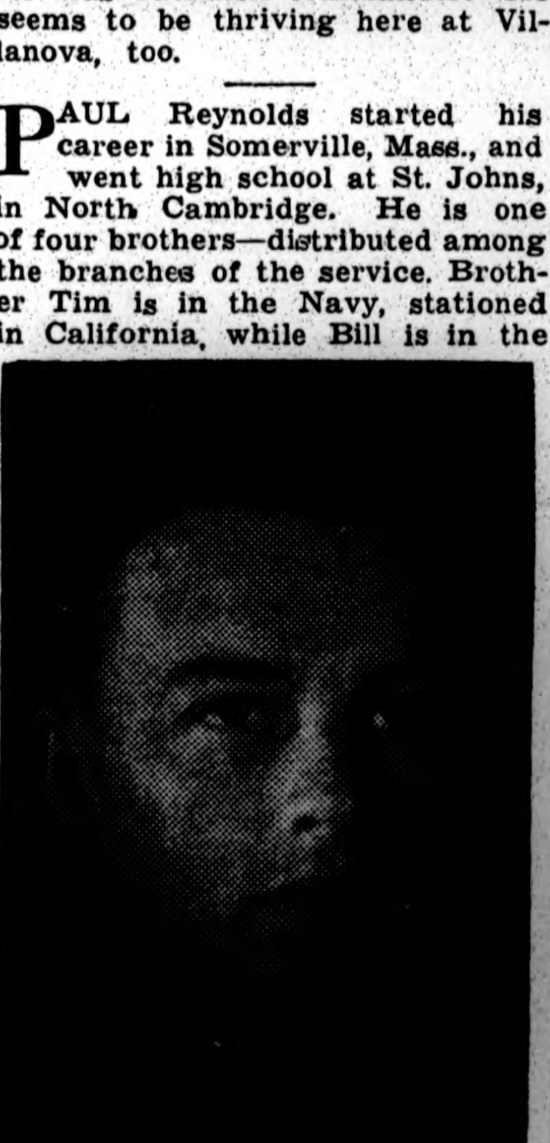
PVT. EDWARD BURNS

After such an impressive list, one would be inclined to stop and say "Whew!", but more is yet to come. When Ed got to Boston College, he proceeded to become a member of the hockey team that copped the national championship. Playing quarterback and fullback on the football team, he played with Boston College in the Orange Bowl in Miami New Year's Day of 1943. He kept up his baseball, too. Then he came to Villanova, and kept on with his sports.

Beginning at Boston College as a physics major, Ed has gone into electrical engineering, with his special interest in electronics. After five Semesters at B. C., Ed was one of the first men to enter the Marine Reserve in Class 3D, and has been at Villanova since the beginning of the program last July.

Ed is one of the most popular member of the Marine detachment here, and during the second semester was battalion commander. He seems to be thriving here at Villanova, too.

PAUL Reynolds started his career in Somerville, Mass., and went high school at St. Johns, in North Cambridge. He is one of four brothers—distributed among the branches of the service. Brother Tim is in the Navy, stationed in California, while Bill is in the Army, in Illinois. And, to keep the family uniform, little brother, Leo, is a Boy Scout.



PVT. PAUL REYNOLDS

While in high school, Paul played football and hockey, but, because of many outside interests, didn't have time to run up a record like Ed's. He was also in-

Camp To Campus

REMEMBER Phil Buchy from last year's Freshman class? Well, that Second Louie with the pilot's wings was our man. Naturally, we all ate our hearts out when we saw him, wishing we were in his boots. Phil is a pursuit pilot, having just graduated last week.

Pvt. George Kleinknecht, another of last year's Frosh, is in Sioux Falls, S. D., in radio school. He expects to graduate in July and then make his trip across. In his spare time, George has been writing music for Army shows. George was terrific at banging away at the keys.

The last we heard from Dick Ryan and Billy Sullivan was when they came back from Midshipman School with their commissions. Now we understand that they are both out on LCI's.

Also visting the campus last week were Joe Carbine and Frank O'Neill. They are both Pilots and Second Lieutenants and are going into bomber training. Also understand that Joe's brother, Jim, is doing very well at West Point.

T/5 Ernie Morin writes from Ft. Smith, Ark. that he has been in Reconnaissance. He is a radio operator and an assistant gunner in armored car. The radio is a wireless and the gun is a 37 mm.

The latest news from Lt. Jake Mauch came tonight via Fr. McKee. Jake was quite disappointed in not being sent overseas with the rest of his unit which was to be a part of the newly founded Fifth Division. He expects to remain in San Diego for awhile.

We heard that Bob Whittaker has his commission in the Air Corps now and also that he is in the European theatre but don't know exactly where. Bob is a fighter pilot.

Pvt. Philip Mariani writes from England that he has on different occasions visited about every college of Oxford University. He said that it was a wonderful place but Villanova is still his choice. But naturally! Fr. Grimes was happy to hear something from his old Alma Mater.

A borrow from Frank Solis, the "Parson," so blame him.

Charley, the barber: Say, did you have a red tie on?

Pvt. Hammerscholtz: Of course not.

Charley: Gosh!

Main Line Murmurings

DEAR MOM,

Gee, it doesn't seem like I've been here for a whole year, does it?—and yet it will be my V-12 birthday in a couple of weeks. There are a lot of us fellows who will have been here for a year, or more, before we go to "Boot" camp. We often speculate on the odd situations that might develop when this crowd of "salty-boots" go south to get their short haircuts, many of us will have "time" on the D.I.'s.

It is the common opinion that we will be placed in accelerated boot training when they see that we have mastered two of the jobs upon which about half the training time is allotted—learning to shine shoes and talk salty.

We even have a fellow here who will be short only a few months of being eligible for a "hash" mark when he reports. He is the fellow who set the record when he "field-stripped" a slide rule in 27 seconds. His name is Morton T. Scroggles—the T. is for "Teddy"—he was born bare.

Things are getting pretty drastic these days as final exams draw near. It is not at all uncommon to see a fellow come in a half-hour early from liberty so that he can study.

I read in the papers where government experts say that the life of the average dollar bill is ten months, and they are experimenting to make it even more durable. All we want is one that will last from one Saturday to the next.

I was passing the Sick Bay the other day, so I decided to stop in to get some of that "swell tasting" cough syrup that I was telling you about. While I was waiting I happened to hear one of the "inmates" venting his anger at being confined by causing the proverbial "blue streak." When the "Pill-pusher" came in, I ventured the question, "Doesn't that patient swear terribly?"

"Yep," answered the "doc," "he sure does. He doesn't put any expression in it at all."

In reference to the question in your last letter; it is hard to say whether Mabel, (did I tell you about her?) is sensible or not because I've found that a sensible girl is not so sensible as she looks because a sensible girl has more sense than to look sensible.

Here is a little syllogystic nonsense:

Man is the greatest invention on earth;
But woman is an improvement on it.
That's what men are looking for—improvements.

As we said when the conductor's daughter told us where to get off, "Here's where we end our line."

Your loving son,
Joe.

INVASION! Invasion! We're invading! We're moving! This was the run of the conversation all over the country due to the invasion rumors that ran rampant this past weekend . . . these same sentiments were echoed in a number of different places in the near vicinity but the invaders were Villanova men and the invaded were girls of Chestnut Hill and some young Misses who threw a nice cozy party at the Merion Tribute House. . .

Landing on the invasion coast of Chestnut Hill College, it's getting to be a habit of late, were trainees from every Hall on the Villanova Campus, and the commandos that led the assault were appropriately attired in whites and khakis . . . Among the heroes of the day were Joe Dwyer, George Siebert, Bob Casey, Kevin O'Malley, George Hoberg, Will and Clayton Adams, Bob Malone, Tom Schubert, and Ray Kasper, all of whom were invading according to prearranged plans . . . There were some that appeared at the last moment to give moral support to the first wave and, while unexpected, they were nevertheless welcome . . . Jim Tucker, Ed Grostas, Phil Jakeway and Gene Konopka were four of these standers-by. . . .

At another point in the wholesale invasion of the social ilfe of Philadelphia other trainees, specifically retained for the jobs assigned them, served with heroic gallantry . . . The leaders and planners of this particular engagement were three young ladies who hail from several schools in the vicinity and had the knowledge and experience to have everything go off as planned . . . The scene of this encounter as previously mentioned was the Merion Tribute House and the men to be commended for this fine bit of invasion were Marc Manning, Frank Doorley, Hugh O'Reilly, Bob Leahy, Bill Koness, Jack McCann, and last but not least Bob McKibben with his cute little co-invader, Connie . . .

In every war there has to be some heartbreak, some pathos, some drama . . . the heartbreak, the pathos, the drama this week was furnished by Andy Murphy, Paul Miller and Don Rinehart and was caused by three unnamed young girls . . . after extensive plans had ben made for the enjoyment of a perfect Saturday night, signals were mixed and the two groups involved didn't come together at the predetermined time, causing the aforementioned emotions in all involved . . . maybe this mix-up was accidental but there has been some talk, very bitter it was too, on the part of the males, that it MAY have been intentional. . .now boys, no girls could be that silly when three handsomes like yourselves are involved. . .or could they?

It turned out that the real invasion rumor was all a mistake but the trainees from here were making no mistakes—they were there!

Villanova Downs Lehigh And Mules In Triple Meet

Rideout, Schmitt And Morris Standouts With Double Wins; Ten Firsts Garnered By Wildcats

Breaking the tape in all of the track events, the Villanova thin-clads closed their season on Saturday by emerging the victors in a triangular meet at Allentown. Muhlenberg's trackmen, Middle Atlantic Conference track champs, "ate the dust" off the Wildcats' spikes in each cinderpath event, and were able to just "hold their own" in the field and weight tests.

The skeleton team entered from Lehigh scored a mere 5½ points, Muhlenberg's total was 35, and Villanova amassed 85.5 points.

Double Wins

George Rideout copped honors for the day's outstanding performance. He opened the meet with a win in the high hurdles in the track-record time of 15.1 seconds, then went on to win the low hurdles and tie for first in the high jump.

Don Schmitt garnered a double win in his specialties, the distance races, and Jim Morris matched him with two firsts in the sprints. In the quarter and half mile races three blue jerseyed runners crossed the line before the pack. Burt Cox, Chuck Harrington and Phil Golden took the straight, place and show spots in the 440, while John Welles, Jack Atkinson and Bud Hunter did the same in the 880.

Six Way Tie

This feat was again matched by Duke Severson, Jack Evans, and Paul Smith, who placed one-two-three in the discus event. Paul Ruby won the javelin throw and placed second in the shot, while John Killalea took seconds in the high hurdles and broad jump.

The nine points alotted to the high jump had to be split six ways when three Villanova men, Ruby, Rideout and Hoot, two men from Muhlenberg and one from Lehigh failed to clear the same height to cause a six-way tie for first in this event.

Charlie Le Blance, game little Muhlenberg pole-vaulter, cleared the bar at 12 ft 1 in. for a new track record, but failed to get up after he landed in the pit. An unfortunate landing on this last jump resulted in a complete dislocation of his right foot.

Garnet Gains Second Win In Row Over 'Cats

Villanova continued in reverse as they dropped their third in a row and second to Swarthmore in a week. Norm Morton held the 'Cats to six hits, allowed two walks and fanned seven. He also holds the distinction of stopping Eddie Burns hitting streak at seven games.

The Garnet infield turned in three sparkling double plays to kill any signs of life on the part of the 'Cats in all but the eighth inning.

Pitcher's Duel

In this frame three singles and an outfield error prevented Morton from turning in a shutout in the final game on the victor's schedule.

For four innings it was a pitcher's duel between Reds Lafferty and Morton. In the first, a walk and a hit batter put two Wildcats on base but they died there peacefully.

Jim DiSalvo prevented a Swarthmore run with a beautiful throw from center field in the last half of the inning. John Siano reached third with one out in the second but Jack Fetting and Lafferty failed to get the ball out of the infield.

Three Pitchers

In the fifth, Swarthmore finished Lafferty and continued to assault Marty Greely for six runs on five hits and three walks. This flareup seemed to exhaust the Garnet batters and they fell easy prey to Greely and Gene Weinert who finished up on the mound for Villanova.

Jack Fetting and Siano were the ony 'Cats who could connect with Morton's pitching. Siano had a double and a single while Fetting was content with two singles.

This is the fourth loss of the season for the team which boasted a winning streak of four games. Although Swarthmore is only a moderate team they possess an exceptionally gifted pitching staff of Morton and Lobell, both of whom have defeated the 'Cats.

Ursinus Sunk 7-2 In First Wildcat Victory Of Season

The Villanova tennis team finally broke into the win column on Saturday afternoon by defeating Ursinus 7-2. Setting a fast pace from the beginning, the Wildcats took two sets before dropping one, followed by three more wins before losing their second set.

Frank Dwyer, seeded No. 1 for the Cats, came from behind a 5-2 score to take his first game 7-5 from McCausland of Ursinus. However he took the second game handily 6-1, and gave Villanova her first marker. Ed "Sparky" Winters was completely the master in his set, defeating Jones 6-3 and 6-2. By strong volleys at the baseline and continual cross-court shots, Winters all but ran his opponent ragged.

Forrest Falls

Bob Forrest, however, experiencing one of "those days" dropped two straight game 3-6 and 4-6 to Marchese. Jim Shea set the Villanova "victory train" back on the tracks with a resounding 6-1, 6-3 win over Lutton.

Phil Schell, although handicapped by sore feet, beat Ruby handily 6-3, 6-2 taking not an unnecessary step in doing so. To finish the singles, Tony Parisi handed Fink of Ursinus a red slip in a long and hotly contested set 2-6, 6-2, and 9-7.

Dwyer and Forrest won their first game against McCausland and Jones in an easy 6-1 game. Easing up noticeably, the Cat pair dropped the second two games 1-5 and 1-6.

Doubles Rout

Don Sawtelle and Tad Pula defeated Marchese and Ruby 6-3 and 6-2, and Al Curtis with Bill Glick completed the rout by taking 6-2 and 6-1 games from Kinleau and Lutton.

Scheduled to meet Temple A.S.T.U. in a match last Tuesday afternoon, the Cats found themselves with no opposition when Temple failed to appear. As yet, no word has been received from Owl sources regarding the match.

One match remains to be played with Franklin and Marshall and it remains pending at the present time.

Although more teams may be scheduled for a later date, the number of teams on the present schedule was limited by the late date at which the team was organized. This victory comes as a well deserved win for the young team was doing well for their quick beginning.

Return Tilts With Bison And Mules To Be Played

Previous Victims Of Wildcats To Be Played In Away Games; Mueller Faces Kelly of Bucknell

Twice this week the Blue and White squad will make strong attempts at a comeback on the victory trail when they meet two of their early-season victims. On Friday they travel to Lewisburg to engage the Bucknell and on the next day they play a return engagement with Muhlenberg at Allentown.

In Friday's game the Wildcats will stack up against the brilliant pitching of Jack Kelly. Before coming to Bucknell he pitched for Pittsburgh and after he entered the last game he allowed only two men to hit and struck out six.

The team from Lewisburg will be well remembered for the rally staged at Kelly's advent into the game. From then on in it was strictly a pitcher's battle. The game finally ended in a close 6-2 score.

Hubka Playing

Playing on this team also will be Gene Hubka of Temple and Bucknell football fame. These together with the combination which started the last game will open on Friday.

The last game played with the Bison was scheduled for June 28 but a change in plans necessitated playing it last month. This game will be the final in a home and home series arrangement with them.

On the following day, Saturday, they meet the once powerful Muhlenberg team which fell handily to the Wildcats in their last encounter, 11-3.

Playing for the Mules will be great Hank Baietti who was standout for them even in defeat.

Better Game

Like the Bucknell game this struggle is also the away part of a home and home arrangement with this V-12 school in baseball. It is the fourth sport in which the Main Liners have met the Mules.

Opening on the mound for the Mules will be the starter of the last game, Kayo Marks. The game sizes up as a better battle for since then the Mules have been vastly improved in the fielding which cost them their last loss.

The unplayed game with Loyola of Baltimore has not as yet been rescheduled.

Losing Streak Broken With 4-3 Win Over F. & M.

DiSalvo Scores in Tenth Inning on Errors to Break Tie; Mueller Fans Twelve

Villanova regained its winning stride after three loses by downing Franklin and Marshall by a 4-3 count in ten innings. This was the second triumph over the Diplomats, and both were turned in by George Mueller. Gordy had the situation well in hand and fanned twelve of the enemy swingers.

The visitors scored first when Al Dally received Gordy's only pass of the game. He was forced at second by Jack Ginda who promptly stole second and came home as Warner overthrew Bob McLean's grounder. Not to be outdone, the 'Cats came back and tied the score on a pass to John Killelea and his subsequent steal of second theft was followed by Jim DiSalvo's single to left.

F. and M. got their first hit in the fifth when Hal Phillips dropped a fly in right center that went for three bases. Mueller turned on the steam, and retired the next three men on infield grounders, one to short and two to himself.

In the home half of the sixth the 'Cats sent two runs over the plate. Killelea was safe on an error and stole second. He scored when Dally left Ed Burns' smash go through his legs for an error, Ed going to second. John Siano

Intramurals Draw To Close With Students Out In Front

The Students continued their winning ways this past week defeating Mendel, 8-7, and 3-2 and the Marines A ten, 7-5, while losing a close slug fest to Fedigan, 10-9. Fedigan, the most improved ball club on the field pulled ahead of Mendel in the standings as they also won three; thumping Mendel, 12-1 and 10-3 and winning a close one over the league leading Students. The Fediganites had the misfortune of running into the hot and cold B Marines on one of their scorching nights and lost their only game of the week, 7-2.

Students Rally

The A club split with their closeest rivals, Alumni, first shutting them out 2-0 and then losing 2-1 in very close games. They also nosed out their fellow Gyrenes 9-7 in addition to losing to the Students. Alumni rolled right along with its average of .500 and split in four games. Consequently, they neither lost nor gained as they divided a pair of games with the Bees, winning 3-1 and losing 3-0 in addition to playing the other games as mentioned above.

In one of the highlighted games of the week, the Students rallied in the last inning to score one run, break a 7-7 tie and thus hand the bitter pill of defeat to the Mendel Engineers. The winning tally scored after Charlie Mamzic smacked a single to right field, followed by another one-bagger by Pat Reagan. Al Dumsa hit a grounder to short and Reagan was forced out at second. However, Mamzic who had started running at the first motion of the pitcher went to third. On the next play, Lou Macciochi hit a long fly ball to deep left field and in scampered Charlie with the deciding run.

Gains Revenge

In a game which only went five innings on Thursday night, the Pill men from Alumni gained revenge for a defeat inflicted earlier this week as they handed the A Marines a 2-1 pasting. Starting off in the first canto, Bombich, the lead-off man, drove a single to center . Jim Shea flied out to left, but Joe Walters, Alumni captain, planted a line drive between the left and the center fielder for a home run. The next two men were put outs but the damage was done and the Pre-Meds were never headed.

terested in dramatics, taking part in the junior and senior plays, and graduated from high school with honors.

At Boston College, Paul won the decathlon championship, while here at Villanova he has taken part in the intramural boxing tournaments, and was manager of the football team last semester.

Paul's scholastic work closely follows Ed's. He majored in physics at B. C., and was a member of the Physics Seminar. After five semesters at Boston, he came here, taking electrical engineering, and, under the inspiration of Professor Beuche of the electrical engineering department, he has become especially interested in electronics.

Paul likes it here at Villanova, and has made many friends in the year he has spent here. After the war, he'd like to stay with the Marines.

These two embryonic Marine Corps officers have almost parallel careers, both being interested in all sports and school activities, both electrical engineers, and, best of all (to them), both New Englanders. It seems logical that their careers will continue to parallel each other, at least in one line — success.

caught one of Ken Snyder's pitches on the end of his bat, and bounced it off the fence in deep left-center field, Burns scoring easily.

With two out in the eighth, singles by Dally and pinch hitter Dave Jacobs followed by Ken Karl's lusty triple down the left field line gave F. and M. these two runs needed to tie the game.

The winning run was a personal gift from Mr. Dally. DiSalvo opened with an easy grounder that he threw wild to first, and Jim went to second. Burns duplicated Jim's effort with the same result, an over throw at first that allowed Jim to come home.

After losing three games drastic changes were made in the 'Cats line-up. John Anderson replaced Sondheimer in left and contributed three hits and John Killelea made his first appearance on the initial sack. He was not fortunate in the hit column but reached first on a walk and an error, stole second twice and scored each time. Siano seems to have found his eye at long last, and has accounted for two hits in each of the last two games, two of them doubles.

Burke Re-elected National President Of Alumni Association At Reunion

Returns Tabulated At Annual Banquet Indicate Banmiller And Reimel As Vice-Presidents

At the Annual Reunion Banquet of the Villanova Alumni Association held at the Warwick Hotel on Tuesday evening, June 6, it was announced by Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A., that Edward J. Burke, Ph. D., of the class of 1923, has been reelected national president of the association.

Fr. McGrath also announced that Paetrus F. Banmiller, '35, former registrar, has ben elected first vice-president, and Theodore L. Reimel, Esq., '24, named second vice-president.

At the same meeting congratulations were extended to John White of Baltimore, Maryland, on the thirty-fifth anniversary of his graduation. White became the first civil engineer to graduate from the college in 1909.

Over 52 Present

Although attendance at the reunion was naturally greatly curtailed by the dispersion of the Alumni all over the world due to wartime conditions, there were about 52 men present. An award was presented to the class of 1918 for being the best represented group.

Falling as it did on invasion day, the affair took on added solemnity when special prayers were offered for all Villanovans who have made the supreme sacrifice and for all those engaged in the present tremendous operations.

Dr. Burke, now serving as national president of the Association for the second consecutive year, graduated from Villanova Preparatory School in 1919 and received his degree of B.S. in Chemistry in 1923.

Awarded M.S. Degree

During that same summer he served as instructor in Chemistry at the college, but left to enter the employ of E. I. DuPont DeNemours & Company in September of the same year. May, 1924, saw him enter the services of the city of Philadelphia as an analytical chemist, a service which he has retained to this day.

In 1926 he returned to his Alma Mater, and after a year of study under Rev. Robert Fitzgerald, O.S.A., he was awarded the degree of M.S. in Chemistry in June, 1927.

First interested in the problem of the relative toxicity of various alcoholic mixtures by some of his experiences with the problem of alcoholic poisonings in Philadelphia during the Prohibition era, Dr. Burke performed a series of experiments on the subject with Dr. John Grayson, now Medical Director of Pennsylvania Eastern State Penitentiary.

City Police Chemist

These experiments later formed the basis for a thesis, written under the direction of Fr. Fitzgerald and Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., which formed part of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy which was conferred on him on June 5, 1930.

Dr. Burke is now Police Chemist of Philadelphia and consulting chemical toxicologist to the District Attorney's Offices of Philadeldephia, Montgomery, Delaware, and Lackawanna Counties. He also serves as instructor at the Philadelphia Police College in the field of "Science in Crime Detection," and is Director of the Gas Identification Laboratory organized by the Office of Civilian Defense of Philadelphia.

Active in Alumni Work

Positions which he has held in Alumni activities include: member of the Board of Governors of the Alumni Association since 1937; President of Villanova Club of Philadelphia, 1940; Appointed Chairman of the Alumni Executive Centennial Committee, 1941; Recipient of the Alumni Loyalty Trophy of the Association, 1942; President of Alumni Association, 1943.

Fr. Stanford Gets New Appointment

Named Chairman Of Sub-Committee In New State Department Group

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova College, was appointed on June 6 as a member of a small group of nationally known educators to cooperate with the United States Department of State in planning a program to provide educational opportunities for students from foreign countries.

The first meeting of the committee was held in Washington, D.C., on Saturday, June 10. At the request of the representatives of the State Department who were present, a sub-committee was appointed at this first meeting to prepare, for the Division of Cultural Relations of the Department of State, a comprehensive plan which will provide for a cooperative organization of private agencies. Fr. Stanford was named chairman of this "blue print" committee.

The purpose of the new organization will be to advise with the Department of State on policies and problems connected with the education of foreign students in the United States with special emphasis on the post-war period. Students from foreign countries will come to the United States under bilateral agreements made with the governments of the respective countries by the United States.

New Belle Air Ready For Press; Editors Consult With Printer

Co-Moderator of the College year book, Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., has announced that the 1944 Belle Air is about to go to press. Conference with the publishers has already begun. According to plans, this next edition of the annual will be up to the usual All-American standards of previous editions, even though certain sections will have to be curtailed.

Individual pictures of all seniors will be run as usual. Navy groups and civilian groups will be included, along with the customary activity shots of intra-mural and intercollegiate games, plus group pictures of participating teams.

The book will cost five dollars to those not having already paid the student activity fee. Orders for the books are being taken every day at the library, or through John Fitzgibbons, Editor in Chief, or Hector Martinez, Photography Editor.

Delivery of the book to all subscribers is guaranteed, even if they have left the campus before the date of publication.

Summer School Begins Six-Week Term on July 3

The college summer school will open their regularly scheduled six-weeks term on Monday, July 3. Classes will be conducted five days each week until August 12.

Designation of the college as a naval training school, as well as the requirements of the accelerated program, will make it impossible to hold the classes on this campus. As a result, following the precedent set last summer, the courses will be conducted in the classrooms of nearby Rosemont College.

Registration will be held at the latter institution on Friday and Saturday, June 30th and July 1st, from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. Registration for courses in the Extension School in Philadelphia will be held on Saturday, June 17 at Hallahan Catholic Girl's High School, 19th and Wood Streets, Philadelphia, where off-campus courses will be offered.

All summer session courses are of college or graduate level and carry credit accordingly. Through the facilities of this summer school, which has been conducted without interruption for over 25 years, the administration and faculty of the college consider that they have been able to render a distinct service in the field of higher education.

June Hop Proves Social Success

Novel Decorations And Well Arranged Music Provide Pleasant Evening Of Entertainment

Ending the semester with the June Hop, Phi Kappa Pi members feel proud of the fact that their affair was the huge social success of the season. Everyone expressed admiration of the novel and well done decorations. The Field House has not been so well decorated in quite a long while.

Introducing a new feature at Villanova, tables and chairs were provided in a fenced off area for the convenience of the guests. White posts, entwined with ivy vines, lined the floor on either side, where seats were placed as before. The band stand was situated on the left hand side of the gymnasium and was set off by a fence of red crepe-paper strung on white posts.

Decorations Feature Banner

The blue curtain on the stage was drawn and situated in the center was a flamboyant Phi Kappa Pi banner. This keystone of the decorations consisted of a white field upon which the Greek letters, Phi Kappa Pi, were emblazoned with sparkling silver dust. Two spotlights simultaneously focused on the banner gave a very florid effect.

The floor space, though limited by the area occupied by the tables and chairs, was only moderately crowded and no inconvenience due to this situation was experienced by the guests.

Orchestra Well-Liked

Occupying the band stand were Leo Zollo and his orchestra. Music-makers of no mean ability, they satisfied all with their thrilling renditions of most of the popular themes of the day. Packing a solid down beat, Leo had most of the more rhythym minded couples stomping down the Field House on the jitterbug numbers. Deviating from the usual course, Leo played a few waltzes and a thrilling conga.

The programs were very well done, being the best available at the present time. With theme colors of blue and white, it promises to be one of the long remembered programs of Villanova's social history. It also had a bit of novelty about it in the form of a poem positioned in the center of the program.

The organization of refreshments was very well done. Free cakes were served with the coke, much to the enjoyment of the more penny conscious patrons.

Fr. Sheedy To Address 33 Graduates At Commencement Exercises June 25

Second Section Of Class Of 1944 To Receive Degrees With Customary Ceremony In College Chapel; Guest Speaker Is Head Of Augustinian Mission Band

By JOHN B. ATKINSON, A.S.

The second section of the class of 1944 will be graduated in the College Chapel on June 25, 1944. The recent practice of holding the exercises in the chapel rather than in the field house is being followed because of its success under wartime conditions.

Tentatively scheduled to receive degrees are thirty-three graduates. Over one-third of these are in the Bachelor of Arts curricula, and another third will receive Bachelor of Science in Biology degrees.

The traditonal Solemn High Mass of the Baccalaurate ceremony will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of the College. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice President, and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Assistant to the President, will act as deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. The Mass will be sung by the Augustinian Scholastic Choir.

Fr. Sheedy to Speak

Rev. William F. Sheedy, O.S.A., head of the Augustinian Mission Band, will address the graduates. Fr. Sheedy, a Villanova graduate of the class of 1918, has given the greatest part of his life to his work in the missions. In the past he has given retreats on at least two occasions here at Villanova. Fr. Sheedy has held his present post for the past six years, using St. Thomas' Monastery for his headquarters.

Following the awarding of Baccalaureate Degrees, there will be a luncheon for the graduates in the Mendel Dining Hall. At the ceremony itself, only those having invitations from a graduating student will be admitted. The seating capacity of the Chapel makes this procedure necessary.

Graduates Listed

The proposed list of graduates is as follows:

Bachelor of Arts: Gerard Joseph Cahir, John Stephen Cleary, Joseph Francis Hartman, Joseph Donald Keffer, Edwin Robert Kuczynski, John Michael McGettigan, Henry James McIntyre, William Jerome Murray, Augustus Christopher Sandmann, Paul Alban Simpson, Henry B. Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The Villanovan suspends publication for the balance of the current semested with this weeks' issue. Due to the intervention of final examinations and mid-semester leave, the next issue is not scheduled to appear until July 18.

Captain Charles Kauffmann, USMC, returned to the campus with Fr. McQuade following the V-12 conference at Bucknell last week. Capt. Kauffmann was cordially received by Captain Morgan, who ordered the marine barracks, Austin Hall, prepared for an informal inspection by the visiting officer on Saturday morning.

Belle Air editor, John Fitzgibbons, announces that a representative of Zamsky's Studios will be in the Reception Room, 12 Austin Hall, from 11 A. M. till 6 P. M. today. At this time, proofs of senior pictures will be returned and orders may be placed.

A silver jubilee banquet was held in the Field House at 5 P. M. last Sunday to honor Rev. Thomas McLeod, O. S. A., rector at St. Thomas of Villanova parish, on the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. At 11 o'clock the same morning, Fr. McLeod celebrated a solemn high mass in the college chapel.

P-T Boat Story In New Engineer To Arrive Soon

Proofs of the March issue of the Villanova Engineer have been returned to the printer, and the finished product should arrive on the campus for distribution before the end of the semester, it was announced last week by John M. Millet, A.S., and Joseph H. Hoffman, A.S., co-editors of the publication.

Principal articles of the issue will be descriptions of important war machines by two junior mechanical engineers. Allen J. Curtis, A.S., has written a story giving the historical background and development to its present model of the far-famed PT Boat.

Little attention is given by Curtis to describing the part which the boat has played in the war. He is rather concerned with the technical side of the subject, and dwells for some time on the perfection of the present model as compared with that of the pre-war model.

The other article, written by William J. Koness, A.S., is an "Analysis of the C-46 Curtiss Commando." It is a description of the plane, the largest twin motored transport in the world and a discussion of its advantages.

Featured in this issue will be the first in a series of short biographies of the engineering professors. This issue will contain sketches of J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Engineering; Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering; and Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A., instructor of engineering.

Congratulations

It is with special pleasure that the Villanovan joins with the priests and students of Villanova College in offering sincerest congratulations and most cordial good wishes to Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., Rev. Francis A. Diehl, O. S. A., and Rev. John F. Hammond, O. S. A., on the occasion of their Silver Jubilee in the Holy Priesthood

D-Day vs. Finals

WHEN the long anticipated news of the Invasion first electrified the campus last week, the initial reaction here was about the same as that in all other parts of the United Nations. Here as elsewhere we were both relieved that the European curtain had finally risen on the last act of the drama that started almost five years ago; anxious and slightly awed when we realized the great scope of the undertaking.

For those of us stationed here in uniform, however, a second effect of the communique was not long in showing itself, and within a few hours a general feeling of relative uselessness became apparent among the Navy and Marine trainees studying at the college. The books, which just the evening before had seemed both interesting and beneficial, suddenly appeared to have lost their influence and power over us; and the theoretical pursuits of the classroom seemed insignificant when compared to the blood-tingling realities of the past few days.

It doesn't take long and arduous research, however, for us to appreciate just how fortunate we are to be in school at present. A brief glance at the daily column written by the famous Ernie Pyle clearly shows how the veteran in Europe values a college education. Every former college student interviewed by Mr. Pyle has expressed a deep-rooted desire to return to his studies as quickly as possible.

Moreover, the Navy has no reason to lie to us in regard to our usefulness. If we are told—and we repeatedly have been told—that we are of more value to the nation here than if we were stationed at the front lines or on the high seas; then it must be so, for the Government now is not concerned with us as individuals as much as it is with us as potential military and civil leaders.

From the above it is not to be assumed that attending college in wartime—either in uniform or out—is a privilege and nothing more. Attendance at an institution in these times also imposes a heavy duty upon the student. An obligation to make the most of every minute of his time while in school so that he may be able to capably fill the position of trust his government has destined for him. Such an obligation is clearly moral as well as civil.

In view of these facts, let us resolve to make the few remaining days of this semester—and ALL the days of the semesters to come—days of diligent effort and constant application.

J. J. D.

Thanks

With the end of another semester drawing near, and with the binding together of another twelve issues of the Villanovan, there is associated typical notes of thanks, congratulations, and bon voyage. All three are well due the members of the staff of the Villanovan during the past semester.

To the seldom mentioned circulation staff goes the first word of praise. Theirs is a tedious and thankless job — however, a job well done. The loss of the managers in the graduating class will be hard-felt and replacements their equal will be hard to find. To all members of the slim editorial and writing staff goes similar praise. Their unstinting loyalty and cooperation helped make the wartime publication of the Villanovan a practically simple task.

For the members of the staff who are graduating—the heartiest congratulations. For those who are being transferred to other stations—best of luck and God speed. For all who cooperated with this publication—many thanks. A better job would have been impossible.

—Editor.

Meet the Boys

ONE of "the boys" from this neighborhood is Natale Fazzini, more commonly known as Nat, who comes to Villanova from Norristown. He is a Commerce and Finance student, majoring in accounting.

Nat was born in Norristown 23 years ago, and since that time has paraded through school in the customary order: James A. Welsh and J. K. Gotwals grads schools, Rittenhouse Junior High School, and Norristown Senior High, from which he graduated in 1939.

After graduating from high school, Nat became connected with his father's business, hauling contracting. In the spring of 1941, as the result of an accident, Nat left the business, and the following fall he entered Villanova's C. & F. School.

NATALE FAZZINI

Nat has had a pretty active time of it here. He was a member of the Spanish Club during his first and second years, and Delta Pi Epsilon, Financier's fraternity, his third and fourth years. He was chairman of the decorations committee of the Financier's Frolic, recent campus social success, and serves the staff of the Belle Air.

Naturally, after absorbing the best that Villanova has to offer in the way of accounting, Nat plans to enter that field after his graduation.

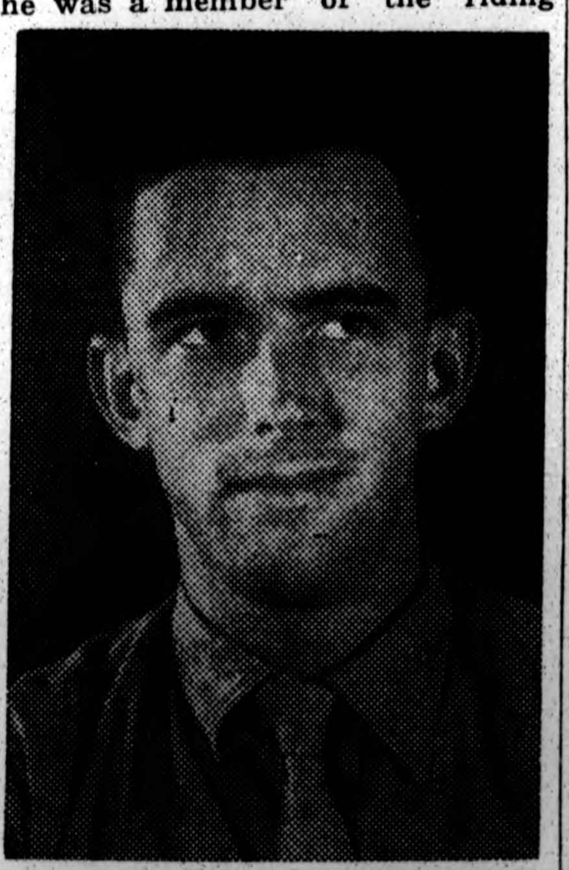
INTRODUCING Pvt. James L. Conway, we once again meet a man of many travels. Jim was born in New York City in September 1922.

At the tender age of nine he traveled with his parents to Hawaii, the land devoid of lawn mowers. A year later, deciding that our own United States wanted inspection, Jim once more hit the road for a period of four months.

Jim attended Tuscon High School in Tuscon, Arizona, and while there he was a member of the riding team. A year passed and found him back in New York City attending De La Salle High. During his two year stay here, he was on the Junior varsity basketball team and was a star player. Jim also was active in track in the 50 and 100 yard dashes, for which he earned a letter.



PVT. JAMES L. CONWAY

His next two years were spent at Fordham Prep in New York City, where he earned a letter for tennis. Debating and dramatics also held his attention.

Following graduation from high school, Jim matriculated at Georgetown University as an economics major. Sports claimed most of his BUMPED into Ensign Bill Walsh, who was fresh out of Midshipman school, last weekend. Those who remember him as a civilian here won't forget Bill as being the one who topped everyone when it came to receiving Merit Awards at the end of the year. I think he averaged about eight a year. Leaving Middie school as a Supply Officer, he is on his way to Norfolk, the garden spot of the state. Bill said that Bob Young and a few others got out with him.

From the coast comes word that Lt. John "Red" McFadden is in Camp Elliot, California. He's a gyrene, of course. We've heard a little news from his rommate, Bill Marchese, recently. The last we saw of him was when we were boots in our first month of our career as potential officers. Bill was going to minesweeper school then, and now we hear that he has seen a lot of action in the Mediterranean. We can all understand that, for the minesweepers are the first to go in. By the way, Bill is an Ensign.

Major Joseph R. McManus, better known as Brad, shared in the destruction of his first enemy aircraft, a Foche-Wulfe-190, while escorting bombers over German targets. Brad has the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with two oak-leaf clusters. He is the brother of our ex-Company Commander, Jack McManus.

One of our former sports editors, Bob Funabashi, is also getting his bit of action over in Italy. Bob wrote on the 29th and said he didn't think it would be long before he'd be hearing Mass in Rome. We're certainly glad that his prediction came true. Bob's been right up there on the front lines.

With all our old pals getting their orders last week, it just begins to dawn on us that we won't be seeing very much of them (or you) anymore. Here's hoping that everyone of you comes back with the bars. I guess the third and fourth decks of dear old Mendel Hall are the only stationary ones here. It will be a long time for most of us, so give us a thought and a line every now and then. And the best of luck to all of you.

Main Line Murmurings

By Pvt. Larry Schmitt

THIS week, as it must to all men, a T.S. (transfer slip) came to the writer of this column.

Torn between elation, at the thought of getting a reprieve from the slide-rule, and dejection, caused by the many and gruesome stories that the "old-timers" have told him about what is in store for him, he mused over the past year's happenings.

It was a bunch of "sad sacks" that donned the Navy white and Marine Corps khaki a little less than a year ago. Timidly and inquisitively they took to the books and eventually rounded into a fairly sharp outfit.

PVT. LARRY SCHMITT

Classes became boring "at times," but those week-ends and between semester leaves provided plenty of material for the "bull-sessions" — the latter becoming one of the more popular forms of pastime.

For obvious reasons, the transfers have remained slightly estranged from their "alma-stepmater," but have not failed to become fully aware of the friendly atmosphere which pervades the Main Line campus.

Speaking for myself, I should like to say that I have found the teachers, both lay and religious, always available and willing to be helpful. I have enjoyed their idiosyncrasies as well as their friendly attitude.

Permit me also to take the liberty to express a note of thanks to these teachers for their help, to our commanding officers for executing their assigned tasks in an admirable fashion, to the many new friends who have made this year a happy one, and to the people at Villanova and Philadelphia who have not only tolerated us, but have often gone out of their way to do us favors.

Lastly, let me say to the men who came by the uniforms that we wear through more sacrifice than we did—we shall try to make up for the privilege of sharing in the honor that you have bestowed upon the services that we represent, by a sincere effort to emulate your fine example in the future.

And so, as the thunder of an impending week of exams rudely snaps me out of this state of mental somnambulism, I find a fitting closing in the words of the unforgettable "Uncle Harry" — finis coronat opus.

Locals Break Even With One Game Remaining

Loss to Bucknell Gives Main Liners .500 Average; Lack of Team Play Responsible For Showing

When the spring baseball schedule was announced it listed fifteen games. To date, ten of them have been played with the results being even on each side of the ledger. Navy, Loyola of Baltimore, and one Muhlenberg game were rained out and Penn State was forced to cancel its game.

There were only two games that 'Cats did not have a chance to win. Norm Morton, Swarthmore, and Jack Kelly, Bucknell, held them completely in check in the games that they pitched.

Against the Army the attack did not function and the base running was equally poor as two men were caught at crucial points. This latter deficiency was to plague the team in future games. The score of this game was 3-1; on the earned run basis it was 1-0 for the Cadets.

Ten Stranded

The Philadelphia Marines fell victim of the 'Cats 12-3. However, ten walks, four wild pitches, two passed balls, and four errors conrtibuted more to the result than the ten hits made by the winners. Three men were caught napping on the sacks and ten more were stranded.

Generosity on the part of Franklin and Marshall pitchers (ten walks) was nullified by the fact that six of these men were picked off base. Timely hitting was responsible for the 11-3 victory. However, only one of the fourteen hits was good for extra bases.

The coordinated batting attack continued against Muhlenberg and, aided by four errors produced an 11-3 win. A successful double steal was the base running highlight of this game.

Kelly Brilliant

Four walks and a hit batter mixed with six hits provided enough runs to beat Bucknell by a 5-2 count. Jack Kelly, Bison relief pitcher, stole the show by limiting the 'Cats to two base runners while fanning six in his six innings on the hill.

Swarthmore thumped the Blue and White in their first meeting by a ten to three score as all their runs crossed the plate after two were out. Failure of the 'Cats batters at the plate was apparent as they left eleven men on base.

Loose fielding donated three runs to Ursinus as they took a ten inning decision. Thirteen Villanova runners died on base in this one and their run was also unearned. Failure to follow the signals flashed by Coach McCarthy was also a contributing cause to this defeat.

In the return game with Swarthmore, Norm Morton held the 'Cats in check in all but one inning. Three hits and an error produced the lone Villanova run. The Garnet did all its scoring in one inning when they mixed three walks and five hits to score six times.

Mueller's Best

After three defeats in a row, Villanova met Franklin and Marshall for the second time and received a 4-3 win in ten innings. Three of the 'Cats runs being the result of Diplomat errors. Gordon Mueller pitched his best game of the year. He allowed only four hits, three of them in one inning for two runs, walked one and struck out twelve. The local attack was still in low gear as nine men died on base.

At Lewisburg, Jack Kelly continued his mastery over Villanova batters and shut them out 4-0. Only seven 'Cats reached base, six on hits and one on a walk, in the fifteen innings this curve ball artist pitched against them this year.

Marty Greeley was unfortunate in drawing his first starting assignment in this game. The Bisons touched him for nine hits but only

League Leading Students

Fedigan Deadlock With Students In Softball Play

Sailors Win Four While Students Drop Three, Forcing Replay Of Tie Game With Marine "B" Team

By DAVE WARD, A.S.

As a result of the Students losing three games last week while Fedigan won four, the Fediganites jumped from fourth place to second, just a half-game behind the league leaders, during this past week, the last on the schedule. The records show that the Students have a record of ten wins against six losses and Fedigan, nine wins, five losses, and one tie. Consequently, Fedigan will play off a 7-7 tie with the Marines B team this Wednesday evening, and if they win will be crowned the league champions while if they lose, the title will go to the Students.

Both Alumni and the Marines A team missed the opportunity to slip into first place as they both fell before the rampaging C & F'ers, the former 13-11, and the latter 12-5. The A ten also lost to their fellow servicemen 11-3 and now are tied with Alumni for third place in the league standings. The hot and cold ten of the circuit, the Marines B club pushed Mendel into the cellar spot by handing them a solid 15-4 trouncing.

Marine A Drops

Starting off the week right, Fedigan handed the Marines A ten a 12-5 shelacking Monday night. Wasting no time whatsoever, the Fediganites drew first blood in the initial canto as McGowan led off with a single, Hoot received a free pass to first, after which Milt Anderson, stepping into the breech drove a long double into center scoring both men. Andy scored a minute later on a single to the same spot by Bathgate giving the Fediganites their third run. The following inning they added another four runs and were never threatened thereafter.

In the deciding game of the week on Thursday, the boys from the west end of the campus handed the Students a 12-5 lacing. However, they had to come from behind to do so. The Students started off with a bang and two walks, and two singles drove three runs across the plate in the first inning.

Villanova Scores Three Firsts In Haverford Meet

Capturing three firsts, a second, and four thirds, the Villanova track team tied with Shanahan C. C. for second place in the first annual Middle Atlantic A. A. U. track and field meet of the Officials' Club Of Philadelphia on Saturday at Haverford College.

The Wildcat thinclads were again led by George Rideout who took high scoring honors by winning the low and taking second in the high hurdles. Jim Morris sprinted to a win in the Century and a third in the furlong.

Fast Mile

In a brilliant closing bid which started before the leaders had rounded the last turn, Don Schmitt, Villanova's ace distance man, bested Phil Stilwell, Shanahan miler, after four laps of jockeying for positions. Schmitt broke the tape in the fast time of 4 minutes 32 seconds.

Paul Ruby again led the weight men, taking show spots in both the shot and javelin. Paul Smith managed a third place in the discus.

Cox Fails

The team trophy was won by Collegiate Track and Field Club with 42½ points. Villanova and Shanahan tied for second with 26 each.

With an entering field of approximately twenty men the Villanova athletes made an excellent showing. This meet was generally considered as a prep for the coming Nationals.

Hard luck was had by the usual strong man of the team, Burt Cox,

Chosen Navy All Star Team Wins First Title Game

In the initial game of the post-season softball series, the Navy All-Stars dropped the Civilian Students by the score of 11-8. Dick Hoot brought home the bacon for the Sailors with a last inning home run scoring two men ahead of him.

Driving in five runs with a triple and a double out of four times at the plate, Hoot sent the "crew" far into the lead in the fifth inning 7-2 and in the seventh he broke an 8-all tie with his round-tripper.

Loose fielding featuring five errors cost the Students three runs in the third inning and two runs in the fifth—a margin that well might have meant the game. Shaky work afield was confined to the Students however since the Navy made only one error. On the other hand, garnering 14 hits and five passes from the Navy's Chucker Oristian, the Students outdid the winners at the plate.

All Star Team

Hank Bombich, Alumni's lead-off man, was a definite choice for right field for the All-Stars while hard hitting Dick Hoot from Fedigan took the center garden without question, Jim Humes, sure-fielder and timely hiiter from Alumni placed left, and Ollie Anderson, Fedigan's fleet short fielder, took the same spot to round out the Stars outfield.

Bob Formani, Mendel's first sacker, placed with the luminaries on the record of a season of hard hitting. "Whitey" Magner at second base, the outstanding spark-plug of the league, and Joe Walters at third base carried Alumni's colors on the infield. Steady-fielding Johnny Belletti of Mendel held the shortstop position.

Steve Oristian who won Friday's game pitched for Alumni Hall during the regular season while "Moose" McTighe, Fedigan's fastballer, was also picked for the Stars two-man mound staff. Joe Ringlestein from Fedigan was chosen to handle the receiver's spot.

Wildcats Meet Penn In Final Game Of Season

First Half Schedule To End In Tussle On River Field; Locals Picked To Win

Hoping to repeat their 6-5 win of last season, the Wildcat nine will meet the University of Pennsylvania on their home ground tomorrow, this time with Penn as the underdog. Not doing so well this season, the Pennmen under Coach Horace Hendrickson, have lost 9 and won 3 to rate the average of .333 and hold 4th place in the Ivy League.

While not playing in any particular league, the Wildcats have split even having won 5 and lost 5 against competition which compares favorably with the present Ivy League teams. Considering all these factors, the odds are greatly in favor of the Villanovans. In the series with Penn, the Villanovans have won 12 and lost 8 games.

Two Lettermen

The only two returning team members who will endeavor to gain the edge over the Wildcats are David Boney, who handles 3rd base for the Pennmen, and Bob Yeabsley, catcher. Probably pitching will be John Woebse, six foot four inch hurler who holds a fairly good record for the season. Woebse is noted for his speed ball and may give the Wildcats a little trouble.

The battery scheduled for Villanova is Gordon Muellar, pitcher, with "Big" John Siano catching. "Big" John is about due for a homer, having gotten off some very close ones against Franklin and Marshall last week.

Backing up "Big" John's hitting power will be "Squeekee" Warner who does a very good job at shortstop. Holding down center field will be the mighty mite, "Dolf" Di Salvo who also has made an excellent showing this season. Among the others will be "Speedy" Al Sondheimer at left field, Jack Ramsey at third, and John Anderson at right field.

This game with Penn winds up the first half schedule. Another schedule already is in the process of being drawn up for the summer semester.

Tennis Matches To Be Scheduled For All Summer

Although the tennis team fared not too well this season they nevertheless have made a start. In the coming summer semester there will be more matches to prove the mettle of the Villanovans.

According to the coach of the team Rev. Vincent McQuade, O.S.A., many more matches are being scheduled for the summer season. On this schedule will be many repeats of the present opponents and new teams.

No Word

On Saturday a match was planned with the team from Franklin and Marshall College but it was called off. No word has been received from the Temple A.S.T.U. team which was to have played here a few weeks ago but never showed up.

The squad for next semester will be little changed as remaining will be many of the present team members. It will be enlarged with the students coming in this semester.

A review of the play shown by this young team picked out veteran Jerry Dwyer as the best player. Behind him was experience gained playing on the varsity at Georgetown. Also commendable for their play were Jimmy Shea, Jack Schell, Bob Forrest and others.

NAVY 4TH OF JULY CAMPAIGN
5TH WAR LOAN

Last Issue To Back Fifth War Loan Bond Drive

D-plus-26 is the day on which the greatest wave of Navy War bond buyers in history, both civilian and military, will swing into action. From the first to the eighth of July, Navy bond buyers will add their all-out purchases to their prayers and their production in backing the invasion.

All previous record-breaking estimates of the results of the Navy's Independence Day cash sales campaign must be sky-scrapered upward, now that the invasion of Western Europe is on.

Sales reasons for buying as many War bonds as possible during the Independence Day campaign are unnecessary. Navy personnel realize full well the stakes of this all-out drive through Europe.

Pour It On

This applies with particular force to those who are not called upon to participate physically in the invasion. We can, however, back the attack by buying War bonds until it hurts. The record of the Fifth War Loan Campaign and the Navy Fourth of July campaign will be an inspiring message to our fighting men who are bearing the brunt of the invasion drive.

The strategy of the Allied general staff is to "pour it on" and to bring the invasion to a speedy and successful climax. Approaching the July Fourth War bond campaign in the same frame of mind, the Navy is in the mood to roll up the highest sales total, leaving no doubt as to where it stands in this phase of the war program.

Goal Set

No dollar quota has been established in this bond campaign. The goal set is the purchase of at least one extra $100 War bond per person, both civilian and military. If this goal is reached, there is no question that the total for the campaign will be a record-breaking one.

Bond purchasing facilities have been set up at this station so that the personnel may buy with a minimum of inconvenience. All that remains is to earmark that extra cash for your War bond purchases during 1 to 8 July and fulfill the advance prediction of Secretary Forrestal, who said of the campaign:

"When the final results of the Navy's Independence Day Extra War Bond sale are announced, I am confident that another brilliant record will be added to the history of accomplishment by Navy personnel."

Baseball

one of its runs was earned. Two were the result of errors and he made a wild pitch that allowed a runner to move into position to score on a ground rule double to left that would have been an out under normal circumstances.

The present team, on paper, is on a par with Villanova teams of the past two years. However, there is an unexplainable lack of team work. Fundamental baseball rules have been disregarded by some men who think that they are free to ignore any instructions given to them when they are at bat or running the bases. This is not a pretty picture but facts are facts and anyone who can offer a valid explanation for the general lackadaisical attitude of the present team should see Coach McCarthy at once.

Mater nearly as impressive as Dr. Burke's. After four very active undergraduate years, highlighted by three years of editorship of the "Engineer" and a year of vice-presidency in Phi Kappa Pi, he graduated first in his class from the engineering school in 1935.

Former College Registrar

Immediately following this, he took over the position of both Registrar and Alumni Secretary. After that he was a member of the Board of Governors of the Villanova Alumni Association, and the American Alumni Council, and editor of the Alumnus until he left the college in March, 1943, to assume duties as an electrical engineer with the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company.

Theodore Reimel, second vice-president, attended the Temple University Law School following his graduation from the Arts School here in 1924. He completed his studies at Temple in 1928 and was admitted to the Philadelphia Bar on September 14, 1928.

Since February 15, 1942, Reimel has been an assistant district attorney. He is editor of the "Vehicle Code of Pennsylvania"; the revised edition of B. J. O'Connell's "Street Railway and Automobile Law and Procedure"; "Penal Code and Criminal Procedure"; and "Pennsylvania Criminal Law Digest."

as he was fouled out in the broad jump. Missing the takeoff three times and making one poor preparatory jump he missed out in his favorite event.

Best Race

Praise is to be given to runner Don Schmidt who ran his best race of the season when he won his mile event. For three laps he was led by Shanahan's representative, Phil Stillwell. In the final lap Don poured on the steam to drive by Stillwell and take the race.

Other points were lost by the Wildcats as they failed to come through in their favorite field events. Usually strong in the shot and discus, Paul Ruby and Paul Smith only managed to garner thirds in a stiff field.

Competing in the Javelin event, Paul Ruby was bested by Seymour Cohen of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy who hurled the stick 200 ft. to score in an event in which he has not been beaten in local competition.

The Haverford cinderpath was exceptionally fast, considering the showers which fell before and during the meet.

spare time, since he played intramural baseball, basketball, and football. Another interest Jim acquired was writing on the staff of the popular Georgetown paper, the "Hoya."

When not attending school during the summer vacations, Jim, with his parents, relaxed in Europe, visiting cities such as London, Paris, and Munich. Always a good neighbor, he also visited South America.

Jim is one of the few original V-12ers still at Villanova, and he is now an economics major.

PVT EUGENE M. ROSOL was only twelve years old when he too acquired the soul of a wanderlust and traveled to Cuba.

Attending high school in New Britain, Connecticut, Gene was active in both baseball and football. Gene's sport life really began at Scarborough Prep in New York City, where he stayed for two years. He played third base and pitched for the junior varsity baseball nine and won two letters. Another letter was presented to him for two years' activity on the varsity basketball team, and still another for varsity football.

PVT. EUGENE M. ROSOL

Following graduation, Gene enrolled in Georgetown University, where he matriculated in the business administration school as an accounting major. Once again taking the lead in sports, he went out for the football team in his freshman year. Always interested in baseball, he pitched for the varsity squad and added another varsity letter to his collection. While on the team, Gene pitched one complete game against Catholic University and allowed them only one hit. His capacity for sports also included intramural basketball.

FRANK A. DeRENZIS

TODAY in synopsized form we present Frank Alfred DeRenzis gentleman and scholar who it seems does not think he possesses enough and brilliant a background to warrant an interview or the prestige of our little column.

With such a thought in mind we say that in Frank we offer a better than ordinary student who will leave Villanova with the degree of a Bachelor of Science in Biology with which he will assail the medical world. Perhaps his innate bashfulness will disappear with the passing years but nevertheless we shall wish the pride of Bangor, Pa., the best of luck in the life he has chosen.

Faithful Arbiter

Shown in his most familiar stance is Pvt. Marty Karst, umpire deluxe. With the end of another softball schedule in the paper the time has come to speak a few words of praise for a most faithful worker in the softball games. For two seasons Marty has worked without stint in umping many games. His work is commendable not only for his zeal but also his evident ability. A former student of Loyola College at Baltimore, Marty umped for years in the Maryland Softball Association, and it is this experience that shows in his work.

as Noll walked, Hoot singled, Anderson got on first on an error and Kolnaski drew another walk to push a man across. Bathgate was retired without mishap for the second out since Jake McGowan had grounded to second. Joe Ringlestein came up with the bases still loaded and got on first on an infield error which permitted Hoot to score from third. Crotty grounded to short for a force at second to end the inning.

The Students added another in the second on an error, a walk, and a single to boost their advantage to 4-2. Neither team was able to score in the third and in the fourth, Fedigan picked up a run as Crotty walked, stole second, advanced to third on an error, and scored on a fly to right by Leo Noll.

9 Runs In Fifth

Beginning the fifth, John "Lovey" Quinn doubled and on successive singles by Baccera and Mamzic crossed the plate. With the score now 5- 3against them, the Fediganites came to bat in this inning and to bat they went with plenty of vim and vigor as 12 men stood at the plate in the fifth with the result that 9 tallies came in to sew up the game.

Registrar Lists 148 Honor Men For Spring Term

Six Attain Perfect Averages; Junior Class Leads School, Placing 57 on Roll, With Freshmen Second

Villanova's Junior Class took top scholastic honors for the Spring semester, placing 57 men on the Honor Roll which was recently released by the Registrar's Office. The entire Roll listed 148 men with average of 3.00 or better, which represented 18 percent of the total enrollment. This ratio was lower in comparison with the Winter term Honor Roll which listed 149 men—and 21 per cent of the enrollment.

Behind the Junior class came the Freshmen, placing 33 men in the list of honor, while the Sophomore and Senior class each had 29 men on the record.

The latest Roll also showed a drop in the number of men attaining perfect 4.00 records, with only six making the top honor compared with eight for the previous semester. Philip Jakeway, Chemical Engineer, led the Senior class with a straight "A" report. Armando Alvarez, Civil Engineer, Allan Schneider and George Hoberg, both Electrical Engineers, all made 4.00 ratings to lead the Juniors; while James Malone, Commerce and Finance, and Richard Illgen, Pre-Medical, did likewise to lead the Sophomores.

Attainment of a 4.00 rating for the past semester marked Jakeway's third perfect record while stationed at Villanova. It was likewise Schneider's second perfect score.

Albert Derr and Robert Hoffman took top honors for the Freshman class, but failed ot reach the all-A

College Confers Bachelor Degrees To 34 Graduates

Fifth Wartime Commencement Exercise Closes Third Term Under Navy Program

Villanova College conferred bachelor degrees on thirty-four graduates on Sunday, June 25, in the College Chapel at the fifth war-time Commencement Exercise. The ceremony combined the usual Baccalaureate Mass with the awarding of degrees.

The degrees were conferred by the Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of the College who alos celebrated the Solemn High Mass which preceded the ceremony. He was assisted by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., vice president as deacon, and the Rev| Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., as subdeacon. The Rev. William F. Sheedy, O.S.A., director of the Augustinian Mission Band, delivered the address to the graduates.

Attendance at the exercises was limited to parents and friends of the graduates and to faculty members. No honorary degrees were conferred. After the exercises, the graduates were hosts to their parents and friends at a luncheon on the campus.

Many of the members of the graduating class are already enlisted in one of the Armed Services or are about to be inducted therein.

The following were degree recipients:

Bachelor of Arts: Gerard J. Cahir, John S. Cleary, Joseph F. Hartman, Joseph D. Keffer, Edwin R. Kuczynski, John M. McGettigan,

Father Stanford Leaves Villanova

Receives New Assignment After 25 Years' Association With College

Four months after celebrating the Silver Jubilee of his coming to Villanova, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., has been called from his post as president of the college to duty elsewhere.

Fr. Stanford's store of educational experience is not to be laid aside, however; for, on leaving here, he takes up similar duties as Rector of the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C. Here it is expected that he will continue with the same type of work which made him a figure of nation-wide importance in educational circles during his stay at Villanova.

Was College Chaplain

A native of Boston, Mass., Fr. Stanford attended Boston College before beginning his studies for priesthood in the Augustinian order. He was ordained a priest on June 10, 1922, but had been teaching at the college for some four years before this.

In addition to his teaching duties here, Fr. Stanford was for several years prefect in one of the resident halls and subsequently college chaplain before he assumed the title of president. In June, 1932, he was appointed president of the college, and held that office until the recent changes were made.

Held Prominent Posts

Among the many positions of national import which Fr. Stanford has held at various times are included presidencies in the Association of American Colleges, the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania. At the present time, he is Secretary and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Council on Education, and a member of the General Executive Board of the National Catholic Educational Association.

Since the outbreak of the war, the government has frequently called upon Fr. Stanford to aid them in the settling of delicate

Alumnus Receives Sub School Honor

Ensign James J. Donnelly O-V (S), USNR, of Philadelphia and a graduate of Villanova College, has been designated honor man in the student officers class graduated from the Submarine School in New London, Conn.

Ensign Donnelly was presented the L. Y. Spear Foundation Prize for attaining the highest merit during the course of instruction. He entered the Naval Reserve in 1942 from Villanova College, graduating from here in 1943 with Bachelor of Science and Chemical Engineering degrees. He has been assigned to duty aboard a new submarine.

O'Brien Resigns As Chairman Of A.I.E.E.

James J. O'Brien, President of the Villanova Student Branch of the American Society of Electrical Engineers, has recently announced his resignation after receiving his call for service in the Navy. Patrick Reagan, now vice president, will conduct the first meeting for this semester which is to be held this week.

Business for this meeting will consist in the election of new officers for the coming term. Entirely new activities are contemplated for the college branch this year and arrangements for several plant trips are already under way.

Fr. McGuire Succeeds Fr. Stanford as President; Fr. McKee, New Vice-President

Changes Announced By Fr. Sullivan, Provincial, After Chapter Held On Campus; Fr. Stanford Assigned As Rector Of Augustinian College

By THOMAS M. SCHUBERT, A.S.

Among the changes made at the recent Provincial Chapter of the Augustinians held here on the campus, at which Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.M., presided, a new president and vice-president of the college were appointed.

Succeeding Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., LL.D., who has been President of the College for the last 12 years, is Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., D.D. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., M.A., head of the department of religion, will replace Fr. McGuire as Vice-President.

The appointments, which became effective on July 15, were announced by Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., the new Provincial of the Augustinian Fathers.

Fr. Stanford's new assignment as Rector of the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., ends 25 years of association with the college, during which time he has taken his place among the outstanding educators of the country — both in Catholic and secular circles.

In vacating the office of vice-president, Fr. McGuire also relinquished his duties as Dean of Men, Chairman of the Athletic Board, and moderator of the Student Council, which he has filled since his appointment three years ago.

A native of the Bronx, New York, Fr. McGuire was born in the parish of St. Nicholas, 34 years ago. He was educated in St. Nicholas' parochial school, at Augustinian Academy, Staten Island, and at Villanova College.

Studied in Rome

After graduation from Villanova in 1932, he studied from 1932 to 1939 at St. Monica's International Augustinian College and at the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome. Here he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Upon his return to the United States, Fr. McGuire spent an additional year studying educational methods at Fordham University before taking up his professorial post at Villanova in 1939. He has since served as professor of religious education, moderator of the Centennial Class of '43, director of intramural activities of the School of Commerce and Finance, and counsellor of Austin Hall. These posts were prior to the vice-presidency.

Earns Master's Degree

The new vice-president, Fr. McKee, was born in St. Rita's parish in Philadelphia in 1905. After one year at Roman Catholic High School in that city, he transferred to Villanova Prep, from where he was graduated in 1924. Four years later he received his A. B. degree from the college.

Following his ordination in 1931 at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, Fr. McKee returned to the Augustinian College in that city the following year to complete his theological studies and at the same time to earn an M. A. in Religious Education at Catholic University.

Prefect For 12 Years

Fr. McKee then spent the summer of 1932 at the University of Welcome

MOST important of the administrative changes made at the recent Provincial Chapter of the Augustinians held here on the campus, was the appointment of the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., D.D., to the office of the President of the College.

Father McGuire is no stranger to the students. In the triple capacity of Vice President, Dean of Men, and Chairman of the Athletic Board, as well as in his position as Moderator of the Student Council, he was intimately associated with every student activity on the campus. All clubs, fraternities, and athletic teams were under his jurisdiction; every student election, appointment, or petition was subject to his approval. He likewise had the often unpleasant duty of enforcing all the disciplinary decrees of the faculty.

Despite the fact that Father had the unpleasant task of enforcing discipline among the students, he was well liked and respected by all. His dignified sense of humor helped to smooth over many an unpleasant situation.

Father, as Moderator of Athletics, has handled another difficult assignment in the same fine fashion and made some important contacts for the College in the field of Athletics.

Likewise of high importance was the appointment of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., M.A., to the office of Vice President. In this new position, he will be able to utilize his many and far reaching contacts among the students to a great advantage in governing student activities.

Father McKee is well noted about the campus for his abundant energy in promoting student activities. As Moderator of the Villanovan, Prefect of Mother of Good Counsel Hall, and Director of Intramural Athletics, he has aided in improving Campus life. As Director of Religious Education he has done much to improve the spiritual life on the campus.

Villanova welcomes Father McGuire and Father McKee as her new officers and tenders them her sincerest congratulations.

Farewell

WHILE we welcome Fr. McGuire, there rests upon us the regretted necessity of saying farewell to Fr. Stanford.

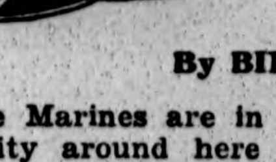
Although Father Stanford's accomplishments were outstanding and his achievements many, we believe that one of the finest things that can be said about him is that he had the welfare of the students uppermost in his mind in everything he did. It is true that the administration of his presidential duties was marked by a quiet, staid dignity, yet he was always and easily accessible to any student who had a problem. One need not be close to the student body to realize the great amount of trust it placed in his judgment and advice.

What Father has accomplished for the College since he became President in 1932 is well known to the readers of the Villanovan and the secular press. There are few offices of responsibility and importance in the educational field which he has not held. No doubt but that Villanova is better known, respected and appreciated both by Catholic and Non-Catholic educators alike because of his leadership.

The Alumni will miss Father Stanford a great deal. Although a very busy man, yet he found time to visit the various Alumni Clubs frequently during his four terms as President of the College. Countless have been the number of Alumni who have called upon Father for counsel and advice. Each and every letter received from graduates in the service was given immediate attention. His fine letters which appear in each issue of the Alumnus will also be missed.

Villanova tenders her former President sincerest gratitude for all that he has accomplished for her.

Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

SINCE the Marines are in such a minority around here now, we think a little more recognition should be given them. Thus, we dedicate this column to the Marines and their pals who are gone.

Fr. Grimes received a very interesting and informing letter from Pfc. Gene O'Donnell, who is at Camp Pendleton on the west coast. He mentions some of the boys whom we had practically forgotten existed, since they left 'way back in the first semester . . . Remember Tom Condon and his pal, Bill Broas? Tom is in the Field Artillery, while Bill is attached to the Air Corps at Mira Mor . . . Then there is the man no true Villanovan will ever forget, Clipper Smith. Clipper was made Commandant at the training center, and reports are that he is looking fine.

One of the more interesting and amusing details of Gene's letter was that he saw one of the headquarter's jeeps going down the street with "Paoli Local" written across the front. He said that that was probably due to the fact that the executive officer is from Bryn Mawr.

Once while out on the rifle range he ran into Bill Feeney and some of the fellows who left with him . . . Eric Gavel is in Japanese language school . . . Lt. Bill Craven is morale, athletic, and mess officer with a number of other jobs thrown in . . . Joe McEvoy, along with Doc Heffernan, is an officer at the boat basin which specializes in amphibious tractors . . . Jack "Big Deal" Gallagher is with his wife and is connected with the paymaster dept. at San Diego.

Red Neiman is a first lieutenant in a rocket gun battalion and is, incidentally, up for captaincy . . . Jack McMahon has left for overseas along with the kid brother, but in a different battalion.

We can't leave out the fact that Jerry McDermott dropped in for a visit wearing his bombardiers wings and with his second lieutenant's commission. It's been sixteen months since we saw him off, and we haven't seen him since.

Just heard mentioned that "Jook" Powell was in Bermuda on a shakedown cruise for a destroyer. He is a seaman first class.

George Harris was recently commisioned as a bombardier and is looking forward to being attached to a B-29.

It was just now mentioned that Tom Nary is working pretty hard up at Yale, but is looking forward to a cruise in November.

From Great Lakes comes word of Lou Merlini. Lou liked boots a lot but says it was quite a change from Chem Engineering. He is going to radio school.

Bill Butler dropped around a few days ago with his Ensign stripe. He had just come from Harvard Supply School where he expects to be until February.

Bob Roualt is at the Navy Air Field at Dallas, Texas . . . Top Sgt. "Monk" Restaine dropped in from Kingman, Ariz., and informs us that Ed Szycher is now happily married to a California girl. That's what we like to hear! . . . Bill Coll graduated from Yeoman school at Bainbridge . . . Also at Bainbride is Ed Caravati, who is in the Hospital Corps. He says that all the Villanova boys in the service schools are doing very well . . . Henry Lopez S 2/C, is in his fourth week of radio school . . . Pvt. Anthony F. Beranato is at Ft. Lewis, Wash. and is expecting to go to X-ray technicians school . . . And Pvt. Ed Fanelli is at Westover Field in the Base Weather Squad. He expects to be finished in three weeks.

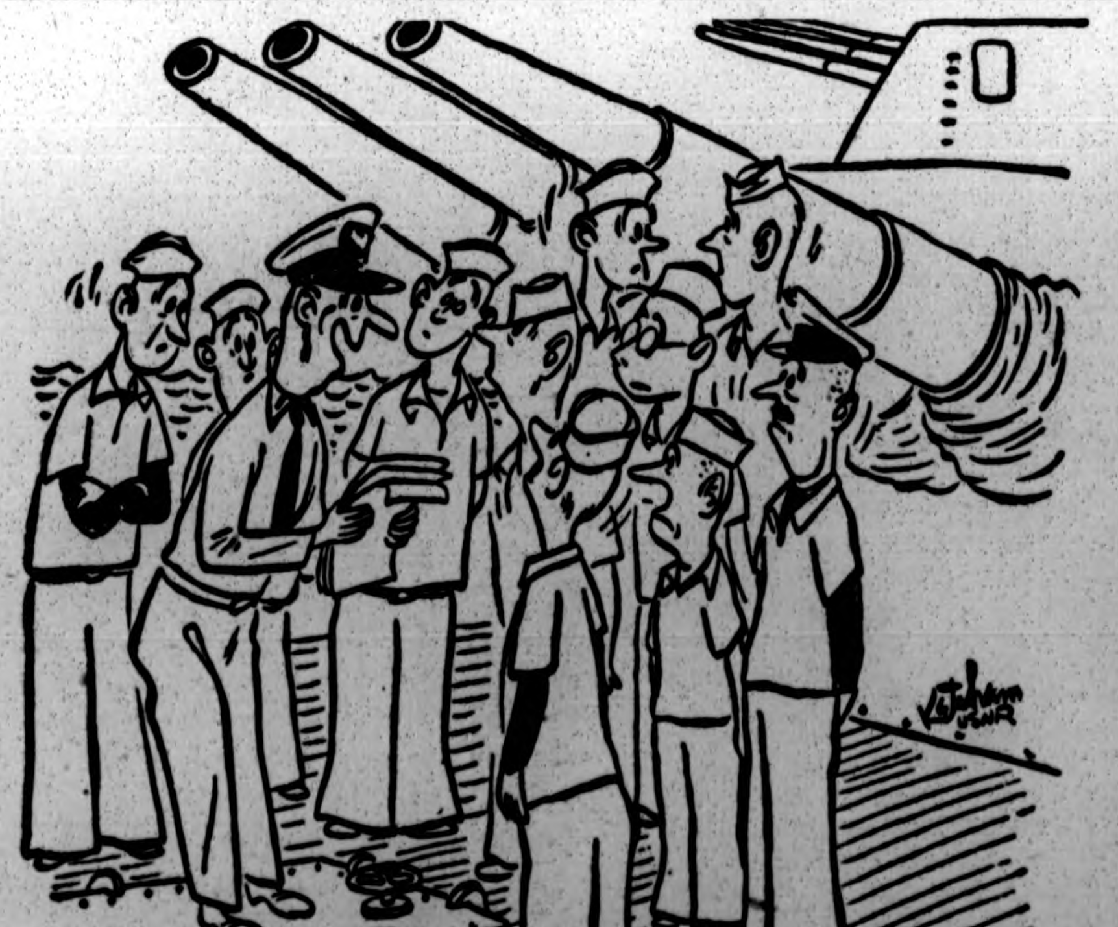
A Novel Ad

A WAR BOND ad that carries a punch was conceived one morning at 0400 at Pearl Harbor, while a Navy lieutenant was standing watch.

The ad offers $14,000,000,000 City of Tokyo, Japan, Destruction and Extermination Bonds and Certificates due various and priced at par, and continues, in part:

"These bonds are full faith and credit obligations secured by the blood, guts, and sweat of several million American fighting men and collaterally secured by the heartaches and loneliness of an additional several million American wives, mothers, and sweethearts * * * The contract for the project has been awarded to a combined group of well-known contractors, the Army, the Navy, and the Marines, who have heretofore been independent operators but who have consolidated their efforts and have demonstrated their ability to complete the project in the shortest possible time * * *

"These bonds, issued in either registered or coupon form, are negotiable instruments, and are commonly referred to in financial circles as United States War Bonds. They are offered by prospectus only, which prospectus is to be found in the conscience of every true and loyal American citizen."



Navy War Bond Cartoon Service.

"—And in conclusion, men, always remember — War Bond Allotment spelled backwards spells RAW DNOB TNEMTOLLA!"

MacGil's Folly

By BOB McKIBBIN, A. S. and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

WELL, another semester, another new attempt — or perhaps even a column. This space was formerly held by the late Pvt. Schmitt; but as you can plainly see, Larry ain't here no mo!... but here we are. So dry those tears and belay those fears 'cause we're gonna fill up this space just like Larry did, i.e. one way or another, and in our case we hope it's a boy.

When Mr. Smith pulled out he certainly took everything with him; about all he left was 15 by 1½ (quick, Bertram, a slide rule) or 22½ sq. in. of blank, fairly white space. Why the esteemed crumb didn't even leave an old joke — but that's not so bad, we have plenty of old jokes. If it weren't for Pop, his ghost writer, who stands outside our paragraph and softly calls—L-A-R-R-Y—L-A-R-R-Y we'd certainly be in a mess.

You see, if you haven't already seen "It Happened Tomorrow," Pop always has next week's column before it's even printed; so we thought we'd use it, 'cause even if we'd written it ourselves, it'd still be the same, anyway — get it? Pop claims: "It won't do you any good Larry" and maybe when you read a few lines more you'll be inclined to agree.

Enough of this . . . hold on . . .

SALE OF THE WEEK: Attention folks — especially you old pudgy dames . . . Do you protrude? Do you follow yourself into a room? Do you wish to recover lost youth? If so, act now through our special close-out offer and come in and see Professor Waddles B. Wigglesproof, your friendly flesh advisor. If, after sixty-nine visits to the prof, you are still alive and not completely satisfied, he will generously refund your five thousand dollars, your house, your husband and two children, assorted pets, and automobile. But, my dear women — the prof. never fails. He's never given a thing back yet. Let me cite the case of Mrs. S. B. When Mrs. B. came to us, she weighed 250 pounds — a wholly unheard of weight for a woman of four-feet-six who was just reaching her peak at eighty-four. When the doctor had given her sixty-nine treatments she had shrunk to a mere sixty - nine pounds — the first dehydrated tomato known.

Staurday, July 1, 1944, was the first anniversary of the V-12 program — and for many of us it marked the completion of one year of active service. This occasion brought out the following salty quote:

Chief Nuisance to Apprentice Seaman —

"How long have you been in the Navy, mate?"

"Three semesters, sir." was the quick reply.

Hats off to Ray (I can get you a good orchestra) Kasper of the USMCR — the Army has finally classified him 1-A, and is thinking pretty seriously of accepting him into their ranks. Congrats, Ray, we always knew one of you Marines could do it.

And now for that promised treat, that scintilating musical musical comedy in eighty-four acts — "Who's Your Odd Friend." You asked for it: we promised it to you, and here it is!

Social Sidelights

SHORE LEAVE —

The eight day recess between semesters found many Villanovans seeking "rest" and "relaxation" at the New Jersey Seashore resorts. Capering on the beaches at Ocean City were Tom Welch, Mark Manning, Hugh Johnson, Joe Costello, John Bradley, Bob Griffiths, John Corr, Bill Morris, Joe O'Keefe, Phil Duffy, Tom Schubert, Ed Grostas, and many unindentified others who were incognito . . . Columnist's Definition of incognito—when a friend is too busy ogling at the curvacious beauties on the beach that he ignores you completely . . . Believe me, it happened! What some guys see in women!

Gracing the boardwalk at Atlantic City were C. E's Tony Cocco and Le Rox Collegeman, while Jack Glancy, Jerry Melon, and John Cockroft "resorted" to Wildwood.

Climatic paradox — Frank Doorley's icy attitude acquired in Ocean City suddenly melted when he was seen "Lollying" on the Atlantic City Beach . . . Bob "I Just Don't Even Sleep" McKibbin couldn't see enough of Connie. Can it be love? . . .

George Farrell struck it rich when he found one of Ocean City's apartment houses to be entirely inhabited by a sorority from Allentown . . . Andy Murphy found out why Walt Huber caroused at the carousel . . . Andy likes blondes too! . . .

Herb Lamb is "lam bie-pie" to the waitresses at Ryan's, but he is more than that to Joyce.

AMUSEMENT DIRECTORY

Sideshots..As if you hadn't heard enough about it, "Going My Way" is currently the best motion picture running in Philadelphia . . . Sure cure for a dull Sunday afternoon—Martin's Dam . . . For a Saturday evening's dancing, Willow Grove presents an attractive dance floor with a better than average band.

A STRANGE TALE

The moon was full and high, and it shine brightly. The sea air was cool and blew softly over the deserted boardwalk. A young couple sat in close embrace on a bench overlooking the sea, watching the moonbeams dance merrily on the rolling waves. Then they kissed, and the kiss was long, and it was tender. The girl's eyes closed as their lips parted. In a throbbing, breathless voice she softly whispered, "Oh, Charley!" The youth hurriedly disengaged himself from her tender grasp, and amazedly exclaimed, "But I'm Joe Carroll!"

Truth is stranger than fiction.

Meet the Boys

By JOHN COCKROFT, A.S., and ANTHONY MULLEN

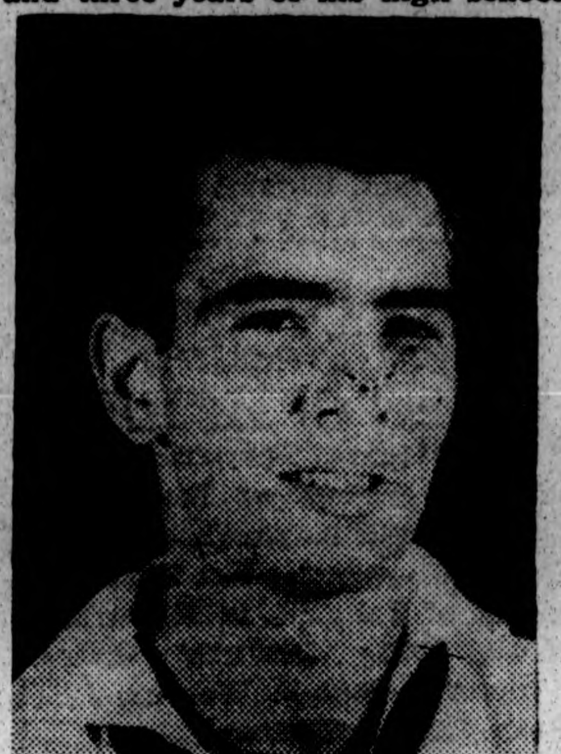
TWO of the most likeable fellows who have matriculated at Villanova College in recent years are here shown by their photographs. Martin J. Roddy and Francis J. McGuinn together attended St. Columbus Parochial School in the suburbs of Shibe Park. Whenever they relate their boyhood experiences, they will always tell of their beautiful voices in the choir.

On first appearances they might seem to be very different in nature. However, one should not be fooled by appearances, for basically they both possess a full measure of that pleasant nature which traditionally surrounds Villanova.

Attends St. Joseph's

The fortunes of God showered heavily upon them when the Navy picked them as roommates. But ever since, the other boys of Mendel Hall have had to put up with their tricks and mischief.

Frank attended St. Joseph's Prep, and three years of his high school days saw him rowing on the school crew.



FRANCIS McGUINN, A.S.

His first two years at college were as a civilian day-hop. The misses at Rosemont who used the bus then might remember him and Marty as two young gentlemen. They would give their seats to a girl, but she would always have to hold their books.

Begins Navy Life

July of 1943 saw Frank in a different phase of his life. Instead of his former "sharp" civilian suits, he was now wearing the summer whites of the United States Navy. His week-end liberties saw him proudly escorting his best girl Ruth around Philadelphia.

At the beginning of this semester, Frank was made Chief Master-at-Arms of Mendel Hall. Because of his stern and fearful nature, nary a creature nor even a mouse dare move when he is about his duties.

Besides these attributes, he is also very energetic on the slightly heavy side of life. Frank is enrolled in the engineering school, pursuing a degree in Mechanical Engineering. He has been a constant honor roll man, and is a member of the A.S.M.E.

McGuinn is mainly interested in the Phi Kappa Pi, having been elected President of the fraternity last spring. Ever since then, the society has been showing a marked improvemeut. Their main social was the June Dance, which proved to be one of the most delightful dances ever to be staged at Villanova.

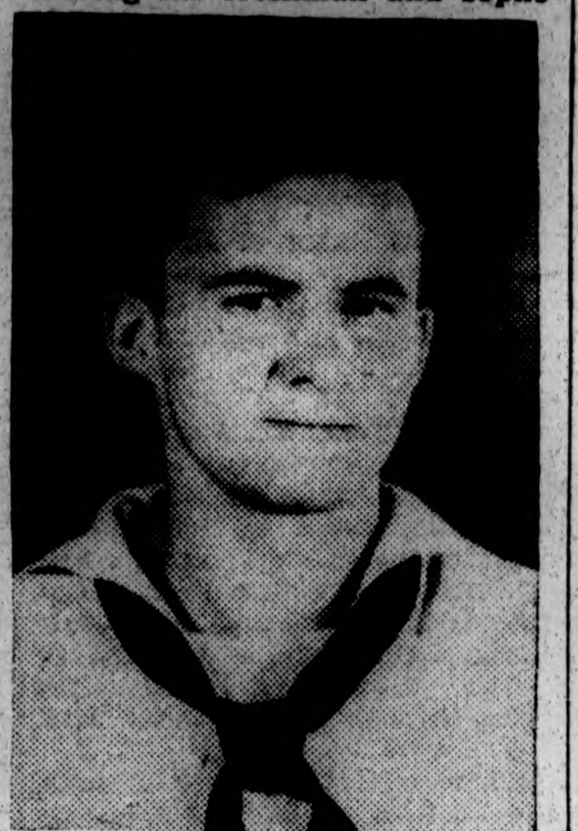
MARTIN RODDY will celebrate his 21st birthday today. He hails from Roman Catholic High School, which boasts of being the oldest Catholic Diocesan high school in the country.

During his freshman and sophomore years as a day-hop, he could always be found in the corner of the Pie Shoppe. It was at this time that he and Frank organized their famous Irish dances at Mercantile Hall. They would enlist fellows of every nationality here at school to attend.



MARTIN RODDY, A.S.

Proud of Ancestry

In the middle of the summer of '43, Roddy was also called back to Villanova as a trainee in the V-12. He was immediately barracked in Mendel Hall. Ever since, if there is an argument on the third deck, it is always in Room 331. The subject is inevitably the land of the green, and Marty's voice can be heard above all others loudly proclaiming his ancestry.

Those reading this column might believe that Marty is always a good-hearted sailor. He likes to row, but he always takes his girl friend, Alice. We wonder why? Could it be that she rows for him? Poor girl!

Initiation a Specialty

Marty, at present, is in his last semester, pursuing a degree in mechanical engineering. He had the pleasure of being instructed by Professor Yavitch. However, the professor could not understand Roddy's possible underlying talents.

He is Sergeant-at-Arms of the Phi Kappa Pi, having been elected at the same time as Frank. Marty always had taken pride in his ability for initiating new members into the fraternity.

This semester will see Frank and Marty step up to the altar and receive their diplomas. We all wish them the best of luck in their journey.

ANOTHER senior mechanical engineer commands our attention next. Jack Wilson is one of the best known seniors on the campus. A day-hop from Philadelphia, he attended St. Stephen's grammar school and St. Joseph's Prep in the city before coming here.

While he was in high school, he was most interested in sports, particularly intramural football, baseball and basketball. As is the case with many of the fellows, he chose Villanova for his alma mater because of its convenience, its excellent engineering course and the fact that it is a Catholic institution.

JOHN WILSON

Secretary of Fraternity

Jack became a student at Villanova in September, 1941, and ever since the time he has labored energetically. He has been a hard worker for the Phi Kappa Pi, and was secretary of the fraternity in his sophomore year. He has served on various committees including the senior Dance Committee. He is now a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Jack has kept up his interest in sports all through his college career, and has competed in intramural football, baseball and bowling. He will be 21 on the 10th of October, and is graduating on the last of that month. He intends to apply for a commission in the Navy.

Having been caught in the current fad for post war plannning, Jack has decided that he will spend his first few years after the duration catching up on sleep. However, we feel sure that his nobler instincts will drive him to begin the practice of mechanical engineering.

JUST to prevent an M. E. monopoly in the column, we present as our final victim of the week one of the civil engineers in this years graduating class. Angelo Rosa is another day-hop from Philadelphia. He was 21 on May 18th, and has been here since September, 1941.

A resident of Chestnut Hill, Angelo started his schooling at John Story Jenks School. He attended Germantown High School, where he took an active part in sports and other extra-curricular activities. He played intramural sports, and was a member of the Leader's Club in gym.

ANGELO ROSA

He came to Villanova on the advice of an alumnus, and has not regretted his choice. Since arriving, he has made himself useful all around. He is a member of the Phi Kappi Pi, has served on the smoker and initiation committees of that organization, was co-chairman of the recent June Hop, and chairman of the bowling league. Several other committees of the P. K. P. and the student council have included him among their number.

Rosa is also a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. As in high school, he has ben active in intramural football, softball and bowling for four years. After the war Angelo hopes to begin the practice of civil engineering, but until then Uncle Sam is waiting right outside the gates. So for the present at least, his future is certain if not secure.

Villanova Alumnus Studying In Rome; Hid 9 Months From German Gestapo

Nine months of hiding, of living on scraps of food passed to him through the entrances of secret passageways while the Gestapo hunted him like a common criminal, came to an end recently for a young Philadelphia medical student, and a graduate of Villanova College, when the Allies entered the city of Rome.

How Pasquale M. Vassalluzzo, 28, was caught by the outbreak of hostilities while completing his medical studies at the University of Rome, and forced to seek refuge from the German occupation with 11 other American medical students, was told recently by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Vassalluzzo.

Twice during the occupation, his parents learned, the young student risked his life by going into the streets—in order to see his wife, Vicki, who was about to have a baby. He was one of the few members of the student group who dared to go out during the entire nine months.

"I ventured out twice," he said, "Both times I had to see my wife. The last time she was going to have a baby and I didn't care what happened.

"When I went outside, I felt that everyone that saw me in the streets was going to reoprt me. It is a marvelous feeling not to be hunted any more."

Mr. Vassalluzzo and his fellow students were about to receive their diplomas at the University of Rome when the American Consulate warned all citizens of the United States to leave Italy before hostilities broke out. To return to their own country would have meant beginning their medical schooling over again. They gambled on completing their education before the war started, and lost.

However, despite the war, Italian indifference permitted them to continue their studies at the University —until the Germans took over the country.

A graduate of Roman Catholic High School and Villanova College, Mr. Vassalluzzo plans to return to this city to practice, but when he will be able to leave Italy is uncertain.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Let Us Be Realistic

By Fr. GRIMES

ANTHOLOGIES and literary omnibuses are the call of the day. We have them for poetry and detective stories alike. Every field of endeavor has its list of "the best." Some one would do well, too, to collect the expressions of deep faith and solid piety that are appearing in our national magazines today.

How frequently, these days, do we not come across real masterpieces of the spiritual life printed in our greater weekly and monthly publications? Why this sudden sally into the realm of the spiritual? It is but the echo of the soul sentiment of many of our fighting men. Out of the clouds of misery, suffering and death on the global battlefields of this conflict the hearts of our Boys have been touched by the invitation of Christ: "Come to Me all you that labor and are burdened and I will refresh you." And they are coming.

Facing sudden death from sniper action or from the long drawn out agony of thirst and starvation on a sea raft our Boys have matured spiritually. Many of them have found, some for the first time, that miracles are still possibilities — and more! The sufferings they have endured have strengthened them and brought them face to face with the raw reality of life and death. They begin to see these "old fashioned verities" in their true perspective and, when brought close to them as actualities have cried out with apostolic faith: "Lord save us, we perish!" And He has saved them. The dramatic true-stories that we read from the pens of our Boys are witness to the action of Divine Providence in our daily lives.

We are all greatly impressed when we hear of a miraculous happening. But more important than miracles is the faith that occasions them. It will be remembered that Our Lord, in connection with the miracles performed by Him in Palestine, was wont to make such remarks as "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth . . . " "Go in peace: thy faith hath made thee whole . . ." The spirit of religion is more important — more complementary to God and more beneficial to ourselves — than are miracles wrought in our behalf. What I mean is conveyed by the following poem found on the body of a soldier killed in Italy. No miracle saved this soldier from death, but can you say that the God of miracles failed him?

Look, God, I have never spoken to You,
But now I want to say "How do You Do";
You see, God, they told me You didn't exist—
Like a fool I believed all this.

Last night from a foxhole I saw Your sky—
I figured right then they had told me a lie;
Had I taken time to see things You made,
I'd have known they weren't calling a spade a spade.

I wonder, God, if You'd shake my hand,
Somehow, I feel that You will understand;
Funny I had to come to this hellish place
Before I had time to see Your face!

Well, I guess there isn't much more to say,
But I'm sure glad, God, I met You today;
I guess the Zero Hour will soon be here;
But I'm not afraid since I know You're near.

The signal! Well, God I'll have to go;
I like You lots, this I want You to know;
Look now, this will be a horrible fight—
Who knows? I may come to Your House tonight.

Though I wasn't friendly to You before,
I wonder, God, if You'd wait at Your door?
Look, I'm crying! Me? Shedding tears?
I wish I had known You these many years.

Well, I have to go now, God, goodbye . . .
Strange, since I met You I'm not afraid to die!

Expressions of faith, such as this, are coming from men who are facing death daily, even hourly. These men have their thoughts fixed on Eternity because it seems so near to them. These men are viewing life as the Author of Life would have it — in terms of Eternal Life. We need not even say that it demands a special far-sightedness to have the same perspective. Life for anyone may flicker out without warning — battle only multiplies the hazards.

Villanovan Advisor Gets Appointment

St. Louis, and the summers of 1933 and 1934 at the University of Pennsylvania. Since then he has been doing part-time graduate work at Catholic University while carrying on with his many duties on this campus.

Fr. McKee's life since arriving on the campus in 1932 has been an active one. For 12 years he was prefect of Austin Hall, and has recently taken over the same duties in Good Counsel Hall. The Villanovan has benefited by his active direction throughout the twelve years he has been here, and the success of intramural athletics has been due in large part to this enthusiastic moderator.

Heads Religious Department

Fr. McKee's most important work has, of course, been his position as head of the religious department — for which so much of his education was a preparation. He has taught religion to students in each of the four years, and is presently teaching senior religion. He also headed a very active Catholic Press Apostolate for some years in the past, but present conditions have forced him to keep these activities to a minimum.

Whether or not Fr. McKee will continue to hold these many posts when he takes over the varied duties of the vice-presidency has not yet been determined.

problems of educational policy which arose. He has been consultant to the Navy Department, the War Manpower Commission, the United States Office of Civilian Defense, and the War Department.

Received Many Degrees

Other institutions of learning have recognized his merit continuously. Degrees of Doctor of Literature have been conferred on him at various times by Boston College, Loyola University of Chicago, and St. John's University of Brooklyn.

As an author, Fr. Stanford has achieved a measure of fame through his pamphlets dealing with marriage — a subject connected with the course in religion which Fr. Stanford taught here in recent years. He will be more remembered here on the campus for his text on Descriptive Geometry — a book which all engineering students who use it are agreed presents a complicated subject in clear and orderly fashion.

Term Is Officially Opened By Mass

Fr. Stanford Welcomes Students And Makes Farewell Appearance As College President

The fourth semester under the Navy V-12 Program was officially opened with Solemn High Mass in the College Chapel on Tuesday morning July 4, at 8:30 A. M. During the service, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of the College addressed the Navy, Marine and Civilian students present, welcoming them back to Villanova.

The mass was celebrated by Father Stanford who was assisted by Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., as deacon, and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., as sub-deacon.

In his address, Fr. Stanford extended a hearty welcome to all new students, especially to the Freshmen Class, which is one of the largest in the School's history. The Registrar's list shows 78 civilians enrolled in the Freshmen Class against a total of 125 civilians in all. The total Navy roll lists 96 Marine trainees and 480 Navy men.

Bids Farewell

Father mentioned a sad note, however, when he bad the assembly farewell. The text of his address follows:

"I wish to extend a hearty welcome to all of you students at the beginning of a new term, particularly you men who begin your studies here for the first time. Under the time schedule you have, the term goes by very quickly, so it is important for you to get down to solid work at the very beginning.

"In welcoming you here this morning and asking God's blessing upon you during the term, I am also making a farewell appearance. Like any good Navy man, I have my orders to take up a new assignment elsewhere by the middle of the month. During my 25 years of service at Villanova, and particularly during my 12 years as president, among the very pleasant experiences I can look back upon are the splendid relations I have enjoyed with the students and the excellent cooperation which they have given to me. I bespeak for my successor, Fr. McGuire, the same fine spirit and generous measure of cooperation which I have been privileged to enjoy.

"In conclusion I ask God's richest blessings upon each and every one of you, not for this term only, but for the months and years to follow."

Six Perfect Averages On Roll

Weinert Presides At First Meeting As Head Of ASME

The Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held its first meeting of the present semester last Thursday evening at 7 P. M., in Room 215, Mendel Hall. Recently elected chairman Eugene P. Weinert, A.S., presided at the meeting.

The program for the semester was discussed and it was decided to make an effort to get student members to present papers on engineering subjects, these to supplement the regular program of technical motion pictures.

The July issue of "Mechanical Engineering" was distributed at the meeting. Members who did not receive their copy should get in touch with the Secretary, John M. Millet, A.S., 241 Mendel Hall.

All mechanical engineering students who have completed their freshman year are eligible to join the Society and are urged to do so. Men interested can obtain further details from either of the two officers mentioned above.

George Auth Joins Engineering School Faculty As Two Former Profs Leave for Other Duties

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

With the beginning of the semester, the Engineering School gained a new teacher in the person of George Auth (left) in the Mechanical Engineering Department. However, the School lost the services of Harry Blumenfield (center), and Jacob Yavitch (right) who left to assume other duties.

With the termination of last semester Villanova suffered the loss of two of its engineering profs, namely, Harry Blumenfeld, professor of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, and Jacob Yavitch, professor of Mechanical Engineering.

The former is a graduate of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, obtaining his master's degree at the University of Florida in 1941. Spending two years at Villanova, he was finally enticed to leave the campus by a job vital to the war effort, that being in the research department of the Sun Oil Company. His duties there will consist mainly of Aviation Gasoline research.

The present status of Prof. Yavitch, graduate of Cornell, is not known, but upon leaving, he had three promising industrial offers, one being also with the Sun Oil Co., this prospect consisting of gas turbine research in which field he is greatly interested.

The above losses were greatly offset, however, with the arrival of George Auth who will take up his duties in the Mechanical Engineering department. Born in the year 1914, although looking much younger, Mr. Auth took up his secondary schooling at Bushwick High School in the heart of Brooklyn.

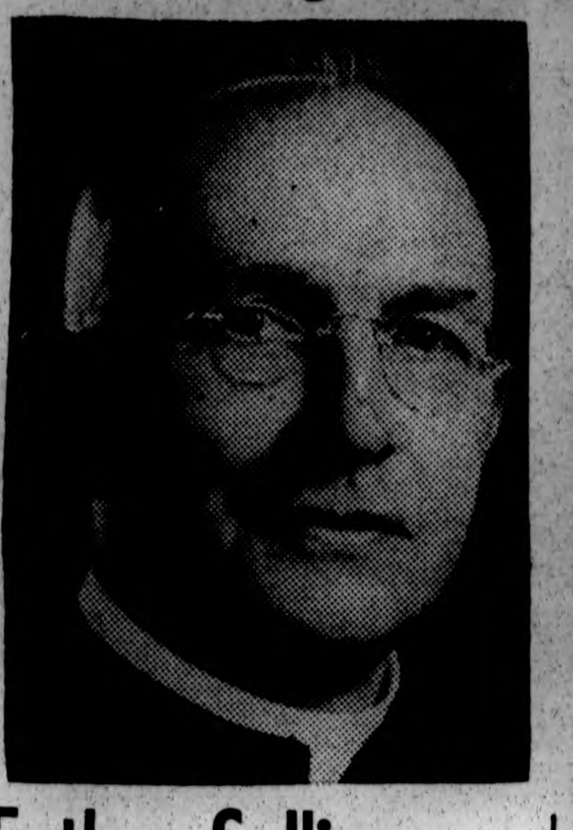
Being mechanically minded since boyhood days, he continued in the native Brooklyn atmosphere to further his engineering interests at Brooklyn Polytechnic. The lack of sports forced his energies into extra-curricular activities. Notorious for his attendance of dances and social affairs, he became known to his class mates as a "prom hound."

Graduating in 1935 with a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering he immediately ventured into industry, spending two profitable years with the Pioneering Instrument Co., now famous for their work on aircraft instruments. Leaving in 1937 Mr. Auth was immediately employed by the W. B. Connor Engineeering Corp., who, realizing his tremendous possibilities, positioned him as plant supervisor. His dealings consisted mainly with air conditioning apparatus, steam traps, tear gas guns, etc.

After four years he left to teach at Brooklyn Polytechnic and work on his Master's degree which at present is 95% complete. Seeing the uselessness of reciprocating engines, that of continually starting and stopping a piston, he did some valuable research work on rotary engines during his stay there. Upon leaving Brooklyn, Mr. Auth proceeded to Villanova, where he hopes to further his life's work—teaching.

Interested in boating since high school days, most of his spare time, if not taken up in research, is spent with this skillful hobby.

New Augustinian Officials Named At Provincial Chapter



The Provincial Chapter of the Augustinian Fathers was held at Villanova during the week of June 26 with the main purpose of electing a provincial. Pictured above are, left to right: Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.D., former Provincial of the Order for the last six years; Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.M., Assistant General of the Order who presided at the Chapter, and Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., the newly elected Provincial.

Father Sullivan Made Provincial

Succeeds Father Sheehan As Head Of Order; Dr. Hickey Presides At Chapter

The Provincial Chapter of the Augustinian Fathers of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova was held at Villanova during the week beginning Monday, June 26. The sessions of the Chapter were presided over by the Assistant General of the Order, Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.M.

On Tuesday morning, after a Solemn High Mass of the Holy Ghost celebrated by the president of the Chapter, the sessions began with the election of a new Provincial. Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., was the choice of the assembled Augustinians. Father Sullivan was Provincial from 1932 to 1938; since 1938 he has been Pastor and Prior at St. Nicholas' in Atlantic City.

Former Navy Chaplain

Father Sullivan was born in Lawrence, Mass., in 1887, and was educated in the parochial schools there. He entered the Novitiate at Villanova in 1904, and studied at Villanova College and at the International College of St. Monica in Rome. He was ordained at Rome in 1909. During his extensive clerical life, he has been a member of the Mission Band, a Navy chaplain in the first World War, president of Villanova College, pastor of Augustinian parishes in Jamaica, Long Island; Flint, Michigan, and Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Father Sullivan succeeds Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.L., as Provincial of the Augustinians. Father Sheehan held the post for the past six years, having been elected for two successive terms.

Provincial for Six Years

Like his successor, Father Sheehan was also ordained in Rome, Italy, in July, 1903. The degrees of Doctor of Canon Law and Lectorate of Sacred Theology were conferred on him in 1905 in Rome. Father Sheehan then returned to the United States and taught Mathematics and Canon Law at Villanova from 1906 to 1914.

He was twice appointed Pastor and Prior of St. Nicholas' Parish in Atlantic City, and also held the same post at St. Lawrence's Parish in Lawrence, Mass. In 1938, Father Sheehan was elected Provincial of the Order and was reelected again in 1941. He has recently been appointed Pastor and Prior of St. Nicholas' in Atlantic City.

Other Officials Named

Also elected at the first sessions of the Chapter were the following Definitors or Provincial Counsellors: Very Rev. Charles J. Baker, O.S.A., of Mother of Consolation Church in Chestnut Hill; Rev. Thomas A. Kiley, O.S.A., of Villanova College; Rev. Henry E. Greenlee, O.S.A., S.T.D. of St. Augustine's College in Washington, D. C., and Rev. Edward J. Quinn, O.S.A., of St. Paul's Mechanicville, N. Y., and the Augustian Mission Band.

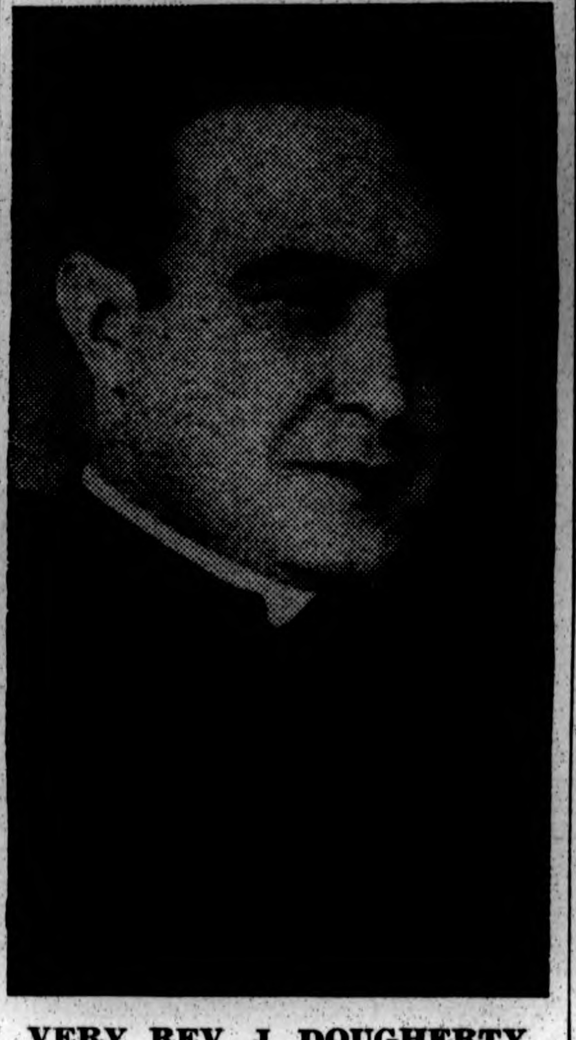
Additonal or Substitute Definitors who were elected were Rev. Matthew F. McDonald, O.S.A., S.T.L., and Rev. John J. Corr, O.S.A., of St. Patrick's, Cambridge, N. Y. Rev. Robert P. Russell, O.S.A., Ph.D., S.T.L., was elected Socius-Provincial and Secretary of the Province.

Fr. Dougherty Succeeds Fr. Caffrey As Prior of Villanova Monastery

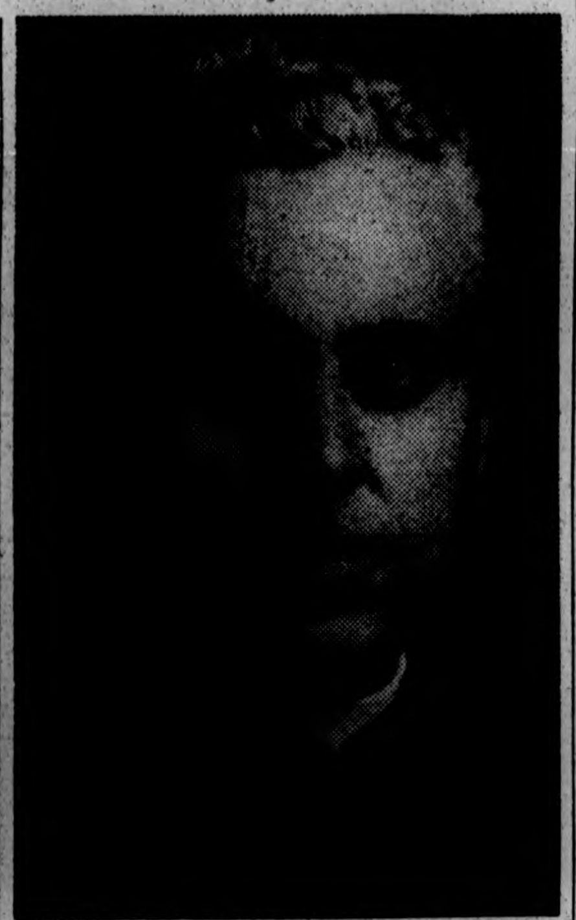
Important among the recent changes in the Augustinian Order was the appointment of Very Rev. J. Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph.D., as Prior of the Villanova Monastery.

Father Dougherty assumes this post in addition to his duties as Dean of the School of Science, a position which he has held for many years. Ordained in September of 1923 at Villanova, Fr. was awarded his Ph.D. in Biology by Catholic University in Washington, D. C., in June 1926.

Shortly afterward he received his high appointment in the science school here, and under his direction that department achieved notable progress along educational lines During the years of his stay in office, the school was moulded into the form which it takes today.



VERY REV. J. DOUGHERTY, O.S.A.



VERY REV. H. CAFFREY, O.S.A.

In addition to these teaching duties, Fr. Dougherty was appointed Sub-prior of the monastery in 1935 and Definitor in 1938.

Fr. Caffrey, the retiring prior, was most famed in the Augustinian order for his ability as a preacher. On the campus he was best known as a teacher of senior religion.

Following ordination in Rome in December 23, 1922, Fr. returned to Villanova as Assistant Rector of St. Rita's Hall in September 1923. Two years later he was named assistant Master of Professed in St. Mary's Hall on the Campus.

In December, 1925, he was appointed Master of Professed in that hall, and four years later reassigned to the same duty. In June of 1932, Fr. Caffrey left the campus to become Prior and Principal of postulants at Mt. St. Rita's, Staten Island, N. Y.

His assignment as Prior of the Villanova Monastery came in June, 1938, and he continued to fill this position until he was selected last week to be Prior of St. Rita's Parish, in Philadelphia.

Belle Air Editors Draft Final Copy

The preliminary steps necessary to get this year's war-time edition of the Belle air on the presses have just about been finished, John Fitzgibbons, Editor-in-Chief, has announced.

Staff writers are busy pounding out the necessary copy to accompany the pictorial accounts of wartime college life at Villanova, for the deadline has been set by editors, publisher, and printer, for August 5th, Date of publication aimed at by the staff is October 15th, just prior to the end of the current semester.

The book will be absolutely up to date and include group shots of all the July arrivals, and activity pictures of the current semester.

New Off-Set Photos

An innovation this year of interest to technicians in the photography and photo-engraving arts will be the inclusion for the first time in Belle Air's history of sections done in Off-set. The Senior section as usual will be photengraved, but groups and action shots, and "view' shots of campus buildings will be done in the latest discovered process.

The only section of the book which will be greatly reduced in content will be the extra-curricular section, for the simple reason that extra-curricular activity at the College is at a minimum.

The book, as usual, will cost $5, to all those who do not pay an activity fee upon registration. Delivery of all books ordered is guaranteed.

PKP Holds First Meeting to Plan Term Activities

Moonlight Cruise And Initiation Among Events Planned; Next Meeting Friday

Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, held their initial meeting of the semester last Thursday afternoon at 12:45 in Room 214 Mendel. Approximately 50 members attended.

After opening the meeting in the customary manner, President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., presented a tentative outline of fraternity activities for the coming semester, and determined the reaction of the members by calling for a show of hands on each point mentioned.

Among the events considered were a moonlight cruise on the Delaware, a banquet featuring the presentation of keys to seniors, initiation for new members, and the awarding of the Carl T. Humphrey Memorial General Excellence Medal. All suggestions were favorably received by those present.

Restricted to Active Members

Important among the announcements made was the decision that only active members of the fraternity will attend. This statement was in line with the policy announced last semester of closing all affairs of Phi Kappa Pi to fraternity members. To this end, a list of active members will be drawn up and published shortly.

McQuinn stated that, although no definite plans had yet been made, in view of the members' enthusiasm, work would be begun immediately. First contemplated is the trip on a Wilson liner, which will be held within a month. Arrangements will be made in the near future.

Senior Banquet Planned

Procedure to be followed regarding the senior banquet will be given further consideration at future meetings. Designed to give added meaning to the key which members earn by four years of active membership in the fraternity, the banquet is an innovation with the current semester. It will probably be held in September, McGuinn stated.

Plans for the initiation are necessarily held in abeyance until some sort of accurate estimate of the number of men who would be elegible for membership can be made. Since the affair will be held near the end of the semester, ample time remains for further planning.

Humphrey Award Due

The Carl T. Humphrey Medal, given once a year to the freshman who is first in his class, will be awarded some time this semester. Judges will be selected to chose the winner on the basis of grades and extra-curricular merit. The recipients name will also be engraved on the permanent plaque which resides in the dean's office.

Next meeting of the fraternity will be held this Friday evening at 6:30 in Room 214. More definite plans for the semester will be made at this time. All members are urged to make a special effort to attend, in view of the fact that the active membership list must be determined soon.

Rev. B. M. Albers Of Malvern Dies

Held Post Of Vice-President At Villanova For Nine Years

The Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., former vice president of Villanova College, died Sunday, July 2, in Bryn Mawr Hospital. He was 50.

Father Albers was vice president of Villanova College from 1932 to 1941, during which time he also served as Dean of Men on the Athletic Board of the College.

For the past two years he was Professor of Languages and director of physical education at Malvern Preparatory School, Malvern, Pa. In January of this year he was elected a member of the Board of Trustees of the School.

REV. B. M. ALBERS, O.S.A.

Born in Lawrence, Mass., on May 23, 1894, Fr. Albers attended St. Mary's Parochial School and Lawrence High School. He was admitted to the Novitiate of the Augustinian Order at Villanova on June 25, 1915, and was ordained to the priesthood September 24, 1922.

Studied at Catholic University

After his ordination, Fr. Albers continued his studies at the St. Augustine College and at the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., where he received his Master's Degree. Later he was appointed to the faculty of St. Rita's College, Chicago, Ill.

In 1929 Fr. Albers was appointed principal of Fox Valley High School, Aurora, Ill., serving in that capacity until his appointment to the vice-presidency at Villanova.

The Divine Office was recited by the members of the Augustinian Order and by the clergy for Fr. Albers at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the College Chapel. Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated at 10 A. M. Thursday.

Fr. Albers is survived by his mother, Mrs. Flora Albers; two brothers, Leo and Joseph Albers, and two sisters, the Misses Cora and Adelade Albers ,all of Lawrence, Mass. Burial was in the Monastery cemetery at Villanova.

Summer Baseball Squad

Two Open Dates Left On Recently Released Second Half Schedule; Twilight Games New Feature In Summer Baseball

This semester for the first time in it's history, Villanova College will field a summer baseball team.

The schedule as released by the Rev. F. X. N. McGuire O. S. A., although an informal one, will present the team with plenty of stiff competition.

Inaugurating the season is the first of a home and home series to be played with the University of Pennsylvania. This inaugural game was a twilghter and was played here last Wednesday night.

These twilght games are a new innovation in Villanova baseball. They begin at 6:00 P. M. Two of the three remaining home games are scheduled to be twilght affairs.

Swarthmore College, the bane of last season's team is to be met in another home and home series. Last semester they twice vanquished the Wildcat baseball team.

Single contests have been arranged with the U. S. Coast Guard, a newcomer to our schedules, and with the U. S. Marines, a repeater from last semester. Both the Coast Guard and the Marines are to be met at home.

Two Open Dates

Outstanding team on the schedule for the summer season is the contest with U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Last semester a game with the Middies was to open the season but was rained out.

In all, the schedule, stretching through July and August at present calls for seven games, four of which are home affairs. There are two open dates yet to be filled.

This double baseball schedule which has listed more diamond matches than ever in the school's history was necessitated by the continuance of the classes through the summer months and will probably continue as long as such a system survives.

The schedule:

July 12—Pennsylvania, home, 6:00 P. M.
July 14—Swarthmore, away, 6:00 P. M.
July 22—Pennsylvania, away, 2:30 P. M.
July 28—U. S. Coast Guard, home, 6:00 P. M.
July 29—Navy, away, 2:30 P. M.
Aug. 4—Open.
Aug. 12—Swarthmore, home, 2:30 P. M.
Aug. 18—Open.
Aug. 25—U. S. Marines (Phila.), home, 6:00 P. M.

Twelve Holdovers Form Nucleus Of New Diamond Nine

Approximately thiry-five candidates accepted the invitation to try out for the hit, run and error aggregation on July 6th, the third day of the new semester when the first call was issued.

On the following Monday the squad was cut from its original number to just twenty members.

Three Pitchers

Eight veterans from last semester's spring season form the nucleus around which the team is built. Twelve new and unfamiliar faces are much the unknown quantity, both to the coaches and the opposing teams.

In the veteran group are three pitchers: Weinert, Greely and Naslund. In the outfield: Di Salvo, center field and Anderson, left field are holdovers. The remaining infielders are: Sondheimer at first base, Corr at third and at shortstop, Femiano.

The good material in the newcomers is centered in: Hoot at the keystone sack, Lempa, a promising right fielder; Leary at shortstop and Neiman, catcher. Bob David, a newcomer, showed up well enough in practice to garner a starting spot.

Poor Hitting

The pitching staff, headed by Weinert Greely and Naslund should fare well during the season and the outfield is regarded as strong. The quality of both the infield and the catching department is uncertain at the present time.

Hitting has been found to be weak and poorly distributed among the players. This was one of the main factors in their loss last Wednesday.

In view of the fact that there is such a large proportion of new players and that the competition is of high calibre, it is impossible to make any early season predictions.

Locals Beaten In Opening Game 4-1 By Quaker Squad

Penn Overcomes Brilliant Pitching Of Weinert To Score In First Game Of Summer Schedule

In the opening baseball game of the summer season for both schools, Villanova lost to the University of Pennsylvania, 4-1, last Wednesday evening on the Cats' home field.

Despite the splendid pitching of Gene Weinert who allowed the Quakers but three hits and the same number of walks, Villanova trailed Penn from the second inning on.

Two in Second

Opening the disastrous second, Hank Lequaer hit a sharp grounder to short. Jack Corr fielded the ball, but on an overthrow at first, Lequaer went to second. He was then advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt. With the infield pulled in to cut off the run, Green, the next Penn batter smacked a bounder to Anderson at third who threw home. Lequaer was tagged as he slid into home, but managed to hook catcher Al Neiman's arm causing him to drop the ball, and the first run was across. Green then stole second, and after Weinert struck out Cwik, he came scampering home on a sharp drive to center by Messick.

In the Wildcat half of the third with two outs DiSalvo smacked a liner past the third baseman. Stealing second, he came all the way in on Al Sondheimer's single to right field. Sondheimer tried to make second on the play at the plate, but a perfect throw by Messick nailed him for the final out.

Lequaer Troublesome

Opening the fourth, Lequaer again made second on the same type play as before only this time the two base error was attributed to Anderson at third. The Quaker went to third on an infield out and scampered home on a fly to deep center which Jimmy DiSalvo camped under but had no play at the plate.

In the seventh, the Red and Blue added their final tally, and again Lequaer started the trouble. This time he made first on one of the three walks given up by Weinert. As before he scored on a steal and a pinch hit single to left by Blood.

The Blue and White threatened in both the fifth and the seventh

Wildcats Meet Quakers And Garnet This Week

Little Quakers To Be Met In Firt Of Home And Home Series; Penn To Play Host To 'Cats

Tomorrow night the Wildcats journey to Swarthmore to meet the Garnet in the first of a home and home series. Playing their second game of the summer schedule, the Wildcats have a fairly even chance of gaining a win although much trouble is expected from the Little Quakers. Taking a 4-2 licking from Penn, Saturday, the Garnet will meet the Villanovan nine on the rebound. Probably starring for Swarthmore will be Bob Lobell, a carry over from last semester and a constant threat in the pitchers box. Against Penn, he made the only outfield hit for the Garnet team therefore was considered as a threat on both sides of the plate.

The third game of the abbreviated season will see the Blue and White facing U. of Pennsylvania tossers this coming Saturday.

Villanova will have a chance to avenge a 4-1 setback received last week, this being one of the two home and home series on the schedule.

College Transfers

Penn will sport a brand new infield composed of veterans of other colleges. Their outfield is practically the same as last season. Playing first base will be Jordan, a capable man who played that position for Princeton in previous seasons.

On second we find Green, former Ohio State second sacker and the other half of the keystone combination will be Sivier who played short for La Salle. At third is Lowry, who covered the hot corner for Duke for two seasons.

In the outfield, we find two holdovers, Lequaer and Welte, who play center and right respectively and patrolling left field will be Cwik, former Penn State pastimer. Penn's pitching staff looks quite promising with Woebse looming as the starting hurler. The tall right hander was instrumental in defeating the Wildcats last week. Bezrudzyk, who saw relief action for Penn against us, may also twirl in this second contest.

Harmon to Play

Also on the staff are Johnson from Notre Dame and Harmon who played for Lower Merion last year. Messick, another of last year's holdover's will handle the catching chores.

The Villanova lineup is still uncertain. The positions in the opener were tentative and Fr. McCarthy is still uncertain who will start. Gene Weinert, the ace of the pitching staf will probably be on the mound with Nieman behind the plate. The rest of the lineup will probably remain the same with a few changes.

The afternoon contest is scheduled to start at three and Penn will play host at River Field. This is located just across University Bridge at 34th St.

A new semester finds us working hard to grind out an eight page issue in order that we might catch up on all the things that have happened since last we went to press.

Demanding the greatest attention in our reawakened Wildcat sportlight is the baseball team and the novelties connected with it. Novelty we say for never before have we had a baseball team during the Summer months and moreover a team that plays twilight games.

As the semester ended we finished our spring season and we lost our diamond squad. To say lost would not be quite true for we have new men and returning players who promise to fill the vacant spots equally well. Although our professional boast, Gordon Mueller, is gone we still retain the rest of the pitching staff, led by Gene Weinert who pitched a beautifull game against Penn last Wednesday, Red Lafferty and Marty Greely who showed up very well in their turns last semester.

Worthy of comment and perhaps a bit of chastisement is the fact that when the call for volunteers went out, only thirty five showed up. In comparison with the fifty two who came out last semester, it does not speak well for the type of student in the school.

Although little time was allowed the team to practice for the opening game, they showed up well. Poor base running and weak hitting may then be attributed to this cause. However Coach McCarthy must be given much praise in forming a team on such short notice and so much raw material. The coming games with Swarthmore and Marines and again with Penn should prove that there is a good team in the making.

Football has again pushed itself into the sports eye but little can be said as yet as little is known. Approximately thirty players ap-

New Athletic Officer

LT. (j.g.) STANLEY KUFFEL

Former College Star And School Head Succeeds Ens. Maniaci Here

Lt. Kuffel Comes With Brilliant Background Of 6 Letter Man And Former Superintendent Of Schools; Has Risen From Chief Specialist To Lieutenant (JG)

By LEM WENTLING

Upon coming back to Villanova for the fourth Navy college semester, trainees were confronted with several new faces. Among them was the new Physical Fitness director, Lt. (j.g.) Stanley Kuffel who has taken the place of the departed Ens. Maniaci.

Mr. Kuffel hails from the "state of a thousand lakes" and was born in Graham Township. He attended several elementary schools due to the fact that his father's job kept the entire family on the move. After eight years at grammar school, he enrolled in the Technical High School in St. Cloud, Minn., where his brilliant career got its start.

While at the aforementioned high school, our subject set up quite an impressive sports record, playing four years of varsity football, track, and baseball. In addition to earning sports letters, he also was on the staff of both school publications and was chosen as editor to both the school paper and the year book in his senior year.

College Star

This proved to be only the beginning, however, for in 1923 young Stan matriculated to St. Thomas College in St. Paul. Here, he enlarged his high school prowesses by playing football, baseball, track, basketball, and also rifle shooting, all for a period of four years. During his college days he was a member of the national championship Rifle Team. He was graduated in 1927.

After graduation he returned to the scene of his high school days, S.t Cloud, this time to take over the coaching duties of St. Cloud Cathedral High School, a former rival in high school days. His basketball teams were of the finest calibre. On two occasions they annexed the state title and on two other seasons were the Northwest Champs. Two of his great teams advanced far in the tournament in the National High School Tournament in Chicago, but each time were defeated by the national champs.

His diamond aggregations were undefeated for four years. His crowning achievement was his boxing team which hadn't lost a match in 16 years. Incidentally, boxing is Mr. Kuffel's favorite sport and hobby.

School Superintendent

Leaving his post at Cathedral, the successful young coach became the superintendent of schools in Browersville, Minn. He remained there six years until he took over a similar job in Dilworth.

It took the Navy to get him out of his home state when he enlisted in September, 1942, and was sent to boot camp at Norfolk, Va. Rightfully so, he was assigned to Physical Fitness school when he finished boot training and was made a chief specialist. From Norfolk he was sent to Las Cruces, N. M., as instructor during which time he was commissioned a Lt. (j. g.), his present rank.

After another refresher course at Bainbridge, Md., he was assigned to the V-12 unit at Muhlenberg College, in Allentown last July 1st. He was Physical Fitness Officer of that unit until his arrival here this month.

An impressive array of duties has been dropped in the lap of the new member of Villanova's Ship's Company. He has been duly selected to carry on all the work performed by Ensign Maniaci and in addition to be an instructor in Naval Organization, a course which he taught at Muhlenberg before he came here.

Well versed in the ways of the Navy and it's men he quickly became a favorite with all the men. Typical of his humor and sense is his report when questioned as to his future plans. "I have no plans." Well, who does these days, anyway?

Candidate Call For Tennis Team Made This Week

Already beginning practice for the summer matches is the Villanova tennis team. With a squad of approximately ten men they have been working out since the semester began.

Missing from the roster of players is the name of the captain and star player, Jerry Dwyer, a former varsity player from Georgetown and a mainstay of the team who was transferred at the end of last semester.

Remaining varsity players are: Bob Forrest, "Sparky" Winters, Joe Hoffman, Allan Curtis, Tad Pula, Jim DiSalvo, "Frenchy" Schell and others.

There is still a need of players and a call has been made for all those interested in trying out for the team, to come out now before season play is begun.

A schedule is in the making but as yet has not been released. As many teams as possible will be met duing the summer months. Unlike last semester where the team was more or less a student organization, they will be matched in close competition and coached by Rev. Vincent McQuade, O. S. A.

Last Member of Original Navy Company Is Moved

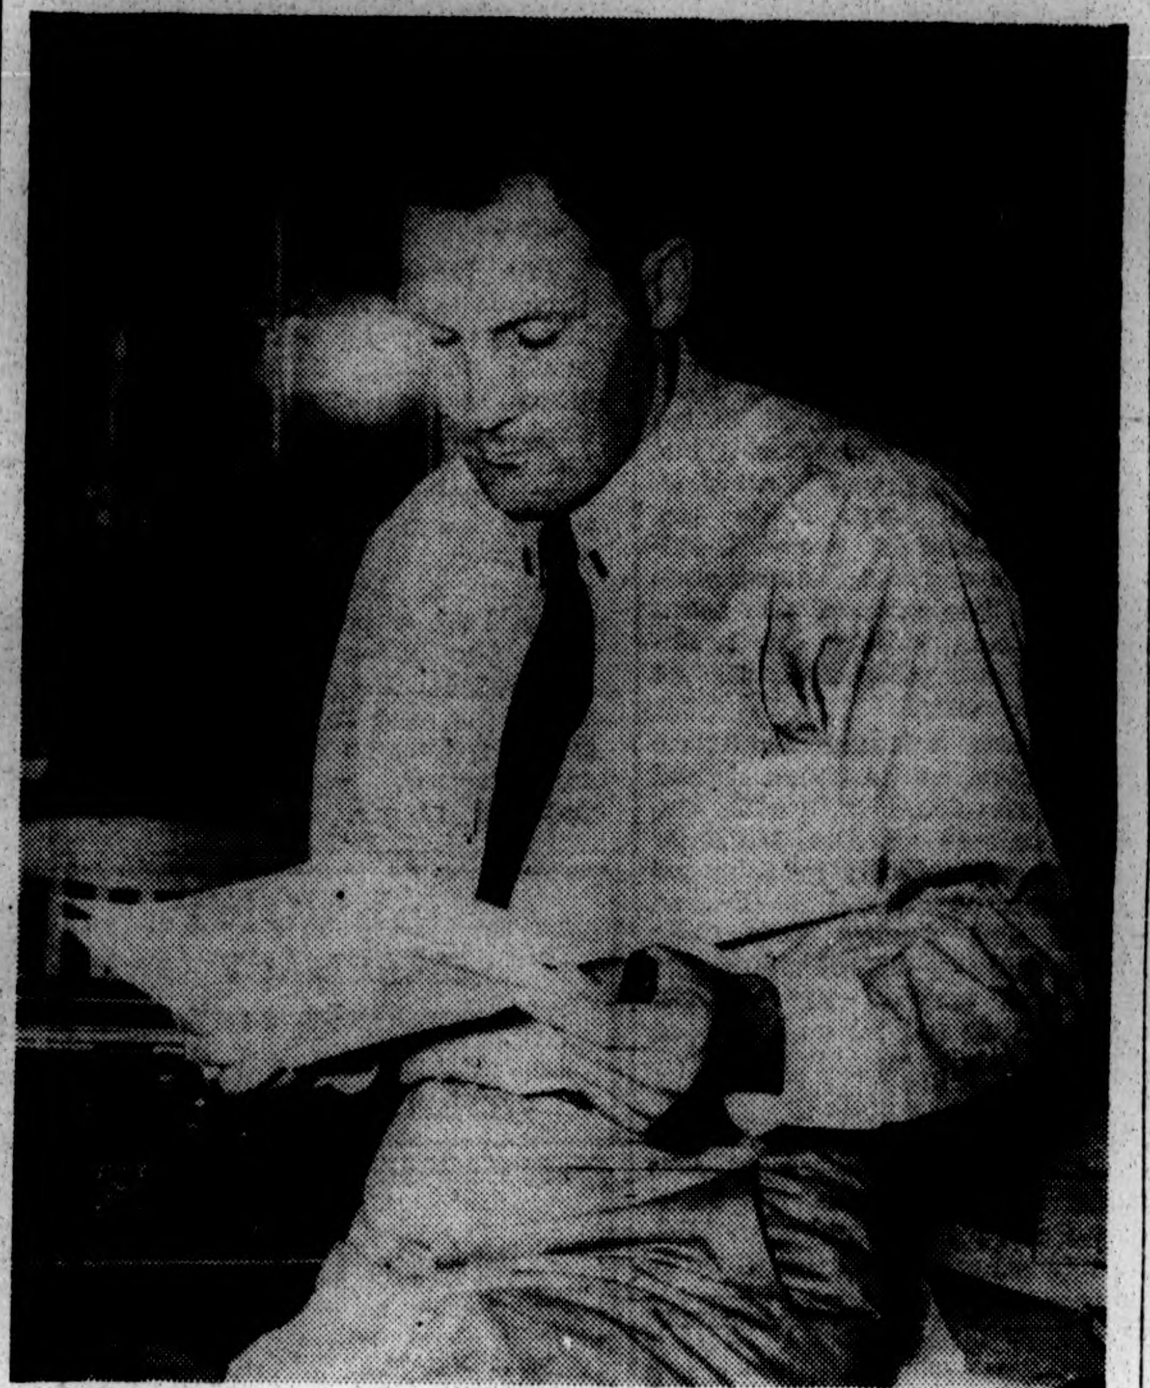
By GENE WEINERT, A.S.

When the Navy and Marine trainees of Vilanova College came back from their summer "between semester" leave, they found that Ensign Samuel W. Maniaci, their Athletic Officer, Supply Officer, and Assistant Drill Officer, was no longer stationed with this unit. The last Navy commissioned officer of the original Ship's Company of July, 1943, Ensign Maniaci had become to be regarded as a fixture by the trainees. However, the Navy allows no grass to grow under the feet of either officers or enlisted men, and consequently he received a transfer to an undisclosed station.

Standing over six feet tall and weighing close to 200 pounds, Ensign Maniaci cut an imposing figure wherever he went. He will be best remembered on the drill field as he would go from one company to another giving tips on drilling spiced in with a few wisecracks and a joke.

Sports Background

Athletic in appearance and even more in background, Ensign Maniaci numbered several sports among his achievements. While attending Columbia University from which he graduated in 1935 with a B. S. in Chemistry degree, "Ensign Sam," as he was known to the trainees, held a backfield position on Coach Lou Little's 1934 Rose Bowl football team which, by the way, won 7-0. In the winter and spring, he represented Columbia on the boards and cinders. Specializing in sprints, Maniaci was not only Metropolitan New York and Intercollegiate sprint champion, but likewise he is at present coholder with Jesse Owens of the world's record for the 60 meter dash.



ENS. SAMUEL MANIACI

After graduation from college, Ensign Maniaci played football several seasons with the Brooklyn Dodgers. As a pastime, he played golf, becoming so proficient that he was numbered among the top-flight amateur golfers in the New York area.

Rises in Rank

Enlisting in August, 1942, as a Chief Specialist, Maniaci spent two and a half months at Norfolk as a Physical Instructor followed by a period of giving lectures on Ship and Aircraft Identification, Antisubmarine Warfare, and Night Lookout at the Destroyer Escort School there. During this period, he took examinations for a commission in the Naval Reserve, but not till he reachd his next station was he notified that he had passed his tests successfully.

Villanova College was Ensign Maniaci's first assignment as a commissioned officer. Arriving here three weeks before the trainees were to report, he was at once faced with the job of reciving and taking inventory for the uniforms and gear to be distributed to 600 Navy and Marine trainees. Almost all of the Navy contingent was outfited between 1000 and 2000 on July 1, 1943, the day of their arrival. The Marines were all measured on that day for their uniforms, receiving them a week later. The efficiency and dispatch with which this huge job was handled is a tribute to "Ensign Sam" and his handful of assistants.

Arranging the physical training and swimming classes for the Unit was a job of major proportions, but the Ensign saw that the various classes had been scheduled and that all trainees were receiving Basic P. T. before the first week of school was completed. Strength tests were then given to all trainees after which his job settled down to the "humdrum routine" of teaching the large number of "late civilians" the fundamentals of drilling; of completing the issue of equipment to men who due to shortages had not received their full supply; and, of taking his turn as Officer of the Day.

In October, 1943, and again in March, 1944, the same problems of outfitting new men, arranging schedules, and inventory were once more faced and finished capably by Ensign Maniaci and Bill Ellis, Storekeeper 1/C. However, special issues of such equipment as Navy raincoats, overshoes, galoshes and khaki uniforms for lab use always popped up no sooner than everything in the "small stores" was in order, keeping "Ensign Sam" and Bill Ellis constantly on their toes.

Ensign Maniaci has left Villanova with a well done job, and carries along with him a sense of humor and strictness without harshness that will be welcome wherever he goes. During his stay at Villanova, he frowned on week-end restriction, imposing such a penalty only for his pet-peeve—finding a sailor-engineer in the Cafeteria wearing a khaki lab uniform.

With his transfer, Ensign Maniaci receives the best wishes of Villanova for success and enjoyment at his new station.

Gillespie Appointed Coach

Word was received last week that an alumnus of Villanova had received a new post in the football world. Johnny Gillespie, Wildcat gridiron star of a few years back, was selected as head football coach at Northeast Catholic High School in Philadelphia.

Gillespie, former coach at St. John's High School in Manayunk, had just recently resigned this post in order to take over the offer from the other school. While here at Villanova, he made quite a name for himself in his role as back on one of the best teams in Villanova history, the years of '37 and '38. For a time he was an athletic instructor at St. Joseph's College.

Fedigan, Defending Champions, Deadlocked With Austin And Students For Second Place

The present semester Softball League starts with Fedigan holding the crown, by virtue of last semester's playoff game, when they trounced the Students 12-5. This semester's line-up has the Marines leading with three and a half wins and no losses. Fedigan and the Students split a game to tie for the runner-up spot.

Also tied for second is the Austin team who split one with the Marines to equal the 1½ games to the good and 1 loss of Fedigan and Students. Mendel holds down fifth place with 1 win and 2 defeats, with Alumni holding tail spot with 1 game to the good and 3 on the debit side of the score sheet.

Hoot Hits Homer

Taking an easy win over the Students to obtain possession of last semester's crown, the Fediganites also look promising this semester. They will probably be greatly hampered by the loss of "Moose" McTye, Eddie Kolnaski and Milt Anderson who have all left the V-12 Unit here and are on their way to Midshipman School.

Another loss, although through a different channel is in Big Dick Hoot who wields the heavy artillery for the Fedigs. Outstanding for his hitting in the playoff game, he belted out a homer with two men on in the last inning.

Up until that time the game was fairly close with the Fedigan team always managing to keep one jump ahead of the Students. But with the powder keg set off by Hoot's homer, the Fediganites ran wild, garnering most of their runs in the last inning. Although last to bat, the Students couldn't rally against "Moose" McTye's superb pitching and thus were held scoreless in the ninth.

Opposing "Moose" was Bernie Mayer who pitched a swell game for the students. Playing exceptional defensive ball for the Fediganites were Milt Anderson and Charles Bundick who helped to hold the Students' team down.

Marines Win

Starting off the present semester league Monday night, the Marines beat out Fedigan 12-9 with Smith of the Fediganites slamming out a homer in the fourth with the bags empty. In the fifth the Fediganites pulled in 4 runs but their rally did not last long enough to win the game.

Also on the same night the Students nosed out Mendel 9-8 with the Austin bluejackets garnering a win over Alumni to the tune of 5-3.

The following night the Marines of Austin repeated the bluejacket's

Summer Football Drills Begun With 33 Men Reporting

Villanova's first summer football practice started last night with approximately thirty-three candidates reporting to Coach Jordan Olivar. This session is scheduled to last about four weeks with the actual length of time depending on the outcome of the daily practices.

The aspirants will then lay off till Labor Day, Sept. 4, and then take up where they left off to continue throughout the remainder of the gridiron season.

Big Disappointment

Coach Olivar has his work cut out for him, especialy in filling the tackle positions which have been left vacant since the departure of Don Collins and Jim Lalikos, who were counted on to start this season. The former left school to enter the service while the latter received a medical discharge from the Marines and didn't return to college. This is a very hard blow as both had gained quite a bit of experience last year, Collins as a substitute and Lalikos as a starter at the end of the season.

These two are about the only changes since spring practice, inasmuch as no trainees entering this semester will be permitted to play until November, and none of the other spring candidates have dropped out of school.

Consequently that leaves about three full teams from which Ollie can draw his starting eleven. The big gun of the attack will probably

Two Open Dates Left On Recently Released Second Half Schedule; Twilight Games New Feature In Summer Baseball

This semester for the first time in it's history, Villanova College will field a summer baseball team.

The schedule as released by the Rev. F. X. N. McGuire O. S. A., although an informal one, will present the team with plenty of stiff competition.

Inaugurating the season is the first of a home and home series to be played with the University of Pennsylvania. This inaugural game was a twilghter and was played here last Wednesday night.

These twilight games are a new innovation in Villanova baseball. They begin at 6:00 P. M. Two of the three remaining home games are scheduled to be twilight affairs.

Swarthmore College, the bane of last season's team is to be met in another home and home series. Last semester they twice vanquished the Wildcat baseball team.

Single contests have been arranged with the U. S. Coast Guard, a newcomer to our schedules, and with the U. S. Marines, a repeater from last semester. Both the Coast Guard and the Marines are to be met at home.

Two Open Dates

Outstanding team on the schedule for the summer season is the contest with U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Last semester a game with the Middies was to open the season but was rained out.

In all, the schedule, stretching through July and August at present calls for seven games, four of which are home affairs. There are two open dates yet to be filled.

This double baseball schedule which has listed more diamond matches than ever in the school's history was necessitated by the continuance of the classes through the summer months and will probably continue as long as such a system survives.

The schedule:

July 12—Pennsylvania, home, 6:00 P. M.
July 14—Swarthmore, away, 6:00 P. M.
July 22—Pennsylvania, away, 2:30 P. M.
July 28—U. S. Coast Guard, home, 6:00 P. M.
July 29—Navy, away, 2:30 P. M.
Aug. 4—Open.
Aug. 12—Swarthmore, home, 2:30 P. M.
Aug. 18—Open.
Aug. 25—U. S. Marines (Phila.), home, 6:00 P. M.

Twelve Holdovers Form Nucleus Of New Diamond Nine

Approximately thiry-five candidates accepted the invitation to try out for the hit, run and error aggregation on July 6th, the third day of the new semester when the first call was issued.

On the following Monday the squad was cut from its original number to just twenty members.

Three Pitchers

Eight veterans from last semester's spring season form the nucleus around which the team is built. Twelve new and unfamiliar faces are much the unknown quantity, both to the coaches and the opposing teams.

In the veteran group are three pitchers: Weinert, Greely and Naslund. In the outfield: Di Salvo, center field and Anderson, left field are holdovers. The remaining infielders are: Sondheimer at first base, Corr at third and at shortstop, Femiano.

The good material in the newcomers is centered in: Hoot at the keystone sack, Lempa, a promising right fielder; Leary at shortstop and Neiman, catcher. Bob David, a newcomer, showed up well enough in practice to garner a starting spot.

Poor Hitting

The pitching staff, headed by Weinert Greely and Naslund should fare well during the season and the outfield is regarded as strong. The quality of both the infield and the catching department is uncertain at the present time.

Hitting has been found to be weak and poorly distributed among the players. This was one of the main factors in their loss last Wednesday.

In view of the fact that there is such a large proportion of new players and that the competition is of high calibre, it is impossible to make any early season predictions.

Locals Beaten In Opening Game 4-1 By Quaker Squad

Penn Overcomes Brilliant Pitching Of Weinert To Score In First Game Of Summer Schedule

In the opening baseball game of the summer season for both schools, Villanova lost to the University of Pennsylvania, 4-1, last Wednesday evening on the Cats' home field.

Despite the splendid pitching of Gene Weinert who allowed the Quakers but three hits and the same number of walks, Villanova trailed Penn from the second inning on.

Two in Second

Opening the disastrous second, Hank Lequaer hit a sharp grounder to short. Jack Corr fielded the ball, but on an overthrow at first, Lequaer went to second. He was then advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt. With the infield pulled in to cut off the run, Green, the next Penn batter smacked a bounder to Anderson at third who threw home. Lequaer was tagged as he slid into home, but managed to hook catcher Al Neiman's arm causing him to drop the ball, and the first run was across. Green then stole second, and after Weinert struck out Cwik, he came scampering home on a sharp drive to center by Messick.

In the Wildcat half of the third with two outs DiSalvo smacked a liner past the third baseman. Stealing second, he came all the way in on Al Sondheimer's single to right field. Sondheimer tried to make second on the play at the plate, but a perfect throw by Messick nailed him for the final out.

Lequaer Troublesome

Opening the fourth, Lequaer again made second on the same type play as before only this time the two base error was attributed to Anderson at third. The Quaker went to third on an infield out and scampered home on a fly to deep center which Jimmy DiSalvo camped under but had no play at the plate.

In the seventh, the Red and Blue added their final tally, and again Lequaer started the trouble. This time he made first on one of the three walks given up by Weinert. As before he scored on a steal and a pinch hit single to left by Blood.

The Blue and White threatened in both the fifth and the seventh

Wildcats Meet Quakers And Garnet This Week

Little Quakers To Be Met In Firt Of Home And Home Series; Penn To Play Host To 'Cats

Tomorrow night the Wildcats journey to Swarthmore to meet the Garnet in the first of a home and home series. Playing their second game of the summer schedule, the Wildcats have a fairly even chance of gaining a win although much trouble is expected from the Little Quakers.

Taking a 4-2 licking from Penn, Saturday, the Garnet will meet the Villanovan nine on the rebound. Probably starring for Swarthmore will be Bob Lobell, a carry over from last semester and a constant threat in the pitchers box. Against Penn, he made the only outfield hit for the Garnet team therefore was considered as a threat on both sides of the plate.

The third game of the abbreviated season will see the Blue and White facing U. of Pennsylvania tossers this coming Saturday.

Villanova will have a chance to avenge a 4-1 setback received last week, this being one of the two home and home series on the schedule.

College Transfers

Penn will sport a brand new infield composed of veterans of other colleges. Their outfield is practically the same as last season. Playing first base will be Jordan, a capable man who played that position for Princeton in previous seasons.

On second we find Green, former Ohio State second sacker and the other half of the keystone combination will be Sivier who played short for La Salle. At third is Lowry, who covered the hot corner for Duke for two seasons.

In the outfield, we find two holdovers, Lequaer and Welte, who play center and right respectively and patrolling left field will be Cwik, former Penn State pastimer. Penn's pitching staff looks quite promising with Woebse looming as the starting hurler. The tall right hander was instrumental in defeating the Wildcats last week. Bezrudzyk, who saw relief action for Penn against us, may also twirl in this second contest.

Harmon to Play

Also on the staff are Johnson from Notre Dame and Harmon who played for Lower Merion last year. Messick, another of last year's holdover's will handle the catching chores.

The Villanova lineup is still uncertain. The positions in the opener were tentative and Fr. McCarthy is still uncertain who will start. Gene Weinert, the ace of the pitching staf will probably be on the mound with Nieman behind the plate. The rest of the lineup will probably remain the same with a few changes.

The afternoon contest is scheduled to start at three and Penn will play host at River Field. This is located just across University Bridge at 34th St.

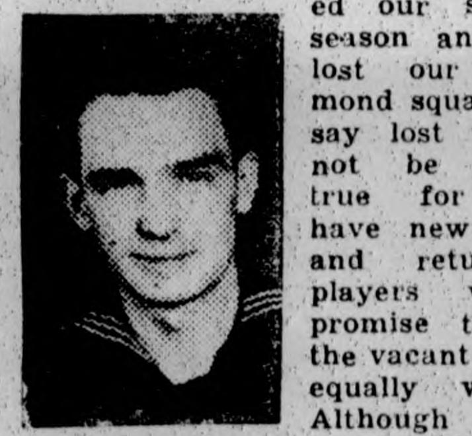
A new semester finds us working hard to grind out an eight page issue in order that we might catch up on all the things that have happened since last we went to press.

Demanding the greatest attention in our reawakened Wildcat sportlight is the baseball team and the novelties connected with it. Novelty we say for never before have we had a baseball team during the Summer months and moreover a team that plays twilight games.



As the semester ended we finished our spring season and we lost our diamond squad. To say lost would not be quite true for we have new men and returning players who promise to fill the vacant spots equally well. Although our professional boast, Gordon Mueller, is gone we still retain the rest of the pitching staff, led by Gene Weinert who pitched a beautifull game against Penn last Wednesday, Red Lafferty and Marty Greely who showed up very well in their turns last semester.

Worthy of comment and perhaps a bit of chastisement is the fact that when the call for volunteers went out, only thirty five showed up. In comparison with the fifty two who came out last semester, it does not speak well for the type of student in the school.

Although little time was allowed the team to practice for the opening game, they showed up well. Poor base running and weak hitting may then be attributed to this cause. However Coach McCarthy must be given much praise in forming a team on such short notice and so much raw material. The coming games with Swarthmore and Marines and again with Penn should prove that there is a good team in the making.

Football has again pushed itself into the sports eye but little can be said as yet as little is known. Approximately thirty players ap-

New Athletic Officer

LT. (j.g.) STANLEY KUFFEL

Former College Star And School Head Succeeds Ens. Maniaci Here

Lt. Kuffel Comes With Brilliant Background Of 6 Letter Man And Former Superintendent Of Schools; Has Risen From Chief Specialist To Lieutenant (JG)

By LEM WENTLING

Upon coming back to Villanova for the fourth Navy college semester, trainees were confronted with several new faces. Among them was the new Physical Fitness director, Lt. (j.g.) Stanley Kuffel who has taken the place of the departed Ens. Maniaci.

Mr. Kuffel hails from the "state of a thousand lakes" and was born in Graham Township. He attended several elementary schools due to the fact that his father's job kept the entire family on the move. After eight years at grammar school, he enrolled in the Technical High School in St. Cloud, Minn., where his brilliant career got its start.

While at the aforementioned high school, our subject set up quite an impressive sports record, playing four years of varsity football, track, and baseball. In addition to earning sports letters, he also was on the staff of both school publications and was chosen as editor to both the school paper and the year book in his senior year.

College Star

This proved to be only the beginning, however, for in 1923 young Stan matriculated to St. Thomas College in St. Paul. Here, he enlarged his high school prowesses by playing football, baseball, track, basketball, and also rifle shooting, all for a period of four years. During his college days he was a member of the national championship Rifle Team. He was graduated in 1927 .

After graduation he returned to the scene of his high school days, S.t Cloud, this time to take over the coaching duties of St. Cloud Cathedral High School, a former rival in high school days. His basketball teams were of the finest calibre. On two occasions they annexed the state title and on two other seasons were the Northwest Champs. Two of his great teams advanced far in the tournament in the National High School Tournament in Chicago, but each time were defeated by the national champs.

His diamond aggregations were undefeated for four years. His crowning achievement was his boxing team which hadn't lost a match in 16 years. Incidentally, boxing is Mr. Kuffel's favorite sport and hobby.

School Superintendent

Leaving his post at Cathedral, the successful young coach became the superintendent of schools in Browersville, Minn. He remained there six years until he took over a similar job in Dilworth.

It took the Navy to get him out of his home state when he enlisted in September, 1942, and was sent to boot camp at Norfolk, Va. Rightfully so, he was assigned to Physical Fitness school when he finished boot training and was made a chief specialist. From Norfolk he was sent to Las Cruces, N. M., as instructor during which time he was commissioned a Lt. (j. g.), his present rank .

After another refresher course at Bainbridge, Md., he was assigned to the V-12 unit at Muhlenberg College, in Allentown last July 1st. He was Physical Fitness Officer of that unit until his arrival here this month.

An impressive array of duties has been dropped in the lap of the new member of Villanova's Ship's Company. He has been duly selected to carry on all the work performed by Ensign Maniaci and in addition to be an instructor in Naval Organization, a course which he taught at Muhlenberg before he came here.

Well versed in the ways of the Navy and it's men he quickly became a favorite with all the men. Typical of his humor and sense is his report when questioned as to his future plans. "I have no plans." Well, who does these days, anyway?

Candidate Call For Tennis Team Made This Week

Already beginning practice for the summer matches is the Villanova tennis team. With a squad of approximately ten men they have been working out since the semester began.

Missing from the roster of players is the name of the captain and star player, Jerry Dwyer, a former varsity player from Georgetown and a mainstay of the team who was transferred at the end of last semester.

Remaining varsity players are: Bob Forrest, "Sparky" Winters, Joe Hoffman, Allan Curtis, Tad Pula, Jim DiSalvo, "Frenchy" Schell and others.

There is still a need of players and a call has been made for all those interested in trying out for the team, to come out now before season play is begun.

A schedule is in the making but as yet has not been released. As many teams as possible will be met duing the summer months. Unlike last semester where the team was more or less a student organization, they will be matched in close competition and coached by Rev. Vincent McQuade, O. S. A.

Last Member of Original Navy Company Is Moved

By GENE WEINERT, A.S.

When the Navy and Marine trainees of Vilanova College came back from their summer "between semester" leave, they found that Ensign Samuel W. Maniaci, their Athletic Officer, Supply Officer, and Assistant Drill Officer, was no longer stationed with this unit. The last Navy commissioned officer of the original Ship's Company of July, 1943, Ensign Maniaci had become to be regarded as a fixture by the trainees. However, the Navy allows no grass to grow under the feet of either officers or enlisted men, and consequently he received a transfer to an undisclosed station.

Standing over six feet tall and weighing close to 200 pounds, Ensign Maniaci cut an imposing figure wherever he went. He will be best remembered on the drill field as he would go from one company to another giving tips on drilling spiced in with a few wisecracks and a joke.

feat and again Alumni bit the dust in a close game. The score in the final inning was 10-9. On the same night the Students hit a five run rally in the last inning to tie up the Fedigan team 12-12. In the Mendel-Austin contest, Mark Manning started off the final inning with a hitting streak that finally developed into a 3-run rally to nose out the Austin team, 8-7.

Austin Plays Marines

Ignoring the biblical warning that "a house divided among itself will fall," the Austin bluejackets and the Austin Marines put on a wild hitting contest Thursday night that promises to be one of the outstanding games of the season. Starting off the fourth with a double by that iron man of softball, Frank Eye, the Marines traversed the four sack circuit no less than ten times to gain a lead overcome, but not quite surpassed by the bluejackets who finished in a blaze of glory with the impressive score of 12-12.

Also keeping in the theme of the evening the Fediganites started off with 8 runs in the opening inning to gain an overwhelming lead over Alumni. Not satisfied with their safety margin, they put on a stupendous spurt in the sixth to grasp 10 more runs, the final score being 24-4.

Comedy Gains Base

Winding up the week the Marines outdid the Students, 6-4, Friday night. The Students pulled one man on the bag due to a comedy of error when "Lovey" Quinn belted a snappy one to "Gismo" Cassiano who was thrown a little off balance in the shortstop position. Quickly recovering he saw what he thought to be a runner streaking for the plate, in reality it was "Babe" Reilly who had just left coaching position and was running to take his place at bat.

Immediately sizing up the situation, "Babe" went through all the gyrations of a man caught between the bases all the while being played by Cassiano. During the course of this fiasco "Lovey" Quinn rambled on to reach first safely. Finishing off the night, Alumni downed Mendel 5-2 in their first win of the league.

peared last night at the opening practice but how many of these will remain for the season is anyone's guess.

Here again we find negligence on the part of the students in not coming out for the team. At Penn they cried loud and long that one hundred and five men had come out at the first call for a grid squad but here in a weak tone we mention thirty volunteers and the large proportion of these were players who have been striving for the team since they came here.

Fullback Bob David seems to be the pre-season hope. He is big and he is fast but beyond that we know nothing. What experience he gained was a small amount at Notre Dame and a little last season but he has as yet to prove himself in full season to play. Ends are plentiful and should prove themselves, for many had experience last season. The rest of the team looks light and willing but much could be done with this in the practices to come.

Sports press releases announce that Billy Piscione has been signed to play professional ball with the Boston Yankees of the National Football League. Billy was guard on the teams of '38 and '39 here at Villanova and during this time achieved quite a bit of fame for his brilliant playing at this position. Previous to this he had been working, having played little pro ball.

Also on this newsfront is the notice that two members of last season's baseball team were at Asbury Park prior to going to Midshipman's school. They are Gordon Mueller, pitcher and shortstop "Squeek" Warner.

The lightweight part of the team is founded in two fleet backs Bucky Williams and Al Sondheimer. In games last season both up exceptionally despite their evident drawback of weight. There are other new men who may give these men of experience a run for their money.

It will be very hard to draw any conclusions as to what kind of a team will appear on the gridiron this fall. Although Jordan Olivar may train a passable group into a good team, he may lose them all or the major part of them through the inconsistencies of military changes.

The formation of the team then depends on the men who try out for it. With such a small number, little hope of great success can be guaranteed. During the past Winter and Spring intramural season, much football ability was seen which could quite easily be transferred to the varsity gridiron. So, let these men who have had experience or who have the other natural assets of weight, height and speed come out and in that way, we may be able to field a formidable squad, worthy of the football history of Villanova.

be burly Bob David, 200 pound fullback who can really hit that line. Flanking him at the halfback positions are Bucky Williams, 165 pounder and Al Sondheimer, 140 pounds of speed and stamina. All these fellows were on the 1943 squad and saw limited action.

Many Ends

Up at the blocking post will probably be Charlie Gallicano who saw some action last year after first stringer Johnny Dzitko was sidelined with an injury. Forcing him to really work for his job is Charlie Feeney who has had no previous college experience.

At the ends, which is the most fortified position on the team are Gene Peyton, Len West, Bill Kuzman and Dick Evans. On either side of the center which is wide open at present, are two short stocky lads, Bill Ryan from St. John's High in Philadelphia, and Alex Colman who played out at St. Marys' on the West Coast two seasons ago.

Appelboom New Metallurgy Prof

Columbia Graduate Specialist In Field For Nine Years; Replaces Blumenfeld

Helping to fill the vacancy created by the withdrawal of Harry Blumenfeld, assistant professor of chemical engineering last semester, is Arthur G. Appelboom, Ch. E.

A specialist in the field of metallurgy through most of his nine years in the professional world, Appelboom is currently teaching that course to the senior engineers on this campus at night while doing a full time job at the Bendix Aviation Corporation during the day.

A. G. APPELBOOM, Ch.E.

Born in New York City in 1912, he attended Jamaica High School in that city and the Columbia University School of Engineering. He was graduated from the latter institution with an A.B. degree in 1933, received a B.S. in Engineering in 1934, and earned his chemical engineering degree in 1935.

Active in College

While there he apparently inaugurated his present policy of keeping busy at all times, for his activities include: circulation manager and business manager of the school paper, secretary treasurer and president of the engineering society, vice-president of the junior class, assistant manager of basketball, member of the track team, participant in varsity shows, stage mana-

Mrs. Steiner Leaves Post In Book Store; Miss Herron Married

On Friday of last week Mrs. George A. Steiner, Jr., who graciously attended to the book needs of Villanova students for the past several years, terminated her stay at Villanova College. Mrs. Steiner will journey with her husband, Staff Sergeant George A. Steiner, Jr., to the city of Edmonton in Alberta, Canada, where her husband is stationed with the Army Air Corps.

Arriving at Villanova in March, 1941, Mrs. Steiner, then Miss Wilda Herron, soon made many friends with her pleasant and cheerful manner at the bookstore. The Villanovan speaks for all these friends in wishing Mrs. Steiner and her husband happiness and good cheer in their new home. Miss Miriam Gallagher, formerly in the Alumni Office will replace Mrs. Steiner at the bookstore.

To make the week-end a doubly big event in the family Miss Margaret Herron, of the Business Office, and sister of Mrs. Steiner, was married on Saturday to Mr. John Smith of Harrisburg. The wedding took place in Norristown, where the bride's family reside. Mrs. Smith plans to remain in Villanova until the end of August when she will join her husband at Harrisburg. The Villanovan extends its best wishes to the newlyweds.

Chief S. K. Peters Was Star Athlete

Letterman In Football, Basketball, Baseball, Track; Ambitious New Member Of Ship's Company

One of the chief reasons for the smooth functioning of the Navy Office in recent weeks is the addition to the staff of a chief storekeeper, Philip R. Peters, who put in an appearance here July 3rd. Chief Peters is rather on the quiet side, but he really knows how to get things done.

Born in Portland, Maine, the chief went to the Portland public schools, graduating from Portland High, where he participated in athletics in a big way, lettering in football, baseball, basketball, and track, and capturing many honors. He was chosen all-state tournament forward in basketball, all-state third baseman in baseball, and was a member of the Portland High teams which captured the state football championships twice consecutively.

C.S.K. PHILIP PETERS

Attends Northeastern

After graduating from high school, Chief Peters went on to Northeastern University in Boston, where he majored in business administration. Here again, he went out for sports and played baseball, football, and basketball.

Following his freshman year, the chief left Northeastern to take the position of chief bookkeeper for a large tire concern, first in Portland

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The Sanctuary Society will hold classes beginning at 6:30 on Wednesday evening in the Villanova Chapel sanctuary for the instruction in the proper manner of serving mass, it was announced by Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., moderator of the society. Those desirous of learning to serve mass or benediction are invited to attend the evening class.

Father also announced the appointment of David Ward, A.S., as acting secretary for the society replacing Joseph DeLago who did not return to college for the summer term. Ward's main duties are to compose a list of servers for each week and to notify members of their day and time for serving mass.

Phi Kappa Pi has arranged to hold a meeting in room 214 Mendel Hall, at 12:45 on Thursday of this week, in place of the one planned for last week which was cancelled. All members are urged to attend, as it is vital that action begin as soon as possible for this semester's activities.

Various matters to be discussed will be the senior banquet and the awarding of keys, the moonlight cruise on the Delaware, and other such items. Possibly, a list of active and non-active members will be announced, as will a list of those in arrears as to dues.

Lt. Frank Buckley Killed In Action Fighting In Italy

Word was received recently that Lt. Frank E. Buckley, of Lakewood, N. J., has become the first member of the graduating class of 1942 to make the supreme sacrifice for his country.

A second lieutenant serving with the infantry in Italy, Buckley met his death only after his division had played an important part in the drive for Rome.

Buckley graduated from the Lakewood High School in 1938 before coming to Villanova as a student in the C. & F. School. While here he distinguished himself by the excellent dramatic portrayals he gave in several campus presentations. Inducted into the army in November, 1942, he received his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Georgia. From August 15 until his going overseas in November, as a replacement officer, he was at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland.

Upon being shipped overseas, Buckley received additional training in Egypt before being sent to England. From that country he went with his infantry unit to the Italian battlefront, where he took part in the battle of the Anzio beachhead.

The staff of the Villanovan joins with the entire student body and faculty in offering deepest sympathies to Mrs. Mary F. Buckley, his mother, a Lakewood high school teacher. Already Requiem Mass has been offered by Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., college chaplain, for the repose of Lt. Buckley's soul.

Fr. Klekotka Becomes Moderator Of Villanovan Succeeding Fr. McKee

Villanova Graduate And Former Student Leader Assumes Post Vacated By Fr. McKee Because Of Many New Duties; Latter Was Faculty Advisor Of Paper For 12 Years

The recent appointment of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., M.A., to the office of Vice President of the College has necessitated his vacating the post of Moderator of the Villanovan, the school's weekly publication; a position which he has held for the past twelve years.

REV. J. A. KLEKOTKA, O.S.A.

With the addition of many duties attendant to his new office and already carrying a full teaching schedule, Fr. McKee decided that he would not have time to give proper consideration to his duties on the newspaper. Selected to replace him as Faculty Advisor for the publication is Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., M.S., the present moderator of the Sanctuary Society.

Former Student Leader

Following in the footsteps of Fr. McKee, who has guided the Villanovan wisely and energetically since 1932, will not be an easy task. However, the job falls to a Villanova graduate who, as a student, distinguished himself as a leader of many campus organizations.

Fr. Klekotka was born in South Philadelphia and received his primary education at a nearby Parochial school. He attended Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia, were he followed an Academic curriculum, and graduated in 1931.

President of Phi Kappa Pi

He entered Villanova in the fall of that year and matriculated in the Engineering school. A consistant leader of his class, Fr. Klekotka was elected Treasurer of the Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, in his junior year, and became President the following year.

One of the first students to join the then newly organized student branch of the American Society of Electrical Engineers, Father was elected chairman in his busy Senior year. In what little spare time he could find, he worked on the staff of the Villanova Engineer.

Worked as Typist

During the summers and part-time during the school year, he worker for the Lettercraft Company of Philadelphia as a typist. He was graduated in 1935 and re-

Villanova Salts

By MICHAEL KRAK, A.S.

As has been the custom during the past semester, this column again will bring for your information and reading pleasure, the exploits and experiences of the gentlemen of the fleet, "Old Salts," who momentarily have paused here on the campus of Villanova to apply themselves to useful and educational studies.

Today, the present conflict, destructive and despised as it is, has in itself exhibited one shining ray of light; that is the proven courage and tenacity of our fighting men. Daily, tales of their deeds are brought home to us from all fronts. Recently, one such story was devoted to the excellent work of the medical corps attached to the Fleet Marines during the invasions of the South Pacific Islands.

Corpsman from Phila.

A corpsman from such an outfit constitutes the first link in our chain of interviews. He is David Marano, ex-Ph. M. 3/C. He enlisted in his home town of Philadelphia in December, 1942, and was immediately sent for his indoctrination training to the Naval Air Station at Sanford, Florida. Being medically minded, he requested corspman training. When the request was granted, he was transferred to the Norfolk Naval Hospital, once again to absorb fundamentals.

He only remained there for a short period, and from then on his life resembled that of a tourist. Brief stays at the Naval Hospitals at Memphis, Tennessee and San Diego and Oceanside, California contributed to his medical education. Finally the day arrived when fully qualified, he boarded a transport to do duty abroad.

Cruise Proves Eventful

The trip didn't turn out to be a moonlight excursion, but rather the nucleus of a full front invasion of the Gilberts. Proceeding ashore in one of the initial assault waves, Marano's party was greeted by a hail of enemy fire. Fear temporarily predominated, but was soon crowded out and obliterated by mental concentration on the work to be done.

The corpsman's assignment was to trail the advancing infantry and to quickly administer temporary first aid to those who fell. Others, of course, would follow up and remove the injured to base hospitals. for the first thirty hours after landing there was no food, no rest, no stopping—indeed, no time for this.

Danger Fills Nights

The first several nights were as uncomfortable as were the days. Snipers were plentiful, and for ultimate protection it was necessary to fire at all things that moved. Some learned this rule the hard way. During his short stay on the island, David was the immediate target of the enemy fire on several occasions. The fox hole at such times was a most welcome spot.

After several days on the island, the job was completed and he returned to another Pacific base. When his V-12 orders came in, he was prepared and set for another invasion, but this time he boarded a ship in another direction for that moonlight excursion—home.

Receives Similar Training

Link two constitutes the naval biography of another pharmacist's mate, Russell L .Welsh, whose type of duty might have been similar to that of Marano's had not V-12 orders interfered. At the time he received these orders, he had just completed training at the Fleet Marine School at Oceanside, Cal. He had graduated as a qualified field corpsman, and was expecting shortly to be transferred overseas. Such a transfer however, never materialized.

Prior to this most of the duty had been routine—enlistment at the home town of Indianapolis, "boots" at Great Lakes, and preliminary corpsman training at the Naval Hospital at San Diego. Today, his duties are of another nature. As a pre-medical student, he has found the work here both agreeable and interesting.

Receives Machinist Training

The next ride on the wagon of interviews concerns the tales of Thomas J. Ferry. As is customary in the naval career of sailors, his first duty after enlisting in Cleveland was training at Great Lakes. It was here that he mastered his ABC's in steamship in the relatively short time of two months.

Instead of the desired sea duty he was treated to more schooling; first, the Diesel School at Chicago, where he obtained an advancement to MoMM 2/C upon completion of the course; and second, the Navy Yard at Seattle, Washington, where he was given some practical advanced training. He was finally transferred to a converted escort

Drum Corps Gains Several New Men

Due to the transfer of many trainees at the end of last semester, the ranks of the Unit Drum and Bugle Corps were left greatly depleted. However, through the efforts of Capt Robert L. Morgan, USMCR, moderator, and Pvt. Donald Rugen, acting head of the Corps, a representative and polished group made a commendable appearance at Saturday's dress review.

Replacing Philip G. Duffy, A.S., former Drum major, who was transferred to Worcester Tech, is Anthony Menalis, A.S., of Alumni Hall, a talented baton twirler. Harry Stofman, A.S., has replaced Joseph Ringlestein, A.S., as Sergeant drummer. The latter was sent to Midshipmen's School. Stofman is largely responsible for the new drum beats and marching tempos that the Corps uses on the field.

The complete roster reads as follows: Buglers: D. Rugen, K. Lynn, R. O'Connor, A. Blue, G. Aulbach, C. Canamucio, H. Bernton, A. Yost, G. Banning, B. Kelly, R. Horowitz, G. Evans, W. Eldon, C. Merk, P. Walsh, P. Tanski and L. Yates; Drummers: A. Stofman, J. Winner, W. Thompson, S. Kent, M. Sheridan, E. McAdams, D. Ward and P. Ellis; Cynbals: F. McBride; Glockenspiel: C. Cummings.

Efforts Appreciated

WITH the words of our welcome to him as new vice-president but a week old, we find now imperative upon us the less pleasant task of bidding farewell to Fr. McKee as moderator of the Villanovan.

Little to be envied, indeed, is the man who has fallen heir to the task of filling the place which has been left vacant by Fr.'s advancement. For twelve years he has discharged his duties with an abundant energy and inexhaustible enthusiasm which would admit no obstacle to success.

The credit must be largely attributed to him for the fact that in the most trying days of transition from peacetime civilian life to wartime service life on the campus, the Villanovan was one of the few extra-curricular activities which neither ceased nor curtailed their efforts. Diminishing only in size (to conform with the decrease in quantity of news and advertising), the paper continued to appear each week as regularly as in the most prosperous days of the past.

For twelve years his name has been a fixture on the masthead, and for the same number of years he has been the driving force behind the scenes. Over nearly an equal span of time, intramural sports at Villanova have prospered and expanded with him as their moderator. It is small wonder that in his new position as vice-president, Fr. McKee could not continue to have so great a demand made on his time by the ever-present duties of these two positions.

Understanding, then, full well the necessity but nevertheless regretting its existence, we observe the end of a term as moderator which has meant far more to the progress of the paper than most outsiders will ever know. Cooperation and support in the fullest measure have ever been the keynotes of his association with the Villanovan.

The bright spot on the horizon is that in his place comes one already known to us as a priest, teacher, and advisor of the highest capabilities. T. M. S.

Study Memo

TWO big surprises and at the same time innovations came last week with the announcement in a station memo from the Navy Office that a new special liberty was to be effected on Thursday evenings and that a new group of trainees, in addition to the regular Honor Roll men, whose names comprise the Merit List would receive the new privilege.

In regard to the former—the extra liberty—it is but proper and fair to reward those who achieve, through constant plugging, an average of 2.75 or above. It also forms a target for those who did not hit it last semester to aim for in this. It is well known that studying follows the old adage, "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink." Likewise with the student. He can be set down, given a book and made to read, but if his mind is not open and willing to receive knowledge, all is in vain. Therefore the reality of a just reward for good work should serve as a strong incentive to all to strive to attain an Honor Roll or Merit List average.

As for the innovation of the Merit List itself, there is nothing but commendation for the justice shown. It is only fair that a greater percentage of the student body than the number on the Honor Roll—those who worked equally hard but missed by tenths or even hundredths of a point—should be included for a reward.

But don't abuse the new privilege! Those who have earned the liberty this semester—don't be A. W. O. L. Those who wish you had the liberty—don't jump ship—work instead. You have been given a yard, don't take a mile.

Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

WELL, another column to start without knowing if there will be enough to finish it. Fr. Burke promised us a lot of material, but as yet, hasn't come through with it. However, we shall make a vain attempt.

The Ensign we saw Friday was Sam Ciriaco. We all remember Sam from our civilian days when he fought Rog Lattanza in the boxing tournament. How could we forget! Come to think of it, Rog will be starting at Northwestern sometime this coming week. Sam just graduated from there.

Another of last week's visitors was Jim Hill who is now in his final stage of V-5; he's heading for Pensacola where he'll finish up in from three to five months. While at Peru, Jim met up with Jimmy Dean who is at tarmack and liking it very well.

Also on the campus was the family of Paul Gallagher. And what a family! I wouldn't mind being in his shoes (or should I say uniform) with the beautiwife and child that are his. Paul is also in the Navy Air Corps.

From Tim Schneider, our freshman cheerleader, comes word that he has crossed the Equator but, of course, can't say where he is . . . Joe Wilson and Jack Welsh (who played on last year's football squad) are now at Annapolis. Sure glad to hear that! . . . Bernie Dieckhaus is doing very well at Glenview, Ill. . . . Most of you know that "Dutch" McCarthy is in the Medi-

Lt. "Hank" Christman has just left New River, N. C. for Norfolk, where he is biding some time . . . Few of us remember Jim Connolly from the first semester here. He has been out in the Atlantic and back again on a cruiser . . . Another Ensign, Charlie Koerwer, has just graduated from Harvard Supply School . . . Gene Konopka writes from Parris Island that the fellows are having a pretty rugged time of it.

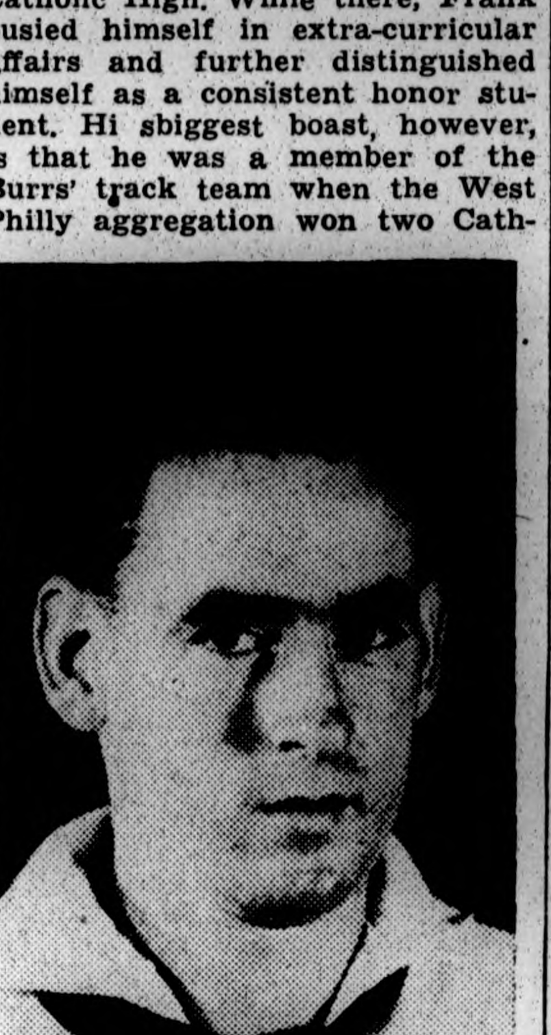
Tom "Woody" Myer was seen down at the shore a few weeks ago. He said that he saw Bob Koob at boot camp and again at Pearl Harbor. Bob is out in the Pacific somewhere . . Carton Conway was here a few days ago having just finished Midshipman school. He was assigned to a cruiser and is shipping out from Seattle.

Meet the Boys

TWO senior Chemical engineering students hold the spotlight this week, Francis M. Doorley, A. S., and Mark A. Manning, A. S. Because of seniority, we shall first trace the carreer of Frank M.

Born in Philadelphia on April 10, 1923, Frank attended St. Lawrence parochial school. At an early age he moved to Drexel Hill, outside of Philly, and completed his elementary education at St. Andrews.

The next stop on his educational journey was West Philadelphia Catholic High. While there, Frank busied himself in extra-curricular affairs and further distinguished himself as a consistent honor student. Hi sbiggest boast, however, is that he was a member of the Burrs' track team when the West Philly aggregation won two Catholic League titles and one National Championship. Frank's forte was the low hurdles, in which event he garnered many points for his team.



FRANCIS DOORLEY, A.S.

Frank likes to tell of the most amusing incident of his high school career. He played the female lead in the senior play, a comedy, and still claims he received the biggest laugh of the evening when he first walked across the stage.

Upon graduation from high school in June 1941, Frank matriculated at Villanova as a chemical engineering student. His interest in chemistry was first aroused in high school, and has continued undiminished.

On July 1, 1943, Frank entered the Navy V-12 Unit at Villanova. This marked the end of the famous "Triumvurate" of Cruise, Doorley and Dietrich, a fast friendship that gained the admiration of fellow students and teachers alike.

Frank's plans for the future are definite. He desires to enter the chemical engineering field as a salesman, a cereer for which his personality is well adapted.

GLEN Falls, New York, was the birthplace of our second aspiring chemical engineer, Mark A. Manning, his birthdate being November 14, 1923. Mark's early education was unique in that he attended nine schools before completing the fourth grade. While in the eighth grade, Mark moved to Drexel Hill and entered St. Andrews. He graduated with his newly acquired friend and present roommate, Frank Doorley. Mark went with Frank to West Catholic, and their friendship continued

He still revels in the thought of that "so deevine" weekend. . .B.T.O. Lee Carter looking very composed and at home in the lavishly decorated lobby of the Bellevue-Stratford . . . Joe McFadden has a unique way of seeing "her." THE PASSING PARADE

THE boy behind the man behind the books . . . For our first selection of the day Claude and I have chosen to bring you the fellow about the campus "you can't help meetin' if you don't stop eatin' . . . And so our ever ready flashlight with those never ready batteries pierces the maze and falls upon the form of one Joe Young, "the cafeteria kid." You all know Joe, everybody knows Joe; for he's that fine handsome lad with close cropped hair and constant grin, who hails from West Catholic, the best little high school East of Upper Darby. Joe's duties at Villanova are simple . . . on one day he will wipe the nutrition and vitamins (?) of yesterday from the trays of today, while on the next he can usually be seen pushing the cart, singing "'Dish-es' a Lovely Way to Spend a Summer." To his most intimate friends Joe is known as "Gumdrop" because of his insatiable appetite for these gooey confections. At present his favorite pastime consists of eating ice cream (look out—here comes Danny) and going to the movies, where he usually consumes three to four boxes of home-made gum drops.

Highlight or lowlight of the week, according as to whether you were on the top or the bottom of the pile, goes to that Skin-alating game of dis-organization . . . fifty man football Mass Murder, Chief's delight, or what have you. The rules for the game are very simple; so simple, in fact, that a V-12er can readily understand them . . . 'cause there ain't none. At first the object of the hardy sport was to get any one of the three balls under the goal posts in any way possible. . .fair, or like we usually do. However this has proven too tame and a new object, a super object, has taken over. This consists in getting Chief Zukas from behind the goal posts, out into the open. The best score of the week was turned in on Tuesday when the shirts scored three pints of blood, while the skins collected thirteen skivvies.

Then there's the fellow who, when asked by Chief Rogalla why he wasn't exercising explained: "Because I didn't see you, sir." . . . In closing we leave this bit of advice gleaned from John Miller of Alumni (son of Joe Miller, no less.) To wit: On these hot days, if you can't get water don't "faucet" . . . from the fountain of the same name.

Summer Football Practice

Above are some of the more than 70 players who turned out for the summer football practice. They are pictured running through the "T" formation which they may use in the season to come.

League Leading Marines Fall 13-0 Before Alumni

Alumni Leaps From Cellar To Third Place In Hectic Week; Mendel And Students Wage Extra Inning Battle

The second week of the intramural summer softball schedule featured quite a few upsets with the Marines still on top for the second consecutive week. The leading Leathernecks downed Mendel 10-8 and nosed out Austin 8-7, but took a terrific beating at the hands of the Alumni sailors, last week's cellar dwellers, to the tune of 13-0.

Due to Thursday night's rain only ten games were played, highlighted by Tuesday night's Student-Mendel game. Mendel sported an easy 3-0 lead at the end of the sixth, but the students rallied in their half of the seventh to tie the score and send the game into extra innings.

Both teams failed to score in the ninth and Mendel went down 1-2-3 in the first half of the ninth. Manning was the first man up for the Mendel Bluejackets and got to first on a single followed by shortfielder Madigan who promptly poled out a four bagger to score Manning and himself to break up the ball game.

Waldorff Good

The same night the league-leading Marines received their lone defeat from Alumni. Big Charley Waldorff, Alumni pitching ace, took command from the very start, allowing only seven men on first base. Powerful Frank Habernicht was the only Marine who could register a bingle all night, while thirteen of his teammates went down swinging as big Charley whizzed them by.

Meanwhile, Waldorff's teammates were backing him up at the plate as they garnered five runs in the third, another in the fourth, and seven more in the fifth to complete the shutout 13-0.

On Wednesday night Austin and Alumni were tied at 6 runs each when Father Kemme, newly appointed Intramural Moderator, had to call the game on the time ruling. This caused Austin to descend to last place. On the other fields the Marines were busy defeating Mendel 10-8 and the Students were taking Fedigan 11-7.

Close Game

In the Austin-Marine fracas Friday night, the Marines almost lost the second game for the week as the sailors seven run rally in the 5th failed to surpass their opponents mounting runs. "Reds" Nealon starred on the mound for the gyrenes as his opponent "Reds" O'Hara tossed a beautiful game for

New Boxing Team Will Engage F&M

Preparing to meet Franklin and Marshall College on the 17th of August, the recruits for the boxing team have already started training under careful supervision. Volunteers were called for on Wednesday of last week and anyone who had any boxing experience or who would like to learn, were urged to try out. So far, the team numbers seventeen men with about a total of twenty expected by next week. Out of this starting group, ten of the better men will be chosen for the trip to Franklin and Marshall.

Having only a few weeks in which to condition the team, there has been set forth a vigorous training schedule with special emphasis on arm endurance. The first week of training will consist mostly of heavy bag punching in order to build up a certain amount of punch. This will be rounded off with a seven minute period of speed bag punching. The second week will start off with sparring sessions as main point, while the last week will stress speed bag punching. All training sessions will include medicine ball exercises and road work.

An important item of the training program is the daily weigh-in and weigh-out chart. The function of this chart is to determine the physical condition of the mittmen through the amount of weight lost by sweating.

A few of the recruits who have had experience in the semesters previous are "Herb" Lamb, John Murphy, "Bill" Lamb, Frank Solis and John Smith, Another candidate who did not box last semester because of matching difficulties but, never-the-less, looked excellent in the sparring sessions, is Dulio Dalbora. Showing excellent pugilistic qualities previously, these boys should be a valuable asset to the team for the F and M encounter.

Blue & White Ties Swarthm'e; Beats Red and Blue 9-8

Garnet Earns 10-10 Stalemate; Hoot Has Triple And Homer During Week; Three Bagger Comes With Bases Loaded

Villanova's baseball team finished this week with a record of a 10-10 tie at Swarthmore on Wednesday evening, and 9-8 victory over Penn on Saturday afternoon at River Field.

The Garnet encounter was a weird affair with Swarthmore tallying one run against the Main Liner's two. Sondheimer started the ball rolling in the first inning when, after Jim DiSalvo struck out, he drove a double to right center. Anderson followed with a single which brought him in. Andy stole second and on Dick Hoot's infield hit, went to third. Then Hoot stole second and as Anderson went home on a passed ball, he pilfered third sack. Matt Lempa then grounded to the first baseman who had no play at home and who scored the third run.

Five Runs

Swarthmore came to bat and the first man, Dillonback, reached first on an error. Gibbons followed and was hit by a pitched ball. Youngblood grounded to Sondheimer at first but Greely who covered, dropped the ball as he crossed the bag. The Garnet tally sheet showed five runs.

In the fourth Sondheimer opened with a single, stole second, and when the catcher dropped the third strike on Hoot, the batter reached first and Sondheimer reached home.

The Garnet got it back as Kreidler singled and managed to go all the way on a fly ball to the outfield, an infield and an error. Opening the sixth, Sondheimer again strted it off as he reached first on a walk. On a successive steal -and a single by Anderson he reached home.

Successive errors and bingles by both teams brought them up to the sixth inning. Highlight of these latter frames was a terrific triple by Hoot which cleaned loaded bases and bring the confidence filling score, of 10-6.

Game Called

The Little Quakers with an array of walks and singles roared back in their half of the inning with three runs to hang one run behind in semi-final frame.

The Garnet filled the bases again in their half of the seventh and Weinert walked across the tying run. This was the end of a wildly played game as it was called on account of darkness. The game will be replayed at Swarthmore.

Penn drew first blood in Saturday afternoon's encounter when O'Brien, the Red and Blue lead-off man singled to left. He advanced to second on a walk, the first of twelve given by Weinert, and went to third on an infield out. The next man, Jordan struck out, and with two strikes on Messick, O'Brien came home and slid under the pitch.

The Main Liners got their batting eyes on in the next inning, and after Hoot had grounded out third to first, Femiano, Corr, Reagan, and Neiman all singled and two runs crossed the plate. Next inning after Lempa walked, Hoot followed with a terrific line drive that went for four bases. Corr tripled to rightcenter but died on third as Reagan lined out to Green at second.

Penn came back in the seventh inning with four runs. Weinert weakened and walked three men. These coupled with two hits cut the Villanova lead to 6-5. However Corr walked to start the next inning, stole second and went to third on an error. He tallied as O'Brien dropped the throw from the catcher when they tried to pick him off.

Frs. Kemme And Girolami Jointly Appointed Intramural Moderator

REV. JOSEPH W. KEMME, O.S.A.

Intramural Post, Vacated By Rev. E. B. McKee, Is Filled By Villanova Grads

A general change in hands in the positions as head of intramural and varsity athletics was experienced last week as Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., was appointed as Acting Director of Varsity Athletics, a post that has been vacant since Maurice "Clipper" Smith entered the Marines in April 1943, relinquishing at the same time the position of Director of Intramural tAthletics to Rev. Joseph W. Kemme O.S.A., and Rev. L. Girolami, O.S.A.

Having held his post as head of intramural sports for over thirteen years, Father McKee leaves this program, which he developed from its infancy to its present stage, with reluctance. Today intramural sports on Villanova's campus include a variety of sports and in the course of the year they embrace almost every student on the campus.

With softball schedules in the Spring, Summer and Fall, touchfootball in Spring and Fall, basketball for Winter, boxing tournaments for all seasons, tennis tournaments in the Spring and Fall, and in normal times a baseball schedule, Villanova's intramural program is today a tribute to the organization and enthusiasm of Father McKee and the many other priests who have from time to time been associated with him in this campaign.

REV. DANTE GIROLAMI, O.S.A.

His presence at almost every contest are remembered by hundreds of Villanova men throughout the world as one of their more distinctive memories.

Father Kemme formerly the moderator for the civilian resident students on the athletic field has been a member of the faculty since the Summer of 1942 when both he and Father Girolami came to the campus to teach mathematics.

Both priests are well known on the campus in both the classroom and afield.

One of the more prominent athletic achievements came at the end of the last basketball season when Father Girolami and Father Kemme with twelve and eight points respectively, paced the faculty team in a close game with the Ship's Company, losing 27-25.

Both Fr. Kemme and Fr. Gerolami are graduates of Villanova and of yore found their homes in the City of Brotherly Love, Philadelphia. Their plans for the program are to continue it in its present form and improve or fill it out as they see able.

Coast Guard And Navy Fill Coming Week for 'Cats

By DAVID I. RYAN

With an average of .500—an even split with Penn in two games, and a tie with Swarthmore — for the three games played thus far this season behind it, the Wildcat diamond aggregation has to face two strong opponents, the United States Coast Guard of Philadelphia and the United States Naval Academy, both within a period of less than twenty-four hours of each other next week.

The Coast Guard is to be met at home, in the second twilight affair of the season, on July 28th, at 6:00 P. M. The following day is the Navy contest, scheduled for 2:30 P. M., at Annapolis, Md.

Eleven Wins

The Coast Guard team has a record, to date, of eleven games won, as against only two games lost.

Included in the Coast Guard roster are three former professional ball players, two of whom played in the major leagues. Seaman First Class Larry File, who plays shortstop, and is the team's leading batter with an average of .537, formerly was associated with the Phillies. He also played with Trenton and Allentown.

Seaman First Class Eddie Silbers, ex-Saint Louis Brown player, covers the centerfield area, and is runnerup to File for batting honors, with an average of .442. Lieutenant (j.g.) Young used to pitch for the Lancaster Roses, after coming from Lafayette College.

Tie With Marines

Mainstay of the pitching staff is Seaman First Class Tommy McCollam, basketball star of this past season. Thus far he has to his credit five triumphs against two defeats. The remainder of the Coast Guard victories have been chalked up to Seaman First Class Mark Grumley, Seaman First Class Mack McNamara and Lieut. (j.g.) Young.

Navy, always regarded as one of the top contenders for baseball laurels in the East, opened its summer schedule on Saturday, July 22nd, with an 8-1 victory over Hampden-Sydney College, of Virginia.

Coach Max Bishop fielded a team composed entirely of plebes, who made a good showing for themselves. Feature of the game, though, was the one hit pitching of Andy Frahler, who shows promise of making more Navy opponents fall by the way.

In spite of this impressive debut — from a Naval viewpoint, of course—not too much is known about the squad as a whole, because the season is just in its early stages. So the Villanova players who will trek to Annapolis, come Saturday, leaving their Algebraic unknowns behind them, will be met with a baseball "X", which has already scored an impressive win.

"Dutch" McCarthy

John "Dutch" McCarthy, former Villanova great on the track has been commissioned an Ensign and is now on duty in the Mediterranean area. Dutch will be well remembered by Villanovans for this place on the great indoor track team of last winter which took more laurels in indoor meets than any other in the country.

Efforts Appreciated

WITH the words of our welcome to him as new vice-president but a week old, we find now imperative upon us the less pleasant task of bidding farewell to Fr. McKee as moderator of the Villanovan.

Little to be envied, indeed, is the man who has fallen heir to the task of filling the place which has been left vacant by Fr.'s advancement. For twelve years he has discharged his duties with an abundant energy and inexhaustible enthusiasm which would admit no obstacle to success.

The credit must be largely attributed to him for the fact that in the most trying days of transition from peacetime civilian life to wartime service life on the campus, the Villanovan was one of the few extra-curricular activities which neither ceased nor curtailed their efforts. Diminishing only in size (to conform with the decrease in quantity of news and advertising), the paper continued to appear each week as regularly as in the most prosperous days of the past.

For twelve years his name has been a fixture on the masthead, and for the same number of years he has been the driving force behind the scenes. Over nearly an equal span of time, intramural sports at Villanova have prospered and expanded with him as their moderator. It is small wonder that in his new position as vice-president, Fr. McKee could not continue to have so great a demand made on his time by the ever-present duties of these two positions.

Understanding, then, full well the necessity but nevertheless regretting its existence, we observe the end of a term as moderator which has meant far more to the progress of the paper than most outsiders will ever know. Cooperation and support in the fullest measure have ever been the keynotes of his association with the Villanovan.

The bright spot on the horizon is that in his place comes one already known to us as a priest, teacher, and advisor of the highest capabilities. T. M. S.

Study Memo

TWO big surprises and at the same time innovations came last week with the announcement in a station memo from the Navy Office that a new special liberty was to be effected on Thursday evenings and that a new group of trainees, in addition to the regular Honor Roll men, whose names comprise the Merit List would receive the new privilege.

In regard to the former—the extra liberty—it is but proper and fair to reward those who achieve, through constant plugging, an average of 2.75 or above. It also forms a target for those who did not hit it last semester to aim for in this. It is well known that studying follows the old adage, "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink." Likewise with the student. He can be set down, given a book and made to read, but if his mind is not open and willing to receive knowledge, all is in vain. Therefore the reality of a just reward for good work should serve as a strong incentive to all to strive to attain an Honor Roll or Merit List average.

As for the innovation of the Merit List itself, there is nothing but commendation for the justice shown. It is only fair that a greater percentage of the student body than the number on the Honor Roll—those who worked equally hard but missed by tenths or even hundredths of a point—should be included for a reward.

But don't abuse the new privilege! Those who have earned the liberty this semester—don't be A. W. O. L. Those who wish you had the liberty—don't jump ship—work instead. You have been given a yard, don't take a mile.

Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

WELL, another column to start without knowing if there will be enough to finish it. Fr. Burke promised us a lot of material, but as yet, hasn't come through with it. However, we shall make a vain attempt.

The Ensign we saw Friday was Sam Ciriaco. We all remember Sam from our civilian days when he fought Rog Lattanza in the boxing tournament. How could we forget! Come to think of it, Rog will be starting at Northwestern sometime this coming week. Sam just graduated from there.

Another of last week's visitors was Jim Hill who is now in his final stage of V-5; he's heading for Pensacola where he'll finish up in from three to five months. While at Peru, Jim met up with Jimmy Dean who is at tarmack and liking it very well.

Also on the campus was the family of Paul Gallagher. And what a family! I wouldn't mind being in his shoes (or should I say uniform) with the beautiwife and child that are his. Paul is also in the Navy Air Corps.

From Tim Schneider, our freshman cheerleader, comes word that he has crossed the Equator but, of course, can't say where he is . . . Joe Wilson and Jack Welsh (who played on last year's football squad) are now at Annapolis. Sure glad to hear that! . . . Bernie Dieckhaus is doing very well at Glenview, Ill. . . . Most of you know that "Dutch" McCarthy is in the Medi-Lt. "Hank" Christman has just left New River, N. C. for Norfolk, where he is biding some time . . . Few of us remember Jim Connolly from the first semester here. He has been out in the Atlantic and back again on a cruiser . . . Another Ensign, Charlie Koerwer, has just graduated from Harvard Supply School . . . Gene Konopka writes from Parris Island that the fellows are having a pretty rugged time of it.

Tom "Woody" Myer was seen down at the shore a few weeks ago. He said that he saw Bob Koob at boot camp and again at Pearl Harbor. Bob is out in the Pacific somewhere . . . Carton Conway was here a few days ago having just finished Midshipman school. He was assigned to a cruiser and is shipping out from Seattle.

Meet the Boys

TWO senior Chemical engineering students hold the spotlight this week, Francis M. Doorley, A. S., and Mark A. Manning, A. S. Because of seniority, we shall first trace the carreer of Frank M.

Born in Philadelphia on April 10, 1923, Frank attended St. Lawrence parochial school. At an early age he moved to Drexel Hill, outside of Philly, and completed his elementary education at St. Andrews.

The next stop on his educational journey was West Philadelphia Catholic High. While there, Frank busied himself in extra-curricular affairs and further distinguished himself as a consistent honor student. Hi sbiggest boast, however, is that he was a member of the Burrs' track team when the West Philly aggregation won two Catholic League titles and one National Championship. Frank's forte was the low hurdles, in which event he garnered many points for his team.

FRANCIS DOORLEY, A.S.

Frank likes to tell of the most amusing incident of his high school career. He played the female lead in the senior play, a comedy, and still claims he received the biggest laugh of the evening when he first walked across the stage.

Upon graduation from high school in June 1941, Frank matriculated at Villanova as a chemical engineering student. His interest in chemistry was first aroused in high school, and has continued undiminished.

On July 1, 1943, Frank entered the Navy V-12 Unit at Villanova. This marked the end of the famous "Triumvurate" of Cruise, Doorley and Dietrich, a fast friendship that gained the admiration of fellow students and teachers alike.

Frank's plans for the future are definite. He desires to enter the chemical engineering field as a salesman, a cereer for which his personality is well adapted.

GLEN Falls, New York, was the birthplace of our second aspiring chemical engineer, Mark A. Manning, his birthdate being November 14, 1923. Mark's early education was unique in that he attended nine schools before completing the fourth grade. While in the eighth grade, Mark moved to Drexel Hill and entered St. Andrews. He graduated with his newly acquired friend and present roommate, Frank Doorley. Mark went with Frank to West Catholic, and their friendship continued

Alumni Leaps From Cellar To Third Place In Hectic Week; Mendel And Students Wage Extra Inning Battle

The second week of the intramural summer softball schedule featured quite a few upsets with the Marines still on top for the second consecutive week. The leading Leathernecks downed Mendel 10-8 and nosed out Austin 8-7, but took a terrific beating at the hands of the Alumni sailors, last week's cellar dwellers, to the tune of 13-0.

Due to Thursday night's rain only ten games were played, highlighted by Tuesday night's Student-Mendel game. Mendel sported an easy 3-0 lead at the end of the sixth, but the students rallied in their half of the seventh to tie the score and send the game into extra innings.

Both teams failed to score in the ninth and Mendel went down 1-2-3 in the first half of the ninth. New Boxing Team Will Engage F&M

Preparing to meet Franklin and Marshall College on the 17th of August, the recruits for the boxing team have already started training under careful supervision. Volunteers were called for on Wednesday of last week and anyone who had any boxing experience or who would like to learn, were urged to try out. So far, the team numbers seventeen men with about a total of twenty expected by next week. Out of this starting group, ten of the better men will be chosen for the trip to Franklin and Marshall.

Having only a few weeks in which to condition the team, there has been set forth a vigorous training schedule with special emphasis on arm endurance. The first week of training will consist mostly of heavy bag punching in order to build up a certain amount of punch. This will be rounded off with a seven minute period of speed bag punching. The second week will start off with sparring sessions as main point, while the last week will stress speed bag punching. All training sessions will include medicine ball exercises and road work.

An important item of the training program is the daily weigh-in and weigh-out chart. The function of this chart is to determine the physical condition of the mittmen through the amount of weight lost by sweating.

A few of the recruits who have had experience in the semesters previous are "Herb" Lamb, John Murphy, "Bill" Lamb, Frank Solis and John Smith. Another candidate who did not box last semester because of matching difficulties but, never-the-less, looked excellent in the sparring sessions, is Dulio Dalbora. Showing excellent pugilistic qualities previously, these boys should be a valuable asset to the team for the F and M encounter.

Blue & White Ties Swarthm'e; Beats Red and Blue 9-8

Garnet Earns 10-10 Stalemate; Hoot Has Triple And Homer During Week; Three Bagger Comes With Bases Loaded

Villanova's baseball team finished this week with a record of a 10-10 tie at Swarthmore on Wednesday evening, and 9-8 victory over Penn on Saturday afternoon at River Field.

The Garnet encounter was a weird affair with Swarthmore tallying one run against the Main Liner's two. Sondheimer started the ball rolling in the first inning when, after Jim DiSalvo struck out, he drove a double to right center. Anderson followed with a single which brought him in. Andy stole second and on Dick Hoot's infield hit, went to third. Then Hoot stole second and as Anderson went home on a passed ball, he pilfered third sack. Matt Lempa then grounded to the first baseman who had no play at home and who scored the third run.

Five Runs

Swarthmore came to bat and the first man, Dillonback, reached first on an error. Gibbons followed and was hit by a pitched ball. Youngblood grounded to Sondheimer at first but Greely who covered, dropped the ball as he crossed the bag. The Garnet tally sheet showed five runs.

In the fourth Sondheimer opened with a single, stole second, and when the catcher dropped the third strike on Hoot, the batter reached first and Sondheimer reached home.

The Garnet got it back as Kreidler singled and managed to go all the way on a fly ball to the outfield, an infield and an error. Opening the sixth, Sondheimer again strted it off as he reached first on a walk. On a successive steal and a single by Anderson he reached home.

Successive errors and bingles by both teams brought them up to the sixth inning. Highlight of these latter frames was a terrific triple by Hoot which cleaned loaded bases and bring the confidence filling score, of 10-6.

Game Called

The Little Quakers with an array of walks and singles roared back in their half of the inning with three runs to hang one run behind in semi-final frame.

The Garnet filled the bases again in their half of the seventh and Weinert walked across the tying run. This was the end of a wildly played game as it was called on account of darkness. The game will be replayed at Swarthmore.

Penn drew first blood in Saturday afternoon's encounter when O'Brien, the Red and Blue lead-off man singled to left. He advanced to second on a walk, the first of twelve given by Weinert, and went to third on an infield out. The next man, Jordan struck out, and with two strikes on Messick, O'Brien came home and slid under the pitch.

The Main Liners got their batting eyes on in the next inning, and after Hoot had grounded out third to first, Femiano, Corr, Reagan, and Neiman all singled and two runs crossed the plate. Next inning after Lempa walked, Hoot followed with a terrific line drive that went for four bases. Corr tripled to rightcenter but died on third as Reagan lined out to Green at second.

Penn came back in the seventh inning with four runs. Weinert weakened and walked three men. These coupled with two hits cut the Villanova lead to 6-5. However Corr walked to start the next inning, stole second and went to third on an error. He tallied as O'Brien dropped the throw from the catcher when they tried to pick him off.

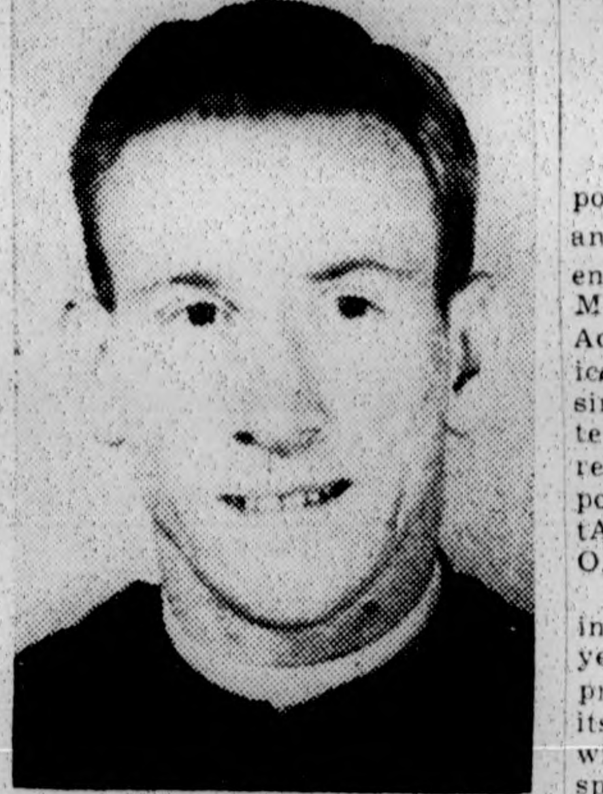
Frs. Kemme And Girolami Jointly Appointed Intramural Moderator



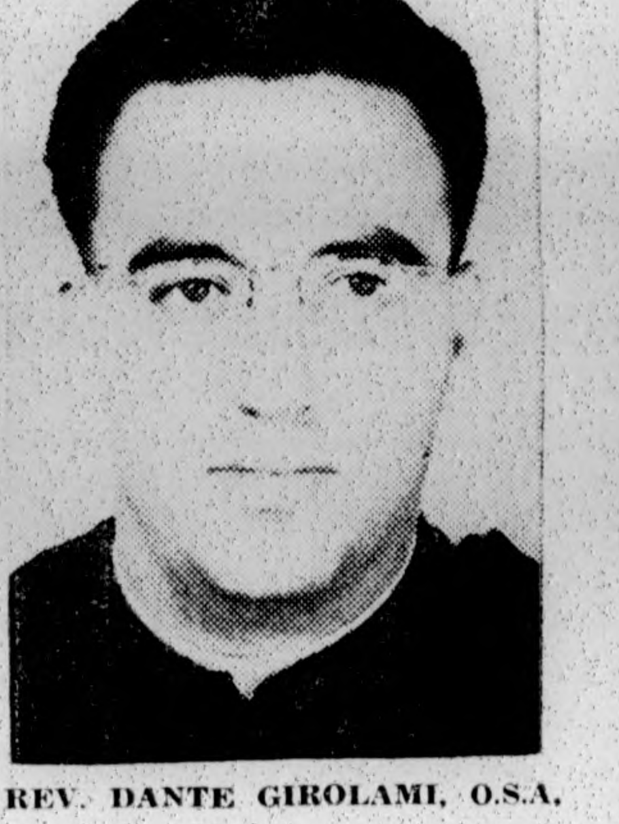
REV. JOSEPH W. KEMME, O.S.A.

Intramural Post, Vacated By Rev. E. B. McKee, Is Filled By Villanova Grads

A general change in hands in the positions as head of intramural and varsity athletics was experienced last week as Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., was appointed as Acting Director of Varsity Athletics, a post that has been vacant since Maurice "Clipper" Smith entered the Marines in April 1943, relinquishing at the same time the position of Director of Intramural tAhletics to Rev. Joseph W. Kemme O.S.A., and Rev. L. Girolami, O.S.A.

Having held his post as head of intramural sports for over thirteen years, Father McKee leaves this program, which he developed from its infancy to its present stage, with reluctance. Today intramural sports on Villanova's campus include a variety of sports and in the course of the year they embrace almost every student on the campus.

With softball schedules in the Spring, Summer and Fall, touch-football in Spring and Fall, basketball for Winter, boxing tournaments for all seasons, tennis tournaments in the Spring and Fall, and in normal times a baseball schedule, Villanova's intramural program is today a tribute to the organization and enthusiasm of Father McKee and the many other priests who have from time to time been associated with him in this campaign.



REV. DANTE GIROLAMI, O.S.A.

His presence at almost every contest are remembered by hundreds of Villanova men throughout the world as one of their more distinctive memories.

Father Kemme formerly the moderator for the civilian resident students on the athletic field has been a member of the faculty since the Summer of 1942 when both he and Father Girolami came to the campus to teach mathematics.

Both priests are well known on the campus in both the classroom and afield.

One of the more prominent athletic achievements came at the end of the last basketball season when Father Girolami and Father Kemme with twelve and eight points respectively, paced the faculty team in a close game with the Ship's Company, losing 27-25.

Both Fr. Kemme and Fr. Gerolami are graduates of Villanova and of yore found their homes in the City of Brotherly Love, Philadelphia. Their plans for the program are to continue it in its present form and improve or fill it out as they see able.

Coast Guard And Navy Fill Coming Week for 'Cats

By DAVID I. RYAN

With an average of .500—an even split with Penn in two games, and a tie with Swarthmore — for the three games played thus far this season behind it, the Wildcat diamond aggregation has to face two strong opponents, the United States Coast Guard of Philadelphia and the United States Naval Academy, both within a period of less than twenty-four hours of each other next week.

The Coast Guard is to be met at home, in the second twilight affair of the season, on July 28th, at 6:00 P. M. The following day is the Navy contest, scheduled for 2:30 P. M., at Annapolis, Md.

Eleven Wins

The Coast Guard team has a record, to date, of eleven games won, as against only two games lost.

Included in the Coast Guard roster are three former professional ball players, two of whom played in the major leagues. Seaman First Class Larry File, who plays shortstop, and is the team's leading batter with an average of .537, formerly was associated with the Phillies. He also played with Trenton and Allentown.

Seaman First Class Eddie Silbers, ex-Saint Louis Brown player, covers the centerfield area, and is runnerup to File for batting honors, with an average of .442. Lieutenant (j.g.) Young used to pitch for the Lancaster Roses, after coming from Lafayette College.

Tie With Marines

Mainstay of the pitching staff is Seaman First Class Tommy McCollam, basketball star of this past season. Thus far he has to his credit five triumphs against two defeats. The remainder of the Coast Guard victories have been chalked up to Seaman First Class Mark Grumley, Seaman First Class Mack McNamara and Lieut. (j.g.) Young.

Navy, always regarded as one of the top contenders for baseball laurels in the East, opened its summer schedule on Saturday, July 22nd, with an 8-1 victory over Hampden-Sydney College, of Virginia.

Coach Max Bishop fielded a team composed entirely of plebes, who made a good showing for themselves. Feature of the game, though, was the one hit pitching of Andy Frahler, who shows promise of making more Navy opponents fall by the way.

In spite of this impressive debut — from a Naval viewpoint, of course—not too much is known about the squad as a whole, because the season is just in its early stages. So the Villanova players who will trek to Annapolis, come Saturday, leaving their Algebraic unknowns behind them, will be met with a baseball "X", which has already scored an impressive win.

"Dutch" McCarthy

John "Dutch" McCarthy, former Villanova great on the track has been commissioned an Ensign and is now on duty in the Mediterranean area. Dutch will be well remembered by Villanovans for this place on the great indoor track team of last winter which took more laurels in indoor meets than any other in the country.

instrumental in making the senior prom an overwhelming success. Like Frank, he was a capable student and achieved an enviable scholastic record.

Mark contined his education by enrolling at La Salle College as a major in science. He completed two years at La Salle before enlisting in the Navy V-12 Program. On July 1, 1943, he received his orders to report to Villanova. When he arrived here, Mark entered the chemical engineering school. He will not, however, be able to obtain the degree under the Navy set-up. However, Mark plans to complete his education after the war, and then enter the chemical engineering field.

The young engineer's first endeavor after graduation was as a powder metallurgist with the Charles Hardy Corp. From there he proceeded to the New York Testing Laboratories as assistant to the technical director.

Many Engineering Jobs

The Bulova Watch Co. next employed him as an electrochemist and chemical engineer. At Wright Aeronautical Corporation, Appelboom was classified as a research engineer. Bitting Incorporated made use of his talents as an industrial engineer. For the Chemical Construction Corporation, he worked as a Specifications engineer.

Coming to the Frankford Arsenal in Philadelphia, he resumed his work as a metallurgist. At present he is in charge of metallurgy at plant 2 in the Philadelphia division of the Bendix Aviation Corporation.

Besides this diversified work in industry, Appelboom has also had some previous teaching experience. While doing research work for his degree at Columbia, he acted as an assistant. Recently, he has taught at Temple and Drexel in the Engineering, Science, and Management Defense Training Courses.

In the following year, Fr. Klekotka joined the Augustinian Order and his initial assignment was a two months stay at Staten Island. After two successive years at the Augustinian Novitiate on the Hudson River and at St. Mary's Hall at Villanova, he was sent to Augustinian College in Washington. He was ordained in 1941.

Receives M. S. Degree

While at Augustinian College he again displayed his executive ability by filling the post of editor of the school publication, the Tagastan, for two years.

He remained in Washington for one more year to complete work on a Masters degree in Physics which he received from Catholic University in 1942.

Fr. Klekotka was assigned to Villanova College in 1942, as an instructor in Physics and Engineering subjects. During his stay on the campus he has been prefect of Simpson and Fedigan Halls and at present is moderator of the Sanctuary Society.

and later in Boston, a position he held for seven years. Then followed a year with General Motors as a field representative. During this time, he kept up his sports, playing basketball on city and semi-professional teams, and also playing semi-pro baseball.

Offered a tryout with a big-league baseball team, the chief declined, in order not to interfere with his business career. He played softball with a Portland team which held the state championship for two years, and, in addition, became an ardent golfer.

With all the time he spent participating in sports, the chief was kept pretty busy; but he had another hobby besides athletics—gardening. He raised all the vegetables for his table, and, in addition, kept a flower garden.

A year ago, Chief Peters entered the Navy, reporting to Norfolk for his "boot" training. Because of his wide experience in business he was immediately given his rating of chief storekeeper. There followed for the chief seven months at Norfolk, training recruits, at the end of which time he reported to the Philadelphia Navy Yard for three months. Transferred to the District Training Office in the Widener Building in Philadelphia, the chief spent about a month there before coming to Villanova.

Chief Peters is married and has a year-old daughter. He has brought his family with him, establishing his home in Philadelphia.

Weinert walked the next two batters, and with the bases loaded, O'Brien lifted a high fly to left field which Anderson dropped. Three runs scored and O'Brien reached third on the play. Green proceeded to top a slow roller towards second, but the omnipresent Corr came in fast, picked it up, and threw in one motion to nip him at first by one step to end the game with the Wildcats ahead 9-8.

carrier, more popularly known as a "Baby Flat Top."

Makes Extensive Trips

The work and type duty aboard the vessel weren't at all discouraging, but came up to expectations. After six months of patrol duty throughout various parts of the Pacific, he was transferred to another ship of the same type and class. This next vessel carried him to various strange lands throughout the Pacific.

The trips, also, automatically made him an honorary member of the Shellback Club, and the Club of the Imperial Domain of the Golden Dragon. Membership in the Shelback Club requires that a trip be made across the equator, while the latter, a trip across the 180th Meridian.

Disappointed at Quiet

The fleet record of George J. Dolan, presents somewhat of a geographical contrast to that of the last three men. His duties as a radioman aboard a new cruiser were confined to Atlantic waters rather than to the Pacific.

During his six months aboard, the ship patroled all parts of the Atlantic, but to his disappointment failed to make any actual contacts with the enemy. Had he not been transferred, he would probably have had his hands full in time, for cruisers are generally made of trouble. As it was, orders sent him here, where he is studying premedical work, a field of his own choosing.

Serves in Atlantic

Jay R. Stauffer, formerly an electrician's mate 2/C also belonged in the category of Atlantic Fleet sailors. He willingly "sacrificed" his freedom when he volunteered for naval service on July 2, 1942, at the Philadelphia Recruiting Office. Following "boots" at Newport, Rhode Island, he was transferred to an Electricity School located at the same place but in greener pastures.

He worked hard for four months here at the various studies, and upon graduation was rewarded a "crow," an EM 3/C rate. Graduation at a training school was a day anxiously looked forward to, yet on arriving brought a necessity of leaving behind the many newly-won and sincere friends that partly smothered the jubilation arising in the heart.

Such was Ray's case as he departed for N. O. B. Norfolk for further transfer aboard a naval vessel. Upon arrival, he was placed aboard a transport as a passenger to be ferried to the port in which was to be his ship. Another ride in a different transport followed, with the new destination in southern waters.

Boards Ideal Ship

The ship, a light cruiser, was there this time. She was a "sailor's dream" worth every bit of the trouble encountered in reaching her. She remained his home for the next year, and during that time she covered considerable water. Reconnaissance trips to detect blockade runners and patrol duty constituted the bulk of the ship's work.

The next two men interviewed, both freshmen, had duty quite similar in that both were pharmacist's mates with duty restricted to the continental United States. The first, Franklin L. Taft, received his initial training at Farragut, Idaho, from where he was graduated a hospital apprentice 2/C. Immediately following was an assignment to the Naval Hospital at Treasure Island. Here, the daily experiences at the dispensary greatly added to his progressing medical education.

Studies X-Rays

After several months, he was further transferred, in harmony with his own desires, to an X-ray Technician School where he furthered his efficiency as a corpsman through the various studies undertaken. Upon completion of the course, a transfer to Camp Parks, California, followed, where in a short time he was advanced to Ph. M 3/C.

The other pharmacist's mate, Frank T. Meisel, first became familiar with the Navy at the Naval Training Station at Great Lakes. It was here that he grew out of "boots" and acquired the basic corpsman course of instructions. As a H A 2/C he was transferred to the Naval Hospital in Oakland, California, and was present only a short time before again transferring, this time to a Dental Technology School at Mare Island, California. Upon completion, this acquired knowledge was put into practice at the Dispensary at Treasure Island, where his efficient work earned for him an acceptance into the present V-12 program.

Performs Varied Tasks

Another of the itinerant class is William Trostle whose travels with the Navy during the last two years have carried him to many parts of the globe. His means of travel was always gunboat or subchaser style, and since one ship rode as roughly as the other, the trip always was far from monotonous. He developed his sea legs quickly, and consequently found both types of duty interesting.

On the books he was classified as a machinist's mate 2/C, but on board his job, due to a limited ship's complement, varied from engine work to plain deck work. He acquired his background for engine work at the Diesel Engine School, Richmond, Virginia, while he was still undergoing his preparatory training here at Villanova College.

Board Officials Named At Special Trustee Meeting

Resignations of Outgoing Members Accepted; Fr. Bartley, Dean of Commerce School, Elected to Board

At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of Villanova College held on Wednesday, July 26, at the College, the resignations of outgoing members were accepted and new members welcomed. Election of new officers of the Board was also held at this meeting.

Most of the changes were effected by the results of the recent Provincial Chapter of the Augustinians at which time a new Provincial was elected. Together with the succeeding appointments of a new President of the College and Prior of the Monastery, these changes affected three offices on the Board.

Three Officers Resign

Resignations were filed and accepted for the Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.B., former Provincial of the Order and Chairman of the Board; Very Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O.S.A., A.M., Vice Chairman, and the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., LL.D., former President of the College and Treasurer of the Board.

The new members elected to fill the above mentioned vacancies were Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., new Provincial of the Augustinians, Chairman of the Board; Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., D.D., Treasurer, and Very Rev. Joseph Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph.D., new Prior of the Monastery and former Secretary, as new Vice Chairman.

Fr. Bartley Elected

The only new member of the Board who did not receive his appointment by reason of the office he holds on the Campus, is the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., Ph.D., who was elected Secretary. Other members of the Board who were unaffected by the changes are Rev. John J. McMenamin, O.S.A., M.A., J. Stanley Smith, LL.D., and William Simpson, P.C.

The Board of Trustees is the corporate body legally responsible for the college obligations. It exercises a general control over the establishment of broad general policies that the college follows. It decides on the policies of the investment of capital and the founding of scholarship trust funds.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

Phi Kappa Pi President, Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., announced yesterday that plans for the moonlight cruise on a Wilson Liner down the Delaware River have been cancelled. The excursion was originally scheduled for Saturday evening, August 12.

McGuinn also announced a meeting of all members to be held this week to make plans for a substitute activity. The boat trip was to be the first social event sponsored by the engineer's frat for the Summer semester.

The reasons for cancelling the cruise were several. Main objections, the president stated, were the large crowd of people that took advantage of the odorous Delaware breezes and the intense heat on the boat.

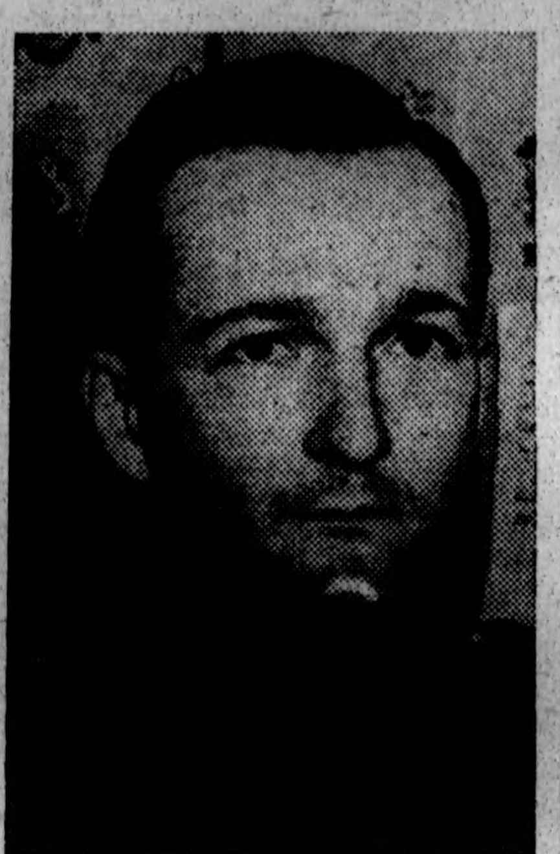
The Villanova Branch of the A.S.M.E. will hold a meeting at 6 P.M. on Friday, August 4, in room 215 Mendel Hall. An interesting motion picture, "Steel for the Armed Forces," dealing with the manufacture and treatment of steel, will be shown at the meeting.

All new members are urged to turn in their applications as soon as possible and other members whose memberships have expired will be asked to pay their dues for the coming year at the meeting.

New Med. Officer



Lt. Graham, New Med. Officer, Saw Action On Tarawa

Replaces Lt. Roach Who Joins Amphib Forces; Was Star Athlete In College

About July 19, Villanova students began to notice on the campus a new medical officer, and their first comments were always "Look at those service ribbons!" Lieut. L. J. Graham, (M.C.) USNR, left behind him a succession of Pacific bases before coming here to take the place of Lt. (j.g.) Robert Roach, (M. C.) USNR, who left for Newport Naval Station to join the Amphibious Forces.

Lieut Graham was born in Corning, New York, which remained his home until he entered the Navy. He attended Belmont High School, where he was an all-around athlete, lettering in football, basketball, baseball and track for three successive years.

Stars in Athletics

From Belmont, the doctor went to Alfred University, at Alfred, N. Y., where he earned his B. S. degree in Science in 1932. Again starring in athletics, he made his letter for three years in wrestling and track, specializing in cross-country running.

After graduating from college, Lieut. Graham taught Chemistry and Physics at Pearl River High, Pearl River, N. Y. Two years later, he left teaching to enter medical school at the University of Rochester, from which he was graduated in 1938. There followed for the new doctor two years at Henry Ford Hospital, in Detroit.

Begins Private Practice

Dr. Graham then returned to Corning, where he entered private practice. He was also assistant medical director of the Corning Glass Works and medical director of the Steuben County Boy Scout Council. Here he stayed until he entered the Navy in August, 1942.

The doctor reported for duty at the Newport Naval Base, Newport, R. I., and remained there until January of the following year when he transferred to the Marines at New River, N. C. In March he began his travels to the Pacific, first to Samoa, where he remained until July, when he headed for New Caledonia for a short stay. After this, he journeyed to New Zealand to join the Second Marine Division.

In Tarawa Battle

The Second Marines went to Tarawa, and the doctor saw the fiercest of the fighting from the beach. Unable to set up advance hospitals or even dressing stations, the doctors and corpsmen attended to the wounded on the beaches and in the

Condolences

The Villanovan wishes to offer its condolences to Pfc. William F. Friel III on the death of his mother last week. Bill, who is now serving in New Guinea, graduated from here in January, 1943, and in his senior year served as acting Alumni Secretary, Placement Director, and NYA head of the college.

Two Alumni Die; Another Missing

Gold Stars for Capt. Singley and Lt. Sylvester; Sgt. Bradshaw Missing Over France

Just at the end of the last semester, word reached the campus that Capt. Harry Singley, Jr., of the class of 1932, was killed in action on D-Day, June 6th. The War Department telegram did not identify the theater in which Harry met his death, but all his recent letters to his wife, who resides at 100 S. Stratford Ave., Ventnor, N. J., indicated that he was "somewhere in England."

Capt. Singley graduated from the Pre-Medical School in 1932. During his four years at Villanova, he distinguished himself, not only as an honor student, but also for his active participation in the many extra-curricular activities of campus life. He was editor of the Mendel Bulletin, president of his class during his Sophomore and Freshman years; a member of the football squad for two years and also a member of the inter-frat boxing team, besides serving on the Junior Prom and Senior Ball Committees.

Graduate of Jefferson

Following his graduation he entered and graduated from Jefferson Medical College. He served his interneship at Pennsylvania Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa. At the time of receiving his commission in the Army Medical Corps, July 1942, he was attached to staff of the Atlantic City Hospital, in charge of

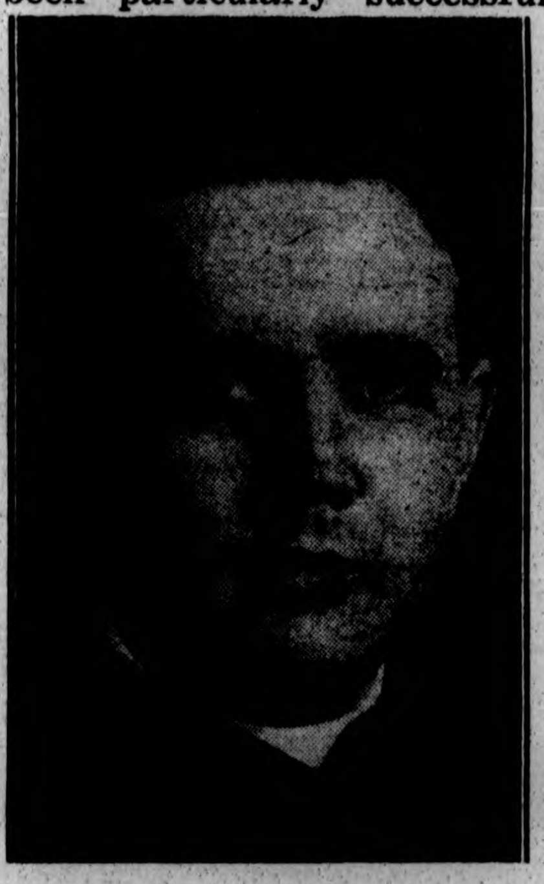
Fr. E. Dwyer Named College Dean and Liaison Officer

Appointed by Fr. McGuire as Successor to Fr. McQuade; Will Arrange Curricula and Schedules for All Schools and Is Chairman of Committee on Academic Standing

Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., associate professor of philosophy, has been appointed to the recently created office of dean of the college, it was announced last week by Very Rev. Francis X. M. McGuire, O.S.A., president.

Fr. Dwyer will replace Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., who has discharged the duties of this position since its inception approximately a year ago. In this capacity, he has been particularly successful in coordinating the college curricula with V-12 requirements.



REV. E. M. DWYER, O. S. A.

The new dean is prepared for his duties by many years of studies in institutions of higher learning both in this country and abroad. He attended Summer sassions at Manhattanville College, N. Y., in 1927. After receiving his A. B. degree from this college in 1928, he continued his studies in Germany and received a Ph. D. from the University of Wurtzburg in 1932.

Professor Of Philosophy

After another year at the University of Berlin, he travelled to Rome, where he did graduate work from 1933 to 1937 at the Institut Angelicum. During this period Father resided at the International Augustinian College and was Master of Professed Clerics there.

The following year he returned to the campus, and he has been teaching philosophy here since. In the past year, with the advent of the Navy Program bringing about a shifting of emphasis from classical to technical subjects, Father has also done some instructing in Physics.

To Arrange Curricula

As dean his principal duties will be to arrange the curricula and

Dr. Reber and Leuallen Join Faculty As Assistant Chemistry Professors

Two new professors were recently added to the college faculty to fill the vacancies in the chemistry department. They are Louis A. Reber, Ph. D., and E. Emerson Leuallen, M. S., both graduates of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

Both men have taken up their duties here on a part-time basis

only, as they continue in the teaching positions which they hold at the above-mentioned college of pharmacy.

Reber, a native Philadelphian, is a graduate of nearby West Philadelphia High School. From the Phila. College of Pharmacy and Science he received a B. S. in Chemistry in 1934 and an M. S., in 1936. Following further studies at the University of Pennsylvania, he was awarded the high degree of Ph. D. in 1941.

Since graduation Dr. Reber has occupied himself with teaching duties, principally at his alma mater. He also did some teaching recently in the Army Specialized Training Program at Drexel Institute of Technology. On this campus, he presently holds the title of Assistant Professor of Chemistry.

The other new faculty member, E. E. Leuallen, comes from Cape May Courthouse, N. J., where he attended Middle Township High School. He earned his B. S. in Pharmacy in 1935 and a Master's degree in Chemistry in 1938. He now holds the post of Instructor in Science at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

Unlike Dr. Reber, Leuallen has devoted some of his time since graduation to industry. He was for a time Technical Director of the High Chemical Co. He also taught for a time at the American University of Beirut, in Syria. With Dr. Reber he taught in the A.S.T.P. at Drexel.

At present, the two men come to the college several afternoons each week after they have completed their teaching duties at the college of pharmacy, and assist in handling the large classes in the chemistry laboratories. A limit is put on the time which they can spend here by the demands of their duties elsewhere. The professional excellence of the manner in which they discharge their tasks may be attributed to their long years of study and teaching in the well-equipped laboratories of the pharmacy school.

Athletic Board Revisions Made

Fr. McKee Named Moderator and Acting Director Succeeding Fr. McGuire

Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., Provincial of the Augustinian Fathers, has recently announced several changes of office and two new appointments for the Board of Athletic Control of Villanova College.

The Chairman of the Board is usually the Prior of the Villanova Monastery. Therefore, in accordance with this precedent, the Very Rev. Joseph Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph. D., recently appointed prior, has been named Chairman to succeed Very Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O.S.A., A.M.

Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., new Vice-President of the College has been appointed Faculty Moderator and acting Director of Athletics. He replaces the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., D.D., who vacated this post when he was appointed President of the College.

Makes Schedules

Fr. McKee will bear the brunt of the work as acting Director of the Board, but he will benefit by his experiences gained as enthusiastic moderator of all intramural sports prior to his recent appointment. Among his duties will be the formation of schedules for all varsity athletic teams and the general supervision of varsity athletics.

Also appointed to the Athletic Board was the Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., Ph. D. Completing the group of five are Rev. John J. O'Leary, O.S.A., M. S., Moderator of the Phi Kappa Pi, and Rev. John J. McMenamin, O.S.A., M. A., Procurator of the College, whose memberships on the Board were unaffected by the changes.

Versatility was Mark's keynote while in high school, as he took part in all intramural sports, was a member of the band, wrote for the school's various publications and headed the senior dance committee. In this latter role he was instrumental in making the senior prom an overwhelming success. Like Frank, he was a capable student and achieved an enviable scholastic record.

Mark contined his education by enrolling at La Salle College as a major in science. He completed two years at La Salle before enlisting in the Navy V-12 Program. On July 1, 1943, he received his orders to report to Villanova. When he arrived here, Mark entered the chemical engineering school. He will not, however, be able to obtain the degree under the Navy set-up. However, Mark plans to complete his education after the war, and then enter the chemical engineering field.

The young engineer's first endeavor after graduation was as a powder metallurgist with the Charles Hardy Corp. From there he proceeded to the New York Testing Laboratories as assistant to the technical director.

Many Engineering Jobs

The Bulova Watch Co. next employed him as an electrochemist and chemical engineer. At Wright Aeronautical Corporation, Appelboom was classified as a research engineer. Pitting Incorporated made use of his talents as an industrial engineer. For the Chemical Construction Corporation, he worked as a Specifications engineer.

Coming to the Frankford Arsenal in Philadelphia, he resumed his work as a metallurgist. At present he is in charge of metallurgy at plant 2 in the Philadelphia division of the Bendix Aviation Corporation.

Besides this diversified work in industry, Appelboom has also had some previous teaching experience. While doing research work for his degree at Columbia, he acted as an assistant. Recently, he has taught at Temple and Drexel in the Engineering, Science, and Management Defense Training Courses.

In the following year, Fr. Klekotka joined the Augustinian Order and his initial assignment was a two months stay at Staten Island. After two successive years at the Augustinian Novitiate on the Hudson River and at St. Mary's Hall at Villanova, he was sent to Augustinian College in Washington. He was ordained in 1941.

Receives M. S. Degree

While at Augustinian College he again displayed his executive ability by filling the post of editor of the school publication, the Tagastan, for two years.

He remained in Washington for one more year to complete work on a Masters degree in Physics which he received from Catholic University in 1942.

Fr. Klekotka was assigned to Villanova College in 1942, as an instructor in Physics and Engineering subjects. During his stay on the campus he has been prefect of Simpson and Fedigan Halls and at present is moderator of the Sanctuary Society.

and later in Boston, a position he held for seven years. Then followed a year with General Motors as a field representative. During this time, he kept up his sports, playing basketball on city and semi-professional teams, and also playing semi-pro baseball.

Offered a tryout with a big-league baseball team, the chief declined, in order not to interfere with his business career. He played softball with a Portland team which held the state championship for two years, and, in addition, became an ardent golfer.

With all the time he spent participating in sports, the chief was kept pretty busy; but he had another hobby besides athletics—gardening. He raised all the vegetables for his table, and, in addition, kept a flower garden.

A year ago, Chief Peters entered the Navy, reporting to Norfolk for his "boot" training. Because of his wide experience in business he was immediately given his rating of chief storekeeper. There followed for the chief seven months at Norfolk, training recruits, at the end of which time he reported to the Philadelphia Navy Yard for three months. Transferred to the District Training Office in the Widener Building in Philadelphia, the chief spent about a month there before coming to Villanova.

Chief Peters is married and has a year-old daughter. He has brought his family with him, establishing his home in Philadelphia.

Weinert walked the next two batters, and with the bases loaded, O'Brien lifted a high fly to left field which Anderson dropped. Three runs scored and O'Brien reached third on the play. Green proceeded to top a slow roller towards second, but the omnipresent Corr came in fast, picked it up, and threw in one motion to nip him at first by one step to end the game with the Wildcats ahead 9-8.

carrier, more popularly known as a "Baby Flat Top."

Makes Extensive Trips

The work and type duty aboard the vessel weren't at all discouraging, but came up to expectations. After six months of patrol duty throughout various parts of the Pacific, he was transferred to another ship of the same type and class. This next vessel carried him to various strange lands throughout the Pacific.

The trips, also, automatically made him an honorary member of the Shellback Club, and the Club of the Imperial Domain of the Golden Dragon. Membership in the Shelback Club requires that a trip be made across the equator, while the latter, a trip across the 180th Meridian.

Disappointed at Quiet

The fleet record of George J. Dolan, presents somewhat of a geographical contrast to that of the last three men. His duties as a radioman aboard a new cruiser were confined to Atlantic waters rather than to the Pacific.

During his six months aboard, the ship patroled all parts of the Atlantic, but to his disappointment failed to make any actual contacts with the enemy. Had he not been transferred, he would probably have had his hands full in time, for cruisers are generally made of trouble. As it was, orders sent him here, where he is studying premedical work, a field of his own choosing.

Serves in Atlantic

Jay R. Stauffer, formerly an electrician's mate 2/C also belonged in the category of Atlantic Fleet sailors. He willingly "sacrificed" his freedom when he volunteered for naval service on July 2, 1942, at the Philadelphia Recruiting Office. Following "boots" at Newport, Rhode Island, he was transferred to an Electricity School located at the same place but in greener pastures.

He worked hard for four months here at the various studies, and upon graduation was rewarded a "crow," an EM 3/C rate. Graduation at a training school was a day anxiously looked forward to, yet on arriving brought a necessity of leaving behind the many newly-won and sincere friends that partly smothered the jubilation arising in the heart.

Such was Ray's case as he departed for N. O. B. Norfolk for further transfer aboard a naval vessel. Upon arrival, he was placed aboard a transport as a passenger to be ferried to the port in which was to be his ship. Another ride in a different transport followed, with the new destination in southern waters.

Boards Ideal Ship

The ship, a light cruiser, was there this time. She was a "sailor's dream" worth every bit of the trouble encountered in reaching her. She remained his home for the next year, and during that time she covered considerable water. Reconnaissance trips to detect blockade runners and patrol duty constituted the bulk of the ship's work.

The next two men interviewed, both freshmen, had duty quite similar in that both were pharmacist's mates with duty restricted to the continental United States. The first, Franklin L. Taft, received his initial training at Farragut, Idaho, from where he was graduated a hospital apprentice 2/C. Immediately following was an assignment to the Naval Hospital at Treasure Island. Here, the daily experiences at the dispensary greatly added to his progressing medical education.

Studies X-Rays

After several months, he was further transferred, in harmony with his own desires, to an X-ray Technician School where he furthered his efficiency as a corpsman through the various studies undertaken. Upon completion of the course, a transfer to Camp Parks, California, followed, where in a short time he was advanced to Ph. M 3/C.

The other pharmacist's mate, Frank T. Meisel, first became familiar with the Navy at the Naval Training Station at Great Lakes. It was here that he grew out of "boots" and acquired the basic corpsman course of instructions. As a H A 2/C he was transferred to the Naval Hospital in Oakland, California, and was present only a short time before again transferring, this time to a Dental Technology School at Mare Island, California. Upon completion, this acquired knowledge was put into practice at the Dispensary at Treasure Island, where his efficient work earned for him an acceptance into the present V-12 program.

Performs Varied Tasks

Another of the itinerant class is William Trostle whose travels with the Navy during the last two years have carried him to many parts of the globe. His means of travel was always gunboat or subchaser style, and since one ship rode as roughly as the other, the trip always was far from monotonous. He developed his sea legs quickly, and consequently found both types of duty interesting.

On the books he was classified as a machinist's mate 2/C, but on board his job, due to a limited ship's complement, varied from engine work to plain deck work. He acquired his background for engine work at the Diesel Engine School, Richmond, Virginia, while he was still undergoing his preparatory training here at Villanova College.

Board Officials Named At Special Trustee Meeting

Resignations of Outgoing Members Accepted; Fr. Bartley, Dean of Commerce School, Elected to Board

At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of Villanova College held on Wednesday, July 26, at the College, the resignations of outgoing members were accepted and new members welcomed. Election of new officers of the Board was also held at this meeting.

Most of the changes were effected by the results of the recent Provincial Chapter of the Augustinians at which time a new Provincial was elected. Together with the succeeding appointments of a new President of the College and Prior of the Monastery, these changes affected three offices on the Board.

Three Officers Resign

Resignations were filed and accepted for the Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O.S.A., J.C.D., S.T.B., former Provincial of the Order and Chairman of the Board; Very Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O.S.A., A.M., Vice Chairman, and the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., LL.D., former President of the College and Treasurer of the Board.

The new members elected to fill the above mentioned vacancies were Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., new Provincial of the Augustinians, Chairman of the Board; Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., D.D., Treasurer, and Very Rev. Joseph Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph.D., new Prior of the Monastery and former Secretary, as new Vice Chairman.

Fr. Bartley Elected

The only new member of the Board who did not receive his appointment by reason of the office he holds on the Campus, is the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., Ph.D., who was elected Secretary. Other members of the Board who were unaffected by the changes are Rev. John J. McMenamin, O.S.A., M.A., J. Stanley Smith, LL.D., and William Simpson, P.C.

The Board of Trustees is the corporate body legally responsible for the college obligations. It exercises a general control over the establishment of broad general policies that the college follows. It decides on the policies of the investment of capital and the founding of scholarship trust funds.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

Phi Kappa Pi President, Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., announced yesterday that plans for the moonlight cruise on a Wilson Liner down the Delaware River have been cancelled. The excursion was originally scheduled for Saturday evening, August 12.

McGuinn also announced a meeting of all members to be held this week to make plans for a substitute activity. The boat trip was to be the first social event sponsored by the engineer's frat for the Summer semester.

The reasons for cancelling the cruise were several. Main objections, the president stated, were the large crowd of people that took advantage of the odorous Delaware breezes and the intense heat on the boat.

The Villanova Branch of the A.S.M.E. will hold a meeting at 6 P.M. on Friday, August 4, in room 215 Mendel Hall. An interesting motion picture, "Steel for the Armed Forces," dealing with the manufacture and treatment of steel, will be shown at the meeting.

All new members are urged to turn in their applications as soon as possible and other members whose memberships have expired will be asked to pay their dues for the coming year at the meeting.

New Med. Officer

Lt. Graham, New Med. Officer, Saw Action On Tarawa

Replaces Lt. Roach Who Joins Amphib Forces; Was Star Athlete In College

About July 19, Villanova students began to notice on the campus a new medical officer, and their first comments were always "Look at those service ribbons!" Lieut. L. J. Graham, (M.C.) USNR, left behind him a succession of Pacific bases before coming here to take the place of Lt. (j.g.) Robert Roach, (M. C.) USNR, who left for Newport Naval Station to join the Amphibious Forces.

Lieut Graham was born in Corning, New York, which remained his home until he entered the Navy. He attended Belmont High School, where he was an all-around athlete, lettering in football, basketball, baseball and track for three successive years.

Stars in Athletics

From Belmont, the doctor went to Alfred University, at Alfred, N. Y., where he earned his B. S. degree in Science in 1932. Again starring in athletics, he made his letter for three years in wrestling and track, specializing in cross-country running.

After graduating from college, Lieut. Graham taught Chemistry and Physics at Pearl River High, Pearl River, N. Y. Two years later, he left teaching to enter medical school at the University of Rochester, from which he was graduated in 1938. There followed for the new doctor two years at Henry Ford Hospital, in Detroit.

Begins Private Practice

Dr. Graham then returned to Corning, where he entered private practice. He was also assistant medical director of the Corning Glass Works and medical director of the Steuben County Boy Scout Council. Here he stayed until he entered the Navy in August, 1942.

The doctor reported for duty at the Newport Naval Base, Newport, R. I., and remained there until January of the following year when he transferred to the Marines at New River, N. C. In March he began his travels to the Pacific, first to Samoa, where he remained until July, when he headed for New Caledonia for a short stay. After this, he journeyed to New Zealand to join the Second Marine Division.

In Tarawa Battle

The Second Marines went to Tarawa, and the doctor saw the fiercest of the fighting from the beach. Unable to set up advance hospitals or even dressing stations, the doctors and corpsmen attended to the wounded on the beaches and in the

Two Alumni Die; Another Missing

Gold Stars for Capt. Singley and Lt. Sylvester; Sgt. Bradshaw Missing Over France

Just at the end of the last semester, word reached the campus that Capt. Harry Singley, Jr., of the class of 1932, was killed in action on D-Day, June 6th. The War Department telegram did not identify the theater in which Harry met his death, but all his recent letters to his wife, who resides at 100 S. Stratford Ave., Ventnor, N. J., indicated that he was "somewhere in England."

Capt. Singley graduated from the Pre-Medical School in 1932. During his four years at Villanova, he distinguished himself, not only as an honor student, but also for his active participation in the many extra-curricular activities of campus life. He was editor of the Mendel Bulletin, president of his class during his Sophomore and Freshman years; a member of the football squad for two years and also a member of the inter-frat boxing team, besides serving on the Junior Prom and Senior Ball Committees.

Graduate of Jefferson

Following his graduation he entered and graduated from Jefferson Medical College. He served his interneship at Pennsylvania Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa. At the time of receiving his commission in the Army Medical Corps, July 1942, he was attached to staff of the Atlantic City Hospital, in charge of

Dr. Reber and Leuallen Join Faculty As Assistant Chemistry Professors

Two new professors were recently added to the college faculty to fill the vacancies in the chemistry department. They are Louis A. Reber, Ph. D., and E. Emerson Leuallen, M. S., both graduates of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

Both men have taken up their duties here on a part-time basis

only, as they continue in the teaching positions which they hold at the above-mentioned college of pharmacy.

Reber, a native Philadelphian, is a graduate of nearby West Philadelphia High School. From the Phila. College of Pharmacy and Science he received a B. S. in Chemistry in 1934 and an M. S., in 1936. Following further studies at the University of Pennsylvania, he was awarded the high degree of Ph. D. in 1941.

Since graduation Dr. Reber has occupied himself with teaching duties, principally at his alma mater. He also did some teaching recently in the Army Specialized Training Program at Drexel Institute of Technology. On this campus, he presently holds the title of Assistant Professor of Chemistry.

The other new faculty member, E. E. Leuallen, comes from Cape May Courthouse N. J., where he attended Middle Township High School. He earned his B. S. in Pharmacy in 1935 and a Master's degree in Chemistry in 1938. He now holds the post of Instructor in Science at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

Unlike Dr. Reber, Leuallen has devoted some of his time since graduation to industry. He was for a time Technical Director of the High Chemical Co. He also taught for a time at the American University of Beirut, in Syria. With Dr. Reber he taught in the A.S.T.P. at Drexel.

At present, the two men come to the college several afternoons each week after they have completed their teaching duties at the college of pharmacy, and assist in handling the large classes in the chemistry laboratories. A limit is put on the time which they can spend here by the demands of their duties elsewhere. The professional excellence of the manner in which they discharge their tasks may be attributed to their long years of study and teaching in the well-equipped laboratories of the pharmacy school.

Fr. E. Dwyer Named College Dean and Liaison Officer

Appointed by Fr. McGuire as Successor to Fr. McQuade; Will Arrange Curricula and Schedules for All Schools and Is Chairman of Committee on Academic Standing

Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., associate professor of philosophy, has been appointed to the recently created office of dean of the college, it was announced last week by Very Rev. Francis X. M. McGuire, O.S.A., president.

Fr. Dwyer will replace Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., who has discharged the duties of this position since its inception approximately a year ago. In this capacity, he has been particularly successful in coordinating the college curricula with V-12 requirements.

REV. E. M. DWYER, O. S. A.

The new dean is prepared for his duties by many years of studies in institutions of higher learning both in this country and abroad. He attended Summer sassions at Manhattanville College, N. Y., in 1927. After receiving his A. B. degree from this college in 1928, he continued his studies in Germany and received a Ph. D. from the University of Wurtzburg in 1932.

Professor Of Philosophy

After another year at the University of Berlin, he travelled to Rome, where he did graduate work from 1933 to 1937 at the Institut Angelicum. During this period Father resided at the International Augustinian College and was Master of Professed Clerics there.

The following year he returned to the campus, and he has been teaching philosophy here since. In the past year, with the advent of the Navy Program bringing about a shifting of emphasis from classical to technical subjects, Father has also done some instructing in Physics.

To Arrange Curricula

As dean his principal duties will be to arrange the curricula and

The Chairman of the Board is usually the Prior of the Villanova Monastery. Therefore, in accordance with this precedent, the Very Rev. Joseph Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph. D., recently appointed prior, has been named Chairman to succeed Very Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O.S.A., A.M.

Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., new Vice-President of the College has been appointed Faculty Moderator and acting Director of Athletics. He replaces the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., D.D., who vacated this post when he was appointed President of the College.

Were You There?

WERE you at Chapel last evening? Couldn't you spare ten minutes of your time in prayer? More of the service men should take advantage of the numerous facilities for religious services which can be found here on the campus.

We have an opportunity now that will never be equalled, and we should take advantage of it. Marines in fox-holes on Pacific outposts, Sailors aboard the fighting ships of the Navy would give much to have the opportunity to attend Holy Mass each morning. But they pray—and pray devoutly—even without such facilities as an altar or chapel. Yet we have all these in a minute's walk. But do we take advantage of them?

How many attend Mass in the morning? Too few. A much larger number of service men could make an effort to attend Mass. Maybe not every day, but at least three times a week. While undoubtedly it is a sacrifice to get to Mass in the morning, there should be little difficulty in getting to evening chapel services.

"Oh, but there are softball games in the evening."—You are only kidding yourself. The chapel is open all day long and it would be well to visit it at least once a day for a few prayers. A good time would be on the way back from P. T. classes. Most of us pass the Chapel and it would take only an extra minute or two to stop in for a short visit.

We are all striving to prepare our bodies and our minds for the oncoming struggle for life, so we certainly should make an effort to prepare the spiritual side of our nature for its battles. We should do well to keep in mind Christ's admonition: "What doth it profit a man if he gains the whole world and suffers the loss of his immortal soul."

Let's get going! Let's skip that ten minutes of sack drill to prepare for ourselves a better berth in the future.

It's A Dull Summer

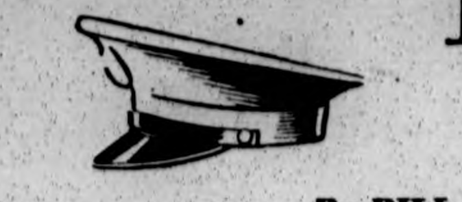
WHAT has become of the Student Council, the fraternities, and the engineering organizations? No doubt they are theoretically still in existence, but it is rather hard to find evidence for this fact in what they have been doing for the past few months.

Now let's not put up with those ever-present excuses which point out that Joe V. Twelve leads such a tough life he doesn't have time to bother with societies and frats and what comes with them. Certainly this particular semester is no harder than any of the previous ones, but the boys seemed to have the social front burner a lot hotter then than now.

We've completed a month of the current semester already, and nobody has even mentioned the possibility of having a dance. Phi Kap deserves credit for trying to start the ball rolling by discussing tentative plans for forthcoming events. However, definite plans with dates attached would be much more to our liking. And as for the Student Council—it's likely that most of our newer confreres don't even know that we have one. The C. & F. frat did all right last semester despite the many obstacles confronting it. Why haven't we heard from it all summer?

It's about time that the men who have been elected heads of these groups show themselves worthy of their positions by taking the initiative in reviving their organizations, and with them the social life of the whole campus.

Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

AT last we have some word from our ex-"Camp to Campus" columnist, John Bittig. He has just started Officer Candidate's class at Camp Lejeune and has nine more gruelling weeks to look forward to. John says that if he is lucky enough to make the grade, he will be commissioned about the 30th of September, after which he expects to pick up a rifle platoon and train with them for a month on the range, and then "shove off."

Down there with John are Ken Hellshorn, Will Gagen and Sam Casbarro. John Sutler was there for a while, as was Bob Kelty who came to visit Gagen.

From Italy comes news of Ensign Bill Marchese and his minesweeper. Bill has been having nice duty lately in that he goes for a swim every day after work is done. However, he is right near the front. Bill has had occasion to visit Rome, and says that it is the nicest city that he has seen over there, that he can't describe by words how beautiful and elaborate St. Peters Cathedral is. He also saw the Pantheon, Coliseum, Forum, Emanuels Castle, etc.

Bill met Neil O'Mahoney, who is on a transport, Chris Kiefer and Jim Harkins, who are both on LCTs and were both in the Elba invasion. He also saw Frank Mascariello, who is on an LCI. Heres hoping you run into some more of the fellows, Bill.

Tom Kongsgaard, one of the marines who switched to the navy, is doing very well at Tower Hall in Northwestern, along with Ben Paradee, Bob Murphy, Carone, Pettalia and Paul Dyer. Tom says that the 19th class in Abbot Hall graduated last week. Among others are Tom Easton, who is getting an LCI at Maryland; Joe Mihalek, LST at Norfolk, and George Beauchert also scheduled to board an LST.

John O'Connell is going into mine warfare, where he will report to Philadelphia Navy Yard. John expects to graduate on September 14. He applied for submarine or mine warfare.

We can't forget to mention that Tom Boyle is now in "boots" at Bainbride, and a letter from "Big George" Weling tells us that he is now at Pensacola.

And a long awaited letter from Cpl. John P. Murphy, who is now in New Guinea tells us what a place it is—rain and mud, heat and dust. John heard from Jack Kelleher, who was in Alaska but came back to the states and expects to go overseas again—this time to Europe.

Some good news to hear is that there has come definite word that Lt. Leo P. McGrath, Father's brother, has been reported as a prisoner in Germany after having been forced down unhurt in a bombing run over Berlin.

Meet the Boys

By PVT. WM. CARTER

IN the limelight this week we have none other than the beaming personality of Charles H. Strickroth. Vital statistics: he was born in Baltimore, Maryland, on December 21, 1923, and he has been living (?) ever since.

Charlie's high school experiences were centered in Calvert Hall which he entered in 1937. From then until his graduation in 1941, he was very active in the field of sports.

During his first year at Calvert, Charlie was a member of the junior varsity teams in both football and ice hockey. He earned a letter in the latter.

He really started playing the field in extra-curricular activities however, when he matriculated at Loyola College in Baltimore. Here Charlie majored as a B. S. in Chemistry. During his freshman year, he was a member of the lacrosse team and earned his varsity letter. A sportsman to the core, he also played on the intramural baseball, softball, and basketball teams.

PVT. CHARLES STRICKROTH

Charlie was also president of the glee club and orchestra at Loyola and dabbled in dramatics. Loyola lost him in 1943 when he was transferred to Villanova in the Marine V-12 Unit. However, he expects to receive his degree from Loyola when he leaves Villanova in September for Parris Island and the start of his officer-training.

DONALD F. RUGEN, like Charlie, has also claimed his place in the sports field. On this campus, however, he has also claimed his place in the musical field, being one of the leading bugle-tooters in the Unit Drum and Bugle Corps.

Born in Providence, Rhode Island, on October 6, 1923, Don entered Needham High School in Massachusetts in 1939 as a college prep student. Here he won letters in both tennis and varsity basketball, but skiing was his favorite sport.

After graduation in 1939, Don entered Northeastern University, majoring for a B. S. in Chemistry. He was a member of Northeastern's famous "Huskiers" ski club. Although he didn't earn any letters,

Hats off this week to all those who so willingly gave their very hair that liberty might survive. One glance into the chamber of slashes and gashes was enough to prove how heroically these stalwarts fought. It was, however, a winning battle for the experienced Charlie and his not too experienced henchman. Interesting feature of the engagement—each man leaving the scene was just a little more crewsome than the next . . . Quick quote; "My, that's a nice head of skin."

From all reports, especially from the Junior Engineers, everything isn't flowing too smoothly these days. In fact, on many weekends it's practically stagnant. Ask Joe Dwyer or Don Reinhart. The boys all claim that everything's Oake—but we wonder. The best thing to do in the light of the situation would be to keep a "civil's tongue in one's head."

And now to get back to our drama which we promised to bring you last week. Due to circumstances beyond our control Baffrina, our leading lady has been stolen right from under our pencil and signed as a relief pitcher by the Blue Jaws. However, through the lost and found column of the Police Gazette we have managed to procure the services of one Amnota Bagg, who will portray the the character of Baffrina Tinkledorfft.

When we left our heroine last time, she was about to sell to the Axis agent, Homer Holmes, the sector plans for combatting that horror on the home front, one-inch hair raids. As the action continues she cautiously approaches the agent's headquarters and rings the bell. After the usual pause the butler, Synthetic Watson, appears.

"Hello," she says, "I'm Baffrina Tinkledorfft." "What was that last disease, mum?" Our heroine staunchly tries again: "Is this the home of Homer Holmes?" The butler buttles "Yes, this is the home of Homer Holmes but Homer Holmes isn't home." "Well tell Homer Holmes when he comes home that I'll be at the Hemlock Sholmes home."

As Watson closes the door a voice is heard; "Who's your odd friend?" . . . Ring!!! . . . A shot bangs out. Watson clutches his leaking heart and dies . . . Who shot Homer Holmes butler through the dome in Homer Holmes home when he thought he was alone? . . . Was it "Fony" Farrell, "Clipper" Regie, Mark "Disorganized," Manning, or Pvt. "Ask me if I'm Handsome and I'll tell you" Evans . . . Turn this way next week for further details, if you dare.

Marines Retain Lead As Alumni Takes Runner-Up

Charley Waldorf Pitches Pre-Meds to Second Place Position; Engineers Drop to Cellar With No Wins

A quick review of the Softball situation this week shows the Marines still in the lead by virtue of their win over the Fedigan ball club. Hard fighting Alumni pulled themselves into runner-up position when they defeated the Students in a not too close game Wednesday night. The displaced Students are now in the number three slot with Fedigan occupying bin number four and Austin and Mendel occupying fifth and sixth places respectively.

Only the games scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday were played this week, Thursday and Friday's contests being called off.

Two Hit Pitching

Monday night's action consisted of a bitterly fought tie, 9-9, between Austin and the Students, the latter knocking off the tying run in the last frame. "King Bitter" Dumsa, ace and only pitcher of the Student aggregation allowed seven hits while his opponent, Bob O'Hara allowed nine.

In the other game of the night, Alumni, lead by the phenomenal pitching of Charley Waldorf who permitted the Mendelites only two hits, swamped the Engineers 10-0.

On Tuesday night, the Students battled Fedigan to a 6-3 win. Garnering three runs the Fediganites took the lead in the second frame 3-0 but the resilient Students come back in the third frame to tie the score, continuing in the next three sessions with a run per inning to finish 6-3 in the lead.

In the adjoining field the Mendelites again took a trouncing, this time at the hands of Fedigan who banged out nineteen runs as compared to eight for Mendel. Hoffman and Carey were the big guns for the Fedigan team each pulling down three hits and a base on error to reach the bags everytime at bat.

Engineers Beaten

Continuing in their stride, the Fediganites did well the following night but not quite well enough as the first place Marines, sparked off by Marc Abribat, slammed out four straight hits in the last inning to pull three runs and the ball game out of the bag. Alumni continued in it's able fashion when Charley Waldorf piched a two hitter to trounce the Students 4-1.

Waldorf did very well, pitching a no hit game up until the sixth frame when Bill Boyle socked out a single to break the no-hit streak. The Students scored their lone run when "Babe" Reilly gained first on a walk, stole second and was brought in by a hit from Fleisher.

SWIMMING CLASS

Beginning last week, a class in Life Saving has been started for Navy swimmers. Men who had achieved a Chief Swimmer's rating were picked to take the course. The class is conducted by Specialist 1/c Brunt.

The classes will extend to the end of the present semester and at the end of that time the successful swimmers will be given the rating of Senior Red Cross Life Saver. In addition to swimming knowledge, there are certain written examinations which must be taken by the swimmers on safety methods and other pertinent information on life saving.

Valley Forge Soldiers Meet Locals Here Friday

War Veterans Form Team Which Has Played Many Exhibition Games; Hospital Here in First Of Home and Home Series

The Blue and White will face a tough and worthy opponent this coming Friday in the person of Valley Forge Hospital.

The team, composed of the hospital staff, mostly overseas veterans, boasts many former amateur and minor league players. Their lineup will consist of Popodak in left, Sherman in center and Melzer in right. On second will be Szukala, former all American basketball player in 1940 with DePaul University and later of the Chicago Bruins. The rest of the infield will be Birdsong, Nieman, and Ronchelle. Either Lefty Pappalardi or right-handed speed ball pitcher Bizila will be on the mound and Caputo will do the catching.

Exhibition Games

Valley Forge has one of the largest schedules of any team in this vicinity. They have won 8 and lost 16, having been defeated by some of the state's better ball clubs. They played an exhibition game with the Phillies last Friday night and engaged the Athletics earlier in the season.

Fr. McCarthy seems contented with his present lineup and is not likely to make any changes unless something unforeseen takes place. Big, right-handed Gene Weinert, who seems to possess the No. 1 slot of the pitching corps will start for the Wildcats with Nieman, his battery-mate.

This will be the first time that the Wildcats have engaged the Valley Forge team on the baseball field. This game comes as a filler for the open dates on the Wildcat schedule for the Summer season. It is the first of a home and home series with the soldiers from the Hospital.

Last semester the tennis team played a team from the Hospital in one of the seasonal matches.

Eleven Games On Revised Summer Baseball Schedule

A revised summer season baseball schedule was released by the Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Varsity Athletics which lists instead of the original seven games a total of eleven for this semester.

Filling in the open dates of the original schedule is a listed home and home series with the Valley Forge Hospital team. First of these games is to be played this Friday. This is the first meeting of the teams on the baseball diamond. The Hospital squad is composed mostly of returning veterans.

Playoff Game

A third game has been arranged with Swarthmore which team we fought to 10-10 tie at the Garnet stadium. This game will come as a playoff for that stalemate. This playoff tilt will also be played at the Swarthmore field. Remaining on the schedule is a game to be played with the Little Quakers at the Wildcat field.

Final addition to the schedule is a meeting with the Philadelphia Marine Quartermaster's Depot. Already we have met and been vanquished by the Coast Guard team which was runner up to the Marine aggregation in the Service League. In a meeting two weeks

Bucknell and Mules Finish Up Incomplete Schedule; Three Open Dates To Be Filled; Openings In Process of Being Filled

The Villanova varsity football schedule for the 1944 season was released today by the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Varsity Athletics. "The schedule," Father McKee began, "as it now stands, begins with Franklin and Marshall on September 30 at Lancaster." He then added, "We will play Sampson at Shibe Park on October 7. In Worcester, Massachusetts, Holy Cross will be our next opponent on October 14.

Following the next game in which we play host to Muhlenburg on October 21, we will be idle for two weeks since examinations and leaves to trainees will come at the end of October. The first game upon our return will be played in Michie Stadium at West Point on November 4. Bucknell University is the last team to be scheduled so far, invading Philadelphia on November 18."

Three Open Dates

"We have three open dates," Father McKee asserted, "and we are eager to fill them as soon as possible."

Each team listed in the lineup, of '44 opponents for the Wildcats had an impressive record last year. The Cadets of Army had one of the very strong Eastern teams, quickly establishing themselves as the highest scoring outfit on the seaboard. In a game that will long be remembered for the gameness of outsubstituted Wildcats, Army after being held scoreless in the first half struck rapidly against the Villanovans to win 27-0.

Sampson Naval Training Station, paced by a former Villanova star halfback Andy Stopper, drove the Cats into a 14-0 defeat. A brilliant passing attack with Stopper on the pitching end together with a heavier and more experienced line for the New York sailors gave the Blue and White considerable trouble.

Holy Cross Won

Holy Cross on a cold November afternoon last fall rode to victory on the fleet feet of their captain George Titus. Not only did Titus step on the Cats' claws but he sewed up the game with the winning touchdown making the score 13-7. Dissappointment reigned high in the Blue and White ranks after brilliant Al Postus ran eighty yards through a broken field for a touchdown only to have the officials call the play back to scrimmage in order to administer a penalty on an overanxious Cat.

All the spots of the season were not black nor even dark. Following the season opener in Allentown in which our men walloped a highly rated Muhlenburg team, Villanova received national recognition and 'Cats Drop Games To Coast Guard And Naval Acad.

Philly Sailors Triumph 13-2 in Weird Contest; Middies Win 8-7 in Extra-Inning Clash

Villanova's baseball stalwarts dropped two games this week, one to the Philadelphia Coast Guard at home on Friday evening, 13-2, and the other to the Naval Academy down at Annapolis, Md., 8-7, in an extra inning contest on Saturday afternoon.

The Blue and White scored first in the Coast Guard encounter as Naslund reached first on an error by Sweeney in centerfield in the third inning. DiSalvo promptly placed a single, his second of the game down the third base line. Lempa forced DiSalvo at second, Naslund going to third on the putout. Anderson blasted a terrific triple out to the fence in left center, driving both runners in.

13 Runs in Two Innings

The Coast Guardsmen got to Dick Naslund in the fifth, and with the Wildcat infield going haywire, the Coast Guard managed to push over 7 runs in the one inning on only four hits. Leary replaced Naslund during this inning, and in the sixth, history repeated itself as the Blue and White opponents scored 6 more runs on only three hits. Jakeway relieved Leary in the eighth, and the scoring was done for the evening.

The next day, the Wildcats traveled to Annapolis, Md., only to lose a very close tilt to the Middies from the United States Naval Academy, 8-7.

As in the Coast Guard game, the Main Liners scored first, this time in the initial inning when after two were out, Anderson got on first on an error by Armstrong at short. He went to second on a wild pitch, and came home on Dick Hoot's double to right center.

Wildcats Tie Score

The Annapolis boys came right back in their half of the inning and on four walks and a hit scored two runs, to take the lead, 2-1. In the second inning, both sides failed to score, but Armstrong with one out clouted a triple to left center. Weelons lifted to Di Salvo in center, who threw a perfect strike to the plate, and Armstrong was nailed by Neiman.

The Wildcats tied the score in their half of the third as they bunched three hits by Di Salvo, Lempa and Hoot. Again the Middies took the lead in the same inning as Ellsworth led off with a scratch single, and Hill tripled to drive him in. Hill then scored on a fly by Duquette to Lempa in left.

Homers With Bases Loaded

In the fifth, the Blue and Gold added two more on a single, a walk and a double to bring the score to 6-2. Jack Corr started the next canto off with a triple to right center, and came home on Neiman's single through the infield.

With the score now 6-3 against them, the Wildcats came to bat in the seventh. Di Salvo led off by working Muelder for a walk. Lempa followed with a single, and Anderson then filled the bases, Lempa

McKenna Coach At Malvern Prep

John McKenna, center on the Villanova football team during the years of 1935, '36 and '37 has been named coach at Malvern Preparatory School to succeed Harold Bonner, who resigned.

McKenna comes from Lawrence, Mass and was center on the Associated Press All Eastern team. After he left Villanova, he played semi-pro ball and later with the Sun Oil eleven. He turned down an offer to play for Brooklyn Dodgers. Recently he has been working in a defense plant.

A new innovation which comes with McKenna is the establishment of a football camp for the Malvern football team. McKenna is the second Villanova grad in recent years to coach at Malvern. Previous to Bonner, the Prep School teams were coached by Marshall Halphen, guard on the football teams here in the years of 1926 and '27.

held entirely in the German language. The sophomore class elected him as secretary, while the band claimed much of his time during the two years he played with it.

Don is now majoring as a B. S. in Physics here at Villanova, having come here at the start of the V-12 Program 13 months ago. Not slight among his achievements is the fact that he is now in charge of the Navy-Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. He will leave Villanova in November for Parris Island where he will receive his boot training and thence, we hope, Quantico for O.C.S.

In announcing the change, Fr. McGuire released the following statement:

"Fr. McQuade was entrusted with the task of unifying the college curricula in order that the V-12 program might function smoothly and efficiently. Prior to the inception of the program at Villanova he worked zealously in its organization.

Worked Unceasingly

"Since July 1943, when the program was actually inaugurated at the college, he has worked unceasingly with the officers of the Navy unit in making the program a success from the viewpoints of both college and navy.

"Desiring to devote his energies to his own particular field in Education, that of the Social Sciences, Fr. McQuade has asked to be relieved of his duties as dean. This request has been granted with reluctance by the college administration. The college and the V-12 administration acknowledge with gratitude the effort put forth by Fr. McQuade in making the V-12 program so highly successful."

reaching second as the second baseman dropped a throw from the shortstop for the force play. Hoot proceeded to smack his second home run of the season at this crucial moment, and the Main Liners went ahead, 7-6.

The Middies again tied the score in the same inning as Burton reached first on a walk, one of the 12 that were issued by Weinert. He was out at second on a force play with Muelder reaching first on a fielder's choice. He stole second and on a single by Armstrong came all the way in.

Ellsworth Doubles

The Main Liners and the Middies went down one, two, three in the eighth and ninth innings. In the tenth, Naslund batting for Ward, who was spiked in the foot, drew a walk. Leary followed with a single and Neiman then popped out to short. Naslund was caught at third trying to steal, and Weinert walked. Leary successfully completed the pilfering of the third sack, but the best that Di Salvo could do was a fly to center.

Dittman pinch-hitting for Muelder, hit a liner straight to Corr. Armstrong skyed to Di Salvo but Weelons walked. Ellsworth doubled to deep left, scoring Weelons, and the Middies took a well-played ball game by the score of 8-7.

Injuries Prove Fatal

The Alumni Office added another gold star to the college flag last week to represent Lt. Stephen Shizkowski who died several months ago in the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. Requiem Mass was offered for the repose of his soul last week by the college chaplain, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A.

Lt. Sylvester died last April as as result of injuries received several months previous. While out at sea his boat was sent down and he was later saved and returned to the States for a few months. While on his second trip he became ill as a result of the exposure during the sinking and died shortly thereafter.

Better known as Steve Sylvester, he was a pitching star on Doc Jacobs' baseball team of '34 and '35. While on the campus he participated in many extra-curricular activities, being a member of the Forum Club, Epsilon Phi Theta, Day Hop Club, Blazer Ball Committee, and Holy Name Society. He graduated from the Arts School in 1935 and made his home in Reading, Pa.

Bradshaw, who graduated from the Class of 1940, was on a B-26 Marauder crew and had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with Ten Oak Leaf Clusters, having completed seventy mismissions over enemy territory. He thus was numbered among a very select group of top ranking mission men in the European theater of operations.

An active commerceman in college days, Austin played Intramural Sports for four years and was a member of the Holy Name Society. He lived in Lancaster, Pa.

Bucknell, who will challenge Villanova in her own backyard, lost last year's closely contested game, 14-0. Playing in a mire that resulted from a long rain, the Bison, always threatening the Villanova goal, received their blows at the hands of Postus and his big running mate, Al Kasulin.

At present the only newcomer to the schedule is Franklin and Marshall who had one of the best season records for eastern teams. Spurning post-season offers till after the final game, the Diplomats lost to Bucknell 21-13 — sudden death, tragic finale to a brilliant season.

Temple University, not supplied with Navy and Marine trainees, has elected "to play opponents with approximately the same ability for the duration," and therefore, at the request of Temple authorities, the traditional Wildcat-Owl classic will not be played this year.

Student Council Fills Vacancies, Plans Fall Dance

Chairman O'Connor To Appoint Acting Vice-Chairman; Present Hall Delegates to Select Men to Fill Vacancies

In a move designed to revitalize the recently inactive student council, Francis J. O'Connor, A.S., chairman, has announced that arrangements are being made to fill the vacancies on the council created by the withdrawal of representatives from school.

Most important will be the appointment of a temporary vice-chairman to take the place of John J. Fitzgibbons, who did not return for the summer semester. The two remaining officers, O'Connor and secretary-treasurer Patrick Reagan, will meet in the near future to make a decision on this issue.

In the matter of hall representatives, a method of circumventing lengthy elections to select the replacements has been devised. In Alumni Hall, James Cassin, Jr., A. S., will choose someone to replace John J. Atkinson, now stationed at Norfolk Naval Training Station, pending an assignment to Medical School.

Francis J. McBride, A.S., the remaining representative from Fedigan Hall will select a successor for Timothy Brennan, recently assigned to Midshipman's School at Northwestern. In Austin, Pvt. Michael A. Berry and Thomas Sugg, A.S.; and, in Mendel, Joseph H. Hoffman, A.S., and Huge F. Gillespie, A.S., will continue with their duties of last semester.

Since all the civilian members of the council withdrew from school for various reasons at the end of last semester, elections will have to be conducted to fill these vacancies. One man each will be selected from Simpson, Delurey, and O'Dwyer Halls, in addition to two day-hops. Thomas P. Welch, A.S., and John M. Gives Lecture

Princeton Group Hears Dr. Drenick

On last Wednesday afternoon, August 2, Rudolf F. Drenick, Ph.D., assistant professor of mathematics and physics at the college for the past several years, addressed the Seminar of Theoretical Physics at Princeton University on "Present State of the Theory of Superconductivity."

This theory, as briefly explained by Dr. Drenick, concerns itself with the phenomenon of the collapse of electrical resistance and internal magnetic field in conductors at very low temperatures — a few degrees above absolute ezro. Under these conditions, a current once started flowing through a conductor will continue to run for a number of days without further excitation, contrary to the usual reaction of an almost immediate cessation of flow.

The group which Dr. Drenick addressed were both cosmopolitan in nationality and well advanced in the study of Physics. Included among those present were Chinese, Italians, Germans, and Swiss — all either professors at the University or post graduates enrolled in the Institute of Advanced Study.

Well suited to the group was the lecturer, who himself received his education abroad. It was by the University of Vienna, in his native country, that he was awarded the doctorate in Physics. Tomorrow, Dr. Drenick will return to Princeton to continue his discussion of the theory mentioned above.

Valuable Edition Given To Library Now On Display

The library has just announced the acquisition of an old book, entitled "De Duodecim Abusiuis Saeculi" (Concerning the Twelve Abuses). The authorship is doubtful, some attributing it to St. Augustine, others to an unknown writer in Ireland about 650. Throughout the Middle Ages it was popular, having appeared in manuscripts and printed editions as the work of St. Cyprian, of Isidorus, or of St .Augustine. As late as 1590, an English translation was published, under the title "A Looking Glass for England."

The book was printed between 1480 and 1483 by the Augustinian Friars at Nurnberg. According to authorities, the Order began to print there in 1479, and by the end of the century, 10 works were produced. The Gothic type used in this work was evidently obtained from Milan and transported to Nurnberg.

This copy, containing 8 leaves, or 16 pages, is called an incunabula, (a cradle book) for it was done when printing was just beginning. It will be on display in the library during the coming week, when it will be placed with the other incunabula.

Summer School To Confer Degrees On 100 At Commencement Saturday

Fr. McGuire and Fr. Bartley to Officiate at Exercises in Rosemont College Chapel; Forty-five to Receive Masters Degrees; Students Attend Rural Life Conference

Degrees will be conferred on approximately 100 students at commencement exercises marking the close of the 1944 session of the college summer school on Saturday, August 12, at 9 A. M. The affair will take place in the chapel of Rosemont College, where the Summer sessions were conducted.

Of the degrees being granted, about 45 are master's degrees in varied majors which include English, education, history, biology, Latin, and French. The remainder are Baccalaureate degrees in Arts, Education, and Library Science.

President To Speak

Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A, president of the college, will offer solemn mass on the occasion, and will also briefly address the graduates. Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., dean of the summer school, will then present the candidates to Fr. McGuire for the conferring of degrees.

Enrollment at this years Summer school numbered over 1,100. Of these, some 400 attended the classes held on the Rosemont campus; the remainder were distributed among the other schools conducted under the college auspices at such centers at Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School. Nearly 250 students enrolled for the first time this Summer.

Conference Held

Instructors for the summer course, which consists of a six weeks session are for the most part members of the Villanova College faculty, but there were some visitors on the staff this year. The great majority of the enrollment is comprised of members of religious communities, who take advantage of the Summer vacation to further their studies.

An important feature of the Summer session this year was the National Catholic Rural Life Conference which was held on the Rosemont campus last Thursday,

Condolences

The staff of the Villanovan expresses sincerest sympathy to Fr. McCarthy on the sudden death of his father, Edward McCarthy on Saturday, August 5. Solemn Requiem Mass will be celebrated in St. Thomas' Church in N. Troy, New York on Wednesday at 9:30.

Fr. McCarthy has been coach of the varsity baseball team for the spring and summer seasons, and is faculty counsellor in Alumni Hall.

Yeomen Norman and Jones in Ship's Company Add Allure to Navy Office

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

Many of the returning trainees were surprised to find the previous Wave Yeomen replaced by two new very lovely ladies whose presence added new allure to the campus of Villanova and, incidentally, greatly boosted the frequency of Navy office negotiations. These two feminine versions of Jack Tar both hail from nearby sections, one from the mountainous upstate section of Pennsylvania and the other from the low flat plains of New Jersey.

The first one interviewed was Gertrude "Marion" Jones, Y 3/c, who very coyly refused to give her age but has Scranton, Pennsylvania, listed for her home town. Taking various commercial courses at Technical High School in Scranton she naturally took stenographer's positions after completing the required curricula there. The most notable of these jobs was as Court Stenographer for the Department of Public Assistance.

Being quite the sportsman, she chose as her favorite sports tennis and swimming, the latter taking preference. Due to her excellent swimming abilities, she held the position of swimming instructor at the "Y" and at one of the home town high schools. After donning the Navy blue, she held a similar position, that of instructing her comrades-in-arms in the intricacies of water locomotion.

Having four brothers in the Navy, one on a sub in the Pacific area and another in the European theater stationed on a Destroyer Escort, it seemed only inevitable that she too should join a branch of the Navy. After receiving her "boots" she journeyed to Cedar Falls, Iowa to attend yeoman school.

While there she received one of the great thrills of her life when she personally met Mrs. Sullivan, mother of the famed Sullivan brothers. After leaving Cedar Falls, she received her first orders to report to Villanova where we presently find her.

Mechanically Inclined

The other Yeoman, Nellie "Jean" Norman, born in the year 1923, lays claim to Patterson, New Jersey, as her home town. Graduating from Central High School in Patterson she became one of the famed women riveters at the Wright Aeronautical Plant. Mechanically inclined, this very adept young lady also held the position of mechanic at the Underwood Typewriter Plant in New Jersey.

Her reason for joining Uncle Sam's sea forces also has to do with brothers, but in her case, the lack of them. Since there was no one else in the family able to go, she felt it her duty to join the armed forces. However, she does boast of two younger sisters, particularly one, who has just turned eighteen, and, according to Miss Norman, is quite the girl.

Y 2/c NELLIE NORMAN

In Naval Intelligence

Finishing school at Stillwater, Oklahoma, Jean was stationed first at Washington, D.C. in the Naval Intelligence Department. After her term there she was ordered to a station nearer home, at Swarthmore. After leaving Swarthmore she arrived at her present base, Villanova.

Jean's favorite hobbys are dancing and roller skating. She does quite a bit of swimming. Missing the women's swimming facilities at Villanova that they have at Swarthmore, Jean does most her swimming at Colonial Pool where you'll find her on Saturday afternoons.

Villanova Salts

By MICHAEL KRAK, A.S.

Again we have shuffled through the pages in the book of past time and have succeeded in procuring from it the personal naval biographies of eight of the Bluejackets from Alumni Hall. Six of these as might well be suggested by their place of residence, are pre-medical students who prior to this were Corpsmen serving in various parts of the fleet.

Of this group Francis T. Stauffer was the first to don a Sailor's uniform. On January 14, 1941 almost a full year before Pearl Harbor, he began his first "hitch" with Uncle Sam's Navy. His intentions at the time were to make the Navy his "career" should Navy life prove to be agreeable.

Three years have elapsed, and he has yet to regret his decision. The earlier days with the Navy were well spent and have brought with them cherished memories. His first assignment at the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va. made the six years to come appear dark and dreary, but it wasn't long before the black clouds begin to disintegrate.

The schooling that followed at Corpsman School in Brooklyn provided the proper incentive, i. e., an interest in medicine. Time appeared to have wings, and before he realized it he was a third class specialist on active duty at the N. T. S. Dispensary, Newport, Rhode Island.

War was declared while he was serving at the above hospital, and with it came a call for skilled men. BuPers reassigned him to a Mobile Base Hospital Unit which moved to the west coast immediately after its organization. The Unit practiced under the type of conditions to be expected overseas, and then lock, stock, and barrel, it was assigned to a transport and sent to the South Pacific.

The trip was a quiet one as were the first few months at the Base Hospital which had been set up on one of the islands. To the hospital came the more serious casualties from the far flung battle lines. The duty was agreeable but his urge for the sea was strong; however it was a year before his dream of sea duty was fulfilled.

Upon request he was sent aboard a new destroyer escort. The ship proved to be an efficient watchdog on many of the convoy runs between the islands, and on one particular occasion had more to do than merely bark.

Just as the sun disappeared behind the distant horizon the escort vessel sighted on her portside a surfaced sub. The DE with the agility of a sea fish sprung into action; the sub also went into action by crash-diving and running. Charge after charge was thrown over the sides and a pattern of death was laid everywhere. Should the sub have escaped, it would have been only through the helping hand of Lady Luck. When a V-12 quota was assigned to the DE division, Stauffer qualified and was selected.

Another Pharmacist's Mate from the Pacific Theatre who earned a place in the present V-12 program was William Taylor. As a civilian he attended Pharmacy School in Pittsburgh and upon graduation began work as a Mortician Apprentice. This training served him in good stead when the time came to switch uniforms, because it placed behind his name H.A. 1/c rate instead of the usual A.S.

His first assignment after being

Lieut. Moore Wed In College Chapel

Lt. (j.g.) Thomas J. Moore, USCGR, and Miss Juanita M. Ripall were married on Saturday morning at 10 A. M. at a nuptial mass in the Villanova College Chapel. The Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., performed the ceremony. The bride was formerly a student of the College of Chestnut Hill in Philadelphia where she graduated in June.

Lt. Moore graduated from Villanova in the class of 1941 with a B. S. degree in Education. He also left behind him one of the most enviable records of any alumnus. During his four years here he amassed a total of 19 Merit Awards for extra-curricular activities.

His crowning achievement came in his senior year when the Belle Air, under his editorship, received the highest rating for all round excellence in the country. Above the All-American rating, the year book was chosen the "Book of the Year" among all college and university year books.

Among his other activities on the campus included Exchange Editor of the Villanovan, and the Student Council. During all four years he was a member of the varsity swimming team and, after graduation, returned to coach the team for a year.

Lt. Moore enlisted in the Coast Guard reserves in 1942 and has seen action in two invasions in the Mediterranean Theater — Italy and Sicily. After a short leave, he will be stationed in Florida for further schooling.

Tolerance ??

THE spotlight of public opinion was focused on an unhappy Philadelphia during the past seven days, and the sight we beheld was one to arouse grave concern for the future of Democracy in this country, if the mentality of some of the citizens of Philadelphia should be able to indulge itself elsewhere in the American community.

In the midst of his increasingly serious military headaches, Hitler himself must have found mental comfort in the work stoppage of the transportation system of Philadelphia.

There are many aspects of this tie-up which are still far from clear, and it is to be expected that the Federal Jury investigation, ordered by Mr. Biddle, will shed light upon them. On two counts, however, it may fairly be presumed, all of us could and should agree.

First, there is the injustice and not inconsiderable hardship which those responsible for the complete stoppage of public transportation brought about. No matter how just they may have thought (if they thought at all and were not completely dominated by their lower emotions,) their cause to be, they are to be condemned for walking off their vital jobs without having first exhausted every use of the complex machinery of settlement which is at their disposal.

Their actions would have been most reprehensible in ordinary times, but what terms of condemnation shall we employ to express our indignation at such inane tactics in such critical times as these? What can we say of the downright defiance of their duly elected government and its agencies by these irresponsible individuals?

The local, state and national governments are to be congratulated for their competent and patient handling of this very ugly situation. The daily journals of this area, too, have been, for the most part, very forthright and clear in presenting their editorial comment.

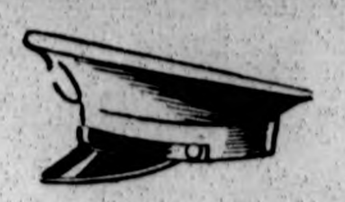
But the saddest aspect of all, and that which brings the greatest amount of dirty satisfaction to all the enemies of real democracy, is the fact that the entire disurbance was brought by the efforts of a relative few to hamper and destroy the working out of the very basis of our American Constitution.

The fact that our fellow citizens, whose skin contains more pigment than ours, but whose American ancestry is far better established than in ours whose ancestors came more recently to these blessed shores; the fact that these fellow citizens are in the Postal Service and that they serve with distinction on the Police Force of Philadelphia, meant apparently nothing to some of our white workers, who, consciously or not, are aping Hitler's godless and unamerican racial crudities.

We have grave cause for reflection at the sight of this sordid racial discrimination, especially considering that it has occured in the city of brotherly love in the birthplace of our nation, at the very moment when two groups of our colored brothers in arms have been singled out to be distinguished for their excellent and outstanding performances in the invasion of Hitler's fortress. How are we ever to apologize to our colored brothers who have died that we might live, to those who "gave the last full measure of devotion"?

Let us, too, resolve that all our brothers, whatever their racial extraction, "shall not have died in vain," lest we but make a mockery of our democracy by our insistence upon our rights while we deny them to our fellow-man.

Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

TIME to write another column. But this time I'll type it myself—nuts to you, Welch.

Up to visit us last weekend was Nick Hemmer. Took him up to Martin's Dam Sunday and it was very profitable for me. We were terrifically surprised to see Lt. Joe Carbine there with a quaint little mustache. Joe claims that that is what the Army does to a person. He is a pilot as we all know. His brother, Jim, is also making out very well at West Point. We think Joe said that he was in Cleerfield, Indiana—Indiana, anyway.

Also taking advantage of the nice warm water was Eddie Reilly. We guess the water doesn't phase him much for he is in the Merchant Marine and sees plenty of it. Also Eddie is remembered as one of the crack swimmers here in his civilian days. His last trip was over to Scotland, or was it England. It was one of the two, we're sure. Sure are getting messed up this week. So sorry!

Nick's long-past roommate in "dear old Alumni" days John McGowan came through with a letter from Cornell Midshipman school. John thinks it is the toughest school there is, but, personally, we think he is a little prejudiced. However, he is having a tough time of it with more work than he has time for. John was very happy to tell me that there are three places where they can get beer on campus. So, we're sure that will keep him going until he finishes.

Another Alumni "Alumnus", Danny Welsh, dropped a line. Haven't heard from him in a long time. Danny is in Camp Stewart, Ga., and informs us that Eddie Mason is sergeant in the Glider Corps. We Imagine he was in the invasion.

Oh, yes! Just remembered that "Bing" Bingham has just shipped out on a destroyer to be transported to (?) to pick up his submarine. Glad to hear it, Bing.

It was good to see Joe Heim back on his feet again after being in the Naval Hospital for a spell. Too bad he missed out on goin to Columbia Midshipman school but we're sure he'll get his chance again.

Another surprising visitor today was Eddie Fanelli who is weather observer, now stationed in Maryland. And at Fort Dix is none other than Joe DeLago, but for only a short time.

Meet the Boys

DEEP in the innards of Mendel Hall, amid a tangle of wires, we ventured and found Vincent Silverio, embryonic electrical engineer, in his natural habitat of electrical appliances and radios. Vince came into this world on August 3, 1923 and has lived in Philadelphia ever since—poor fellow.

Vince attended King of Peace Grammar School and afterwards, spent about four months travelling in Italy. When he returned to the United States, he attended Southeast Catholic High School in Philadelphia.

While in high school he was a member of the orchestra and captain of the school band, playing the cornet and saxophone. He was also a member of several clubs including the Latin and German clubs. Vince left Southeast in a blaze of glory by being class valedictorian, and winning the Peter Cosmus Award.

VINCENT SILVERIO

Vince is here on a scholarship, and matriculated at Villanova in September 1941. He has taken an active part in all school activities since then. His interest in sports sent him out for the track team in his sophomore year. A shoulder injury, however, has hindered him from taking part in intramural sports.

He joined the ranks of the Phi Kappa Pi as a freshman and during his first two years of college, he played in the band and was a member of the Math Club. In his last two years he has been a member of the A.I.E.E., and has also served on numerous dance committee.

Vince hopes eventually to get his master's degree in electrical engineering, but until that happy day, he will go into the industrial field.

ANOTHER of the denizens of the nether regions is Alvin Hurford. He was foisted upon an unsuspecting world on September 29, 1922 in a little known city called Philadelphia and has lived there ever since. He attended Sacred Heart Grammar School in Manoa and received his secondary schooling at West Philadelphia Catholic High.

There he participated in many sports, playing on the handball team for four years, golf for two years, and he went out for track in his fourth year. At this time he made a bid for the theater by acting in the senior play, but nothing ever came of it.

Al is one of the more rabid electricity fans in that he runs his own model electric railroad. He ought to have had a hey-day when the PTC closed down last week.

TRANSPORTATION difficulties . . . no problem . . . enjoyable weekend in spite of PTC . . .

On The Side—Seen at one of more select spots in Cynwyd, Duke Severson, Frank Cassiano and George Banning . . . Hot timing at the Hot Shoppe after a night's canoeing was Sparky Winters with his current interest Aggie Mullin . . . Showing "her" off at the Sixty-ninth street terminal was Jim McNamara, who didn't have eyes for anyone else.

Unique — Jim Redditt, so our agent tells us, turned down a date even though she was going to foot the bill. We didn't believe it when we first heard it either, but the source is reliable.

Shock — Ed Nolan was rudely shaken when his "best" girl invited him to her wedding reception. Unfortunately the transportation situation prevented Ed from congratulating his rival. Good Loser.

No Love, No Nothin'—Chuck Raymond felt thwarted when his advance interests were spurned by Ruth.

Native—Al Hurford's enviable tan is the product of many weekends at Ocean City. Al has been down to the popular resort so often that he is registered Democrat (naturally) at the Ocean City Polls.

Diplomat—Joe "I wanta be friends" Keating appeased Mary by sending her a beautiful box of flowers. Mary is still in the I-don't-know; you-were-pretty-mean stage, however Joe is determined to make amends.

Congratulations—To Lt. Stanley Kuffel on his recent promotion to Senior Grade.

Senior Grade—Also to Sergeants Mike Breem and Charles McGrath on their recent rise of one notch from Corporal, and to Specialist Irving Schiffman on his promotion to first class.

Congrats likewise to Sgt. Joseph Bastedo who last week re-enlisted in the Marine Corps, after his former enlistment expired.

MacGil's Folly

By BOB McKIBBIN, A. S. and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

WELL friends, fans and fiends . . . I guess that covers everyone . . . July is over and we're still here. It was a rather exciting month, filled with unexpected thrills and pleasures. Yes, especially for those who were spending their first month aboard the tanker Villanova.

For instance, can't you remember the joy and pride that overwhelmed you when you filled out that first 4x6 . . . then the second . . . then the third; or when, for the first time you fondled a log-log-deci-trig—Duplex slide rule in those gnarled trembling hands and found that by dividing 4 by 2 the answer still came out to be 2 . . . approximately. Small things 'tis true; but of such is man made.

For some the month will mark that unforgettable occasion when first they heard the bugle blown, as only a V-12er can, at 0620, summoning all to morning play . . . and remember how we thought Chief Gruff was such a swell fellow 'cause when everybody shouted that he was on, even the sack-hounds turned out . . . disappointing wasn't it . . . Then others thrilled at seeing their name up on the Navy's own bulletin board, where all could see. "Gosh, if Mother were only here . . . sigh." GEORGE V TWELVE (mmmm right at the top, too) WEEKEND RESTRICTION AND 60 HOUR WORK DETAIL.

But finally there was one bit of ecstasy, three moments of enchantment that we know you all enjoyed. When, for the first time you picked up the Villanovan and read this stealer joke-studded column of vibrant disorganization. Why just to show how big we've gone over we will print one of our more touching fan letters . . . Dear Mr. MacGil; I am a faithful and constant reader of your column and am writing to tell you how much both my friends and I enjoy your wit. You're wonderful! You should go far."

Signed: Gus Who.

Now what do you think o' that. Pretty good, huh? Oh yes, there was a P.S. "Please excuse the crayon as they will not allow me to have anything sharp."

When we reach the next lamp post I'm going to kiss you . . . Oh, Sydney, isn't that going a little too far?

Navy Blue

How many folks in civil life
Will take time to think
That sailors do some other things
Besides Carouse and drink.
When we are dead, when we are gone
When life's last cruise is through
We'll not be barred from Heaven's Gates
For wearing Navy Blue.
So when you meet a sailor boy,
I'd smile if I were you
No better men are made by God
Than boys in Navy Blue.

Waldorff Pitches No Hit, No Run Game for Alumni

Marines Fall Before Effective Pre-Med Pitching; Alumni A Half Game From First With Students In Third Place

Alumni pulled to within a half-game of the league leading Marines as a result of a no-hit, no-run contest turned in by Charley Waldorff on Tuesday evening. The Students kept right on the heels of the Pre-Meds and are now only one full game behind the Leathernecks by administering a 6-2 shellacking to Fedigan.

On the same night, Mendel either dug or was pushed deeper into the cellar as Fedigan clamped a firm hold on fourth place by a close 4-2 decision.

No Runs

Waldorff's feat was no less than astonishing for, in the first six innings, only eighteen men faced him and of these, half struck out. In the seventh, after adding another strikeout scalp to his belt, Waldorff weakened long enough to walk Freddie Goetz. Stookey then reached first on an error, Goetz going to the next bag on the play. However, Waldorff rose to the occasion and forced the next two batters to lift to center and left respectively to end the game.

Alumni's two runs were scored in the second and the seventh. Oristian opened the earlier inning with a grounder through the infield. After Magner had gone down second to first, Gallagher singled. With men now on first and second, Jimmy Shea punched a line drive into left to score Oristian, and send Gallagher to third.

The rally was quenched as the next two up were easy outs for the pitcher, one on a strikeout, the other on a weak infield grounder.

Their final but unnecessary tally came in the last inning. Walters led off with a single. He advanced to second on a error and then came all the way home on Magner's base hit to center.

The same night, the Students came through against Fedigan by a 6-2 score. With all 6 runs being socred in the one inning as a result of 6 hits, two walks ,and an error, the Students batted around

Boxers Prepare For Coming Event

The boxing team has made tremendous strides during the past week. Most of the aspirants have really sharpened their punch and developed their endurance as to be in tip-top shape to meet their rivals at Franklin and Marshall.

Outstanding in the 128 pound class is Dulio Dalborra, slugger from Austin Hall who should take his match. The notables in the 135 pound division are John Smith and John Murphy who look very good and are eager to engage their F and M rivals in combat. Ably handling the 145's are Bill and "Herb" Lamb while the 155's are taken care of by Frank Solis.

Open Field

An open field exists in the 165 pound division with five top notch sluggers battling it out for the honor of representing Villanova in the coming contests. In the 175 pound division, Ed McAdams and Harold Dorwart are the standouts. There will not be any heavyweight bouts, due to the inability to find a suitable representative to meet the opposition.

This week's schedule will include about three sparring sessions and plenty of light gym work in order to sweat off the few odd pounds here and there. The workouts of the final week will consist mainly of road work and light bag punching in order to develop wind and sharpen up on the punch.

Out of the present twenty members, eight or nine will be picked for the trip to Franklin and Marshall next Thursday, since that is all that will be allowed on the expense account transportation facilities.

Villanova Squad Drills Hard In Summer Practice

By DAVID I. RYAN

Having sweated and knocked each other around Goodreau Stadium through almost four weeks of sweltering draught weather learning the finer points of basic football, Villanova's 1944 gridiron hopefuls now are ready for a well earned three week layoff period, prior to the usual pre-season practices.

As the finale of the workouts draws near—on the last day, the squad will probably wind up with a scrimmage against a local college team . . . Coach Olivar seems well pleased with the results of the sessions. "We've developed blocking and tackling mostly—just what we set out to do."

From the sixty odd candidates, much new and promising material has asserted itself, while almost equally as much improvement has been shown from the spring practice holdovers. Although not a world beater, nor loaded with bear, the boys show promise of banding together into a representative Villanova football club—one worthy of the name.

Mentioning from random but a few of his charges, Ollie, in a recent interview, went through the different departments of the team, giving some side information as he progressed.

Heading the list of backfield candidates is hard hitting Notre Dame transfer, Bob David, at fullback, who played part time last season. Buck Williams and Mark Abribat are going tooth-and-nail for the left half post, while Ryan, Baxter, and Hoot, now hitting homers for Father McCarthy's baseball club, shape up as prospective signal callers. Al Sondheimer, another part-timer from 1943, sizes up as a likely right half.

For the most part, punting will be up to David, Williams and Baxter. Passing, a most important function of coming Villanova T-parties this fall, will probably lend itself to the accurate arms of Ryan and Williams.

Duke Severson, who will take John Siano's place at guard, will have plenty of opportunities to use

Swarthmore Engages Main Liners Twice This Week

10-10 Tie To Be Played Off At Garnet Stadium; Little Quakers Come Here Saturday In Return Game

Finishing up the summer baseball schedule with five games to go, the Wildcat diamond men will first tackle Swarthmore in an away game, tomorrow. This meeting with the Little Quakers was not originally scheduled but was added later in view of the fact that the Garnet and the Wildcats fought a 10-10 standstill, July 19, in the third tilt of the summer season.

The Swarthmore aggregation, the bane of last year's team, promises also to be the proverbial thorn in the side of this year's ball club.

However, with one win, two ties, and three losses, the Viillanovan nine eagerly looks forward to boosting their team average which at present is .333. Also, a win will ease their conscience a bit since they dropped a close one to Navy, 8-7, and Swarthmore trounced the same Navy team 7-1 with a superb job of pitching on the part of Bob Lobell.

Kreider Dangerous

Probably not pitching Wednesday, he will be the man to watch on Saturday. Another man to be watched on the Garnet squad is Kreider, who in the last game managed to single then, taking advantage of every opportunity, made home on a flyball to the outfield, one to the infield, and an error. The Little Quakers got most of their runs in the final frame, taking them on walks and singles.

Although the last game was a sloppily played affair on both sides this game sizes up as a better match for both teams. Since their last meeting they have improved as is shown by their better brand of playing the last few games.

No Coach

The team may have to journey to Swarthmore without the presence of their coach, Father McCarthy, due to the death of his father. However the game will be played with someone in his place on the bench.

Playing the Garnet again on Saturday at our field, the Wildcats hope to make this week's contests a double win. This will leave the Phila. Marine Quartermaster Depot team and Valley Forge Hospital squad for the following week with the Navy Yard Marines game, the last of the schedule, to be played the 25th of this month at home.

Valley Forge Ties 'Cats In Eighth Inning Rally, 1-1

Soldiers From Nearby Hospital in Pitching Duel; Weinert Hurls Two-Hitter to Lose in Final Innings

In a closely contested game, the Villanova baseball team was overtaken in the eighth inning by Valley Forge Army General Hospital to force the decision to a 1-1 stalemate at the end of nine innings, a pregame agreement having set a time limit on the game.

Seemingly unable to coordinate an offense with a fine defensive game, the Blue and White played steady baseball throughout the game. At the plate, Pappaiado, the Army pitcher, set the Cats back, allowing only three scattered hits and fanning ten.

Walk Scores

Ironically it was one of the three walks rather than a hit that scored the one Villanova run. Corr the first man up in the fifth inning walked. On Lew Leary's sacrifice, Corr went to second. On a passed ball he went to third from where he scored after Pat Reagan's fly ball to right field.

Valley Forge found it equally difficult to score. In the second inning the first two men, Caputo and Nieman, singled. However, after Chesko struck out, Barber grounded to Leary who stepped on third forcing Caputo. Di Gioia then drove a hard liner to Lempa who took the ball to end the inning. Valley Forge scored after Pappaiardo grounded out short to first. Birdsong then singled to center field.

Bizila flied out to Lempa for the second out but Birdsong then stole second base on a succeeding pitch. Popadak then hit a slow roller to Corr who threw to first too late to catch the man, Birdsong scoring on the pitch. Osinkosky, who replaced Caputo in the fifth inning after Caputo had been spiked in the play at home plate, fanned to end the inning.

The staff of the Villanovan wishes to express sincerest sympathy to Scott Ripley, A.S., upon the death of his grandfather last week. A resident of Fedigan Hall, Ripley is a second semester freshman in Basic Engineering.

Summer School

August 3, and was attended by members of the Villanova Summer school.

The purpose of the conference was to further a movement highlighted by national meetings in large cities and fostered by regional meetings such as this one—to educate Catholics to rural life.

Leaders Speak

Principal speakers on the occasion were Monsignor Ligutti, whose topic was "The Philosophy behind the Movement," and Rev. Martin Schirber, who spoke on "Cooperatives." Both men, in particular the former, are leaders of the movement in its national aspects.

Underlying the campaign, as explained by the speakers, are two main factors: the concentration of Catholic population in cities and the opportunities offered for the furthering of social justice and economic advancement by an increase in Catholic farm life. At present, it was pointed out, approximately three-fourths of the Catholic population is urban, while the one fourth who live in rural sections present some of the finest pictures of the ideal Catholic family life.

Spread Churches

It is felt that with a more even distribution of the population a greater measure of justice for the agricultural classes would be more easily attained. A more common basis would be established for working out such delicate considerations as prices, living conditions, and work. Adjusting the scale of farm life to that of the city life has always been a troublesome problem.

Another issue mentioned was that of interesting Catholics in more consideration for churches. While they are plentiful enough in densely settled sections, Catholic churches are widely separated in rural sections. An increase in Catholic population residing on farms might tend to remedy this situation.

It is the purpose of the committee to further the movement by teaching better methods of farming now available through modern improvements and increased knowledge. It is felt that by thus making farm life more attractive they will accomplish their purpose.

Congratulations

To Professor and Mrs. John J. Gallen upon the birth of a baby girl. The blessed event occurred yesterday. Mr. Gallen is assistant professor of engineering here at Villanova.

ively, will continue to complete the number.

In the way of future activity O'Connor has announced the formulation of plans for a dance. Due to the lack of popularity enjoyed by dances in the summer, when the heat seems to drive a majority of students from the city over weekends, the earliest date considered is the Fall. Whatever Saturday night near the end of September or beginning of October does not conflict with the football schedule will be chosen.

Even in the fall, wholehearted support of the endeavor by students and trainees must be assured before the venture will be seriously considered. This ultimatum on the part of the council may be ascribed to the lack of interest shown in the last two dances held on the campus.

to put the game on ice. Fedigan came back with its two counters in the last and next to the last inning, but the civilians had too much of a lead and coasted in.

Mendel lost a heartbreaker to the Marines Monday evening, 4-2 to open the week's athletic contests. Scoring one run in both the initial and the next canto, the Mendelites appeared headed towards one of their few victories. But alas and alack, Fedigan took over in the third and blasted out five hits to score four runs and put the fray in the well known bag.

his well educated toe. Ollie is planning on using Duke as a point-after-touchdown specialist, as well as for kickoff purposes.

Bob Forrest, a member of last season's basketball squad, and Sam Brown, a rugged individual, with a knack for hard blocking and tackling, were the two ends mentioned.

The tackle slots, which were expected to be filled by Don Collins and Jim Lalikos before both dropped out of school, have Joe McCann and Bill Brady, new men, and Len West, Rodger McRae, and Ray Wille, holdovers from the spring practices, as aspirants.

Frank Eye, from last season's Muhlenburg eleven, Alex Colman, a Wildcat performer in '43, the aforementioned Mr. Severson, John Freytag, and Pete Peterson are just some of the plentitude of guard candidates Ollie has been watching.

At the hub of all of the offensive workings is one Henry Strauss. In the opinion of the coaching staff, we have here at center a very good man who can be depended upon for much service.

Concerning future developments, Ollie commented "After Labor Day, the emphasis will shift from the fundamentals to the learning of new plays, timing, and defensive strategy. If the fellows show as much improvement in the fall practices as they have showr this summer, they'll give a good account of themselves."

properly initiated as a "boot" was the Naval Dispensary at Davisville, Rhode Island. Here he acquired useful knowledge of surgery through his daily work in the operating room. Later he obtained his first taste of sea duty when he was transferred temporarily to a coastal salvage ship.

Never anchored too long at any one spot, he was soon on his way again, this time to join a Sea Bee Outfit. It was with this outfit that he was given the opportunity to head west and observe the beauty of the West Coast, and Mid-Pacific Islands. On numerous occasions during his stay on the islands, he came in contact with the camp's Chaplain, Fr. Michael J. O'Donnell who formerly taught at Villanova. It was his suggestion that prompted Taylor to select Villanova College.

Another veteran who was familiar with the islands of the South Pacific and who had recently returned to the states is Albert Rodensky. As a Radio Ordnance man, he spent a considerable amount of time at various airfields scattered throughout the islands, and discovered — as did so many others—that these islands were no place to call home. They were hot and uncomfortable in many ways.

His first days on the island were uneventful, with the job on hand consisting of nothing more than routine watches on the antiaircraft guns. However, a short hop to another island soon altered the situation; in short order the surroundings became hotter than a Sunday in Hades.

Hails of gun fire from the short batteries, in conjunction with strafing attacks by Zeros, greeted the invaders. Despite this heavy resistance the assault group successfully fought its way to the initial objective, an airfield located three miles from the beach; however the fighting was far from over.

Jap artillery located in the hills shelled the captured airfield daily. Their bombers returned sporadically and always left behind a few "eggs." During the night there was no peace, for enemy snipers were continually harassing the men. Such conditions taxed the men's nerves, and they looked anxiously to the day when the enemy's guns would be silenced.

This was a few months later, and it was also at this time that Rozensky left the island and returned to the U.S. to begin studies under the V-12 program.

Conrad Seaman, another of the Bluejackets to be interviewed, was a radio specialist and instructor while serving with the fleet. His training had its inception at the Air Technical Center, Memphis, Tenn. He mastered the rudiments of the trade there, and obtained more advanced instructions at the Aerial Gunnery School, Jacksonville, Florida. The immediate effects upon graduation were the acquisition of a ARM 3/c rate and an assignment to a PBY (Catalina Flying Boat.)

Aboard ship he was a general utility man and, as such, was required to receive all types of communications—radio, blinker, semaphore, etc. This helped to eliminate the monotony of the long coastal patrol trips that the plane frequently made. After seven months of actual duty with the fleet, he was transferred to his former alma mater at Memphis, where he assumed his new duties as a radar instructor.

On numerous occasions Corpsmen's services are vitally needed at the various base hospitals scattered throughout the country, and consequently, many are never given an opportunity to experience foreign service. It is not uncommon today to see corpsmen wearing "hash" marks and at the same time lacking service bars. Don Wissenger, Charles Merk, William Nicolay, and Leon Luke are but a few of those corpsmen whose duties have been limited to these United States.

That the naval careers of Merk and Nicolay have run a close parallel might be worth mentioning. Both attended the Corpsmen School at San Diego ,and both were transferred at different times to the Treasure Island Base Hospital. Each remained here long enough to win his PhM 2/c rate before orders transferred them to Villanova.

Leon Luke, formerly PhM 3/c, was a dental technician at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Oakland, Cal. Six months at the hospital failed to discourage his interest in medicine, and at present he is continuing those interests at this College.

Donald Wissinger, upon enlistment, was sent from his home town of Logansport, Indiana cross country to the Naval Base at San Diego. In the relatively short time of four weeks he had completed his boot training and was sent as a Corpsman to a repair base located in another part of the state. He succeeded in fulfilling the qualifications of the V-12 program, was selected, and sent east to Villanova.

Voting Meeting Called On Friday

100 Sailors and 30 Marines Fill Out Application Cards For Election Ballots

Approximately 100 Sailors and 30 Marine trainees reported to 215 Mendal Hall last Friday evening at 6:15 to receive and fill out applications for absentee ballots for the coming Presidential elections. Lt. Stanley Kuffel, USNR, voting officer for the Villanova V-12 Unit personally distributed the ballot applications to the trainees.

All trainees in the unit who will be 21 years of age (18 years for Georgia citizens) on November 7, 1944, attended the meeting. However, absolutely no influence was or may be used to force a trainee to cast a vote. The voting officer was present to witness the trainees' oaths on the application cards.

All questions pertaining to servicemens' voting was answered at the meeting of Lt. Kuffel, who was instructed to give by hand an application card to each eligible trainee. After the cards had been properly filled out, they were countersigned by the voting officer.

Because of the ruling that officers may not, in any way, influence the voting of men under their command the cards were returned to the trainees for mailing. Upon receipt of the applications, the States will send, at the proper time and to those who fulfill the requirements, absentee ballots for the November election. The Navy Office made a report to the Bureau regarding the number of cards distributed.

A.S.M.E. To Hold Next Meeting Fri.; Movies To Be Shown

The Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will hold its next meeting on Friday evening at 6 P. M. The meeting will be held in 215 Mendel Hall and will feature two interesting motion pictures.

The first, a 30 minute color picture, deals with the construction of the famous B-17 Flying Fortress bombers and the flight training of the aircrews which take them into combat. The second picture concerns the development of the super octane aviation gasolines and their effect upon combat flying. All members are urged to attend, and interested non-members will be welcome.

Chairman Eugene P. Weinert A.S., announced that this is the start of a series of weekly meetings which will be held during the remainder of the semester. Besides motion pictures, several of the meetings will have speakers who will speak on technical and semi-technical subjects.

Library Receives 2 Highly Valued Books of History

One Deals With A Church In Middle Ages; Other Tells Of Nazi Religious Persecutions

Of interest to students of history, past and present, are two books recently added to the library: "St. Mary's, Hurley, in the Middle Ages" and "The Persecution of the Catholic Church in the Third Reich." Both of these books were presented by Capt. Paul J. Herley, an Army doctor in England, who matriculated as a pre-med student at Villanova from 1928 to 1930.

The first book, compiled by the Rev. F. T. Wethered, and published in 1898, is based on charters and deeds, particularly those of the Westminster collection. Throughout the book are photographs of the church, and drawings of its seals.

The church at Hurley, a small village near London, was chartered about 1086 or 1087 as a Benedictine Priory, a cell attached to Westminster Abbey, and continued as such until the Abbey and its cells were confiscated by King Henry VIII in 1539 or 1540. It then became a part of the Church of England, as it is today. Among its vicars was Richard Lovelace, a poet of the Elizabethan Era. Edith, the sister of King Edward the Confessor, is one of the notables buried in the church yard.

Author Anonymous

The second book is an exhaustive and orderly presentation of the facts of the persecution of the Church by the Nazis. The author of the book, which was published in 1942 by the Catholic Book Club in London, remains anonymous for obvious reasons.

The evidence is from various sources, much use being made of the Pastoral Letters of the German Bishops, for, as the author points out, any inaccuracy in matters of fact would have been challenged immediately.

It is interesting to note that the book is of war time material — cheap paper, and an extremely thin cover. Both of these books will be placed on the rack with the new books this week.

We Need Your Cooperation

If this copy of the Villanovan is arriving at your home each week addressed to you husband, son, or brother who is in the service, won't you please forward it to him as first class mail. If he is stationed in this country and does not receive the paper, please send us his address so that he may placed on our mailing list. Your cooperation in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Getting The Issues "On The Road"

Each week, to the efficient members of the circulation staff goes the monotonous and laborious job of folding, stapling, labeling, sorting, binding and mailing about 2500 copies of the Villanovan to Alumni—either at home or scattered throughout the world in Service Camps. Hard at work, seated left to right, are: J. Coyne, Circulation Manager, P. Franco, J. McLaughlin, W. Wescott and F. Costa. Out for a coke in the Pie Shop, and not shown in the picture, were Frank Facciolo, Subscription Manager, M. Binder, J. Burns, E. Gilberg, and J. Heck. With the exception of the [illegible] all are [illegible] members of the staff.

Ensign E. Mullinix Married In Wayne

Ensign Edward Wingate Mullinix, USNR, and Miss Virginia Lee McGinnes were married recently in the Wayne Presbyterian Church, Wayne. The Rev. S. Carson Wasson officiated. Miss McGinnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. McGinnes of Wayne, was given in marriage by her father.

Ensign Mullinix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Mullinix, of Round Bay, Md., was a student in the V-12 Program at Villanova for two semesters. Mr. Mullinix served as his sons' best man. Pvts. Alexander Kavall and Joseph O'Keefe, USMCR, in the Marine V-12 unit here, assisted as ushers at the wedding ceremony.

Yeoman Barker Joins Navy Ship's Company

Another new name was added to the list of ship's company last Saturday, when Berni E. Barker, Yeoman 2/c, arrived on the station to take up his duties in the navy office. It has not yet been disclosed whether Yeoman Barker will serve as a replacement or an addition to the staff of that office.

His arrival followed by some three weeks the transfer of Chief Philip R. Peters, who spent several weeks here on temporary duty assisting in the organization of the station records according to the approved Navy system. Following his departure and until the coming of Barker, the duties of the office were handled by the two WAVE yeomen.

Fedigan's Men Of The Fleet

Villanova Salts

By S. H. GOLDBERGER, A.S.

Leadoff man in today's group of salts is Steven Vrachopoulos. That looks like a mouth full of name, but it's pronounced Vra-hopeless. Steve, who comes from Forrest Hills, N. Y., enlisted in the navy shortly before he was to graduate from high school in January, 1943, and received his diploma by mail.

The Navy greeted Steve at Sampson Naval Training Station, where he took his boot training for seven weeks. This completed, he was transferred to the Richmond, Va., Diesel School, finishing as Fireman 1/c. After further training at Damneck, Va., Gunnery School, he was sent to Annapolis to board his ship, a submarine chaser.

Convoy Duty Dull

After a shakedown cruise to Norfolk and Miami, the sub-chaser went on convoy and patrol operations, which, says Steve, became monotonous in time. Although they had contacts with submarines, and came across ships that had been sunk by subs, they never engaged any.

During this time, Steve had come up to the rate of Motor Machinist 2/c, which he got in May, shortly before his V-12 orders caught up with him. After a short time at Asbury Park, taking a pre-V-12 course, he reported to Villanova.

Is Radioman

Our next victim, Robert L. Lane, is from nearby Merwood, Pa. In October, 1942, Bob reported to Bainbridge Naval Training Station for nine weeks of boots, and was then assigned to the Radio School at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. From Oxford he went to Moffet Field, California, where he spent four months. This was followed by three weeks of combat training, and then, as Radio Man 3/c, Bob began to see the world.

June of 1943 found our boy in New Caledonia, where his group established a base, and took further training in operation of radio field equipment. After maneuvers, the group set out for Bougainville, where they arrived on D-Day. They set up their unit in two trailers, one containing the transmitter, the other the receiver. Most of the boys complain of digging foxholes for themselves, but Bob says it can't compare to the job of digging foxholes for two huge trailers. Finally, they built an underground radio shack to get away from it all.

In April, 1944, Bob applied for V-12, and was flown to New Hebrides, where he boarded a transport headed this way. After a time at Asbury Park Pre-Midshipman School, he came here to take up his studies.

Participates in Invasion

Perth Amboy, N. Y., contributed the next sea-dog, Edward Bobal. March, 1942, found Ed reporting to Norfolk for six weeks of boot training. Having finished his boots, he went to the receiving ship, and then to an escort carrier, as a seaman 2/c.

After that, Ed saw most of what went on in the Atlantic and Mediterranean theatres. The task force of which his ship was a member took part in the African invasion, the Sicilian landings, the Allied occupation of the Azores Islands. After that came duty in the Bay of Biscay, and a trip in the South Atlantic to the Cape of Good Hope. The carrier was also on convoy duty.

In the course of his wanderings, Ed became a Shipfitter 2/c, and saw plenty of action, some of which is still on the restricted list. He became a "Shellback" when his ship crossed the equator January 7, 1943.

October, 1943, found Ed reporting to Bainbridge Naval Training Station for transfer to school, in his case Ursinus College, where he spent two semesters before coming to Villanova.

Aviation Radioman Next

Honors for length of time in the navy go to Joseph Casolaro, formerly Aviation Radioman 2/c. Joe had a year at Temple University before he joined the Navy and was sent to Newport, R. I., for his boot training on May 7, 1941. After nine weeks at Newport, he went to the Aviation Radio School at Jacksonville, Fla., for four months, and was then assigned to his squadron, V.P. 81. Flying in PBY Catalinas, this squadron operated between Key West and Panama, and on Atlantic convoy duty.

After a year, Joe was transferred to VP 53, operating between Trinidad and Key West. Another trans-

Engineer Editors Set New Schedule; Latest Issue Out

Plan Five Issues a Year Instead of Eight; Histories of Engineering Schools To Be Featured

By JOSEPH HOFFMAN, A. S.

With the arrival of the latest issue of the Villanova Engineer, the regular publication of the engineering school, Co-Editors, Joseph Hoffman, A.S., and John M. Millet, A.S., have announced revisions in publication schedule and general layout of the magazine which will go into effect with the next issue.

These plans, which will provide a larger book and more interesting articles, have received the approval of Rev. John J. Vrana, faculty moderator. The next issue, in September, will contain 20 pages instead of the usual 16 pages as appeared in the recent edition.

Post War Highways

The latest issue of the Engineer, distributed recently, contains a very timely article, "Post-War Highway Construction," by James Redditt, A. S. It should be of special interest to the Civil Engineering students since Redditt discusses the problems which must be met in planning and constructing new highways and in the reconstruction of existing highways which were either badly planned or not kept in condition while in use.

The history of the Mechanical Engineering Department of Villanova is told by Francis J. O'Connor, A. S., and gives the highlights of that school from its beginning in 1908 to the present time. This is the beginning of a series of articles which will include each of the Departments of Engineering. The regular feature, "Progress," is continued by Joseph. De Lago.

Five Issues Per Year

The schedule of the Engineer, beginning with the next issue, will be changed to five issues per year instead of the former eight. This change was brought about for several reasons, the most important of which was the apparent lack of interest on the part of the student body. The future publication dates will be September, November, January, March and May.

The next issue ,September, will contain the story of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, which is also known as the Dream Highway. George Siebert, A. S., is the author, and, while he cannot delve very deeply into the technical aspects of this great engineering achievement because of space limitations, he does discuss the more important points. Among these are the methods of landscaping the completed highway for protective as well as scenic reasons.

The second feature is a discussion of the post-war light plane. It is written by Joseph Miller and, since Miller himself is a pilot, he bases his predictions on experience. The author does not expect a fool-proof plane immediately, but, within a few years after the war, such a plane will undoubtedly make its appearance.

The regular feature "Here Are Your Profs" will be continued throughout the future issues. This contains a brief biographical sketch of the professors in the engineering school, Together with the other regular feature of "Progress" and a joke column this coming issue should prove of greater interest to students than previous ones.

Congratulations

Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Harold McClain on the birth of a baby girl. She was born on Friday, August 11, and is to be named Margaret after her mother.

Dr. McClain has been a member of the faculty for several years. Although his main teaching duties are as Assistant Professor of Biology, he has been assisting recently in the Physics Department.

Don't Abuse Privilege

BUT three weeks have passed since new liberty regulations went into effect on this station, granting special consideration to those whose work last semester was deemed worthy of merit. At the time that this policy was inaugurated, it was hailed by all as both generous and wise on the part of naval officials, since it provided a motive for increased efforts in the form of a just reward.

Already, however, these privileges are being endangered by the unlawful practices of a selfish few, who seem bent on building new evidence in support of the time-honored truism that where an inch is given a yard will be taken.

Those who thus menace the special liberty privileges fall in two categories. The first of these is the foolishly careless man who, legitimately excused, returns late. For the sake of five extra minutes now, he runs the risk of losing four and a half hours for the next nine weeks.

The next is the deliberately malicious trainee who, unable to bear seeing others enjoy the just fruits of their labors, takes it upon himself to leave the campus without permission. Such a one seems to fall within the category of those who, if they can not earn privileges for themselves, would like to deprive everyone else of the opportunity of earning privilege.

The navy office has warned, and your fellow-students beseech: Don't abuse the Thursday night liberty, or it will be abolished.

To Whom It May Concern

LAST semester, this unit had a perfect record for cooperation in the Navy War Bond campaign. We had 100 per cent enrollment in bond allotments. This semester, however, due to the influx of many new trainees, Villanova's record has dropped to 98.3 per cent.

Last term, it was the Marines who were needed to carry us to a perfect score, and they did. This time, it is the Sailors—nine of them. Yes, only nine allotments, and the men of Villanova will again be 100 per cent behind their brothers on the fighting lines.

The following excerpts from an editorial in the Tulsa, Oklahoma, Tribune should hit you nine men between the eyes.

"Yes, we talk big. We're patriotic as the devil—out loud. There are hundreds of thousands of us—good, plain folks who would rather spend now than lend our money for an easier and quicker victory. We are lined up down the street and around the corner at every movie. We jam the jewelry stores. We crowd into the bowling alleys and the wrestling matches.

"But we can't buy bonds. We're not against buying them. We think it's swell that people should buy them. Sure, we're against the Axis. We cry when we read of Jap atrocities, and we laugh when Bob Hope pokes fun at der fuehrer. But bonds? Well some other time.

"We are asked to lend—not give—some money.

"Wonder what those poor pale ghosts think of us now? Are we, with our damnable good intentions, our loud patriotism, and our little self-indulgences—are we after all, worth dying for?"

You nine sailors, read the above lines again. Doesn't the shoe fit? Or is 6.25 too much to ask of you from your well earned pay to invest in your own future welfare.

IT wasn't long ago that Tom McQuade was here with us as a civilian. He was recently inducted into the Navy and sent to the Naval Testing Station at the Solomons, Maryland. Tom had been briefly employed there as a civilian.

Art Roth is another newly commissioned ensign who is stationed at the Naval Research laboratories in Washington . . . John Breen is studying at the radio school in Bainbridge . . . And our past assistant instructor in the Chem lab, Bob Koob, has just gotten his appointment as an ensign. Bob has been teaching at Penn for quite some time. He has orders to report to Princeton for his indoctrination.

Congratulations to Lt. (jg) Tom Moore on his recent marriage. In his class were such fellows as "Meathead" Phillips, Jim Halpin, "Big Deal" Gallagher, Andy Melton and many more of the BMOC's of their day. Wonder where they all are now? The last we heard was that Jim Halpin was in Florida and was also recently married to a Rosemont girl. Good man!

At long last, we heard that Bill Lowney 's down at Pensacola. That's the first word we had of Bill since he came up to see us while he was at Penn . . . And the best news of all is that the boys at Notre Dame got by their indoctrination tests okay.

Ah! Another marriage—this time, Lt. (jg) Joseph Eichman.. The lucky bride was Betty Doran. Lt. Eichman has seen action in the South Pacific. They were married at St. Carthage's in Philadelphia.

Just read a letter to Fr. McQuade from Bill Fenton who is in New Guinea. While at Mass a Sunday or two ago, Bill said he almost fell out of the pew when he saw none other than Billy Sullivan walk in. Then to top everything off, he spied a familiar ring on the fellow next to him. Bill asked him about it and it turned out to be Walt Dwyer, '41. So Bill, Bill and Walt had a nice long talk about the best years of their life, their days at Villanova.

Gosh, We have to leave like this, but we really must go on liberty. So long!

Meet the Boys

TWO of the most industrious fellows on the campus of Villanova are up for interview this week. One, John Andrew Doherty, a stern faced young man whose sterness easily breaks into a broad grin; and the other, Hugh F. Gillespie, a good natured humorist whose witty attempts appear weekly on this page.

John Doherty was born on January 5, 1922. His family now resides on a farm outside Boston, Massachusetts, and he very proudly boasts of his five brothers and sisters. "Doc" graduated from Newton High School in Boston, where he played on the ice hockey team and was guard for the varsity football team for three years. However, he admits that he never acquired a school letter, because by the latter end of the season, reports always came out and so did John.

The September of '41 saw Doc in a new light. He was now a sharp college freshman, wearing the "regs" of Villanova. In his freshman year, he resided in Alumni Hall, while Fedigan was the scene of his activities during his Sophomore year.

Doc was treasurer of his Sophomore class that year. He was also an active member of the Orientation Committee, as any present day Junior can testify. He is enrolled in the Engineering School pursuing a degree in Mechanical Engineering. He has been a consistent honor roll man and is at present a member of the A.S.M.E. student branch.

In the middle of the Summer of '43, Doc was called back to Villanova as a trainee in the V-12. He was immediately billeted in Mendel Hall, and ever since then, its third deck has often been the scene of many a good wisecrack made by him.

One of his main achievements at Villanova has been his recent appointment as Battalion Commander for all Navy Companies. He received this post after completing a successful year as Mendel's Company Commander. His main ambition is to stay in the Navy and he admits he likes submarines.

HUGH F. Gillespie was born in Collingdale, Pa. He missed being a leap year baby by three hours. His younger days were spent at St. Joseph's Parochial School in his home town.

His high school days were enjoyed at West Philadelphia Catholic High. "Gus" was cartoonist for his high school paper. He claims he went out for the track team, but gave it up when he was struck by a football during time trials. He tried to learn to play the piano, but compromised by mastering the harmonica.

His first two years at Villanova College were as a civilian day-hop.

MacGil's Folly

By BOB McKIBBIN, A. S.
and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

WHEN your head goes bumpety-bump, and your cash goes down in a lump . . . it's leave, leave, leave.

Well, we didn't have leave but "long weekend" would hardly have fit. If you don't believe it, try it yourself. But to get back to our original trolley of thought . . . (Strike's over, no more trains) . . . those extra thirteen hours, which bring the total hours up to the relatively unheard of sum of forty-four for a weekend, can really do something to and for a fellow.

Off-hand we can think of two ways to spend those forty-four. First the safe, sane and sensible MacGil way, guaranteed to leave you with an A complexion and an F outlook on life . . . this consits of doing back homework, labs, drawings, and generally catching up on everything? . . .highly efficient . . . not used very often. Then of course there is the other way . . . the wrong way . . . your way. First, pack up your blues in your old sad sack . . . don't forget your leave papers 'cause blues don't go well without 'em . . . and hit the road for some place like the shore where indubitably there will be nothing but girls, girls, girls. Here there's nary a place where serious-minded fellows like Schmedley and I could just go and contemplate. At such resorts many resort to merely spending their time drinking in the fruits of Freedom . . . where Freedom is a distillery and the fruits are strictly corn.

This is a very Vile-anova way of doing things and usually results in long periods of bootleg sleep, followed by even longer periods of legal insomnia at the management's request.

And now a word from our sponsor, the makers of that grand tantalizing brew with a tang, Bullslinger's Beer and Ale. Remember: "Bullslinger's . . . the brew to pour on a forty-four."

Song Of The Week

"It must be Jello 'cause Kool-Ade don't taste like that."

Marines Close As First Half Softall Champs

Alumni Lead by Pitcher Charlie Waldorff Draws Second Spot; Second Half Begun Immediately

By LEM WENTLING

The first half of red hot intramural loop drew to a close last week with the omnipotent Marines on the top rung. The leading Leathernecks who lost only two games have lead the league since the first week of games.

The champs lost both of their games to second-place Alumni, behind the stellar pitching of Charley "No Hit" Waldorff. The Students and Fedigan sailors tied for third and fourth place followed by Austin. The hapless Mendelites drew up the rear with three wins and nine losses.

Good Teamwork

The outcome of the standings was not surprising since the Marines looked good from the very beginning. Captained by Tom O'Connell, they boast no stars, merely a well organized outfit that displays plenty of teamwork. Alumni deserves a lot of credit though, in annexing second place. They lost their first three ball games and then proceeded to win six straight.

Last week's games had little effect on the standings since only four games were played. Rain interfered on Monday night and the schedule was concluded on Wednesday. The first game on Tuesday night found Fedigan nosing out Alumni 7-6.

Blows Up

Waldorff got off to a good start but blew up in the third frame. Fedigan took advantage of this opportunity to cross the line five times and finally snuck two more in succeeding innings.

The same night the Marines crushed the Mendel cellar dwellers 10-6 in an unexciting ball game. The boys in khaki took an early 3 run lead in the fourth, Mendel put on a rally in the fifth to tie it up but the confident champs notched four more in the last stanza for another of their many victories.

Much Power

On Tuesday night the Austin sailors displayed tremendous power defeating Mendel 13-3 in a one-sided affair. In the only other game the Students lost to Alumni 4-0. The students could get only two hits off their conquerors and failed to cross the plate. Alumni scored two in the second and two more in the third to wind up the game.

The second half will be initiated next week. The schedule will be somewhat briefer and will draw to a close with the advent of the touch football league.

STANDINGS:

	W	L
Marines	8½	2
Alumni	7	4
Students	6	4
Fedigan	6	4
Austin	4½	0
Mendel	3	9

Track Victory

In an inter-school track meet which was held at Penn last week, a former Villanovan took the high scoring honors for the day. Ed Fitzgerald, former C. and F. student here before the Navy and later as a V-12 student before he entered the Navy Air Corps, took two firsts and a third to amass the great individual score of the day and enable his V-55 team to win the meet.

Before he left Villanova, Fitzgerald was a member of the varsity track team and was a member of the crack mile relay teams which won many laurels for the Main Line School on the boards and cinders.

Camp Kilmer and Scranton Univ. Make Initial Bows

By DAVID I. RYAN

Villanova College has listed a full eight game schedule for the coming football season, it was announced today by the Reverend Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics. This announcement came just two weeks after the original schedule of six games was released.

Loaded with dynamite from beginning to end, there isn't a soft touch to be found among the whole eight opponents. In fact, most of the teams are highly regarded in Eastern football circles.

Resumes Schedule

The curtain raiser of the season will be on Saturday, September 23d with the University of Scranton, which is resuming football after a lapse of some years, and is fielding an all civilian squad. This contest marks the first time that Villanova and Scranton have met.

Rated as potentially one of the outstanding clubs for the '44 season, Franklin and Marshall is slated to be met at Lancaster in the second contest of the schedule. Having chalked up one of the best collegiate records in the East last year, the Diplomats are also new among Villanova football opponents.

Good Team

For their first home game of the season, the Wildcats will engage Sampson Naval Training Station at Shibe Park. The Sailors can be counted on again to field another formidable team, as they did last year, when Andy Stopper, outstanding among gridiron stalwarts in Villanova history, kicked, passed, and ran Sampson to a 17-7 victory over his Alma Mater.

Despite the fact that Holy Cross is to be played at Worcester, Mass., the Wildcats need not feel that they will be among total strangers there. "Vince" McNally, former assistant coach to "Clipper" Smith here is now assisting Ank Scanlon, who for many years coached the Saint Joseph's Prep elevens, and many Philadelphia high school products are included in the Crusaders' roster.

Muhlenberg, an old time rival of Villanova, is going to take another crack at the Wildcats at Shibe Park, in the second home game.

Mittmen Prepare For F & M Brawl Thursday Night

Completing their final week of rigorous training, the boxing team now lapses into the coasting period of their conditioning as they prepare to face whatever opposition Franklin and Marshall can offer. Taking no chances however, the mittmen are buckling down on early morning roadwork and plenty of light bag punching so as to be in the acme of condition for Thursday's bouts. The only strenuous workout of this week was the sparring sessions of Monday, which knocked and sweated out any dullness that may have accumulated over the weekend. It also gave the leather pushers their last chance to try out their various maneuvers.

Team Not Definite

Eight or nine of the twenty or so recruits will be picked for the trip to Lancaster but as yet the whole team has not been definitely decided upon. One of the probable fistic worthies is Dulio Dalbora, 128 lb. slugger who has developed a rip and tear attack that promises to give any possible opponent plenty of trouble. In the 135 lb. division are dapper John P. Murphy, a lad with experience and ring savy, and leatherneck John Smith, whose bulldog tactics and fighting heart, coupled with a sharp sense of timing, make him a heavy favorite in the coming event.

Villanova Vets to Box

Weighing in at 143 lbs. are Bill Lamb, whose Python like jabs and smashing rights are valuable assets to victory in any brawl, and Al Sondheimer, a latecomer to the fistic flock, with experience and a large reserve of slugging power to

Track Squad Selected For Princeton Meet

Many New Men on Recently Formed Cinder Team; Lack of Volunteers Prevented the Entering of All Events

In the first and only meet this season Vilanova track aspirants, will have a chance to display their wares this coming Saturday in the Princeton Neighborhood Invitation Meet. They will compete with Lehigh, Muhlenberg, Penn, Rutgers, and Swarthmore. The meet is scheduled for 3:00 P. M. and the IC4A rules will prevail.

Fourteen 'Cats will journey to the Tiger stadium to enter in ten events. Jim Morris and Larry Bradley, both holdovers from last year, will run both the 100 and 220. Morris looks exceptionally fast and the pair can be expected to place. George Clelan and Chuck Harrington, now in his third year, will run the 440.

Well Represented

Clelan is a newcomer who has shown plenty of promise. Randy Walker, Bob McKibbon, and John Welles will run the 880. Both Walker and Welles ran in this event last season.

Villanova is well represented in the mile event with Don Schmidt, another veteran of three years experience, one of the best milers in these partsland with John Cockcroft while the two mile is in the capable hands, or rather feet, of Joe Morgan, of cross country fame. Frank Doorley and Dick Kramer will jump the low hurdles and big "Duke" Severson, the only weight man, will throw the discus.

In the broad jump Villanova will enter the National Hop, Skip and Jump Champion in the person of Burt Cox, who should cop this event with little trouble. In the final event, the 880 relay, Morris, Cox, Harrington, and Leary will run in that order.

The cindermen have been getting in shape for the past month. When the call for candidates was first sounded, the turnout was poor. Hence, the Main Liners will not be represented in the high jump, javelin, shot put, high hurdles, or pole vault.

'Cat Varsity Nine Engages Valley Forge Hosp. Again

Phila. Marine Quartermaster Depot Game Cancelled; Substitute To Be Found; Soldiers Game at Phoenixville

The Villanova baseball team will strive to better its record of one win, three losses, and three ties this week when on Friday evening it meets the Valley Forge General Hospital at Phoenixville. This evening a game was scheduled with the Philadelphia Marine Quartermaster Depot. But last week nearly the whole team received orders to move elsewhere and now Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of athletics, is endeavoring to get a game with an unknown team for Wednesday night.

On Friday evening the Villanova nine will travel to Phoenixville to engage the Valley Forge team which held them to a 1-1 tie in a previous encounter on Friday night Aug. 4 at Villanova.

Pappaiardo pitched the last game for the soldiers and allowed but one hit, a bunt which was beaten out by Matt Lempa. The Valley Forge boys will present the same lineup as in the last game, and Osinkosky, who was spiked in the finger, will also be ready to play.

All in all, the coming game could be considered as a playoff of the tie. If the Wildcats win the two games which it is hoped they will play this week, it will lift them up to the .500 mark for the season, with the final percentage depending on the outcome of the game with the Philadelphia Navy Yard Marines.

The soldiers lineup will look something like this; Osinkosky catcher; DiGiola, first base; Neimann, second base; Popadak, third base; Birdsong, shortstop; Barber, left field; Chesko center field; and Bizila, right field.

The Blue and White will also have the same lineup as in the past encounter with Al Neiman catching, Pat Reagan at first, Dick Hoot at second, Lou Leary at third, and Jack Corr at short completing the infield. In the outer pastures will be Matt Lempa, Jimmy DiSalvo, and John Anderson in left, center, and right, respectively.

Penn Scrimmages Wildcats In Last Summer Practice

As a finale to their four weeks of practice sessions, Villanova's football stalwarts scrimmaged the University of Pennsylvania last Friday afternoon on River Field.

Played under a broiling hot sun, which made the thermometer register 95—hardly football weather in any sense of the word—the practice game gave both coaching staffs an insight to the abilities and reactions of their clubs in outside competition.

Penn Scores

Although records were not kept, scoring was allowed, and Penn crossed the Villanova goal line twice, while the Wildcats were not able to register. Most of the time was spent in developing coordination of the combines of the two squads.

Two of the Quakers' candidates were hospitalized with serious injuries. Joe Zlass, tackle, suffered a fractured collarbone. Jack Boyle, Princeton University guard of last season, a V-12 student, was laid up with a broken bone in his right forearm. Both were taken to the University Hospital, and are lost to their squad indefinitely.

Don't Abuse Privilege

BUT three weeks have passed since new liberty regulations went into effect on this station, granting special consideration to those whose work last semester was deemed worthy of merit. At the time that this policy was inaugurated, it was hailed by all as both generous and wise on the part of naval officials, since it provided a motive for increased efforts in the form of a just reward.

Already, however, these privileges are being endangered by the unlawful practices of a selfish few, who seem bent on building new evidence in support of the time-honored truism that where an inch is given a yard will be taken.

Those who thus menace the special liberty privileges fall in two categories. The first of these is the foolishly careless man who, legitimately excused, returns late. For the sake of five extra minutes now, he runs the risk of losing four and a half hours for the next nine weeks.

The next is the deliberately malicious trainee who, unable to bear seeing others enjoy the just fruits of their labors, takes it upon himself to leave the campus without permission. Such a one seems to fall within the category of those who, if they can not earn privileges for themselves, would like to deprive everyone else of the opportunity of earning privilege.

The navy office has warned, and your fellow-students beseech: Don't abuse the Thursday night liberty, or it will be abolished.

To Whom It May Concern

LAST semester, this unit had a perfect record for co-operation in the Navy War Bond campaign. We had 100 per cent enrollment in bond allotments. This semester, however, due to the influx of many new trainees, Villanova's record has dropped to 98.3 per cent.

Last term, it was the Marines who were needed to carry us to a perfect score, and they did. This time, it is the Sailors—nine of them. Yes, only nine allotments, and the men of Villanova will again be 100 per cent behind their brothers on the fighting lines.

The following excerpts from an editorial in the Tulsa, Oklahoma, Tribune should hit you nine men between the eyes.

"Yes, we talk big. We're patriotic as the devil—out loud. There are hundreds of thousands of us—good, plain folks who would rather spend now than lend our money for an easier and quicker victory. We are lined up down the street and around the corner at every movie. We jam the jewelry stores. We crowd into the bowling alleys and the wrestling matches.

"But we can't buy bonds. We're not against buying them. We think it's swell that people should buy them. Sure, we're against the Axis. We cry when we read of Jap atrocities, and we laugh when Bob Hope pokes fun at der fuehrer. But bonds? Well some other time.

"We are asked to lend—not give—some money.

"Wonder what those poor pale ghosts think of us now? Are we, with our damnable good intentions, our loud patriotism, and our little self-indulgences—are we after all, worth dying for?"

You nine sailors, read the above lines again. Doesn't the shoe fit? Or is 6.25 too much to ask of you from your well earned pay to invest in your own future welfare.

Marines Close As First Half Softall Champs

Alumni Lead by Pitcher Charlie Waldorff Draws Second Spot; Second Half Begun Immediately

By LEM WENTLING

The first half of red hot intramural loop drew to a close last week with the omnipotent Marines on the top rung. The leading Leathernecks who lost only two games have lead the league since the first week of games.

The champs lost both of their games to second-place Alumni, behind the stellar pitching of Charley "No Hit" Waldorff. The Students and Fedigan sailors tied for third and fourth place followed by Austin. The hapless Mendelites drew up the rear with three wins and nine losses.

Good Teamwork

The outcome of the standings was not surprising since the Marines looked good from the very beginning. Captained by Tom O'Connell, they boast no stars, merely a well organized outfit that displays plenty of teamwork. Alumni deserves a lot of credit though, in annexing second place. They lost their first three ball games and then proceeded to win six straight.

Last week's games had little effect on the standings since only four games were played. Rain interfered on Monday night and the schedule was concluded on Wednesday. The first game on Tuesday night found Fedigan nosing out Alumni 7-6.

Blows Up

Waldorff got off to a good start but blew up in the third frame. Fedigan took advantage of this opportunity to cross the line five times and finally snuck two more in succeeding innings.

The same night the Marines crushed the Mendel cellar dwellers 10-6 in an unexciting ball game. The boys in khaki took an early 3 run lead in the fourth, Mendel put on a rally in the fifth to tie it up but the confident champs notched four more in the last stanza for another of their many victories.

Much Power

On Tuesday night the Austin sailors displayed tremendous power defeating Mendel 13-3 in a one-sided affair. In the only other game the Students lost to Alumni 4-0. The students could get only two hits off their conquerors and failed to cross the plate. Alumni scored two in the second and two more in the third to wind up the game.

The second half will be initiated next week. The schedule will be somewhat briefer and will draw to a close with the advent of the touch football league.

STANDINGS:

	W	L
Marines	8½	2
Alumni	7	4
Students	6	4
Fedigan	6	4
Austin	4½	0

Track Victory

In an inter-school track meet which was held at Penn last week, a former Villanovan took the high scoring honors for the day. Ed Fitzgerald, former C. and F. student here before the Navy and later as a V-12 student before he entered the Navy Air Corps, took two firsts and a third to amass the great individual score of the day and enable his V-55 team to win the meet.

Before he left Villanova, Fitzgerald was a member of the varsity track team and was a member of the crack mile relay teams which won many laurels for the Main Line School on the boards and cinders.

Entering Team In Princeton Meet

In an invitation meet which is to be held at Princeton this Saturday, an entering squad has been selected from the many volunteer harriers. Above are shown some of the entrants. Camp Kilmer and Scranton Univ. Make Initial Bows

By DAVID I. RYAN

Villanova College has listed a full eight game schedule for the coming football season, it was announced today by the Reverend Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics. This announcement came just two weeks after the original schedule of six games was released.

Loaded with dynamite from beginning to end, there isn't a soft touch to be found among the whole eight opponents. In fact, most of the teams are highly regarded in Eastern football circles.

Resumes Schedule

The curtain raiser of the season will be on Saturday, September 23d with the University of Scranton, which is resuming football after a lapse of some years, and is fielding an all civilian squad. This contest marks the first time that Villanova and Scranton have met.

Rated as potentially one of the outstanding clubs for the '44 season, Franklin and Marshall is slated to be met at Lancaster in the second contest of the schedule. Having chalked up one of the best collegiate records in the East last year, the Diplomats are also new among Villanova football opponents.

Good Team

For their first home game of the season, the Wildcats will engage Sampson Naval Training Station at Shibe Park. The Sailors can be counted on again to field another formidable team, as they did last year, when Andy Stopper, outstanding among gridiron stalwarts in Villanova history, kicked, passed, and ran Sampson to a 17-7 victory over his Alma Mater.

Despite the fact that Holy Cross is to be played at Worcester, Mass., the Wildcats need not feel that they will be among total strangers there. "Vince" McNally, former assistant coach to "Clipper" Smith here is now assisting Ank Scanlon, who for many years coached the Saint Joseph's Prep elevens, and many Philadelphia high school products are included in the Crusaders' roster.

Muhlenberg, an old time rival of Villanova, is going to take another crack at the Wildcats at Shibe Park, in the second home game.

Mittmen Prepare For F & M Brawl Thursday Night

Completing their final week of rigorous training, the boxing team now lapses into the coasting period of their conditioning as they prepare to face whatever opposition Franklin and Marshall can offer. Taking no chances however, the mittmen are buckling down on early morning roadwork and plenty of light bag punching so as to be in the acme of condition for Thursday's bouts. The only strenuous workout of this week was the sparring sessions of Monday, which knocked and sweated out any dullness that may have accumulated over the weekend. It also gave the leather pushers their last chance to try out their various maneuvers.

Team Not Definite

Eight or nine of the twenty or so recruits will be picked for the trip to Lancaster but as yet the whole team has not been definitely decided upon. One of the probable fistic worthies is Dulio Dalbora, 128 lb. slugger who has developed a rip and tear attack that promises to give any possible opponent plenty of trouble. In the 135 lb. division are dapper John P. Murphy, a lad with experience and ring savy, and leatherneck John Smith, whose bulldog tactics and fighting heart, coupled with a sharp sense of timing, make him a heavy favorite in the coming event.

Villanova Vets to Box

Weighing in at 143 lbs. are Bill Lamb, whose Python like jabs and smashing rights are valuable assets to victory in any brawl, and Al Sondheimer, a latecomer to the fistic flock, with experience and a large reserve of slugging power to

Track Squad Selected For Princeton Meet

Many New Men on Recently Formed Cinder Team; Lack of Volunteers Prevented the Entering of All Events

In the first and only meet this season Vilanova track aspirants will have a chance to display their wares this coming Saturday in the Princeton Neighborhood Invitation Meet. They will compete with Lehigh, Muhlenberg, Penn, Rutgers, and Swarthmore. The meet is scheduled for 3:00 P. M. and the IC4A rules will prevail.

Fourteen 'Cats will journey to the Tiger stadium to enter in ten events. Jim Morris and Larry Bradley, both holdovers from last year, will run both the 100 and 220. Morris looks exceptionally fast and the pair can be expected to place. George Clelan and Chuck Harrington, now in his third year, will run the 440.

Well Represented

Clelan is a newcomer who has shown plenty of promise. Randy Walker, Bob McKibbon, and John Welles will run the 880. Both Walker and Welles ran in this event last season.

Villanova is well represented in the mile event with Don Schmidt, another veteran of three years experience, one of the best milers in these partsland with John Cockcroft while the two mile is in the capable hands, or rather feet, of Joe Morgan, of cross country fame. Frank Doorley and Dick Kramer will jump the low hurdles and big "Duke" Severson, the only weight man, will throw the discus.

In the broad jump Villanova will enter the National Hop, Skip and Jump Champion in the person of Burt Cox, who should cop this event with little trouble. In the final event, the 880 relay, Morris, Cox, Harrington, and Leary will run in that order.

The cindermen have been getting in shape for the past month. When the call for candidates was first sounded, the turnout was poor. Hence, the Main Liners will not be represented in the high jump, javelin, shot put, high hurdles, or pole vault.

'Cat Varsity Nine Engages Valley Forge Hosp. Again

Phila. Marine Quartermaster Depot Game Cancelled; Substitute To Be Found; Soldiers Game at Phoenixville

The Villanova baseball team will strive to better its record of one win, three losses, and three ties this week when on Friday evening it meets the Valley Forge General Hospital at Phoenixville. This evening a game was scheduled with the Philadelphia Marine Quartermaster Depot. But last week nearly the whole team received orders to move elsewhere and now Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of athletics, is endeavoring to get a game with an unknown team for Wednesday night.

On Friday evening the Villanova nine will travel to Phoenixville to engage the Valley Forge team which held them to a 1-1 tie in a previous encounter on Friday night Aug. 4 at Villanova.

Pappaiardo pitched the last game for the soldiers and allowed but one hit, a bunt which was beaten out by Matt Lempa. The Valley Forge boys will present the same lineup as in the last game, and Osinkosky, who was spiked in the finger, will also be ready to play.

All in all, the coming game could be considered as a playoff of the tie. If the Wildcats win the two games which it is hoped they will play this week, it will lift them up to the .500 mark for the season, with the final percentage depending on the outcome of the game with the Philadelphia Navy Yard Marines.

The soldiers lineup will look something like this; Osinkosky catcher; DiGiola, first base; Neimann, second base; Popadak, third base; Birdsong, shortstop; Barber, left field; Chesko center field; and Bizila, right field.

The Blue and White will also have the same lineup as in the past encounter with Al Neiman catching, Pat Reagan at first, Dick Hoot at second, Lou Leary at third, and Jack Corr at short completing the infield. In the outer pastures will be Matt Lempa, Jimmy DiSalvo, and John Anderson in left, center, and right, respectively.

Penn Scrimmages Wildcats In Last Summer Practice

As a finale to their four weeks of practice sessions, Villanova's football stalwarts scrimmaged the University of Pennsylvania last Friday afternoon on River Field.

Played under a broiling hot sun, which made the thermometer register 95—hardly football weather in any sense of the word—the practice game gave both coaching staffs an insight to the abilities and reactions of their clubs in outside competition.

Penn Scores

Although records were not kept, scoring was allowed, and Penn crossed the Villanova goal line twice, while the Wildcats were not able to register. Most of the time was spent in developing coordination of the combines of the two squads.

Two of the Quakers' candidates were hospitalized with serious injuries. Joe Ziass, tackle, suffered a fractured collarbone. Jack Boyle, Princeton University guard of last season, a V-12 student, was laid up with a broken bone in his right forearm. Both were confined to the University Hospital, and are lost to their squad indefinitely.

Swarthmore Gets Tie And Victory In Week's Games

Second Deadlock With Garnet This Season; Final Games Gives Little Quakers Convincing Win

After being held to a 3-3 tie by Swarthmore College on Wednesday evening in a twilight contest, Villanova's baseball team took the "long count" at the worg end of a 17-3 merry-go-round.

Playing steady ball against the Little Quakers on their own grounds Wednesday, the Cats disposed of a 2-1 lead after completing five rounds of perfect work. Kreidler, the leadoff man for Swarthmore in the sixth inning, drew a pass from Weinert. Sooter followed with a single into right field. With men on first and third, Martin, the next swinger, attempted to squeeze the tying run across but only managed to bunt the ball into Weinert's hands.

Scores on Wild Peg

Weinert threw wild to Leary trying to double off Kreidler at third, Kreidler scoring on the play. Gibbons then popped up in front of home plate and Nieman dropped the ball, Sooter moving to second on the play. Dillenbeck then grounded to Hoot who threw to Corr forcing Gibbons at second base. Bryon, Swarthmore's hurler, singled into centerfield scoring Sooter. Alders ,then fanned to end the inning.

The Cats came back in the first half of the eighth inning to push across one run tying the score. After Corr had singled to center, Leary and Reagan whiffed at the hands of Bob Lobell, the Swarthmore relief pitcher. Red Lafferty, batting for Al Nieman, singled into right field sending Corr, who had stolen second, across the plate with the money run.

Weinert Forced Out

As a part of the aftermath Weinert singled over second pushing Lafferty to second, but Di Salvo then forced Weinert at second to end the inning. In the last half of the eighth, Swarthmore took their seats in order as Dillenbeck grounded out, Hoot to Reagan, Lobell fanned, and Alders popped to Corr.

Saturday's outing with the Little Quakers was as unpleasant for the Cats as the weather was for both spectators and players alike. Beating down in full force, Old Sol saw the men from Swarthmore take advantage of three errors on the part of their hosts to bat around the order while scoring four runs in the bargain.

Lafferty Starts

Red Lafferty, making his first start of the Summer semester, with two men on the sacks, four runs scored, and no outs, struck out three men in order to retire the side. The Cats came back in the bottom half of the inning to score two runs when Anderson drove through Monschein's hands, Di Salvo crossing the plate ahead of him.

Swarthmore came back to score two runs on two hits, two errors and a walk. The Cats were the first to score the next time when Lempa having walked, went to third on Anderson's double to right-center. Dave Ward, however, was the last man to cross the dish for Villanova when running for Lempa who twisted his leg sliding into third, he crossed on Hoot's infield out.

Two More in Eighth

Swarthmore again scored with two runs in the sixth and eighth innings, one in the fifth, and six in the seventh. The last eight runs were made off Gene Weinert who came in to relieve Lafferty. Lobell kept the Cats in check for the last six innings, allowing only three men to reach second base in that time.

Camp Kilmer

This contest is the second of the renewed series with the Mules, beaten by Villanova last year 35-12.

Question Mark

As there is a vacation between semesters, and members of the V-12 contingent, who form the nucleus of the squad will be on leave, no game has been scheduled for the weekend of October 28th.

On November 4th the Wildcats will take a trip up the Hudson to meet the West Point Cadets. Last year Jordan Olivar's charges fought it out on even terms with Army for the first 30 minutes but fell before an overpowering line in the second half, 27-0.

Definitely the biggest question mark on the schedule is Camp Kilmer, to be met at Shibe Park on Armistice Day. Not much is known about the squad that represents Kilmer except that it will have a very large reserve from which to draw its material. So, there being safety in numbers, in all probability, Kilmer will present a strong team.

No Owl Game

Finale of the season is the Bucknell contest, at Shibe Park. This game marks the second time in as many series that Villanova has faced the Bisons. In a mire, resulting from a long rain, the 'Cats downed Bucknell last year in a 14-0 contest.

For the first time since 1925 there will be no Villanova-Temple game. Considered one of the main chapters in "The Philadelphia Football Story," the contest has been cancelled for the duration because the Owls depending on under draft age and 4-F students, are not supplied with Navy and Marine trainees, as is Villanova.

May 1944 found Joe in New Hebrides, on his way back to go into V-12. He reported to Asbury Park for pre-V-12 courses, and arrived at Villanova July first, after thirty-eight months in the Navy.

Trucker Turns Seabee

Last of today's group is Henry Phillips, a resident of Duquesne, Pa. Henry's experience in the trucking business made him a natural for the Seabees, and he reported to Camp Peary in March, 1943. After four months of boot training and advanced work, he was transferred to Davisville, R. I., and shortly after, to Norfolk, where he shipped out.

August found Henry at Oran, North Africa, performing as only the Seabees can. Here he remained until May 6, 1944, when his V-12 orders arrived, and he headed back toward Asbury Park, where he took pre-V-12 courses, reporting on the Villanova campus July first.

his credit. Probable contestants in the 155 lb. group are "Herb" Lamb, a veteran of the last Villanova Boxing Night ,and Frank Solis, with Mason Robertson, a recent high school graduate with a slam bang, rough and tumble style, looking exceptionally well in the 165's. Also looking well in this group is "Red" Nealon. Remembered for his comic boxing burlesque of the other semester's smoker, "Red" has knuckled down to serious business. He has shown fine boxing abilities in the serious side of the game, thus making him a leading contender for the 165 lb. slot.

Intercollegiate Rules

The team will leave early Thursday afternoon and are due to arrive at Franklin and Marshall before supper. The bouts will be fought with facilities provided by the F & M Athletics Division. A member of the Pennsylvania State Boxing Commission will be the third man in the ring, the bouts being fought under the standard intercollegiate Boxing Regulations.

PKP Plans Picnic, Key Presentation; Initiation Likely

Engineering Fraternity Replaces Party With Picnic; Considers Arrangements for Senior Banquet

Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, met last Thursday afternoon at 1:05 in room 214 Mendel to discuss the much delayed plans for a social function to be held this semester. The meeting provoked further comment, but still no definite announcement.

President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., after calling the meeting to order, reported that Robert J. Leahy, A.S., after contacting several halls in various parts of the city, had been unable to find an appropriate site for the proposed fraternity party.

Each place considered had to be eliminated for some such consideration as location, size, price, availability, etc.

Picnic Suggested

McGuinn next proposed as an alternate suggestion a picnic to be held some Saturday night, which would consist of a "weenie" roast—with all its embellishments—and facilities for dancing, if possible. A suitable location for such an affair was discussed briefly, and further investigation was promised.

Next, the possibility of holding an initiation this semester was brought up, and requirements for membership quickly outlined. It has been decided that trainees will be accepted only after two semesters in the college, since a stay that long has been interpreted by Naval authorities to indicate a strong possibility that they will complete their V-12 days here.

Plan Senior Dinner

Whether or not initiation will be held depends now on the number of engineering students on the campus who are eligible. If it is found that they are sufficient in number, a call will be issued at some future date to determine how many are interested in the fraternity. Upon this response will depend the action to be taken.

Final discussion of the meeting concerned the presentation of senior keys. After considerable outlay of personal effort and time, Martin J. Roddy, A.S., key committee chairman, has completed the list of those who are eligible to receive keys and has had the proper num-

The Villanova Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will meet this week, it was announced by Patrick J. Reagan, acting Chairman since James L. O'Brien, former chairman, left for the Armed Services recently.

The main purpose of the meeting will be to elect a new chairman from the ranks of the Junior Electrical Engineers. Reagan announced this policy because of the innability of Seniors, with theses to write, and extra class on their rosters, to perform their duties properly. It is hoped that the new officers elected will increase the activity of the Student Branch on the campus.

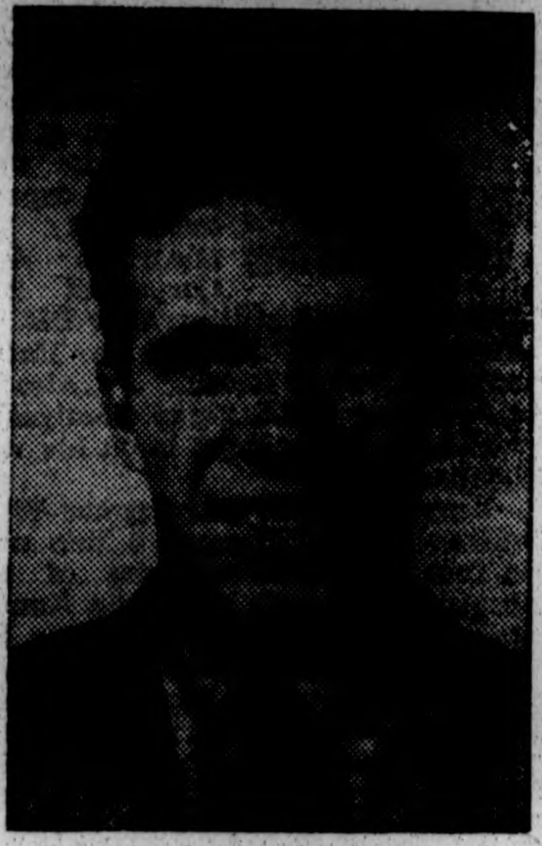
Miss Mary Walsh, secretary to the Dean of the College and the Military Liaison Officer, expects to leave Villanova this week. She plans to enter the next class for nurses at Misericordia Hospital. Since the formation of the office and the appointment of the Rev. Vincent A. McQuade O.S.A., to the post, she has served as his secretary. A graduate of West Philadelphia Catholic Girls High School, she has been employed by the College since June, 1943.

Wounded in France



LT. LLOYD J. RICE

3 More Alumni On Casualty List

Capt. Mentzinger Succumbs of Malaria; Rice and William Howlett Wounded in Action

During the past week, word was received that three more Villanovans, who are fighting in all theaters of this global war, have been added to the list of casualties. One died and two others were wounded.

Captain Robert Mentingzer, USMCR, died as a result of Malaria, after having been removed to Australia, because of wounds received in combat. He was a graduate of Germantown High School of Phila., and a member of the Villanova class of '41. His parents live at 5822 Morris Ave., Germantown, Phila., Pa.

During his college days, Bob was a stalwart member of the Boxing team in his Sophomore year and later became trainer for Intramural Athletics. He received a B. S. degree in Economics at graduation. Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, college chaplain, offered the holy sacrifice of the Mass for the repose of his soul Wednesday morning in the Chapel.

Action In France

Lt. Lloyd J. Rice, of the class of '40, was wounded in action in France on July 6, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. Eileen Rice, of Conestoga, Road, Wayne. He entered the service in 1941 and received his commission in 1943. He has been overseas for the past four months attached to the infantry.

At Villanova, he lead a very active life. A graduate of Georgetown Prep, his studies here lead to a B.S. degree in Education. Lloyd was a member of the varsity basketball team during his last three years and played varsity baseball in his first two. In the same field, he played Intramural tennis all four years.

Wounded On Guam

His disarming and friendly manner won him many friends about the campus. And his activities did not stop with sports. He was a member of the Sanctuary Society for four years and belonged to the Glee Club and the History Seminar for two years apiece.

Word was also received that Lt. William J. Howlett, of the class of '42, was wounded in the shoulder and foot during the recent battle for Guam in the Pacific. The college received the information through his mother, Mrs. Helen Howlett, of 3857 Gratz St., Philadelphia.

A graduate of Roman Catholic High School, he majored in Economics at Villanova. A star on the gridiron, Bill was a member of the varsity football team for four years. He was also a member of the varsity baseball team for 3 years. He was President of his Junior class and was elected Student Council delegate in the same year. He was also a member of the Sanctuary Society for four years and the History Seminar.

Yankee Doodle Club to Stage Minstrel Show

The Yankee Doodle Service Club of Jenkintown will stage a minstrel show for the members of the Villanova Navy V-12 Unit on Friday evening, October 13, in the Field House. The show will last about two hours but there will be no dancing afterwards.

About fifty students have been recruited to assist the Club in making their show a success. Pvt. Thomas O'Connell, noted impromptu entertainer on the campus is unofficially in charge of the student group.

This will be the third time that the Service Club has come to Villanova to entertain the men stationed here. On the previous occasions, once in each of the last two semesters, they were received wholeheartedly by the trainees and their efforts were appreciated.

Although this event will just precede the proposed Student Council dance on Saturday, October 14, the program has been so arranged that it will not interfere with the school's social. Due to the length of time and trouble required to remove the backboards from the Field House floor and to transpose it into an auditorium, the two events have been planned for the same week-end.

Y2-c Barker Here After 20 Months Duty In Panama

The new face in the Navy Detail office is that of Yeoman 2/c Bernie E. Barker. Yeoman Barker comes as a new addition to the Navy Office, not as a replacement.

Mr. Barker was born October 3, 1921, at Charleston, West Virginia. His early childhood was spent in the same city. Later he moved to nearby Madison where he attended Madison High School. During his time there he played in the school band. Following graduation he matriculated at Capital City Commercial College in the city of his birth. He spent one year before embarking on a new career, that of a yeoman in the United States Navy.

Y 2/C BERNIE BARKER

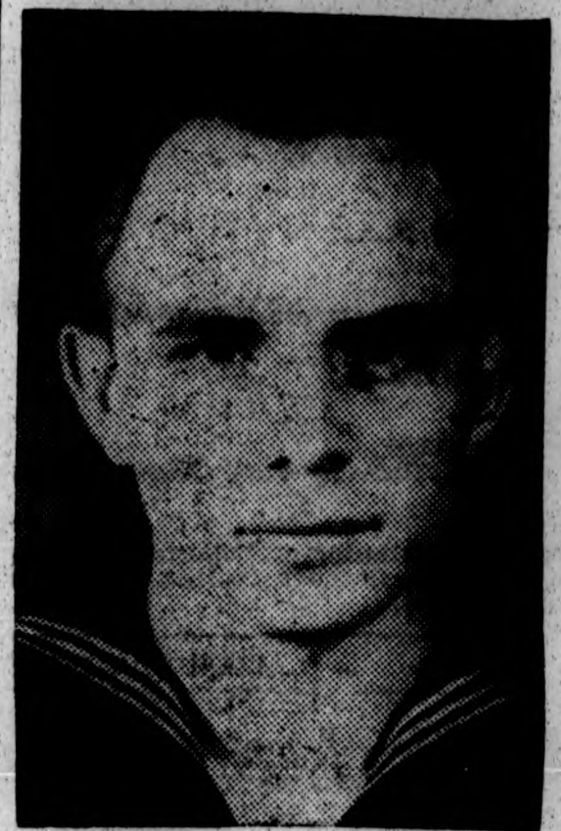
Barker enlisted in the Navy on September 3, 1942. He was first sent to Great Lakes Naval Training Station where he received his boot training. Following his boot camp he was ordered to duty in the Canal Zone. He served in the capacity of Yeoman, and assisted in the executive office of his company. Following twenty long and uneventful months in the Canal Zone, he was finally ordered to return to the States. Upon his arrival in the country he was transferred to the Navy V-12 unit here at Villanova.

Notice

Because many professors have scheduled mid-semester examinations for the coming week, there will be no issue of the Villanovan next Tuesday, August 29, to allow staff members extra time for study.

Student Council Vacancies Filled; O'Connor Announces Dance Oct. 14

Delegates From Alumni, Fedigan and O'Dwyer Halls Named; Dance Date Set After Deliberation at Meeting



CHAIRMAN O'CONNOR

At an important meeting of the Student Council held last Wednesday, August 16, in Mendel Hall, Francis J. O'Connor, A.S., chairman, announced the names of those who have been appointed to fill the vacancies which have existed on the council since last semester and reported on the progress of plans for the coming dance.

Principal among the appointments was the selection of Joseph H. Hoffman, A.S., as temporary vice-chairman, pending the return to school of John Fitzgibbons in the fall. Hoffman previously served on the council both in his capacity as co-editor of the "Engineer" and as an elected delegate from Mendel Hall.

Other new members are William Q. Taylor, A.S., from Alumni Hall; Robert Malone, A.S., from Fedigan Hall, and Frank Ronan from O'Dwyer Hall. Representatives for the day-hops have not yet been elected.

October 14 Set

Further business of the meeting indicated that plans for the fall dance are taking definite shape. O'Connor announced that, after much deliberation between October 14 and September 30, the October date had finally been decided on as the night of the dance. He explained that the only possible disadvantage of this date — its nearness to the end of the semester—was felt to be outweighed by the advantages of probably cooler weather and previous return of girls to nearby colleges, upon whom many students usually rely for dates.

Coming to the matter of music for the dance, O'Connor explained to the assembly that, since it is the avowed purpose of the student council to represent the entire student body and not any particular group, he was anxious to make arrangements which would be suitable to all.

Contact Warrington

To this end, he suggested a band of the calibre of Johnny Warrington's, which was very favorably received at the recent Financier's Frolic, and then instructed the representatives to approach the men in their various halls and determine their reaction. A report of their findings was made by the delegates at another meeting, held yesterday, the results of which are not yet available.

Meanwhile, a committee of three, consisting of Malone, Francis J. McBride, A.S., and Robert D. O'Connor, A.S., all of Fedigan, have been investigating the possibility of engaging Warrington for the evening of October 14.

Ticket price has not yet been set, but O'Connor has announced that the usual incentive to early sales will be offered in the form of an approximate difference of 50 cents in price of tickets sold before the night of the dance.

Committeemen for the affair have not as yet been selected, but they will be named at a future meeting. Since the Council, at present, is composed of comparatively few men, it is expected that all members will be appointed to some post necessary in the organization of the dance.

Year Book Sent To Press Thurs.

The 1944 edition of the Belle Air, the college year book, went to press last Thursday, August 17, Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., co-moderator, announced. The deadline for all copy had been set for Tuesday, and, allowing two months for publication, the finished product will be issued about October 15.

Mainly responsible for this war time production are John Fitzgibbons, Editor in Chief; and Associate Editors Richard Somers, Hector Martinez, and Frank Perna. The price of the book has been set at $5.00, and subscriptions may be made to Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S. A., at the Library.

This edition has been drastically reduced from the size of its predecessors. This reduction was made necessary because of the small budget available, but, with curtailment of a great many extra-curricular activities, very little eliminating was necessary to fit the smaller size.

One new feature of the '44 Belle Air will be a section produced by offset printing. Formerly the year book was printed entirely in letterpress, but this issue will have both methods represented. Campus Publishing Company of Philadelphia, which has produced the Belle Air since 1932, holds the contract for the 1944 edition.

Prof. Greyson Slated To Address Special ASME Meeting Today

A special meeting will be held this evening at 6:30 o'clock in Room 215 Mendel Hall by the Villanova Student Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The meeting will feature a motion picture and a talk by Professor Joseph C. Greyson of the Mechanical Engineering Department.

The motion picture, entitled "PBY Record Breakers," deals with the construction and performance of the Consolidated Catalina patrol bomber. This 40 minute picture provides many interesting and informative details about the design, construction and fighting performance of the famous Navy patrol plane.

Professor Greyson will also talk about the PBY bomber, emphasizing the details of production technique which were used in the construction of this plane at the Naval Aircraft Factory, Navy Yard, Philadelphia. Professor Greyson's talk will be based on first hand, personal information as he actually worked on this plane when employed as process engineer at the Naval Aircraft Factory.

No Time To Slacken

VICTORIOUS tidings greet us each day from the field of battle. Allied strength, united in a just cause, is overpowering the monsters whose creed of hate and destruction has spilled the blood of the innocents. The swift, spectacular triumphs of our troops in both the European and Pacific theaters of war, tend to convey a false sense of security and certainty of an early capitulation of the foe. This false sense of security, if fostered, will tend to endanger the very cause for which we are fighting.

The war is not yet over. The flag of truce has not been sent above the embattlement by the enemy. Complete surrender has not yet been realized. The greater the victories our men attain, the greater our efforts on the home front must be. This is not a time for jubilation, it must not be, not while our boys are sacrificing their health and their lives in the sanguinary arena of Mars.

The reality of war strikes a note of sadness in our hearts when we receive news that three Villanova alumni have given their all recently in the service of their nation. One has paid the supreme sacrifice, the other two have been wounded in action. The families and relatives of these men still feel the potency of a yet unfinished struggle. The war that many believe is practically over, is still taking a heavy toll of casualties.

No, this is not a time for jubilation, our foes are seeing to that. The Japanese have promised us at least two more years of war, and any of us who are even remotely acquainted with their national fanaticism know that this is by far no idle statement. The German Wehrmacht, though mortally wounded, will continue to fight their losing battle to the final breath of life that is left in its last man. If victory does come sooner than we expect, it will be due more to our all-out effort on the home front, and their all-out effort over there.

Yet last month more War Bonds were redeemed than during any other time since the beginning of the war. What frauds. What unloyal "patriots." Those who redeem their War Bonds now have been of no aid to the war effort. In fact, they have hindered it. Their actions are costing the government more money. It is certain that the families and relatives of the men whose names appear on the daily casualty list have not redeemed their bonds. They know what remains to be done. They know that the war is far from being over.

Victory will come eventually, inevitably, for the allied forces, but only until our armies return home with the brazen National Emblem leading the triumphal march, may we sit back and admire a job well done. Only then may we indulge in the celebration of the defeat of our enemiés.

Now is not the time to slacken our efforts, now is the time for us to put our shoulders to the wheel. We owe this to our fighting men who are winning all those victories over there. Our extra sacrifices compared to theirs are picayune, yet all they ask of us is harder work, more production, less squabbling among the ranks of those fighting this war on the production front. These boys of ours know that greater effort on our part will mean greater victories, fewer casualties, and shorter days of bitter and agonizing strife for all of them.

—PAUL CIAMAICHELA.

Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

THIS week we have news of a few of the gyrenes who have departed from dear old V.C.'s campus. Here they are:

As Corporals, we have Joe Koproski, Pat Nappi and Mike Dolan. Joe is with the Third Amphibious Corps which saw plenty of action in Saipan and Guam, while Nappi is at New River and hopes to ship out soon. And it certainly didn't take Mike Dolan long to leave the country. He is with the 7th Regiment on ——— Island. (Censored by Snafu). Lt. Bob Nealon is in the same regiment as Mike.

PFC Bill Feeney and Walt Breen both expect to be transferred to Lakehurst Naval Training Station from San Diego . . .Another PFC, Paul Dittner, has been transferred to a replacement battalion after having been a secretary in the payroll department of the Marine Air Corps at San Diego. . .And still another PFC is Paul Lentjes who is in Radar school at New River . .Also at New River is Lt. Ziggy Zamlynski, while Lt. Doug Boyd is on his way overseas.

Larry Schmitt, our former Villanovan writer, dropped a line with a few comments on some of the boys at P.I. such as: Gene Konopka carries on with his corney humor—Jack Evans becomes the new "laughing boy", E. Lee runs a close second — "Alfy" Jamison is the eagerest beaver that has hit the island in years—"Miserable" Jones is right at home among the sand dunes—"Hook" Edson looks like a parlor lamp with a sun helmet on his head—and Howie Connolly and John Siano have become self-appointed "supervisors" . . . Much obliged, Larry!

From another source comes word that after two and a half years of combat, Captain Ted Galysh is getting ready to pack up and come home. Galysh contracted malaria at one time but shipped out again. You can't keep a good man down!

Congratulations to Jim Higgins on his promotion from Ensign to J.G. . . . Well, men my supply of news is just about exhausted this week, so I might just as well sign off now as ever.

Meet the Boys

THE three students brought before the spotlight this week are all roommates in suite No 8 in Delurey Hall. All three, if not roommates, have been the best of friends since their freshman hazing days back in 1941.

First of the students to be introduced is Robert Gruss. Born on the other side of the odorous river in Camden, N. J. on April 9, 1924, he attended St. Joseph's Grammar School where he cracked his first books. From there he went to Camden Catholic High School where he demonstrated an active interest in almost every extra-curricular activity.

Bob played in the band and orchestra for all four years, and was a member of the Glee Club. Besides his musical ability, he demonstrated his dramatic talent by acting in the Annual School Play for two years. He also was a member of the Georgian Technology Club for three years, and became editor of the school paper after two years membership on the staff.

ROBERT GRUSS

At the graduation exercises in 1941, Bob won an award for mechanical drawing, and later on in the same year won a State Contest in the same subject. His family then moved to Bridgeport, Conn. but he returned to this area in September 1941 to enter the Mechanical Engineering School here at Villanova.

He joined the Phi Kappa Pi in his Freshman year and has been an active member since. He is also a member of the student branch of the A.S.M.E., the Sanctuary Society, the Choir, and the staff of the Belle Air. Last spring, Bob was a committeeman for the Phi Kap's June Hop.

SECONd man up before the public eyes, Thomas F. Hitchell, also hails from across the Delaware. Born in Bayonne, N. J., on March 28, 1925, he attended the N. J. Donohoe Grammar School for six years, and at the end of that time, was one of two selected from his school to attend an accelerated class (the 7th and 8th grades in one year) made up of students from the various grammar schools in Bayonne.

Upon graduation from Henry E. Harris Junior High School, Tom was awarded the Henry E. Harris Medal for scholarship. He then

MacGil's Folly

By BOB McKIBBIN, A.S.
and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

BECAUSE of numerous requests we are going to bring you another episode in the life of that lovable character of bar, dining car and drive-in, that quiet, quick-tempered colored lad, Fearless Dan Super-tan (read it backwards). As once more we come upon Super, we find him driving his Third Avenue bus along a long and tortuous journey through the the burning wastes of the Miragi Desert, somewhere between Lost Vegas and Jus Plain Lost. From all appearances Dan is either taking a shortcut to Hell or is just plain off his course. Dan is truly scared but his continual line of patter keeps the Brooklyn commuters completely at ease—"Ovah heah dey's sand and ovah heah dey's sand—while on all sides yo' can see bits of pulverized rock."

However, Dan is gradually running out of witty remarks and sincerely doubts if he can keep their whereabouts from the Flatbush patrons much longer. Just then a squashed marshmallow looms in the road ahead . . . too late Dan swerves . . . a blinding flash followed by a semi-vigorous pop rends the stillness of the dry patched air. Synthetic tire No. 506783 has blown. Dan is heartbroken — never had 506783 done this to him before. A harsh curse forms upon his lips only to be bitten, swallowed and chewed . . . for Super stands for Virtue and he will have none of this. He must not fail! He will not fail!

CHAPTER XXXIIIVV
Super-Tan To The Rescue

Never daunted, Dan's agile mind sees a way. Since nightfall is rapidly approaching, Dan hastily envokes his passengers to re-tire. His problem solved, he now ascertains their precarious position by a series of astronomical observations and trigonometric functions known only to he, Dan Supertan and a few sworn members of Smedley Prep Junior High. Finding that his course leads straight over a cliff with a ten-thousand foot drop to the valley floor, Dan is skeptical. But trusting to his mathematical analysis he packs the passengers aboard once more and guns the bus (bang-bang-bang) up to the cliff and over. . .Good luck to you and your air-brakes, Dan Super-tan.

Next week—Super strikes it rich.

Social Sidelights

By JOSEPH M. SULOCK, A.S.

MID TERM approaching . . . exam week . . . those marks . . .

Novelty—The melodic version of military cadence heard for the past few weeks on the drill field is attributed to Fedigan's Fred Miller.

Jubilant—The entire track team celebrated their second place win in the Princeton meet at the swanky Princeton Inn. High prices, however, curbed the festivities.

Embarrassed—During the recent P.T.C. strike in Philadelphia, Frank McBride sought information from a soldier. He became irate when the Infantryman answered "I don't know" to all his interrogations, and verbal chagrin took the place of exasperation. Frank quickly cooled off, however, when he learned from an amused observer that the private was really a Major!

Zoologists — Not particularly interested in animals are Bill Conors and Buzz Llewellyn, but since they were willing to do anything for Ellen and Lulie, the foursome spent Sunday afternoon at the Philadelphia Zoo.

Expensive—Willowing away their time at Willow Grove and not finding the amusements amusing (something about "they cost too much") were Jerry Mellon and Jack Glancey with steady girlfriends Betty and Terry.

Apology—Again we apologize, this time to Chick Magner and Jim Shea whom we reported being in New Jersey during the long week-end. Thye were actually a bit further south, in Washington. (After all, we can't be everywhere at the same time.)

Typical—Not that Tad Pula isn't a family man, but when sister Betty travelled north from Baltimore with girlfriend, Marie, to visit him, Tad seemed a bit more anxious to see Marie. Betty, typical big sister, was understanding about the whole affair, and everyone had a nice time.

• • •

P. S.—We are still looking for the guy who stayed in this weekend to study for exams.

Shrapnel
It Hits Everywhere

WE presume that you are incognizant of the fact that this column is being written to instil in the minds of the faculty and Navy personnel that a Marine detachment is stationed at Villanova. It also being established to inform the campus of incidents of interest.

On the long week-end most of the U.S.S. Villanova crew headed for home. A notable exception was "Hashmark" Bradley, that salty boot, who entertained an out-of-town dish here. Mike Berry found some difficulty in making his way about the Nation's Capitol. Hey, Mike? Those streets can certainly make themselves inaccessible. Pvt. Don Rugen also found Roosevelt's back yard rather confusing on Saturay night and Sunday afternoon. The Four Romeos spent their fabulously long week-end in the Quaker City where all enjoyed Don Peterson's girl. Pvt Blough. . . have you heard the song "I'm Putting All My Eggs in One Basket"?

So be it for the pathetic past, now to future fun. Minstrel O'Connell's thoughts are pointing to some merryment in the not too distant future. Say! You great, big, handsome characters, hows about giving him a hand?

Until the happening of more news, We remain, yours truly, who are still looking for the girl who thinks 'going on the wagon' means a hayride with the boyfriend.

Marines Continue In Lead Winning Three Straight

Austin Sailors Place Second With Students Right Behind; Mendel Engineers Continue to Lose

The Marines, winners of the first half, started off the second part of the schedule by winning their first three scheduled games to take undisputed possession of first place. Right on their heels are their barrack mates, the Austin sailors who won one game but tied two to go a half game ahead of the students who won their first two but dropped their third one. Alumni, runners-up in the initial half, are now in fourth place as a result of a win, loss and tie.

Tie Game

The second half started Tuesday with Alumni and Austin Navy battling to a 2-2 tie. Alumni ground out a 1-0 lead with Brown, Waldorf and Shea hitting singles, Brown scoring. The Austinites overcome that lead and on four hits rushed out in front with two runs. The Pillmen came right in their half of the fourth to add the tying run and neither team was able to score after that.

The Leathernecks notched victory number one of the second half as they trounced Fedigan 8-3.

On Wednesday the Students handed Fedigan its second defeat 7-1.

On the same evening, Mendel suffered its first defeat of the current campaign by the overwhelming score of 16-0 due to the efforts of Austin Navy. The Austinites opened the game with six runs in the first inning and thereafter failed to score except in the second inning. Mendel was able to get only one hit the whole game, a single by Paul Miller in the sixth.

In a slug fest on Thursday night, the Mendelit's were again defeated as they were outslugged to the tune of 10 runs to 7.

Fedigan and Austin Navy battled to a 6-6 tie in the next to the last weekday. Fedigan started the score rolling when Hoffman walked and Carey singled to open the second canto. Whelan singled driving Hoffman home. Briel struck out and Burdick flied to Boos. Brenner came through with a single to drive Carey across and Cahow flied to the shortfielder. . .Austin doubled that score in the fourth to take the lead, but Fedigan added 4

Season Practice Soon Begins For Football Squad

Notwithstanding reports and rumors to the contrary, Villanova will definitely not have a "breather" in its opening gridiron contest of the 1944 season with the University of Scranton, at Scranton, on Saturday afternoon, September 23d.

Strong Team

The Tomcats, making their initial appearance on the Wildcat football schedule, are preparing to dispell any illusions of easy victory that all or any of their opponents may have conjured because of their obscure position in the "Pigskin Parade", due to the fact that the 1944 season will mark a resumption of football activities at the Coal Region institution after a lapse of some years.

In its squad, slated to be well balanced and dangerous, Scranton will feature armed service dischargees and some of last year's top ranking 17-year-old standouts, who gathered headlines in the Pennsylvania Coal District, reputed to be one of the country's most fertile areas for football talent.

Ranging from Paul Weidenhaefer, at 139, to Frank Brady, who tips the beams at 215, our squad approximately has a mean average weight of but 171 1/3 for the 72 candidates.

Despite the fact that a three week rest period has been granted to the gridsters, following the strenuous four weeks of sweltering drills, informal workouts—non-body contact and skull practices—are in order so as to sharpen up the ball handling and timing for precision made T-formation plays.

Boxers Defeated By Diplomats In First Match

Bruised but unbowed, the boxing team returned from Franklin and Marshall College last Friday with the short end of a 5½-2½ tally. Drawing once, the lashing leather pushers lost five bouts but won the plaudits of the crowd by their furious fighting, and "never say die" spirit that will hold them long in the memories of the Lancaster fight fans. The bouts were fought under the Inter-collegiate Boxing Rules with Tommy Loughran supervising, as third man in the ring. Assisting in the scoring were two ringside judges. The bouts were fought as a benefit for the Armstrong Companies workers in the service. The bouts were sponsored by the company.

Scores Knock-down

First to enter the squared circle was Dulio Dalbora, 128 lbs. of fighting flesh from Austin Hall. Taking over in the very first round, Dulio lashed, hit, and clawed his way through three blistering, action packed rounds to out-slug and out-box his man for the decision, scoring a knock-down in the process.

Next on the list was John Smith, boxing in the 135 lbs. division, who showed his fighter-boxer abilities by a clever exhibition of feints and ducking combined with disasterous slugging power. The fight was close in the first two frames with the F & M opponent wilting towards the end of the second. In the third round John drew an opening and slammed home a terrific overhand right to his opponents head, setting him back on his heels. Seeing his opportunity, John immediately tore into his glassy-eyed opponent but only John's over-eagerness and his opponents ability to clinch prevented the round from having a short ending. The decision was an unpopular draw.

Unpopular Decision

The following bout, in the 155 lb. division, was won by Frank Solis who out-boxed and out-lasted his opponent to win the nod. Taking care of the 145 pounders, Bill Lamb fought a hard and furious battle. Giving no quarter and asking none, Bill never gave

Villanova Takes Second In Princeton Track Meet

Schmitt Scores Double Win in Only Meet of Summer Season; Lack of Entries in Field Events Gives Tigers Win

After three weeks of sweating and toiling, the long-awaited Princeton Invitation Summer Meet arrived. Villanova's track team comprising fourteen men journeyed to Palmer Stadium, Princeton University.

True to their name, the Wildcats clawed in and took a firm grip on second place, losing out only to Princeton who overwhelmed them in manpower. The field events helped give the Tigers the edge.

Cunningham, Judge

At the meet with the team was Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Varsity Athletics. Also present at the meet was the world renowned miler, Glenn Cunnigham who officiated at the meet. He is at Princeton in indoctrination as a Naval Officer.

Don Schmitt, Jim Morris of Villanova and Roland Ely of Princeton were the outstanding performers of the day.

Schmitt contributed greatly to Villanova success by romping home in front of the pack in both the mile and the half mile. Don was not pushed in the mile although his teammate ,Jack Cockroft matched him stride for stride for three and a half laps.

One Hurdler

Larry Bradley, an unexperienced runner from last spring placed third in the 220 yd. dash Burt Cox, also a holdover, placed third in the broad jump. His distance was 22ft., 7 in.

"Duke" Severson added another point by placing fourth in the discusfl. Frank Doorley, Villanova's only hurdler, placed fourth in the 120 yd. low hurdles.

Joe Morgan, George Clleland, Bob McKibbon and "Red" Welles did not fare quite as well in this meet. Joe ran a good two mile but fell behind in the last lap. McKibbon and Welles ran the half in 2 min., 9 sec. but to no avail.

Villanova's record of last spring and this summer is very admirable.

The most stirring triumph however was in the 800 yd. run when Don came down the stretch neck and neck with Herder of Lehigh edging him out in the last 15 yds. Schmitt's determination to win enabled him to place the fine time of 2 min. 4.5 sec.

Good Dash Man

Jim Morris, former District P.I.A.A. Spring champion from Cheltenham High, won the 100 yd. dash in 10.4 sec. Jim was one of the best dash men in the East last year. He was also anchor man in the 880 yard relay team which placed first in 1 min. 39.9 sec. Larry Bradley, Chuck Harrington and Bill Leary were the other men on the team.

Bill Leary in his initial appearance as a Wildcat cinderman also finished a fast second in the 440 yd. run. He was necked out in the stretch in the fast time of 51.5 sec. Chuck Harrington, a little off his usual form placed fourth.

Previously they swamped Swarthmore, Lehigh and Muhlenberg in spring meets. They are now looking forward to the indoor season and cross country.

Team scores: Princeton, 68; Villanova, 33; Penn, 20; Swarthmore, 8½; Muhlenberg, 8; Lafayette, 7½; Rutgers, 7; Lehigh 2.

Locals Finish Season With A Tie And Victory

Weinert Pitches Locals to Second Deadlock With Soldiers From Valley Forge; Score in Extra Inning Over Marines

Valley Forge Army Hospital came from behind to tie the Villanova baseball team 2-2 in a twilight game played last Friday night at the soldier's diamond. Paul Popadak, on the mound for the home team, limited the Wildcats to five hits in the seven innings of play while the soldiers received only five safeties themselves.

In the fifth inning Villanova went ahead scoring two runs in their half. After Al Nieman fanned, Pat Reagan sent a hard line drive to left field for a single. Dave Ward followed up Reagan with a sharp single over second base. Reagan went to second on the play. Weinert then singled to right center scoring Reagan and Ward went to third as the center fielder threw to second base.

Ward Scores

After Di Salvo went down swinging, Lew Leary lifted a fly into short right field but Barber the centerfielder ran off both the secondbaseman and the rightfielder and succeeded only in dropping the ball. Ward scored on the play, but Weinert only made second from where he was forced as John Anderson grounded to Birdsong the third baseman.

However Valley Forge was awakened by the Villanova rally and came back to tally a pair of runs in their half of the inning. Schwartz, the leadoff man for the stanza took a pitch in the ribs to start hostilities. Di Giova singled him to second. Popadak then drew a walk and Birdsong singled to center to push across the tying markers. Barber got an infield hit to load the bases and the next three men were then retired in order.

Extra Innings

In the final game of the summer season and the longest baseball schedule in Wildcat history, the locals sunk the Philadelphia Navy Yard Marines in an extra inning game, 1 to 0.

For seven innings both teams were held scoreless as it turned into a pitchers' duel. Finally in an extra eighth inning the home team sewed together a few helpful bingles to score the only run of the game and to amass the amazing total of two wins, four ties and four losses for the summer baseball season.

Double Ties

Rarely for a season has any baseball team put together so many ties. In addition to the four ties already listed, the team twice had to play extra innings because of a deadlock, once when they played Navy earlier in the season and last night in the Marine game.

The resume of the season shows the team with wins over Penn and Marine Corps; losses were to Penn, Coast Guard, Navy and Swarthmore. Tie games were played with Swarthmore twice and Valley Forge Hospital twice.

WILDCAT ALUMNI

Through the press releases word has been received that Bill Howlett, now a fighting Marine was wounded in the vicious fighting in the Pacific. Howlett is well remembered for his great playing here when he was a back on the '39 team. He was a member of the famed Howlett brothers, Buzz and Bill.

The Philadelphia Eagles have reported that they have signed Johnny Nojunas to play for them in the caming season. Nojunas played here during his sophomore year but then left to play at nearby LaSalle College.

matriculated at Bayonne Senior High School, where he served as Secretary of his class as well as Student Congress representative for two years. In his senior year he was admitted into the National Honorary Society for Secondary Schools, was a member of the Editorial Staff of the yearbook, and was awarded the Student Activity Award.

However, his outstanding memory of high school days is his being awarded the N. J. Forensic League Medal for "distinguished performance" in a play offered by his high school at the Annual Drama Festival of Secondary Schools held at Newark University in the Spring of 1941.

Tom entered Villanova in September 1941 in the School of Engineering preparing for a B. S. in Chemistry. He served as chairman of the Alumni Hall Decoration Committee for the Annual Temple Rally in 1941, and the Decoration Committee for the Sophomore Cotillion in 1942. He also served for three years on the staff of the Villanovan of which he became College Editor in his Junior Year. In 1942, he transferred to the School of Education, and joined the German Club. He has belonged to the Sanctuary Society for four years and the Sanctuary Choir for one.

During his Junior year, Tom was elected Treasurer of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council, and became campus agent for Time Magazine, Inc. He has always been a consistent honor roll student, making a perfect 4.00 rating in his third year. At present, he is college infirmarian.

In October, Tom is scheduled to receive a B. S. degree in Education, with a major in English and a minor in German. Although qualified to teach both subjects, he may study journalism at Columbia University after the war. However, his immediate future is uncertain, for he expects to be inducted into the Army sometime in October.

PATRICK J. REAGAN

PATRICK J. Reagan completes the biographical parade for today. Born in Steelton, Pennsylvania, on February 10, 1924, he attended St. James' Parochial School. After graduation, he journeyed to the State Capital and attended Harrisburg Catholic High School.

Here he served on the school year book staff, and took part in the Junior Class play. In the field of sports, he played two years of varsity basketball, for which he received varsity letters. He received his diploma in the Spring of 1941.

In the Fall of that year, Pat entered Villanova's Electrical Engineering School. In his Freshman year he was active in intramural sports. At that time he joined the Phi Kappa Pi and has been an active member since. Last fall, Pat participated in the Frat Bowling League and was a member of the championship team.

He is at present Secretary-Treasurer of the Student Council. Pat was chairman of the program committee for the Council's Winter Hop last fall, and his ability should prove an important cog in the materialization of the proposed dance in October. Pat is also Vice Chairman of the A.I.E.E., and at present is first baseman on the varsity baseball team.

His main incentive for coming to Villanova, he boasts, is that his father is also a Villanova graduate. A member of the class of 1915, he was captain of the only Villanova football team to beat Army (16-13). Pat's plans for the future are, like Tom's, rather indefinite. He hopes that his honor roll record here will help him earn a commission in the Navy after graduation.

ground, standing toe to toe most of the way. At the finish, the bout was awarded to the Franklin and Marshall battler amid the shouts of disapproval of the crowd.

Battling in the first fight of his pugilistic areer, "Red" Nealon 165 lb., put on an excellent exhibition of boxing ability and gameness, giving his rival plenty of trouble all the way. His more experienced opponent used his ring savvy, however, to cop the decision.

Brawl Of Big Boys

Weighing in at 175 lb. in the brawl of the big boys, "Whitey" McAdams fought a fellow native of Tennessee in a 16 min. slugfest. Eating all the leather his opponent could throw and spitting it back out, "Whitey" dealt devasting and plentiful blows. The fight being fairly even up until the middle of the third frame, the F & M battler put on a last ditch spurt to take the bout by a close margin.

Participating in the semi-windup setto, John P. Murphy, 135 lbs., put on a classy exhibition. Letting the earlier part of the bout slip by through over cautiousness. John put on a strong finish. But this was apparently too late and the decision was awarded to F & M.

Opponent Baffled

In the wind-up spot, Al Sondheimer, tipping the scales at 143 lbs. opposed Charley Reich, star of the F & M team. Baffling his opponent by his left-handed unorthodox style, Al had things much his own way the first two rounds, often leaving his amazed opponent throwing volleys into the thin air. In the last round, Al's effective style was neutralized when he was caught against the ropes, thus enabling his F & M opponent to score. The decision was awarded to Charley Reich.

ber engraved and delivered to the campus.

In order to give added significance to the key, it is now contemplated to present them formally at a senior banquet. Plans for this are still in the formative stage, but Hugh F. Gillespie, A.S., fraternity vice-president, has been instructed to look into the possibility of engaging a nearby dining hall for the evening.

With that, the meeting adjourned on a promise that another gathering would be called in the near future at which some more definite statements could be made.

more in the next inning to go ahead again. Not to be outdone, the Aussies tied it up again in the sixth and the contest ended with the teams still deadlocked.

Alumni blanked the Students while scoring 6 runs on Friday evening to drop the Civilians out of a first place tie.

The Marines added victory number three to their win column at the expense of the Mendelites by a final tabulation of 9-6. The Engineers started off the scoring in the first as Manning singled, stole second and then came all the way home on an error. The Leathernecks topped this mark by 2 to take a 3-1 lead. Striving vainly for a win ,the Mendelmen tied it up in the third and then added 2 more in the fourth to go ahead. A win for the Engineers was just not in the book for the Marines, with Marty Greeley hitting a home run scored 5 runs in the sixth to sew up the game.

They are patient about waiting because those Long Distance calls mean so much
A soldier has to line up for a lot of things but we don't like to see him wait too long for a Long Distance call.
Would you mind helping a little by saving the wires from seven to ten for the service men?
That's when thousands of soldiers rush to the telephones at the camps and we'd like to give them first call on Long Distance.

Former Trainee Killed On Saipan; Lt. Boyle Missing

Pfc. Francis Seals Becomes First V-12 Casualty; Lts. Rice and Schubert Recover

Among the casualty lists published recently have appeared the names of several former Villanovans. Outstanding was the news of of the death of Private First Class Francis B. Seals, first of the V-12 trainees from this unit to be killed in action.

A student in the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University at the time of his enlistment in the Marine Corps, Seals was assigned to Villanova with the opening of the V-12 program last summer. Here he enrolled in the basic Navy curriculum.

After only a few months here, Seals was transferred to the Marine base at Parris Island, South Carolina. Following his basic training there, he was assigned to a rifle platoon attached to the fleet marine corps. From then on, little is known of his activities until word of his death in the action on Saipan was received by parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Seals, 316 Valleyley Rd., Llanerch, Pa.

Requiem mass for the repose of his soul will be said in the college chapel on Thursday morning at 7:00 by the Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A.

Reported Missing

A casualty of less definite nature is First Lieutenant John J. Boyle, a bombardier with Army Air Forces. The war department has notified his mother, Mrs. May B. Boyle, of 916 Edgewood Rd., Brookline, that he has been reported missing in action over Europe.

After graduating from here, he received his wings and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant at the Big Spring, Texas, bombardier school in January, 1943.

More encouraging news has been received from the two remaining casualties. First Lieutenant Lloyd C. Rice, '40, has recovered from his wounds and returned to duty; and Second Lieutenant William E. Schubert, Jr., '41, is quickly recuperating in a hospital in England after having been wounded in France.

Wounded in France

Not a member of the original invasion party on D-day, the armored engineering battalion with which Lt. Schubert served landed in northern France early in July, and saw action from that time on. On August 22, his mother, Mrs. William E. Schubert of Woodbine Ave., in Philadelphia, received a war department telegram stating that he had been wounded two weeks earlier.

2nd LT. WM. E. SCHUBERT

Lt. Rice, former Wildcat basketball and baseball star, was wounded in France on July 6, but has recovered and has returned to duty with his infantry division which captured Verdun.

Fr. McGuire Talks At Graduation Of High Sohools

Stresses Advantage of Spiritual Aspect to Catholic Education; Attacks Solely Materialistic Training

In an address delivered at the first summer graduation of the Philadelphia Catholic High Schools, Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., president of the college, stressed the advantage which these students possessed in having been educated under a system which puts proper emphasis on spiritual training.

Deploring the modern trend to make education almost entirely materialistic, and devoted to technical pursuits, Fr. McGuire stated, "Man has become proficient in all these things, and in his unrelenting pursuit has either rushed by or not approached at all the one important and necessary truth: 'What is man himself?' "

From this, he went on to point out that, since it has been the privilege of those graduated to become the leaders of their fellow citizens. "Society in general, your country, in particular, needs men and women who profess your philosophy of life," Father said. "No nation or system of government can hope to survive when the people of that nation or the leaders of that government turn their backs on Him from whom all law and order is derived."

Establishing justice and charity as the foundations of peace, Father exhorted the youth, about to enter the world, to practice these virtues at all times, pointing out that this would make them both good Catholics and good citizens.

"That is why we boast that the system of education of which you are the products is the most apt in bringing men and women simultaneously in the service of God and country."

New Library Book Donated By McVey Has Historic Value

A new book, "An Address to the Roman Catholics of the United States of America," was recently donated to the college library by John Joseph McVey, formerly a prominent Catholic publisher in Philadelphia.

The book was published in Worchester, England. in 1875, a date when American books were rare. It was written by Archbishop John Carroll, the first Catholic Archbishop to the United States, and it was first published in Annapolis, Md., in rebuttal to "A Letter to the Roman Catholics of the City of Worchester," by a protestant minister.

A year after the latter book first appeared in the United States, it was published in England along with a perverted version of the refutation. The copy now in the possession of the library was republished in the same year as a correction to the false edition. The book derives additional interest from being the first Catholic book by a Catholic author to be published in the United States.

Lt. Colonel McManus Bags Enemy Bomber

Lieutenant Colonel Joseph B. McManus, a Villanova graduate, recently destroyed a Heinkel bomber and damaged another in a strafing attack on an enemy airdrome, it has been disclosed from an Eighth Air Force fighter station in England.

Colonel McManus, a Mustang squadron commander, scored hits in one sweep of a dispersal area of the airfield. Previously he had destroyed one enemy plane on the ground and had shared in the destruction of another in the air. He holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters.

A. I. E. E. To Elect Officers Friday

Nominations Confined to Junior Class; Trip to Franklin Institute Set

The Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers met last Friday at 12:45 in the Dynamo Lab for the nomination of officers for the coming term. Patrick J. Reagan, who has been acting chairman since James L. O'Brien left recently for service with the Navy, presided over the meeting.

A drive for new members was inaugurated and activities for the coming year were discussed. The final election of officers will be held in the dynamo lab next Friday, September 15, at 12:45. An invitation was extended to all electrical engineers, especially the Juniors, to fill in applications for membership this week so that they may cast their votes in this election.

Juniors Nominated

The nominations, which included only member of the junior class, were as follows: Chairman: George Hoberg, A.S., Karl Ohralik, A.S., and C. John Burke; Vice-Chairman: Apprentice Seamen Thomas Welch, Gerald Lee, Michael Flynn, and Hubert O'Reilly; Secretary: Joseph Gerngross, Alan Schneider, and Dave Ward; Treasurer: Joseph Keating, John Kennedy, Raymond Adams and Pvt. Wallace Collins.

Also discussed were plans for a trip to the Franklin Institute on Friday, September 22, for all members. Trips to industrial plants were also considered but definite plans were not made at this early date. However, the members approved plans for the showing of movies on subjects in the electrical engineering field at regular meetings in the future.

The Institute offers many advantages to members both while matriculating here at college and after graduation. Each member receives monthly a copy of the Electrical Engineering Journal, an up-to-date periodical containing information on current technical developments in the field.

Popular Maestro Featured In Field House October 14

Student Council Announces Success of Band Committee; Early Plans Take Shape; Other Committees and Chairmen Named

Johnny Warrington and his "new music for dancing America," will be featured at the Blue and White Hop, on Saturday evening, October 14. The dance is under the auspices of the Student Council, which has already made a great deal of plans for an enjoyable evening. The Field House will be the site for the evening's revelry.

JOHNNY WARRINGTON

Johnny Warrington and his orchestra visited this college last February 12, and his music was enjoyed by all. Warrington's orchestra features Betty Barton and Bon-Bon as vocalists, with Davey Stephens at the keyboard. Johnny is known as an outstanding orchestra leader and arranger by all in this locality who have heard his broadcasts on radio station WCAU.

Sweet and Hot

His arrangements of both the "sweet and hot" tunes are distinctive styling, worthy of a good musician. Johnny Warrington played for many of the "name bands" of America before starting his own unit. His experience in the field of modern American music has gained him a wide reputation.

The Student Council has set up various committees to plan for the entertainment. The problem of decorations will be deftly handled by Thomas P. Welch, A.S., and John A. Millet, A.S. The refreshments committee consists of John Wilson and Hugh Gillespie, A. S. The sale of tickets for the event will be supervised by Joseph Hoffman, A.S.

Expect Cooperation

The members of the committee whose job it was to engage Johnny Warrington and troupe, are Robert O'Connor, A.S., and Robert Malone, A.S. The styling and publishing of the programs will be handled by Frank Ronan, Joseph Bersalera, and James Cassin, A.S. The publicity department is in the capable hands of Francis McBride, A. S., and Pvt. Michael Berry.

Since such social activities have been few and far between on the campus recently, due to the accelerated program, the committees and the Student Council are counting on the cooperation and support of the entire student body to make, this affair a great success, so that, in the future plans for more such activities can be made.

New Merit List Out

Last Saturday morning, the merit list for the past half semester appeared on the Navy bulletin board. It contained 191 names. In keeping with school custom, no separate honor roll will be compiled for these quarterly grades, and all men earning a mark of 2.5 or over were included on the one list. This marks a lowering of the minimum requirement since the last merit list was published.

Villanova Salts

By MICHAEL KRAK, A.S.

Two months have elapsed since the last group of Uncle Sam's scholars-to-be were welcomed aboard. Among them were many who had come in from the various parts of the fleet loaded down with bushels of experience. Some of these residing at present at Alumni Hall consented to comment upon their experience, the bulk of which was digested and put into writing to form the essence of today's column.

William Cooke, a Philadelphia boy, started the merry-go-round, with his version of the sailor's life aboard a transport. His first contact with this type ship was made on the East Coast where he was assigned to a Naval transport as a Signalman Third Class. The ship had all the conveniences found on shore establishments from a laundry to a soda fountain; the value of such conveniences were readily realized once the ship put to sea.

In its travels, the ship made a few interesting Atlantic runs to the other side of the pond. On one of these trips, "by accident" it didn't return immediately to the States, but by the same "accident" appeared instead as a supporting unit in the initial establishment of the now famous "Anzio Beachhead."

Luck Holds Out

As might have been expected, German Stukas and Merschersmitts continually attempted to interfere with unloading operations, but both the ship and crew fared well. Even on the second trip when the ship returned with reinforcements, the luck held out. When the ship finally arrived at the States, Cooke's gains for the trip measured, "Combat experience," a V-12 acceptance, and finally a "star" on the service ribbon.

Just about the time the fire began to smoulder, Charles Ginsberg came along, and with his tales added the needed fuel to the flame. From Philadelphia to "somewhere in the Pacific" with a few intermediate stops sandwiched in between, represented the scope of his travels during the first twenty months of service. His work in the Navy was as a Corpsman during this time paralleled the earlier training that he had received as a civilian student, majoring in Chiropody, at the U. of Temple.

Shortly after indoctrination, an assignment to Davisville, R. I., Dispensary gave him the opportunity to continue his study of chiropody. Another transfer placed him with a Seabee Battalion, then somewhere in the Pacific, then the V-12 orders reached him, which eventually made him part of our crew.

Assigned to Cutter

A way back in the days when—gasoline was plentiful, and the military atmosphere was just in its incipient stages, a young man walked into the recruiting station at Baltimore, Md., and signed on a dotted line the name, John Murphy. It was in this simple and unheralded manner that he became an apprentice seaman in the U. S. Coast Guard. His first duty was an assignment to a Coast Guard Cutter which operated in the North Atlantic area.

When the war broke out he hoped he would have still been aboard the Cutter, but instead he was now stationed at a shore establishment

Pictures Featured At ASME Meeting; Membership Urged

Last night the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' student branch held a meeting at 6 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall, at which an interesting motion picture, "Tank Destroyer", depicting in color the formation and training of the Army's famed tank destroyer battalions at Camp Hood, Texas, was shown.

Applications for membership in the society were accepted from several students and an announcement made that all students interested in joining the Society should attend the meeting this Friday evening Sept. 15, at 6 P. M., in Room 215 Mendel Hall. At this time application blanks and information about the Society will be distributed.

All students, civilian and service, who are in or beyond their third semester of mechanical engineering studies are eligible to join the Society and are urged to do so.

In addition a motion picture describing the development, and performance of the Bell "Airacobra" P-39 will be shown.

Do We Need It?

A QUESTION that has been growing in importance recently, and which will have a great effect on future life in the United States, is whether or not our government will enforce postwar compulsory military training for the youths of the country.

The answer to this question has been given too little thought by the every-day citizen; has been seldom discussed in newspapers; and has, up to the present time, been definitely and purposely shuned in recent political speeches. But Congress has not pushed aside the issue, and families will soon be reading that a law has been passed on the issue.

It is the American family that a law providing compulsory military training would insult, or more strongly, denounce. What a sad commentary on American home life if military training is needed to instill discipline in youths—discipline which has been and should be gotten in the home.

If the disciplining of youths is a main factor before the eyes of those in favor of this training, perhaps a better step would be to examine the present day home, and attack the root of the trouble.

Discipline is a fundamental obligation of the home. But figures on juvenile delinquency are rising steadily each day. Why is the home in such a state of affairs? It all reverts to the parents and their growing laxity. If the state takes upon itself the disciplining of youths—what is left for the parents to do? The return of war working mothers and future mothers to their families and the revival of the rapidly disintegrating "American family life" should be the first aim of our postwar plans.

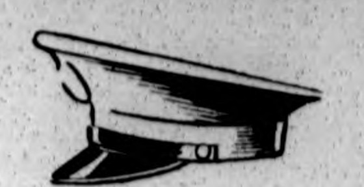
On the other hand, is it good that all youths be thrown—as it were—into a national melting pot? Many often leave military training with warped ideas on life and, especially, morals. It is never certain that the good will always outweigh the bad.

Probably, however, the most important factor influencing the issue is the need for national security after all the guns are silenced and armistices are signed. And it is undoubtedly utmost in the minds of all Americans that a lasting and righteous peace be established throughout the world. If compulsory military training be approved, it would appear to be directly contradictory to our peace aims.

Only a glance at recent history will show that compulsory training for all youths has been the firing pin for a national militaristic outlook, and finally a desire for world conquest. Undoubtedly we would not enter any plan with such ambitions, but what about the outcome? There is nothing to prevent us from building up a dangerous militaristic outlook which does not uphold our aims for a just and lasting peace.

If such training is needed for our military strength, let us but look at our present Army and Navy. A vast majority of our fighting men today came from civilian life — without military training in their youth — and their bravery, gallantry and wisdom proves them to be the best fighting men on the field or on the seas. We did it now—we could do it again.

Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

BACK again after a two weeks vacation from the paper. Vacation! Gad, that's a nice sounding word. Down to business:

Lt. (j.g.) Paul W. FitzMaurice, '40, of the Coast Guard has been cruising around on amphibs in the South Pacific. Paul has been there since August, '43.

Our heartiest congratulations to 1st Lt. Robert G. Boudon, a first pilot on a B-17 of the 8th Air Force in England. The congrats are for the recent birth of his daughter, Mary Claudia, and of course for being awarded the Air Medal and Oak Leaf Cluster for shuttle bombing from England to Russia to Italy and back to England again. Bob is married to an ex-Immaculata girl, Margaret Honsberger.

Another swell fellow whom we haven't heard from in a long time is Ensign Frank Desmond. Frank wrote that (at the time) he was on the same ship as Jim Finnegan and they went through the invasion together. He also mentioned running into Lt. Jim Brady, Ensign Joe Shay, Lt. (j.g.) Don Kehoe and some of his old "Conestoga" friends such as Neil O'Mahoney and Mauro Ciccarelli. Frank was the speedboat ace in his days at Villanova.

And we have some news of some of the old time Villanovans, Major D. A. Santarsiero, class of '30, is at Moore General Hospital and mentions that Captain James J. Volpe, '31 is there also. The hospital is at Savannah, Ga.

Cpl. Lou Esposito sent a card from Italy. He is in the 5th Army.

Lt. William J. Schneider, an M. E., '30, is a 1st Pilot in the 2nd Air Force and is en route to Headquarters Field at Lincoln, Nebraska to pick up his crew.

Joe McFarland is now an officer candidate at the Engineering Replacement Center at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, after doing boot training there. His brother, Gene, is in the fighting in France.

Lt. Tom McKee dropped around recently after finishing his duties as a flight instructor at Tallahassee, Florida. After a little additional training he expects to go overseas.

And in the Marianas are Lts. Jack McMahon, Phil Malarky, and we suppose we shoudn't forget Bob Koness.

Our best wishes in getting well to Lt. Bill Schubert who was wounded in France.

MacGil's Folly

By BOB McKIBBIN, A.S.
and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

ATTENTION FANS—(the following is mechanically transscribed).

We now intend to present to you some confoosin' character from the files of commissioner P. K. Boo, who has said on similar occasions: "It ain't what you know it's how well you confoose it." — or to be more illiterate: "Any similarity between the characters here portrayed and those actually living or dead is highly feasible and downright malicious."

Ah! There is our first subject now. You probably didn't see him as he turned sideways as he passed. But let us follow him into the cafeteria and as he, George, is selecting a weapon, we will digress a moment to tell you a little about George. When he entered the unit a little over a year ago, he was strictly a nobody.—But since then fame and good fortune have come his way. At first sight he appears to be just an ordinary sailor; (but then again what sailor is ordinary) with hat stenciled on the outside like others. Since July '43, he has distinguished himself by compiling the enviable record of beating the "mess gang" more than anyone else aboard.

As we come upon George selecting an appropriate tray, the score stands tied at 999. Time is growing short. He realizes that he must make every meal count. Cautiously treading his way down the aisle of stew and goo he carefully selects his favorite ice cream and then, grasping the tray firmly with both hands, he plunges wildly on. She feints with a left—he counters with a sweep to the right—then a left—right. Plop! Two more lefts—a short fake—a quick cross—plop! Two more feeble stabs by George and it is all over.

Half blinded by tomatoes and gravy, he staggers down the remaining few yards and so to his seat. George has lost this time, as one can plainly see, but he is not one to give up so easily for he knows that somewhere 'neath the mound of V-12 Goulash is hidden that priceless delicacy fit for the mouths of civilians, his beloved but abused ice cream.

Leaving George with this meaty problem we move on. For other characters are gradually materializing in the dim haze. . .the "Spam Group" are selecting their seats for the big gala floor show which will soon begin. Yes, it is 1800, that witching hour of twilight when the eating day is done and the washy-washy girls go through their paces. The first act is entitled "The Broom Waltz," a catchy number that is sweeping the school. This is followed by the scintillating "Dance of the Crumbs," a conga in three parts, and next on the programma comes the grand finale—sung by all with much gusto and lotsa fortissimo: "Hurry up, you bums. We wanna go home."

P.S. Every day you meet quite a few.

Meet the Boys

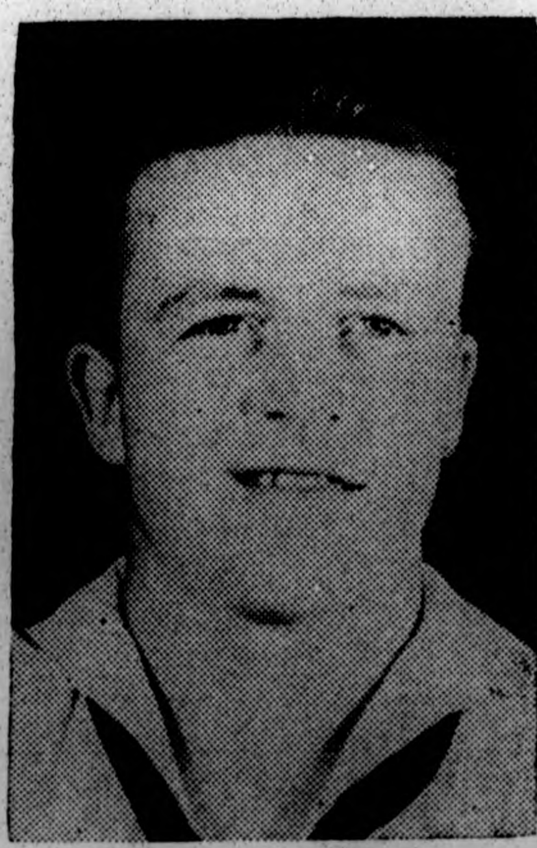
By TAD PULA, A.S.

BEING a firm believer in the "Boswell" treatment, we'd like you to get to know Henry Edwin Winter, Jr., A.S., and Philip Eston Jakeway, A.S., in somewhat the same manner as we did.

We first made the acquaintance of "Sparky" Winter three semesters ago when, on dropping in to see our old friend Paska, we would find his roommate (at the time), Sparky, playing either rummy or chess with his perennial pal Hobbs. We kibitzed, but you don't talk much during a chess game. Somehow, the conversation turned to bridge, and there our friendship really began.

We were just learning the game, and Sparky new, so we became partners and about six months later won the unofficial bridge championship of Mendel Hall.

During that time we found out that his home had changed quite a bit geographically before he came to Villanova from Radio School. We knew he went to Washington State for two years and lived in Seattle before we found out that he was born in Moncks Corner, S. C.



HENRY WINTER, A.S.

Even later, when he was drubbing us in practice for the tennis team, he mentioned that the tennis player ranking system at Mason City High School, Washington, was really good. Then we asked and found out that he was seeded No. 2 in junior year and No. 1 as senior. Later he belonged to a tennis club

Special—Attending Immaculata's College's prom at the Ben Franklin were Bill Thompson, Frank McBride, Bob Malone, Bob O'Connor Fred Brookhall and Mark Manning. All invites were at the personal requests of the girls.

Good Neighbor Policy — Jack Murphy's date with R.C.A.F. girl Winifred Watson was not without its educational aspect. Jack learned quite a bit about beautiful Canada and the R.C.A.F. from his very patriotic companion.

Gals and Geography — Southerners Gordon Evans and Sam Goldberger have become acclimated to Northern customs and girls and are finding both very pleasant. Gordon's interests are turned Reading way where Irene resides, while Sam plays both ends against the middle. (In other words, he works all angles. Smart boy.)

Plug it's not too early to plan for the coming Student Council dance. Arrangements have already been made by the dance comittee to provide for an entertaining evening, so don't miss out on the dance because of a last minute slip-up. (After all, she might be doing something else that night.)

MOVE it over. There's another load coming up the road." The question of the week is—Who's the handsome B.M.O.C. that sings like Vaughn Monroe, send them like Frankie, and hates to admit that Orson Welles was named after him? The answer to this question is given over KYW frequently.

We have noticed of late that Sergeant Gamp, our canine pet, is the best fed on the campus. To the occupants of Austin Hall—What do you say we build a pen for ourselves outside of St. Mary's Hall?

"Rough" (you have two minutes to get outside) Reidy took off his corporal stripes last week. We told you, "Rough," that you couldn't make those cracks at the dance and get away with it. A smile was all he gave you, but you got in "those station memos."

Spike Jones seems to have had a little trouble with his girl last weekend. Some say she has gone to his head. We are afeared if any more goes to his head the Marine Corps won't have enough khaki to go around it.

Words of congratulations are in order to such beavers at Pvts. Nealon, McDaid and Severson. Glad to see you get that extra liberty.

AS the seasons change so change the varsity sports here at school. Now that gloves and bats have been put away after a long and satisfying season, the cry of football is in the tangy autumn air. We have finished the outdoor track season; there again we have an enjoyable number of victories to warm us in the months to come. Especially laudable in this field were our consistently winning, distance runner Don Schmitt and his sprinting teammate, Jim Morris. To the rest of the squad go cheers for fine team work.

Since the football season is upon us, a discourse on all the ideas connected with the gridiron sport here at Villanova seems most appropriate. We can look at the prospects of the new team for the coming season, a backward glance at last year's team and at the need for some of the things we lacked in that season.

New and unpredictable are all the words needed to sum up our general knowledge of the team which will represent the Wildcats on college gridirons this fall. Very few players have been retained from the squad last year and none of these, first string players. The backfield is versatile but extremely light with Bob David, the only really heavy man in it. Against his weight we have the remaining backs all under 165 pounds. The line has a fairly well distributed balance of weight but they lack vital experience. They are aggressive but it will take a few games to prove whether this will be sufficient for the coming schedule.

Whatever the team may be, it will be a credit to Coach Olivar's teaching for he is starting with little more than nothing and has a big job on his hands. The material this year does not compare with that of last year when "Ollie" had Postus, Konopka, Pezelski, Kasulin and others who had much football "savvy" as was proved in the succeeding season, when they won five games and only dropped three, these being to the powerful teams of Army, Sampson N.T.S. and Holy Cross.

What the team lacks in experience they will make up in fight and spirit and it is only right that we, who attend the same school, should get out and add our spirit to theirs in a large cheering section. Since the new arrangement for the home games of the season finds all the trainees at the games and it is presumed that the other students will be there as they always are, there is no reason why the cheering of this season should not reach a new high.

Arrangements are under way to organize cheerleaders for the games to come and all we have to do is follow their leadership and show the team that is out there fighting for us, that we are behind them to a man. Doing this, we will have a successful season no matter how many game we win or lose.

CAPELLO, COACH

During the past year many Villanova alumni have been signed as football mentors for various football teams. Included among those recently given a coaching position was Robert "Bo" Capello, former Villanova and Temple athlete.

"Bo" Capello has been selected to head the coaching staff at Lower Paxton High School. He has succeeded Tom Gauntlet in this position.

Pre-Season Scrimmage

Finishing up the preparations for the coming gridiron season, the football team engaged a team from Penn in a scrimmage held here at the Main Line field. Shown above is an action photo of the game. Bucky Williams, lightweight and speedy Wildcat back, is seen galloping for a short gain in the hard-fought tilt.

Alumni Takes Second Half; Will Play Marines For Title

First Half Champs End in Second Place by Half Game; Waldorff, Best Pitcher of Softball Season, to Pitch Playoff Games

By PVT. LEM WENTLING

The curtain has been lowered on the second half of the Intramural Softball League with Alumni Hall in first place. The Marines, winners of the first half, placed a close second only a half-game behind. Austin, Fedigan, Students, and Mendel followed in that order.

Since the latter half had to be abbreviated only three weeks' games were played. Alumni showed good form from the very start, getting on her feet too late in the last half to annex that crown. Noteworthy is Don Boos, Austin righthander who held the second place Leathernecks to two hits in a 15-1 game in favor of Austin.

Final Second Half Standings

Alumni	7	1	1
Marines	7	2	0
Austin	4	4	2
Fedigan	3	6	1
Mendel	3	7	0

Leading Pitcher

Many of the games were ended with a low score thereby indicating good pitching backed up by good support in the field. Without a doubt, Charley Waldorff, Alumni speedballer, was the leagues leading hurler. Big Charley, who pitched a no-hit game several weeks ago, pitched every game for Alumni losing only one out of nine. The sole loss was to the second-place Marines in a 7-3 game in which he was bested by "Reds" Nealon. Nealon, who went all the way for the Marines boasts a good record also.

Students Forfeit

The closing night really provided a thrilling finish to things with Alumni risking their game lead to Fedigan and the Marines took on the Students. Alumni was ahead at the end of the third when Fedigan sent five men across on seven straight walks. Waldorff finally settled down however and retired the side before too much damage was done. It was then Jim Cahow's turn to get wild and he issued six straight passes in the fifth thereby enabling Alumni to score eight times while only one out was needed to end the game. The Students forfeited to the Marines and in the only other game of the evening Austin bowed to the Mendel Sailors without affecting the league standings.

The Marines and Alumni will engage in a three game series next week to decide the league champion and the following week the touch football league will open.

Johnny Wysocki, 'Cats All American, Signed As Coach

Johnny Wysocki, All American end at Villanova in 1937 and 1938 has been signed at Upper Merion High School, succeeding Lachman Reinhart, who has accepted a coaching position at Asbury Park High.

Wysocki coached at Clifton Heights in 1938 after graduation from the Main Line school, and remained there until 1940 when he resigned. Since that time he has been employed by duPont's and is now a foreman in the Carney Point (N.J.) plant.

Second All American

Johnny, who played in the Eastern lineup in the East West classic in 1939, employed the Notre Dame system while at Clifton Heights and is expected to continue that system at Upper Merion.

Johnny Wysocki was the second All American to come out of the Main Line school in the last ten years. In 1939 Eddie Michaels became the first Wildcat to achieve this honor and then Wysocki came along and for his spectacular play in the undefeated teams of 1937 and 1938 made the All American team both years as end.

After Wysocki had resigned his coaching job at Clifton Heights High School, he played some organized football with the Zuni Indians, a semi-pro football team and while with them exhibited much of his All American playing form.

Baseball Season Ends In Shutout Over Marine Team

Closing a summer season spotted with its highlights and dark spots, the Villanova varsity baseball team on August 25 shut out the Marine Corps Detachment from the Philadelphia Navy Yard in eight innings, 1-0. Against this, one of the better teams the Wildcats played during the season, John Anderson, Cat left fielder, came through after two outs in the first extra inning by driving a long double over the right field stands to send Jim Di Salvo home from second base with the winning run.

A Few Hits

Studded with players of major and minor league experience, the Marines twice got a man as far is third base only to strand him. At the same time, Salamatia who belongs to the Cleveland Indians held the Wildcat bats silenced. Only twice did a Villanova player reach third, but one time was all that was needed to win the game.

The Wildcats won only two games, from Penn 9-8 and from the Navy Yard Marines 1-0, out of the ten games played. However, there were strangely enough four ties two of which were against Swarthmore 10-10 and 3-3, and the other two ties were with Valley Forge Army General Hospital 1-1 and 2-2. These ties resulted from calling twilight games on account of darkness. After losing to Penn 4-1 and to the Philadelphia Coast Guard 13-2, the Cats extended Navy into 10 innings at Annapolis before Ralph Elsworth, plebe football star from Texas U., drove a double into left field scoring another Middie from second to win 8-7. The fourth loss came at the hands of Swarthmore 17-3.

Corr High

John Corr, who played steady ball for the Cats all season at shortstop, took the batting crown with a .372 average. Sandwiched in with his frequent hits were two triples and a double. Second in hitting, second baseman Dick Hoot took slugging honors with three two baggers and two home runs. One of Hoot's round-trippers came against Navy. With the bases loaded in the sixth inning Hoot drove a liner to the far reaches of Lawrence Field's center gardens to bring the Blue and White from beneath a three run deficit to a 7-6 lead.

Villanova Holds Final Scrimmage With Penn Squad

No Score Kept in Second and Final Scrimmage for Both Teams Before Season Begins; Teams Much Improved

Saturday afternoon found the Villanova football team engaging Penn in the second practice game of the season with the Quakers. Under a hot sun and on a dust filled field, the two fought a harder and much improved game for both teams. A resume of the practice found the Quakers effective in power plays which succeeded due to a well drilled and powerful line which allowed hard charging backs the opportunity to display their wares. The Wildcats found a large measure of their success was in the many sharp and completed aerials.

David Plays Well

Both coaches found the game illuminating, for they were able to discover the flaws which only a game can bring out. Here also were found the relative merits of each player. Outstanding for the Villanovans was their burly fullback, Bob David, who not only displayed strong offensive play but proved to be exceptionally able in his defensive work. It was his fine work in backing up the line that time and again stopped the crushing line and charging Penn backs.

Coming out for track in 1943 for the first time in his athletic career, they didn't have track at his Alma Mater, Aquinas High School, Rochester, N. Y., Don Schmitt showed amazing latent abilities. Not having readily acquired the winning sprint style which comes from experience, Don chose the 1 and 2 mile endurance runs where sheer guts count a trifle more than form.

where it seems one meets the nicest doubles partners.

During a "bull session" awhile ago when some of us were discussing "whites," Spark remarked that they reminded him of the white suits he used to wear in Panama. So, we found out that his dad, who worked on the Grand Coulee Dam previously, had taken a job with the government in Panama and has been there since 1939. During their vacation in the states a few months ago, we spent a day with his parents and found them real honest to goodness folks, even though his Mom never bids slams.

He is studying electrical engineering and was the units first Battalion Commander. There exists "mutual inductance" between him and Agnes at Garrett Hill. Here's hoping we are sent to the same midshipman school, Sparky.

"Jakeway," neatly printed on the board above a problem in Applied Mechanics, was the first name we learned upon arriving here July 6, 1943. For the first semester it remained merely a name, one connected with a disgustingly consistent record of A's—a standing he has kept, without bookworming, for three semesters.

When we were moved from Alumni to Mendel Hall in November, Phil, who still lives just across the hall, was one of the first ears we pounded when somebody lifted our "four-drawered" desk for a nice little green table. And he was no longer only a name.

Since 4.0 and sports usually don't mix, we were surprised to see Jake out for basketball last fall, surprised to see what "smart" ball he played although a trick knee cut down his speed. Later, we found out that he got the "floating cartilege" in the last football game of the season in his sophomore year at Kalamazoo College.

While there he also won varsity letters in golf and baskeball, being the first athlete in the school's 107 year history to win three varsity letters in his freshman year, Also, while here, he has "dabbled" in pitching for the baseball nine.

Judging from his high school and college records ("Jakely" was all-city in basketball and football at St. Augustine High, Kalamazoo), it looks as if that one "clip" in that one game cost Villanova an outstanding all-around athlete.

Jake is studying Chem. Engineering, is Mendel Hall's present company commander, having had prevoius executive experience as president of the wild and lusty Sigma Rho fraternity at Kalamazoo College. Since he lives in Kalamazoo, he would like to take his midshipman training at either Notre Dame or Northwestern.

Boswell had about 1000 pages. We had better stop here and say "good luck" to a couple of regular guys.

tice game found in the backfield: David at fullback spot, Sondheimer and Williams at the half positions and Ryan at quarterback. The opening line had Forrest and Kuzman at ends and Wille and West at guard. Tackles were Coleman and Eye with Tierney at the center spot.

This may not be the starting lineup for the season as many other players showed up exceptionally well in the scrimmage although they were not on the starting lineup. No score was kept and the only records taken were those notes taken by both coaches on the behavior of their teams and players.

"Ollie" and his charges, having taken stock of the scrimmage, are now working to polish up the "T." There are less than two weeks remaining before the opening game of the season with the University of Scranton on Saturday, September 23, to iron out all difficulties. Time remains for about ten more formal drills.

No Touch Ball

Having learned a lesson last year, Ollie warned members of the varsity squad against participation in the touch football league when activity gets under way.

Last year a great number of the members of the varsity team appeared with injuries and knowing full well that they had not been suffered in practice, he soon found the reason to be the intramural football league. A tough crew.

mile grind to take first place. In the same year he ran in the Middle Atlantic A.A.U. Outdoor Meet and also the dual meet with Navy. The Penn Relays of the same year saw him run the ¾ leg in the Distance Medley Relay and 2nd leg in the Frosh Mile Relay in which the team placed third.

With this little experience behind him, Don started the 1944 season by finishing fourth in the dual meet with Navy, doing the mile in 4:55. After running the Penn Relays and I.C. 4 A's, the "Speed Boy" found his stride and took first in the mile run at Swarthmore. Not quite outdoing himself, he also copped the first in the 1 mile and 2 mile runs at the Muhlenberg - Lehigh Triangular meet.

Continuing his streak, he also did a 4:32 mile to take the mile in the Phila. Officials Club A.A.U. meet. At the Neighborhood Summer Meet at Princeton, Don repeated his previous double win stunt this time finishing the season with a mile and ½ mile win, bringing his total to 6 consecutive firsts in his last six races.

here at Philadelphia. He succeeded later in returning to sea again aboard a coastal tender, but the ship's duties were mostly restricted to inland and coastal waters. After serving three years in the U.S.C.G., he was transferred into the U.S.N. as a V-5 stduent and assigned to the U. of Penn. Later he was reassigned as a V-12 engineering student to Villanova.

Before coming aboard, Henry Strauss was a Quartermaster Third Class attached to a new destroyer escort. With the complement of the ship's navigation department limited, his duties on the bridge, as a Quartermaster, were extended—i. e, he assisted the navigator and the officer of the deck, acted as a signalman and helmsman; and in general took care of all the odd ends around the bridge.

Much Action

His ship was quite active, and during his stay aboard, it made several trips to European Ports as a convoy escort. He took a liking to the ship, and the sea, and like many others, when his V-12 orders came thru, he found it difficult to leave behind his friends and ship.

It would have been quite unusual to have interviewed a group of premedical students, and not to have found among them, a fair share of ex-Corpsmen. However, the group was well represented in this field for there were Barrett, Davis, and Tanski, all of whom were formerly attached to the Navy medical department.

Darwin Barrett, now a freshman Pre-Dental student, was a Hospital Apprentice 1/c attached to the Naval Hospital, Mare Island, Cal. Here, for five months he worked as a Dental Technician, and found the job both interesting and educational. It was from this base that he was selected for the Navy College Training Program, and sent to Villanova.

Hospital Apprentice

Charlie Davis had to trek some two hundred miles from his home town of La Hunter, Colo., to Denver in order to get to the nearest naval recruiting station. Upon enlistment, he was immediately sent to the Farragut N.T.S., Idaho, where he obtained the required fundamentals of naval training. At the Treasure Island Corps School Cal., as a result of hard work and study, he was advanced to H.A. 1/c at the school's dispensary. His active duty was terminated at the Naval Air Station, Alameda, Cal., when he assumed his new duties in the V-12 program.

Richard Tanski, on the other hand, received both his basic and corpsman training at the Great Lakes N.T.S. He was then assigned to the Oak Knoll Hospital, Oakland, Cal. remaining only a short time before being transferred to the Dental School at Mare Island. The training at the school was completed in three months, and he was then assigned to Camp Parks, the last stop before Villanova.

Senior Banquet Of Phi Kappa Pi Set For Sept. 30

Frank Palumbo's Site of Planned Gala Evening; Awarding of Keys to Seniors to Highlight Events

At the bi-weekly meeting of the Phi Kappa Pi held Wednesday in Room 214, plans for the coming Senior Banquet were discussed. The date was set at September 30, 1944, and a combination of dining, dancing and entertainment have been planned for the enjoyment of all.

This exclusive Phi Kappa Pi affair will be held at one of Philadelphia's foremost cabarets and restaurants, Frank Palumbo's, situated at 8th and Christian Sts. Entertainment for the banquet will be furnished by the management.

The highlight of the gathering will be the awarding of keys to the elegible senior members of the fraternity. An eligible member is one who has been an active member of the frat during his years of membership and who has completely settled his financial accounts with the treasurer.

Prominent Guests

Prominent persons of the School of Engineering and of the college will be present as guests of the fraternity. The time will be announced at a future date and will provide ample time for attendance by those persons returning from the Franklin and Marshall football game.

Pledgees, that is, members of the School of Engineering who are in their second semester or who have completed two semesters or more and wish to join the frat, are urged to see Hugh Giliespie or Frank McQuinn at their earliest convenience, since all reservations must be in by next Monday.

Next ASME Meeting Planned For Friday

The student branch of the A.S.M.E. will hold their next meeting on Friday, September 22, at 6 P. M. in Room 215, Mendel Hall. The feature of the meeting will be a motion picture, "All Work and No Play." This picture describes the vibration problems which arise in modern machinery and the methods which are used to overcome these problems.

All members who have not as yet received their copy of the September issue of "Mechanical Engineering" may secure it at this meeting.

Mark Fitzgerald Rescues Germans From Blasted Sub

College Alumnus Helps Enemy Sailors Wounded In Attack By His Own Plane

When Lieut. (j.g.) Mark E. Fitzgerald visited his parents at Salamanca, N. Y., two months ago, he was on a special leave to recuperate after his plane was shot down by a German submarine which he successfully depth-charged. Details of his adventures have just been made public, for he said little while at home.

Mark entered training as soon as he graduated in 1942 with a degree of B. S. in Education. He had been a member of the Holy Name Society, the Band, and the Mu Alpha Theta during his last three years at Villanova. Since being commissioned as a Navy pilot at Corpus Christi, Feb. 19, 1943 he has flown a TBF and has been on a carrier with the Atlantic fleet most of the time. He was commissioned Lieut. (j.g.) in March, 1944.

Admiral Makes Report

Details of Lieut. Fitzgerald's experience with the German U-boat and its commander were revealed for the first time by Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, in Washington to the Buffalo Evening News.

"Ensign Fitzgerald," Admiral Ingersoll said, "was riding in a TBF as gunner-observer in an attack on a German submarine. The plane spun into the sea in making a tight turn following a successful depth-charge attack.

"After the plane crashed, Ensign Fitzgerald found a seat-pack life raft float nearby. When he got his raft inflated and got aboard he heard faint shouts from the area of the submarine's sinking. About an hour later he saw a man approaching. He said frankly he was scared to death, for he didn't know how many he might have to cope with. The fellow kept swimming toward him across the calm sea. When he was 50 yards away Ensign Fitzgerald called him asking if he could speak English. The man answered, "Nein."

Binds German's Wounds

"As the German came alongside, the pilot of another U. S. plane which had arrived overhead saw the men in the water and dropped his own life raft nearby.

"Ensign Fitzgerald required the German to swim over to the raft and push it back to him. Then he showed him how to open it; inflate it, and climb in. When the German was aboard, the flier brought the two rafts together, secured them, then turned his attention to the

Tickets On Sale For Council Hop

Tickets for the Blue and White Hop, student council dance to be held in the field house on October 14, arrived last Thursday and will be placed on sale some time this week, it was announced yesterday by Francis J. O'Connor, A.S., chairman.

Joseph H. Hoffman, A.S., chairman of the ticket committee, received the tickets last week and arranged to have them distributed to council members yesterday. No additional members will be assigned to this committee, but each council representative will undertake the task of distributing the tickets in his own hall.

Ticket price, as previously announced, has been set at $3.30, including tax. All students are urged to procure their tickets as early as possible in order to facilitate the work of the student council in making arrangements for the dance.

Malachy V. Boyle Wed In College Chapel Saturday

Lt. (j.g.) Malachy V. Boyle, of the class of '43, and Miss Frances Micklos, of St. Rose of Lima's Parish in Philadelphia, were married at a nuptial mass in the Villanova Chapel on Saturday, September 16. Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A., performed the ceremony.

Along with an excellent scholastic record amassed here at Villanova while working for his B.S. degree in Electrical Engineering, Lt. Boyle held many student offices. He was president of Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, Chairman of the Villanova branch of the A.I.E.E., and a member of Mu Alpha Theta, honorary engineering society. Miss Micklos was formerly secretary to William Slaughter, Alumni Secretary at Villanova.

Villanova Salts

By S. H. GOLDBERGER, A/S

Walter J. Rumpf is the first salt BETCHER INTERVIEW on today's list. Walter is from Tenafly, N. J., and his connections with the Navy began April 1, 1943, when he reported to the Naval Training Station at Newport, Rhode Island for two months of boot camp.

After leaving Newport, Walter proceeded to Naval Aviation Technical Training Center, Memphis, Tenn., where he spent four months in the Aviation Ordnance School, graduating Aviation Ordnanceman 3/c, then to the Naval Mine Welfare School, Yorktown, Virginia, where he spent six weeks.

Walt then trekked to Treasure Island, San Francisco, to await overseas transfer. When it came, it took him to Hawaii, where he was a ground crewman with a fleet air wing. It was here that V-12 claimed him, bringing him to Asbury Park Pre - Midshipmen's School last May. July 1 brought him to Villanova to begin his college work.

Next up to bat is Robert J. Coen, of West Orange, N. J., formerly Radioman 2/c. Bob entered the navy November 1, 1942, reporting to Great Lakes Naval Training Station for his "boots."

Next stop for Bob was the Navy Radio School at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Following his radio course, he was made Radioman 3/c and remained at the school for five months as an instructor.

Bob then moved on to Port Hueneme, California, where he took part in amphibious training. September 1943 found him on his way to the Central Pacific, where he took part in amphibious operations in the islands, operating communications equipment. While in the islands, Bob got his advance to Radioman 2/c.

In May, 1944, V-12 orders caught up with Bob and brought him to Asbury Park Pre-Midshipmen's School, concentration point for incoming trainees. There he took preparatory courses, and July 1 found him here at Villanova, ready to go.

Serves in Pacific

Another radioman among the salts is Robert F. Wilson, from nearby Wilmington, Delaware. Bob also took his boot training at Great Lakes, arriving in September, 1942, for a five-week stay. He then proceeded to the Navy Radio School at Northwestern University, at Evanston, Illinois, where he earned his rate of Radioman 3/c.

Bob then traveled to Treasure Island, San Francisco, and shipped out for New Caledonia, where he arrived in April, 1943. Here he took part in intensive invasion maneuvers until the end of May.

In June Bob took part in the invasion of New Georgia as a member of a base radio unit. He remained in the islands until April, 1944, during which time he received his promotion to second class.

Attends Sound School

After leaving the islands, Bob proceeded to Asbury Park Pre-Midshipmen's School, where he took pre-V-12 courses. July 1 brought him here to Villanova.

Doylestown, Pennsylvania, is the home of our next seadog, Horace Swartz. Horace's career in the Navy started February 1, 1943, at Bainbridge Naval Training Station, where he spent seven weeks in boot training. From Bainbridge he proceeded to Sound School at Key West, Florida, from which he graduated Soundman 3/c.

Horace then proceeded to the Philadelphia Navy Yard to wait for his ship, which was under construction. In July he went to the

George Nope and Pvt. Tom O'Connell Joint Directors; Theme of Navy Day; Much Local Talent

Yankee Doodle comes to Villanova for the third visit on Friday evening, October 13, when the Yankee Doodle Service Club of Jenkintown presents a well rehearsed show in the College Field House.

The show is under the joint direction of George Nope and Pvt. Thomas O'Connell. Mr. Nope is in charge of the female cast, while Pvt. O'Connell, a Marine trainee, directs the male troupe. The girls in the cast hail from Jenkintown and have given all of their spare time, voluntarily, to put on this show for the students of Villanova.

The production will be built around the theme of Navy Day. A number of surprise acts have been planned by both directors and variety will be the keynote of the entire show. The College Faculty and the entire service and civilian student body, as well as members of Ships' Company, are invited to attend the show.

Thorough Rehearsals

Rigorous rehearsals are being held each weekday evening until final plans of production have been completed. Mr. Robert Whelan, Athletic Association Secretary, whose specailty is music, may have a few musical surprises in store for the production. Mr. Whelan has been very instrumental in making arrangements for the Yankee Doodle show.

Part of the cast which will be seen in the various acts, consists of Pvts. Tom O'Connell, Bill Nealon, Charlie Strickroth, Wally Collins, Foster Blough and Dan Spaeth. Official warbler for the evening will be tenor Pvt. Dick Henson. Dick really does justice to many of our modern ballads.

Mr. Nope and Pvt. O'Connell have great faith in the success of their show, and a whole-hearted reception by the student body is hopefully anticipated.

Pre-Med Student Victim Of Polio

William S. Hunn, A.S., a trainee in the pre-medical curriculum on this station, died in the Naval Hospital at 10 o'clock last Tuesday morning, a victim of the recent poliomyelitis epidemic. He is survived by both his parents, who reside at 414 St. Vincent Street in Phila.

Although he had been slightly ill for the previous week, Hunn did not require medical attention at the sick bay until Friday, and only on Saturday was he confined to bed. On Sunday he was taken to the Bryn Mawr Hospital, where a spinal tap indicated his condition; and that night he was removed to the Naval Hospital.

Germ Reaches Brain

Monday brought apparent improvement in Hunn's condition, with only his speech giving external evidence of failure. Meanwhile, however, the disease was running an unusually fast course through his body. Tuesday morning it reached his brain, and he succumbed.

His body was laid to rest last Thursday afternoon at the impressive ceremonies of a military funeral. A guard of honor fired three volleys above his grave, and taps were sounded. Flowers were sent from the college in token of sympathy.

A native Philadelphian, Hunn received his elementary education at Woodrow Wilson Junior High, and graduated from Central High School in 1942. Before joining the navy and being assigned to Villanova on July 1, 1944, he attended Pre-medical school at the University of Pennsylvania. He was in his sixth college semester at the time of his death.

Let's Get Legitimate

DURING the past few years the Broadway stage has become what one might easily call degenerate. The productions which have been sponsored there, have been nothing short of cheap, immoral stories, having no decent plot whatever, but put on just for the purpose of luring the gullible public and taking in some of the surplus cash made by highly paid war workers, who are far from being good critics of either the drama or the musical.

In many of the cases a fairly good musical score has been made subservient to the sex-laden libretto, in order to gloss over either the obvious immorality of the plot or its incongruity. The conditions would not be so bad if the authors would come out boldly and say that their plots were written for no other reason than to make a mockery of sex life in general. However, they are sure that if such a statement were made their plays would certainly not be patronized by the decent public. Instead, they hide behind the merits of either the actors or the musical score.

There certainly is no need for conditions existing as they are. In the past, the Broadway stage has produced many shows that have made its reputation a good one, not only for the quality of the plot, but also for the marvelous actors who have portrayed the character roles. If present conditions continue, Broadway will certainly lose all sense of morality, its actors will become mere pawns of plots which require no dramatic ability, and the legitimate theater will cease to exist as such in this country.

The so-called "facts of life" which some of the authors state that they are trying to bring to the public eye, are not at all the conditions that prevail in social life. If what they say were true, then there certainly would be no need for moral restraint, laws, or decent living, and man might as well don the garb of an ape, and become a mere animal. If the true facts of life were really brought to the eye of the public, it is certain that some people would really be shocked at the decency which does exist in the social order.

In order to combat this rising influence which has taken a strangle hold on the theater, the theater public should investigate all productions before they are produced, so that an opinion can be formed beforehand on the morality of the plot and the quality of the entire show. In this manner the public would not only be benefiting itself, but also the theater, which needs to be aided in this crisis.

The stage, more or less reflects the morality of the nation. If such indecent shows are patronized, this must mean that the moral level of society has dropped considerably in the past years. If this were true, then this country would have to admit the defeat of all its principles. However, it is certain that such poor conditions do not prevail, and that the public in general certainly does not like pleasure in viewing such indecency.

The Broadway stage is already realizing the error it has made in producing shows merely for the sake of making money. The theater-goers and critics are continually assailing such indecent production. It seems almost a certainty, that in the future the legitimate stage will come to full realization of its mistake, and return to its original decency which in the past has built for it a fine reputation and the respect of the public.

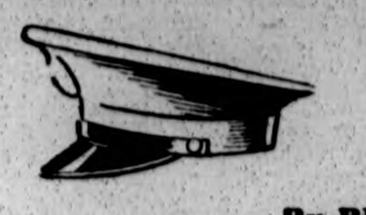
Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

IN Camp Lejeune, N. C., is long unheard from Vinnie Carlesimo who left us around this time last year. At present, Vinnie is an instructor in the new combat swimming course at Lejeune. Anyone who has seen him play football could say that he should go down as one of Villanova's greats in line play.

It was a surprise and a pleasure to see Don Collins' title changed from A/C to Ensign. He is now at Naval Air Station in Miami, Florida.

Joe Ringlestein writes from Notre Dame about what a tough time of it he is having. Poor Joe is really worried but has his uniforms ordered and is praying that he'll get to use them. Don't worry, Joe, we have the utmost faith in you as in all the other boys with you.

Jimmy Dean, another of the old gang, seems to be doing very well. Jimmy is now at William Jewell (ever hear of it?) in Liberty, Mo. He is now in a sixteen week class after which he expects to go to preflight. Jim says it is run like a V-12 school with a number of courses which are mostly review for him.

And still another of the crew from the days of "Come on Alumni"—Jack Krut. Jack is in the Quartermaster school in Gulfport, Mississippi ("the hottest state in the union").

Joe Brogan, a Soundman, 3rd class, dropped in recently while awaiting a DE to take him overseas. Joe said that Tom Doyle went over to France with invasion troops after the ASTP cut its program. Tom had been at Georgetown.

It has been more than two years since Frank Cullina set foot in the states. He is now a Major in the Fourteenth Army Corps, and his outfit was one of the first to land in Australia when the invasion of that continent was threatened by the Japs. He has also served on Guadalcanal and the Solomons.

From somewhere in Guadalcanal comes word that Private James R. Fox is on duty with the headquarters of an Ordnance group in the South Pacific. His organization supplies and maintains arms, ammunition, tanks and motor vehicles for units at the fronts. Fox's duties are of a clerical nature.

So as not to let you down we have gathered together the following tidbits from various and sundry comic books and other affiliated sources. Maybe this'll make you appreciate that inimitable, scintillating MacGil style.

ONCE again we approach the well-worn interviewer's clock, which turns backward as often as it does forward, and briefly review that period of time which includes the trials and misfortunes of two senior engineers, Patrick Murphy, A.S., and Lawrence E. Pilot, A.S.

It is doubtful when Pat first saw the light of the sun, for he was born February 8, 1924, in Latrobe, Pa.; and it is reported that even there the haze of 40-mile distant Pittsburgh obscures the sky to some extent.

At St. Vincent's Prep, also near Pittsburgh, he first began to earn a since well-established reputation for genius by meriting a place in the national honor society in his last two years. Here, too, his innocent Irish countenance won him a part in the college's passion play.

PATRICK MURPHY, A.S.

His fine work in high school was rewarded by a scholarship to St. Vincent's College at the time of his graduation in 1941. Here he chose a course which included chemistry as a major and mathematics as a minor. This left him well-equipped to enter the chemical engineering school when the navy transferred him to this college in July 1943.

In the extra-curricular line at St. Vincent's, Pat was Vice-president of the Press Club, an organization entrusted with covering campus news in press releases to the local papers. He also served on the student council, was an officer

Final Light Drills Held; Starting Lineup Selected

Team Brushes Up As They Prepare For Opening Game; Starting Team, Subject To Revision, Has Been Selected

By DAVID I. RYAN

With less than a week remaining before the opening tilt with the University of Scranton, away on Saturday, September 23, Coach Jordan Olivar is sending his charges through only light drills in order to polish up the "T" offensive, and to iron out any and all minor weaknesses which may spell trouble for the Wildcats, not only at Scranton but throughout the season.

The Main Liners plan to leave Villanova Friday, and spend the night at one of Scranton's hotels. A light limbering-up workout will probably be in order either Friday afternoon or night.

From the squad of approximately fifty men, Ollie plans to take along thirty-three for the trip.

Starting Lineup

Last Friday night, Coach Olivar announced a probable starting lineup, with substitutions. At right and left side of the line respectively, Bob Forrest, 185, and Bill Kuzman, same weight. Both are well suited for the Wildcat aerial offensive maneuvers because of their pass catching ability. Tackle duties will be ably handled by Len West and Ray Wille. West, playing right tackle is a transfer from Pitt and goes at 185, while running mate Willie, scaling five pounds lighter, has had only high school experience. Alex Colman and Duke Severson will take care of the guard assignments. Neither of these men need any introduction to Villanova football fans, both having been members of last years squad.

Guard To Kick

In addition to his guard duties, Severson may also do some place kicking, as he ranks as one of the better members of the team in this department. In the middle of it all playing center, will be Dick Tierney, from Miami University of Florida.

Handling what is probably the most difficult task, that of quarterbacking of the entire "T" system will be Dick Hoot, who got a late start in football this year because of his diamond activities. Wearing the Villanova Blue and White at the halfback slots probably will be Bucky Williams and Bob Griffith. Both are aggresive and fast, and should show up well. At fullback will be burly Bob David, who it is expected, will fill the vacant shoes of Al Postus, 1943 spearhead of the Villanova offense.

Good Reserves

Backing up this array of football material on the line will be Frank Eye and John Freytag at the guards, Frank Brady and Rodger McRae tackles, and Dick Evans and Gene Peyton on the ends.

Slated for reserve backfield service at the halfback posts are Marc Abribrat and Frank Cassiano. The latter is a Marine combat veteran. having participated in the first landing at Guadalcanal.

No fullback replacement has as yet been mentioned, but at quarter, Dick Hoot can rely upon Bill Ryan for relief.

Scranton opened its grid season last Saturday against Franklin and Marshall College, which is the second team scheduled for the Wildcats.

INTRAMURALS

With intramural softball finished for the year the moderators of the intramural athletics have announced a touch football league to begin in the coming week. This league will follow the same general style as that of last year.

Three Selected For Cheerleader Posts This Year

With the opening of the football season in the offing, a call for cheerleaders to lead the local student 'rickety rax' resulted in the formation of a team of three spirit raisers. In order of importance are the volunteers: Gordon Evans, captain, and co-assistants, John Ziesel and Gridley Stookey.

Experienced Men

All three of the men have experience in this business and in addition all are expert acrobats, thereby promising many sideline thrills and spills in the season to come. The acrobats will form an important part of the leading. They will set off a whole series of new and old cheers which are now in the process of preparation.

A mimeographed list of cheers and the school songs are being made up and will be distributed to the students in order to familiarize them with the Wildcat cheers. Some rallies are to be held in the near future at a date as yet undetermined. With the full student body present at all the games much spirit is expected during the games.

Volunteer Court Players In Pre-Season Practices

Villanova's 1944-45 basketball team has now been in practice for five weeks despite the hot summer weather. The call for candidates came out in the first days of August approximately four months before the opening of the regular season. Coach Al Severance decided to follow the same procedure as Jordan Olivar did with the football team, that is, get the men out early and drill them on the fundamentals.

About forty aspirants appeared on the first night and these have been whittled down until the squad now consists of fifteen men. Four of these, Lee Carter, Jim Gallagher, Bill Shanburger, and Joe Walters have all had college experience, Walter being the only holdover from last year's club. Carter played for Colorado College before entering the Navy, Gallagher, for La Salle, while Shanburger was an opponent of last year having appeared on the Villanova court as a member of the Loyola Greyhounds.

Some Experience

Five others, "Red" Bathgate, Chuck Froelicker, Dave Ward, Ken Reeher, and Randy Walker have had high school experience. Bathgate and Reeher both played in P. I. A. A. ball, Reds for Altoona and Reeher for Sharon. Ward is a Philadelphia Catholic League product having played at West Catholic. Froelicker is just out of Parks High, Baltimore, where for the past two years he has gained a place on the All-City five. Randy Walker, erstwhile quarter-miler of the track team was the 6 ft., 3 in. center on

Lt. Andy Chisick, Former Grid Star, Returns from War

With Four First Landings on Pacific Isles With Marines and Field Commission, Andy Returns, Wounded

By FRANK SOLIS A. S.

Returning to his Alma Mater in a blaze of glory that made his former fame appear as a diminutive candle in comparison, Andy Chisick, famous Marine hero of the war and former star of the undefeated Wildcat eleven, paid his respects to his former teachers and athletic associates.

LT. ANDY CHISICK

Pro Player

Born in Sagmore, Pa., Andy attended Our Lady of Good Council High School in Newark, N. J. Upon graduation, he matriculated at Villanova College where he played center on the famous undefeated team of 1937, under the tutelage of Coach Clipper Smith. He remained on the team until 1939. Voted All Pennsylvanian, All East, and a runner up for All American Center, it was only natural for Andy to try his hand at "Pro-ball." This he did, playing with the Chicago Cardinals in 1940-41.

Signing the dotted line February 2nd, 1942, Andy entered the United States Marine Corps as a raw recruit without having any previous military experience what-so-ever.

After his seven week stint at P. I., Andy was sent with the rest of his buddies to New River for a two week training period and then—that ominous short furlough, the lull before the storm, so to speak.

After a short stay at New Zealand, Pvt. Chisick was promoted to the rank of corporal and then shipped to Guadalcanal where he participated in his first encounter with the enemy, August, 1942. How well that date stands out in his mind. A member of the original group that landed on "Guadal", Cpl. Chisick showed such great bravery and daring that he was decorated and promoted on the field to the rank of 2nd Lieutenant.

From Guadalcanal, Andy left for Australia where he again came in contact with his stepping stone to fame, football. This time on the coaching end. Named "Red Raiders" after the famous Marine raider, Col. E. Edson, his crack ball club included Bob McCracken, noted full back from Temple and other pigskin worthies. Andy proudly boasts of his undefeated team, winning 3 out of 3.

Leaving Australia, he went to New Guinea, in the thick of the war area. Starting with Milne Bay,

Wildcats Meet Scranton In First Game of Season

Up Staters Will Field All Civilian Team After a Year's Layoff; Brother Of Vince Carlesimo Coaching Scranton Team

By PVT. LEM WENTLING

The curtain will rise on the 1944 Varsity football schedule this coming Saturday afternoon at the University of Scranton's gridiron. This will mark the first time in history that the two schools have met. For Scranton it marks a resumption of play after discontinuing football for the 1943 season.

The biggest threat for the up-state rivals is Jim Clauss, 185 lb. fullback. Jim, though only 17 is a college junior and his ability as both a distance passer and hard runner is much to Scranton's favor. His blocking back will be Gerald McEneny, who hails from nearby Wilkes-Barre and is a southpaw passer.

Calling the signals will be Don Filipelli, an all around athlete from Harrisburg Catholic whose deception in handling the ball bears watching. The other member of the backfield will be Tommy Flanagan, former All-State back, who is adept in passing, kicking, and running.

Basketball Ability

Leading pass receiver for Pete Carlesimo's charges is Jack Fenney, 188 lb. high school star in his first season of college competition. Pairing off with Fenney will be Joe Walsh, towering six feet, his basketball ability will aid him in snatching forward passes next week. Co-Captain Len Modzelesky will fill the left tackle spot and provide a lot of strength in Scranton's forward wall.

At the other tackle position will be Vinny Bielinski, 210 lbs. who won the position for his tremendous power on the defense. Co-Captain Gene Mooney is outstanding guard aspirant of which there are many and he will be seen at that post. On the other side of the center will be Tony Violanti, a discharged war veteran who played with the Purple in 1941. At the pivot Is Buck Butkiewicz who shows much ability in backing up the line.

Vince's Brother

Scranton, like Villanova, will employ the "T." Coached by Pete Carlesimo, brother of Vinnie Carlesimo, Villanova tackle of the last three seasons, the Purple will be composed of an all civilian team. In 1942 Scranton won five, lost four and tied one. One of the five victories was a 34-7 beating administered to Camp Kilner who will meet the Wildcats later in the season. This will be the second game on Scranton's card. They defeated F. & M. last Saturday After the Main Liners they will meet Bloomsburg State Teachers, Atlantic City Navy Air Corps and the Navy Plebes.

Marines - Alumni Tied In Playoff; All Stars Chosen

The Alumni Hall sailors and the marines from Austin Hall, having once again emerged as the one-two teams in Intramural competition, this time in softball, have knotted up the playoff series with one win for each club.

Last Monday night, the pre-meds defeated the Marines 4-3 in an eight inning game. With a four run rally in the last frame, the sailors built a lead that the Leathernecks fell one short of matching in their half of the inning.

Waldorf Wild

On Friday night the Marines returned to the diamond to deal the Sailors their second loss of the season 13-7. The winners took full advantage of Charley Waldorf's wildness, coupling his seven walks and a wild pitch with six hits to coast to victory on a big second inning.

The Sailors outhit their khaki foe by gathering nine hits but they did not receive the opportunities that they had granted the opposition.

The Intramural Sports Moderators, Fathers Kemme and Girolami announced the results of the All-Star team poll as chosen by the captains of the six league teams and the moderators. Charley Waldorf, Alumni's ace pitcher, and Marc Abribat, center fielder of the Marines, were unanimous choices for their respective positions on the First Team.

Outside of two positions taken by the Civilian Residents and one by Fedigan, the other five spots were also taken by Marines and Premeds. Traister, catcher, Magner, second base, and Oristian, third base fill out the Alumni representation.

Habenicht, shortstop, and Peterman, left fielder, are from the Marines; the Residents were Riley, rightfielder, and Quinn, shortfielder; and Smith, firstbaseman, was the only Fedigan member. The Marines placed four men, Stookey, Greeley, O'Connell and Scharnberg on the second team, with Cahow and Bundick of Fedigan, Hall and Dorwart of Austin, Shea of Alumni, and Manning of Mendel rounding out the squad.

Lt. Bill Howlett Buried Saturday

On Saturday, September 16, a Solemn High Mass was sung for the repose of the soul of Lt. William Howlett, U.S.M.C., former Villanova gridiron great.

The funeral mass was celebrated at the Church of the Holy Souls, 19th and Tioga Sts., in Philadelphia. Celebrant of the mass was the Rev. Joseph Dougherty of Roman Catholic High School and Deacon was the Rev. James Boling. Present at the mass were the Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice President of Villanova, and Rev. Robert Sullivan, O.S.A., and the Rector of Roman Catholic High School. A short eulogy was given by Father Dougherty.

Lt. Howlett was a victim of the vicious battle of Guam in which he participated. A graduate of Roman Catholic High and later famous for his fine football playing here at Villanova, Bill graduated in the class of '42 and immediately entered the Marine Corps. Commissioned, he then shipped out and had engaged in much bitter fighting until his d[illegible]

Instead, they hide behind the merits of either the actors or the musical score.

There certainly is no need for conditions existing as they are. In the past, the Broadway stage has produced many shows that have made its reputation a good one, not only for the quality of the plot, but also for the marvelous actors who have portrayed the character roles. If present conditions continue, Broadway will certainly lose all sense of morality, its actors will become mere pawns of plots which require no dramatic ability, and the legitimate theater will cease to exist as such in this country.

The so-called "facts of life" which some of the authors state that they are trying to bring to the public eye, are not at all the conditions that prevail in social life. If what they say were true, then there certainly would be no need for moral restraint, laws, or decent living, and man might as well don the garb of an ape, and become a mere animal. If the true facts of life were really brought to the eye of the public, it is certain that some people would really be shocked at the decency which does exist in the social order.

In order to combat this rising influence which has taken a strangle hold on the theater, the theater public should investigate all productions before they are produced, so that an opinion can be formed beforehand on the morality of the plot and the quality of the entire show. In this manner the public would not only be benefiting itself, but also the theater, which needs to be aided in this crisis.

The stage, more or less reflects the morality of the nation. If such indecent shows are patronized, this must mean that the moral level of society has dropped considerably in the past years. If this were true, then this country would have to admit the defeat of all its principles. However, it is certain that such poor conditions do not prevail, and that the public in general certainly does not like pleasure in viewing such indecency.

The Broadway stage is already realizing the error it has made in producing shows merely for the sake of making money. The theater-goers and critics are continually assailing such indecent production. It seems almost a certainty, that in the future the legitimate stage will come to full realization of its mistake, and return to its original decency which in the past has built for it a fine reputation and the respect of the public.

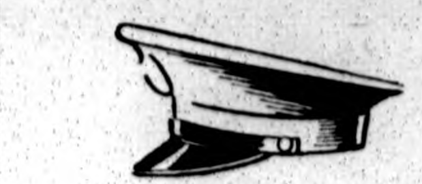
Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

IN Camp Lejeune, N. C., is long unheard from Vinnie Carlesimo who left us around this time last year. At present, Vinnie is an instructor in the new combat swimming course at Lejeune. Anyone who has seen him play football could say that he should go down as one of Villanova's greats in line play.

It was a surprise and a pleasure to see Don Collins' title changed from A/C to Ensign. He is now at Naval Air Station in Miami, Florida.

Joe Ringlestein writes from Notre Dame about what a tough time of it he is having. Poor Joe is really worried but has his uniforms ordered and is praying that he'll get to use them. Don't worry, Joe, we have the utmost faith in you as in all the other boys with you.

Jimmy Dean, another of the old gang, seems to be doing very well. Jimmy is now at William Jewell (ever hear of it?) in Liberty, Mo. He is now in a sixteen week class after which he expects to go to preflight. Jim says it is run like a V-12 school with a number of courses which are mostly review for him.

And still another of the crew from the days of "Come on Alumni"—Jack Krut. Jack is in the Quartermaster school in Gulfport, Mississippi ("the hottest state in the union").

Joe Brogan, a Soundman, 3rd class, dropped in recently while awaiting a DE to take him overseas. Joe said that Tom Doyle went over to France with invasion troops after the ASTP cut its program. Tom had been at Georgetown.

It has been more than two years since Frank Cullina set foot in the states. He is now a Major in the Fourteenth Army Corps, and his outfit was one of the first to land in Australia when the invasion of that continent was threatened by the Japs. He has also served on Guadalcanal and the Solomons.

From somewhere in Guadalcanal comes word that Private James R. Fox is on duty with the headquarters of an Ordnance group in the South Pacific. His organization supplies and maintains arms, ammunition, tanks and motor vehicles for units at the fronts. Fox's duties are of a clerical nature.

ONCE again we approach the well-worn interviewer's clock, which turns backward as often as it does forward, and briefly review that period of time which includes the trials and misfortunes of two senior engineers, Patrick Murphy, A.S., and Lawrence E. Pilot, A.S.

It is doubtful when Pat first saw the light of the sun, for he was born February 8, 1924, in Latrobe, Pa.; and it is reported that even there the haze of 40-mile distant Pittsburgh obscures the sky to some extent.

At St. Vincent's Prep, also near Pittsburgh, he first began to earn a since well-established reputation for genius by meriting a place in the national honor society in his last two years. Here, too, his innocent, Irish countenance won him a part in the college's passion play.

PATRICK MURPHY, A.S.

His fine work in high school was rewarded by a scholarship to St. Vincent's College at the time of his graduation in 1941. Here he chose a course which included chemistry as a major and mathematics as a minor. This left him well-equipped to enter the chemical engineering school when the navy transferred him to this college in July 1943.

In the extra-curricular line at St. Vincent's, Pat was Vice-president of the Press Club, an organization entrusted with covering campus news in press releases to the local papers. He also served on the student council, was an officer

Team Brushes Up As They Prepare For Opening Game; Starting Team, Subject To Revision, Has Been Selected

By DAVID I. RYAN

With less than a week remaining before the opening tilt with the University of Scranton, away on Saturday, September 23, Coach Jordan Olivar is sending his charges through only light drills in order to polish up the "T" offensive, and to iron out any and all minor weaknesses which may spell trouble for the Wildcats, not only at Scranton but throughout the season.

The Main Liners plan to leave Villanova Friday, and spend the night at one of Scranton's hotels. A light limbering-up workout will probably be in order either Friday afternoon or night.

From the squad of approximately fifty men, Ollie plans to take along thirty-three for the trip.

Starting Lineup

Last Friday night, Coach Olivar announced a probable starting lineup, with substitutions. At right and left side of the line respectively, Bob Forrest, 185, and Bill Kuzman, same weight. Both are well suited for the Wildcat aerial offensive maneuvers because of their pass catching ability. Tackle duties will be ably handled by Len West and Ray Wille. West, playing right tackle is a transfer from Pitt and goes at 185, while running mate Willie, scaling five pounds lighter, has had only high school experience. Alex Colman and Duke Severson will take care of the guard assignments. Neither of these men need any introduction to Villanova football fans, both having been members of last years squad.

Guard To Kick

In addition to his guard duties, Severson may also do some place kicking, as he ranks as one of the better members of the team in this department. In the middle of it all playing center, will be Dick Tierney, from Miami University of Florida.

Handling what is probably the most difficult task, that of quarterbacking of the entire "T" system will be Dick Hoot, who got a late start in football this year because of his diamond activities. Wearing the Villanova Blue and White at the halfback slots probably will be Bucky Williams and Bob Griffith. Both are aggresive and fast, and should show up well. At fullback will be burly Bob David, who it is expected, will fill the vacant shoes of Al Postus, 1943 spearhead of the Villanova offense.

Good Reserves

Backing up this array of football material on the line will be Frank Eye and John Freytag at the guards, Frank Brady and Rodger McRae tackles, and Dick Evans and Gene Peyton on the ends.

Slated for reserve backfield service at the halfback posts are Marc Abribrat and Frank Cassiano. The latter is a Marine combat veteran, having participated in the first landing at Guadalcanal.

No fullback replacement has as yet been mentioned, but at quarter, Dick Hoot can rely upon Bill Ryan for relief.

Scranton opened its grid season last Saturday against Franklin and Marshall College, which is the second team scheduled for the Wildcats.

INTRAMURALS

With intramural softball finished for the year the moderators of the intramural athletics have announced a touch football league to begin in the coming week. This league will follow the same general style as that of last year.

Three Selected For Cheerleader Posts This Year

With the opening of the football season in the offing, a call for cheerleaders to lead the local student 'rickety rax' resulted in the formation of a team of three spirit raisers. In order of importance are the volunteers: Gordon Evans, captain, and co-assistants, John Ziesel and Gridley Stookey.

Experienced Men

All three of the men have experience in this business and in addition all are expert acrobats, thereby promising many sideline thrills and spills in the season to come. The acrobats will form an important part of the leading. They will set off a whole series of new and old cheers which are now in the process of preparation.

A mimeographed list of cheers and the school songs are being made up and will be distributed to the students in order to familiarize them with the Wildcat cheers. Some rallies are to be held in the near future at a date as yet undetermined. With the full student body present at all the games much spirit is expected during the games.

Volunteer Court Players In Pre-Season Practices

Villanova's 1944-45 basketball team has now been in practice for five weeks despite the hot summer weather. The call for candidates came out in the first days of August approximately four months before the opening of the regular season. Coach Al Severance decided to follow the same procedure as Jordan Olivar did with the football team, that is, get the men out early and drill them on the fundamentals.

About forty aspirants appeared on the first night and these have been whittled down until the squad now consists of fifteen men. Four of these, Lee Carter, Jim Gallagher, Bill Shanburger, and Joe Walters have all had college experience, Walter being the only holdover from last year's club. Carter played for Colorado College before entering the Navy, Gallagher, for La-Salle, while Shanburger was an opponent of last year having appeared on the Villanova court as a member of the Loyola Greyhounds.

Some Experience

Five others, "Red" Bathgate, Chuck Froelicker, Dave Ward, Ken Reeher, and Randy Walker have had high school experience. Bathgate and Reeher both played in P. I. A. A. ball, Reds for Altoona and Reeher for Sharon. Ward is a Philadelphia Catholic League product having played at West Catholic. Froelicker is just out of Parks High, Baltimore, where for the past two years he has gained a place on the All-City five. Randy Walker, erstwhile quarter-miler of the track team was the 6 ft., 3 in. center on

Lt. Andy Chisick, Former Grid Star, Returns from War

With Four First Landings on Pacific Isles With Marines and Field Commission, Andy Returns, Wounded

By FRANK SOLIS A. S.

Returning to his Alma Mater in a blaze of glory that made his former fame appear as a diminutive candle in comparison, Andy Chisick, famous Marine hero of the war and former star of the undefeated Wildcat eleven, paid his respects to his former teachers and athletic associates.

LT. ANDY CHISICK

Pro Player

Born in Sagmore, Pa., Andy attended Our Lady of Good Council High School in Newark, N. J. Upon graduation, he matriculated at Villanova College where he played center on the famous undefeated team of 1937, under the tutelage of Coach Clipper Smith. He remained on the team until 1939. Voted All Pennsylvanian, All East, and a runner up for All American Center, it was only natural for Andy to try his hand at "Pro-ball." This he did, playing with the Chicago Cardinals in 1940-41.

Signing the dotted line February 2nd, 1942, Andy entered the United States Marine Corps as a raw recruit without having any previous military experience what-so-ever.

After his seven week stint at P. I., Andy was sent with the rest of his buddies to New River for a two week training period and then—that ominous short furlough, the lull before the storm, so to speak.

After a short stay at New Zealand, Pvt. Chisick was promoted to the rank of corporal and then shipped to Guadalcanal where he participated in his first encounter with the enemy, August, 1942. How well that date stands out in his mind. A member of the original group that landed on "Guadal", Cpl. Chisick showed such great bravery and daring that he was decorated and promoted on the field to the rank of 2nd Lieutenant.

From Guadalcanal, Andy left for Australia where he again came in contact with his stepping stone to fame, football. This time on the coaching end. Named "Red Raiders" after the famous Marine raider, Col. E. Edson, his crack ball club included Bob McCracken, noted full back from Temple and other pigskin worthies. Andy proudly boasts of his undefeated team, winning 3 out of 3.

Leaving Australia, he went to New Guinea, in the thick of the war area. Starting with Milne Bay,

Wildcats Meet Scranton In First Game of Season

Up Staters Will Field All Civilian Team After a Year's Layoff; Brother Of Vince Carlesimo Coaching Scranton Team

By PVT. LEM WENTLING

The curtain will rise on the 1944 Varsity football schedule this coming Saturday afternoon at the University of Scranton's gridiron. This will mark the first time in history that the two schools have met. For Scranton it marks a resumption of play after discontinuing football for the 1943 season.

The biggest threat for the up-state rivals is Jim Clauss, 185 lb. fullback. Jim, though only 17 is a college junior and his ability as both a distance passer and hard runner is much to Scranton's favor. His blocking back will be Gerald McEneny, who hails from nearby Wilkes-Barre and is a southpaw passer.

Calling the signals will be Don Filipelli, an all around athlete from Harrisburg Catholic whose deception in handling the ball bears watching. The other member of the backfield will be Tommy Flanagan, former All-State back, who is adept in passing, kicking, and running.

Basketball Ability

Leading pass receiver for Pete Carlesimo's charges is Jack Fenney, 188 lb. high school star in his first season of college competition. Pairing off with Fenney will be Joe Walsh, towering six feet, his basketball ability will aid him in snatching forward passes next week. Co-Captain Len Modzelesky will fill the left tackle spot and provide a lot of strength in Scranton's forward wall.

At the other tackle position will be Vinny Bielinski, 210 lbs. who won the position for his tremendous power on the defense. Co-Captain Gene Mooney is outstanding guard aspirant of which there are many and he will be seen at that post. On the other side of the center will be Tony Violanti, a discharged war veteran who played with the Purple in 1941. At the pivot Is Buck Butkiewicz who shows much ability in backing up the line.

Vince's Brother

Scranton, like Villanova, will employ the "T." Coached by Pete Carlesimo, brother of Vinnie Carlesimo, Villanova tackle of the last three seasons, the Purple will be composed of an all civilian team. In 1942 Scranton won five, lost four and tied one. One of the five victories was a 34-7 beating administered to Camp Kilner who will meet the Wildcats later in the season. This will be the second game on Scranton's card. They defeated F. & M. last Saturday After the Main Liners they will meet Bloomsburg State Teachers, Atlantic City Navy Air Corps and the Navy Plebes.

Marines - Alumni Tied In Playoff; All Stars Chosen

The Alumni Hall sailors and the marines from Austin Hall, having once again emerged as the one-two teams in Intramural competition, this time in softball, have knotted up the playoff series with one win for each club.

Last Monday night, the pre-meds defeated the Marines 4-3 in an eight inning game. With a four run rally in the last frame, the sailors built a lead that the Leathernecks fell one short of matching in their half of the inning.

Waldorf Wild

On Friday night the Marines returned to the diamond to deal the Sailors their second loss of the season 13-7. The winners took full advantage of Charley Waldorf's wildness, coupling his seven walks and a wild pitch with six hits to coast to victory on a big second inning.

The Sailors outhit their khaki foe by gathering nine hits but they did not receive the opportunities that they had granted the opposition.

The Intramural Sports Moderators, Fathers Kemme and Girolami announced the results of the All-Star team poll as chosen by the captains of the six league teams and the moderators. Charley Waldorf, Alumni's ace pitcher, and Marc Abribat, center fielder of the Marines, were unanimous choices for their respective positions on the First Team.

Outside of two positions taken by the Civilian Residents and one by Fedigan, the other five spots were also taken by Marines and Premeds. Traister, catcher, Magner, second base, and Oristian, third base fill out the Alumni representation.

Habenicht, shortstop, and Peterman, left fielder, are from the Marines; the Residents were Riley, rightfielder, and Quinn, shortfielder; and Smith, firstbaseman, was the only Fedigan member. The Marines placed four men, Stookey, Greeley, O'Connell and Scharnberg on the second team, with Cahow and Bundick of Fedigan, Hall and Dorwart of Austin, Shea of Alumni, and Manning of Mendel rounding out the squad.

Lt. Bill Howlett Buried Saturday

On Saturday, September 16, a Solemn High Mass was sung for the repose of the soul of Lt. William Howlett, U.S.M.C., former Villanova gridiron great.

The funeral mass was celebrated at the Church of the Holy Souls, 19th and Tioga Sts., in Philadelphia. Celebrant of the mass was the Rev. Joseph Dougherty of Roman Catholic High School and Deacon was the Rev. James Boling. Present at the mass were the Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice President of Villanova, and Rev. Robert Sullivan, O.S.A., and the Rector of Roman Catholic High School. A short eulogy was given by Father Dougherty.

Lt. Howlett was a victim of the vicious battle of Guam in which he participated. A graduate of Roman Catholic High and later famous for his fine football playing here at Villanova, Bill graduated in the class of '42 and immediately entered the Marine Corps. Commissioned, he then shipped out and had engaged in much bitter fighting until his death.

wounds of he German, employing the bandages and medicine in his kit. The German was surprised at the treatment.

"Later there were more calls in the distance. Two more men moved into sight, swimming toward the raft. When they approached, Ensign Fitzgerald was astonished that men could even stay afloat in their condition, much less swim a mile in the open sea.

Enemy Captain Wounded

"One, who identified himself as the commanding officer, had a gaping wound in his shattered knee as well as head wounds that took 50 stitches to close after he had been taken aboard ship. The captain climbed on the raft. The other hung on.

"'Did you fire on my ship?' asked Ensign Fitzgerald, hitching his sheathed knife around into easy reach.

"The captain of the lost submarine looked at him cagily, 'You mad?'

"'No, I'm not mad, just want to know.'

"The young Nazi relaxed. 'Sure, my gun crews shot at it. We shot it down.'

"Ensign Fitzgerald proceeded to bandage up the captain's wounds and those of the third German. The captain stuck out his hand to shake. 'You good fellow. Damn war!'" in the chemistry society, and a member of the Literary Club. Both here and at St. Vincent's the name Murphy has appeared consistently on the honor rolls, and has even been attached to the exalted order of the 4.0's.

Pat will finish next month and move on to service with the navy elsewhere. After the war, he hopes to attend Carnegie Tech long enough to earn his master's degree in chemistry. Beyond that his plans are general; but, judging by his record to date, they can only lead to succees along whatever path they lead him.

A big, healthy hunk of potential Seabee graces the rolls of the senior civil engineering department this semester in the person of our next victim, Larry Pilot.

Born in the nearby metropolis on January 3, 1924, Larry attended St. Joseph's Prep. (That's where the misfortune angle of our story comes in.) Here he was a member of the school crew and bowling team. In addition to maintaining an honor rating scholastically, he was also a member of the magazine and year book staff.

After graduation in 1941, he matriculated at St. Joseph's College and chose Physics for his major field of study. At this time, he transferred his athletic interests to track, while continuing his journalistic endeavors as a member of the newspaper staff.

Due to differences in the physics curricula at St. Joseph's and C. E. here, Larry does not have quite the requisite credits for graduation and, therefore, plans to return for a semester after the war and obtain his degree.

Right now, as he awaits orders concerning his next navy assignment, he has his heart set on the Seabee outfit at Camp Endicott in Davisville, Rhode Island. For the navy's sake as well as his own, we hope they won't pass him up.

Miami Subchaser Training Center. Following this, the ship went on temporary patrol duty in the Caribbean.

Promoted to 2/C

Later on, the ship went through the Canal, and saw duty in many of the famous places of the Pacific. While at Pearl Harbor, Horace received his promotion to SoM 2/c. He was in New Hebrides when his V-12 orders reached him in March, bringing him to Asbury Park Pre-Midshipmen's School. Following preparatory courses, Horace reached Villanova on July first to enter V-12.

Anchor man today is Charles N. Wolfe of Tamaqua, Pa., who entered the Navy in March, 1943 at Sampson Naval Training Station, where he spent eight weeks in boot camp. Following his boots, he was sent to Norfolk Naval Air Station, where he entered the Aviation Radio School.

Instructor in Radio

Charlie finished radio school with the rate of ARM 3/c and then went to work as an instructor in the school. He was thus employed when the Naval Air Station was rocked by the tremendous explosion which cost the life of the first WAVE casualty of the war, a girl in the same school.

With the school disrupted, Charlie was transferred to the Norfolk Receiving Station, from which he shipped out. He was assigned to a Fleet Air Wing operating in the African theater as aviation radioman. His group flew Liberators on anti-submarine and night patrol work. Charlie received his second class rating while there.

V-12 orders brought Charlie back to New York by plane, and he reported to Asbury Park for V-12 preparatory courses. He joined the Villanova unit on July first.

he was successively shipped to Ora Bay and Cape Gloucester, where he took part in the original landings on Christmas morning. Becoming more and more noted for his exceptional bravery, Andy was always seen where the fighting was thickest.

From Cape Gloucester Lt. Chisick proceeded to Tolessea, of the New Britain group. Here he hit the beaches with the original landing party and stood in the fore as the dauntless drive of the Marines gained momentum. On the sands of this Pacific Isle, however, Andy "met his downfall." Suffering a head wound, he was sent back to New Guinea and then to the land of Aussies.

Many Ribbons

After recuperating for a while in Australia, he was shipped to California and then to Philadelphia Naval Hospital. Today this handsome young hero of the war, who certainly has done more than his share of the fighting, wears on his broad chest a Presidential citation ribbon, a purple heart ribbon with star attached, and other ribbons showing that he participated in four major campaigns in the Pacific area.

Some in Football

Of the remaining six, five gained experience in last year's Intramural League and strangely enough, all of these were members of Mendel's Engineers; these are Leroy Collegeman, Joe Dwyer, Joe Costello, who was chosen as a second team player on the All League team; Jim Shoemaker, and Dick Madigan. Last but by no means least, is another lad who hits 3 inches above 6 ft., Jim Dillon.

Bob Forrest of the 43-44 Wildcats is playing end on the football eleven and won't be available till after the gridiron season. Another gridder who will probably be out for the team is Dick Hoot, a key man in the T formation at quarterback, who previously starred at Swarthmore High. Dick Tierney, 6 ft. snapper back is also expected to be out and should help materially in getting the ball on the rebounds.

Helping Al to mold a representative squad is Phil Jakeway, one of last season's tall Cedars who leaves at the end of this semester for Midshipman's School.

Student Council Plans Tea Dance At Rosemont Sun.

Neighbors Host to Students Needing Dates for Blue and White Hop; Betty Barton Here With Warrington

As plans for the forthcoming Blue and White Hop are taking shape, arrangements for a Tea Dance at Rosemont College on Sunday afternoon, October 1, from 3:00 to 6:00 P. M., were announced by Francis J. O'Connor, A.S., Chairman of the Student Council, sponsors of the dance.

Members of all four classes at the neighboring college have arranged for the friendly get-together whose main purpose is to enable Villanova students to strike up acquaintances with the Rosemont lasses and perhaps get dates for our coming big fall dance on October 14.

BETTY BARTON

The band committee has recently completed the necessary details in regard to contracting John Warrington and his orchestra for the dance. Along with Johnny and his popular contingent of musicians will come Betty Barton, charming songstress, and Bon Bon, popular radio and recording artist.

Sang With College Bands

Betty Barton, product of Penn State College, came directly from college to Johnny Warrington. Betty sang with several college bands and this prompted her to embark upon her singing career. Though comparatively new to the Warrington organization, her popular acclaim is evidence that she is destined to go far.

In other categories of the plans for the Blue and White Hop, Frank Ronan, chairman of the program committee has announced that the program is already at the printers. He was ably assisted by James Cassin, A.S., who together mustered about 40 patrons to completely settle the financial details of the programs.

Decorations Planned

As regard decorations, John M. Millet, A.S., and Thomas P. Welch, A.S., chief decorators, have announced definite plans for the transformation of the field house into a ballroom. The theme of the decorations will be blue and white, and the football season. Color will be added by hanging pennants of all colleges in set designs on the walls. New check-room facilities have also been arranged for by the decorators.

The ticket committees, consisting of the delegates in each hall are hard at work distributing tickets. The representatives in each hall are: Mendel: Joseph Hoffman and Hugh Gillespie, A.S.; Fedigan: James Malone and Frank McBride, A.S.; Alumni: James Cassin and William Taylor, A.S.; Austin: Pvts. Ray Kasper and Mike Berry; Civilian Residents: Frank Ronan and Patrick Reagan; Day Hops: Frank Facciola, Joseph McLaughlin and John Wilson.

Second Lieutenants Tom Doyle, '42, and Daniel Fisher Decorated for Meritorious Service

By PAUL CIAMAICHELA

Latest news received from Villanova focuses attention on the fact that many are now serving in various theaters of operations and have distinguished themselves in the service of their country.

A note sent to Father McKee by Mrs. Florence M. Doyle, reveals that her son, second Lieutenant Thomas H. Doyle Jr., was recently awarded the Air Medal and an Oak Leaf Cluster, presented to him by Lieutenant General George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific. Doyle has just completed his 40th mission on September 6th.

Editor of Villanovan

Tom was Editor or the Villanovan in 1941-42. He was quite an active student, being a member of the Belle Air Staff, Orchestra Committee for the Junior Prom, History Seminar, Book Club, Orientation Committee, and the Student Council. He also took a keen interest in intramural athletics.

Tom's goal in future life was to follow his journalistic talents which would naturally lead him to the literary field, where they could be used to good advantage. Before his induction, Tom was waiting to be called to Washington, D. C., where he had secured a position as a Civil Service employee by taking competitive examinations.

Awarded Silver Star

Second Lieutenant Daniel I. Fisher, ex '45, navigator on a B-24 Liberator Bomber, was reported "missing in action" on August 22nd over Hungary, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Fisher, 4335 Devereaux Ave., Philadelphia.

Dan left Villanova in 1942 to join the Air Corps. He was commissioned March 18, 1944 and was sent overseas on July 20th. It is known that during this short period of time Daniel took part in the invasion of Southern France, for which he was awarded the Silver Star. His mission over Hungary was believed to have been his first in that area, taking off from a base somewhere in Italy.

Hoberg Elected AIEE Chairman

Flynn, Gerngross and Adams Also Named Officers; Plant Trip Rearranged

George A. Hoberg, A.S., has been elected chairman of the college branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, it was announced last Thursday by the retiring officers.

Assisting him will be Michael N. Flynn, A.S., vice-chairman; Joseph J. Gerngross, A.S., secretary; and Raymond F. Adams, A.S., treasurer. All four men are juniors in the electrical engineering department.

The new chairman is well recommended for his post by the excellence of his work. A consistent honor student, he has frequently attained the distinction of a straight A record. In his sophomore year, he became the first member of that class to hold the position of editor of this paper.

A further announcement on the same date stated that the society's plant trip to the Franklin Institute had been split into two sections because of the large number attending. Seniors visited the institute last Friday, and juniors will make the trip on Friday of this week.

College Extension School Registers Students This Week

Classes for the new scholastic year of the Villanova Evening Session will begin on Thursday evening of this week, and the Saturday Session will start a week later.

Registration for the Evening Session will be held on September 25, 26, and 27 between 6:30 and 9:30 P. M., while the Saturday school registration will take place on the 30th. Both will be held at Hallahan High School, 19th and Wood Sts., Philadelphia, where the classes will be held.

These classes are provided for the benefit of those who seek a higher education and are unable to attend full-time day school. The courses are of college grade and carry credit which can be applied toward a degree.

New classes will also begin soon in Engineering, Science, and Management War Training courses which are offered by the college under the sponsorship of the federal government. These courses do not carry credit, but are designed to prepare men for industry.

Lt. Edward Kelly Wounded; Fought In Special Force

Commando Outfit, Black Devils, Spread Terror in German Ranks; Serve in Kiska

By HUGH FALLON

According to news just received by the college, Lt. Edward M. Kelly, of the class of '41 whose home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., took part in the battle for Kiska and the recent Italian campaign, as a member of the Super-commandos, or Black Devils.

This Special Service Force, one of the Army's elite, is a tough, secret, highly trained outfit that has fought its way through some of the hottest spots of the war.

LT. EDWARD KELLY

It has made history since the day its 35-year-old commander, wiry, long-nosed Colonel Robert Frederick began combing out recruits from 8,000 "volunteers for extremely hazardous missions." Those he selected (some were U.S. Regular Army men, half were Canadians, and the rest U. S. citizen soldiers) were picked for ruggedness, military skills and calculating recklessness.

Receive Varied Training

The training of the S.S.F. never ended. Its troops learned all the commando tricks. They learned to march 57 miles in 24 hours with full packs. They became ski troops, qualified as parachutists, were whisked from Vermont to Florida to Montana to find the right ground for learning new skills.

They were armed and clothed with U. S. equipment, drilled English-style, saluted either flat-handed like the British, or finger-tips-to-forehead, G.I.-fashion. Two of the three top commanders were men from the U.S., most of the battalion leaders, Canadian. Most top sergeants were Canadian; most junior officers, from below the border.

Japs Not There

The Force's first mission was Kiska, where two regiments went ashore in rubber boats with instructions to use nothing but their icepick-shaped stilettos on the Japs. There were no Japs there, but the Force learned more about living and marching in the field, refused to be tempted into "trigger happy" firing.

Last winter they turned up in Italy; along the road to Cassino, they captured peak after mountain peak. They then moved to the Anzio beachhead. There for 99 nights they painted their faces black and roamed through the German positions. The Germans called them "then men with funny pants and dirty faces." The diary of a dead German paid them their most cherished tribute: "The black devils are all around us every time we come into the line, and we never hear them come."

P.K.P. Completes Plans For Gala Senior Banquet

Dean Morehouse, Lt. McClintock, Capt. Morgan Among Guest Speakers; Dinner To Be Served At 8:30 P. M. Sharp

Final arrangements for the Senior Banquet of the Phi Kappa Pi, to be held Saturday evening, September 30, at Frank Palumbo's, were completed last week, it was announced yesterday by Francis McGuinn, A.S., president of the fraternity.

A tentative list of guest speakers and guests for the gala affair was drawn up. Among the prominent men on the campus who will address the assembled Frat members will be J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the Engineering School; Lt. James A. McClintock, Executive Officer of the Unit, and Capt. Robert L. Morgan, Commandant of the Marine Detachment.

Key Presentations

Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., will present the fraternity keys to deserving members of the Senior Class. This will be the feature of the evening as it marks the climax to four years of active membership for the recipients. Fr. Klekotka was Frat president during his college days at Villanova.

Among the Professors who will be guests of the fraternity will be Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Dr. Rudolf Drenick, Professors Emil Amelotti, John Oakey, John Gallen, Joseph Greyson, Harry Bueche, Mr. George Auth, Mr. John Brown and Mr. William Gorman.

The time of the banquet has been set for 8:30 P. M. but all attending are advised to get there ahead of time as the dinner will be served at 8:30 sharp. President McGuinn also announced that reservations have already been made for fifty-six couples and those who have not turned in their reservations as yet are advised to do so as soon as possible.

ASME Plans Movies About P-19 Trainer

The next meeting of the Student Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will be on Friday, September 29, at 6 P. M. It will be held in the usual place, 215 Mendel Hall. The meeting will feature an interesting motion picture dealing with the construction and performance of the P-19 Trainer.

Members and prospective members are reminded by Chairman Eugene P. Weinert, A.S., that the next official period for submitting renewals and applications begins October 1. All renewals and applications should, if possible, be submitted at this meeting, or as soon after as is possible.

Pocket Book Novels Donated To Library

Recently about half a hundred mystery novels of the pocket book type were donated to the library. They vary from full length mystery novels to collections of short thrillers. Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., intends to install them in the bookcase in the lounge room in the library. Here they will be available to the students for their use.

The books will not be catalogued and they will not have to be checked out for outside use. In all, there are fifty seven books, and in addition to the mystery novels there is a collection of Noel Coward's plays and several other volumes of slight value as literature.

Tough Battles with Japan Foreseen By Lt. Harry August, Former Exec.

By DAVID I. RYAN

Despite the tremendous power and weight of attack the United States is hurling against the Wehrmacht both in western Germany and northern Italy, events of far-reaching importance are shaping up in the Pacific Theater for the complete annihilation of any and all Jap forces who would stand in the way of the crushing blows which are to be dealt to their homeland by our armed might.

But the United States isn't waiting for the European V-Day nor for a complete compilation of war goods with which to hammer the Oriental stab-in-the-back artists. Many of the bases which will play an important role in the final surge against the Japanese homeland have been wrested from the Nips in some of the fiercest and bloodiest fighting seen in this or any war.

First Exec. of Unit

These and numerous other messages of equal import were received in a recent letter from Lieutenant Harry W. August, USNR, former Executive Officer of the ship's company here at Villanova, to Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A. Lieutenant August, now seeing active service in the Pacific, who was transferred from Villanova in April of 1944, overcame the almost impposible task of writing to all of his friends because of a lack of time or press of duties, by pounding out a single copy, and having it mimeographed.

For all intents and purposes, a major portion of the letter could well be published as a war correspondent's report to a somewhat lethargic American public—drowsing in the clouds of European victories. For prior to receiving his commission in March, 1943, Lieutenant August was a journalist. Just before entering the Navy, Lieutenant August was Professor of Journalism at the University of Duquesne and News Editor of the Pittsburgh Press.

Japs Are Fanatical

With a newspaperman's point of view, Lieutenant August appreciates the fact that almost all of the important news is now centered upon the war in Europe, but counsels his friends to take cognizance of the fact that "the eyes of the world will soon turn towards the Pacific." But it's going to be a bloody show.

wounds of he German, employing the bandages and medicine in his kit. The German was surprised at the treatment.

"Later there were more calls in the distance. Two more men moved into sight, swimming toward the raft. When they approached, Ensign Fitzgerald was astonished that men could even stay afloat in their condition, much less swim a mile in the open sea.

Enemy Captain Wounded

"One, who identified himself as the commanding officer, had a gaping wound in his shattered knee as well as head wounds that took 50 stitches to close after he had been taken aboard ship. The captain climbed on the raft. The other hung on.

"'Did you fire on my ship?' asked Ensign Fitzgerald, hitching his sheathed knife around into easy reach.

"The captain of the lost submarine looked at him cagily, 'You mad?'

"'No, I'm not mad, just want to know.'

"The young Nazi relaxed. 'Sure, my gun crews shot at it. We shot it down.'

"Ensign Fitzgerald proceeded to bandage up the captain's wounds and those of the third German. The captain stuck out his hand to shake. 'You good fellow. Damn war!'" in the chemistry society, and a member of the Literary Club. Both here and at St. Vincent's the name Murphy has appeared consistently on the honor rolls, and has even been attached to the exalted order of the 4.0's.

Pat will finish next month and move on to service with the navy elsewhere. After the war, he hopes to attend Carnegie Tech long enough to earn his master's degree in chemistry. Beyond that his plans are general; but, judging by his record to date, they can only lead to succees along whatever path they lead him.

A big, healthy hunk of potential Seabee graces the rolls of the senior civil engineering department this semester in the person of our next victim, Larry Pilot.

Born in the nearby metropolis on January 3, 1924, Larry attended St. Joseph's Prep. (That's where the misfortune angle of our story comes in.) Here he was a member of the school crew and bowling team. In addition to maintaining an honor rating scholastically, he was also a member of the magazine and year book staff.

LAWRENCE PILOT, A.S.

After graduation in 1941, he matriculated at St. Joseph's College and chose Physics for his major field of study. At this time, he transferred his athletic interests to track, while continuing his journalistic endeavors as a member of the newspaper staff.

Due to differences in the physics curricula at St. Joseph's and C. E. here, Larry does not have quite the requisite credits for graduation and, therefore, plans to return for a semester after the war and obtain his degree.

Right now, as he awaits orders concerning his next navy assignment, he has his heart set on the Seabee outfit at Camp Endicott in Davisville, Rhode Island. For the navy's sake as well as his own, we hope they won't pass him up.

Miami Subchaser Training Center. Following this, the ship went on temporary patrol duty in the Caribbean.

Promoted to 2/C

Later on, the ship went through the Canal, and saw duty in many of the famous places of the Pacific. While at Pearl Harbor, Horace received his promotion to SoM 2/c. He was in New Hebrides when his V-12 orders reached him in March, bringing him to Asbury Park Pre-Midshipmen's School. Following preparatory courses, Horace reached Villanova on July first to enter V-12.

Anchor man today is Charles N. Wolfe of Tamaqua, Pa., who entered the Navy in March, 1943 at Sampson Naval Training Station, where he spent eight weeks in boot camp. Following his boots, he was sent to Norfolk Naval Air Station, where he entered the Aviation Radio School.

Instructor in Radio

Charlie finished radio school with the rate of ARM 3/c and then went to work as an instructor in the school. He was thus employed when the Naval Air Station was rocked by the tremendous explosion which cost the life of the first WAVE casualty of the war, a girl in the same school.

With the school disrupted, Charlie was transferred to the Norfolk Receiving Station, from which he shipped out. He was assigned to a Fleet Air Wing operating in the African theater as aviation radioman. His group flew Liberators on anti-submarine and night patrol work. Charlie received his second class rating while there.

V-12 orders brought Charlie back to New York by plane, and he reported to Asbury Park for V-12 preparatory courses. He joined the Villanova unit on July first.

he was successively shipped to Ora Bay and Cape Gloucester, where he took part in the original landings on Christmas morning. Becoming more and more noted for his exceptional bravery, Andy was always seen where the fighting was thickest.

From Cape Gloucester Lt. Chisick proceeded to Tolessea, of the New Britain group. Here he hit the beaches with the original landing party and stood in the fore as the dauntless drive of the Marines gained momentum. On the sands of this Pacific Isle, however, Andy "met his downfall." Suffering a head wound, he was sent back to New Guinea and then to the land of Aussies.

Many Ribbons

After recuperating for a while in Australia, he was shipped to California and then to Philadelphia Naval Hospital. Today this handsome young hero of the war, who certainly has done more than his share of the fighting, wears on his broad chest a Presidential citation ribbon, a purple heart ribbon with star attached, and other ribbons showing that he participated in four major campaigns in the Pacific area.

Some in Football

Of the remaining six, five gained experience in last year's Intramural League and strangely enough, all of these were members of Mendel's Engineers; these are Leroy Collegeman, Joe Dwyer, Joe Costello, who was chosen as a second team player on the All League team; Jim Shoemaker, and Dick Madigan. Last but by no means least, is another lad who hits 3 inches above 6 ft., Jim Dillon.

Bob Forrest of the 43-44 Wildcats is playing end on the football eleven and won't be available till after the gridiron season. Another gridder who will probably be out for the team is Dick Hoot, a key man in the T formation at quarterback, who previously starred at Swarthmore High. Dick Tierney, 6 ft. snapper back is also expected to be out and should help materially in getting the ball on the rebounds.

Helping Al to mold a representative squad is Phil Jakeway, one of last season's tall Cedars who leaves at the end of this semester for Midshipman's School.

Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., will present the fraternity keys to deserving members of the Senior Class. This will be the feature of the evening as it marks the climax to four years of active membership for the recipients. Fr. Klekotka was Frat president during his college days at Villanova.

Among the Professors who will be guests of the fraternity will be Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Dr. Rudolf Drenick, Professors Emil Amelotti, John Oakey, John Gallen, Joseph Greyson, Harry Bueche, Mr. George Auth, Mr. John Brown and Mr. William Gorman.

The time of the banquet has been set for 8:30 P. M. but all attending are advised to get there ahead of time as the dinner will be served at 8:30 sharp. President McGuinn also announced that reservations have already been made for fifty-six couples and those who have not turned in their reservations as yet are advised to do so as soon as possible.

ASME Plans Movies About P-19 Trainer

The next meeting of the Student Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will be on Friday, September 29, at 6 P. M. It will be held in the usual place, 215 Mendel Hall. The meeting will feature an interesting motion picture dealing with the construction and performance of the P-19 Trainer.

Members and prospective members are reminded by Chairman Eugene P. Weinert, A.S., that the next official period for submitting renewals and applications begins October 1. All renewals and applications should, if possible, be submitted at this meeting, or as soon after as is possible.

Pocket Book Novels Donated To Library

Recently about half a hundred mystery novels of the pocket book type were donated to the library. They vary from full length mystery novels to collections of short thrillers. Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., intends to install them in the bookcase in the lounge room in the library. Here they will be available to the students for their use.

The books will not be catalogued and they will not have to be checked out for outside use. In all, there are fifty seven books, and in addition to the mystery novels there is a collection of Noel Coward's plays and several other volumes of slight value as literature.

Tough Battles with Japan Foreseen By Lt. Harry August, Former Exec.

By DAVID I. RYAN

Despite the tremendous power and weight of attack the United States is hurling against the Wehrmacht both in western Germany and northern Italy, events of far-reaching importance are shaping up in the Pacific Theater for the complete annihilation of any and all Jap forces who would stand in the way of the crushing blows which are to be dealt to their homeland by our armed might.

But the United States isn't waiting for the European V-Day nor for a complete compilation of war goods with which to hammer the Oriental stab-in-the-back artists. Many of the bases which will play an important role in the final surge against the Japanese homeland have been wrested from the Nips in some of the fiercest and bloodiest fighting seen in this or any war.

First Exec. of Unit

These and numerous other messages of equal import were received in a recent letter from Lieutenant Harry W. August, USNR, former Executive Officer of the ship's company here at Villanova, to Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A. Lieutenant August, now seeing active service in the Pacific, who was transferred from Villanova in April of 1944, overcame the almost impposible task of writing to all of his friends because of a lack of time or press of duties, by pounding out a single copy, and having it mimeographed.

For all intents and purposes, a major portion of the letter could well be published as a war correspondent's report to a somewhat lethargic American public drowsing in the clouds of European victories. For prior to receiving his commission in March, 1943, Lieutenant August was a journalist. Just before entering the Navy, Lieutenant August was Professor of Journalism at the University of Duquesne and News Editor of the Pittsburgh Press.

Japs Are Fanatical

With a newspaperman's point of view, Lieutenant August appreciates the fact that almost all of the important news is now centered upon the war in Europe, but counsels his friends to take cognizance of the fact that "the eyes of the world will soon turn towards the Pacific." But it's going to be a bloody show.

The fanatical stands of the Jap-

Back 'Em Up

AS ANOTHER football season with its attendant public demonstrations of school spirit opens, there comes once again to the fore in campus gossip a subject which has been a continual sore spot since the V-12 program began over a year ago.

Trainees, who number the great majority of the student body, refuse to pay allegiance to a college which is not of their own choosing but which is to them merely an institution of learning to which they have been assigned by navy orders. As long as this attitude continues there can never be any worthwhile backing of the football team.

Last year, while we could never condone this attitude, we could at least find some explanation for it in the fact that many men were newly arrived from other college campuses which they had been accustomed to think of as their alma maters and to which they still remained loyal in their thoughts.

By now, however, a good percentage of those here are fleet men without previous college training or boys directly in from high school. Villanova is the only college which these men will ever attend, and it would seem logical that they should grasp the opportunity to establish for themselves strong and lasting ties with an institution which could in later years become a center of contact with the friends of their youth.

Many have withheld their allegiance because they have not been as happy here as they were before. Such men should remember that the cause for this cannot be ascribed primarily to Villanova. Besides attending college they are actually serving a tour of duty with the navy here. Military regulations and inhibitions would render quite different the college life they remember so fondly, no matter where they were stationed.

If this appeal falls on deaf ears, then support your team for another reason. Forget that this is a college, remember only that it is a unit in a military organization. The men who will compose the team are your friends, your roommates, your "shipmates."

There are no imported athletes on the squad; the team is truly representative of the outfit which is stationed here. It is composed mostly of small, light, inexperienced boys whose principal recommendation to date is the fighting nature which leaves them undisturbed at the thought of facing bigger, older, more experienced teams.

For this reason, if no other, the unit should be solidly behind the ball team which Villanova will field this year. And yet we fear that the facts are sadly otherwise; most men would be quick to declare their connection with a winning, well-publicized team. The fickle mob quickly jumps on the winner's bandwagon, but speaks softly of their association with a weak team.

Remember that these men are your buddies, that their showing reflects on you. Help make interesting for them, what your attitude threatens to make a drab season. Learn the cheers which have been devised and give whole-hearted support at the games when we attend in a body. Help revive the spirit which once did so much to make college life a pleasure.

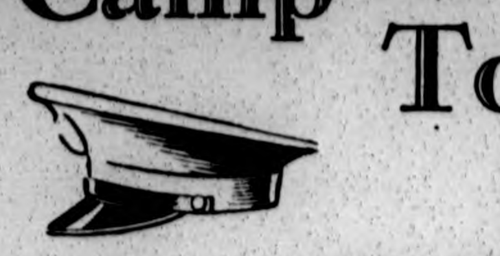
Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

THAT was Jim Hobbs we saw with the gold stripe Saturday. Jim, as far as we found out, is going to Washington to become a gunnery officer. Remember him in that wrestling bout last year?

Sorry to say that we didn't get to know all the visiting officers last week for there was quite a number of them, especially Ensigns. One of them was Ben Paradee, one of the best liked guys while here. We hear he looked terrific. Ben is going to the West Coast where he will pick up a task force.

Ensign Connolly also dropped over while on leave from his Oiler, we believe. Connolly went through the invasion of Normandy and Southern France and said that he met thirteen other Villanovans while in that area. He mentioned that Frank Moscariello was quite badly wounded. Let's say a few prayers that he pulls through all right.

PFC Neal McGee is in Kansas teaching gunnery for the new B-29's. Newt Ward is now in sunny California. And our pal, Eddie Murphy, is now out in the Pacific.

Tim Schneider is now in the South Atlantic. He really gets around—South Pacific to South Atlantic.

Andy Stopper, our worry against Sampson last year, has been starring on the Bainbridge softball team as a catcher and cleanup hitter and expects to be available for the Commodore's all-star outfit this fall.

Gene Konopka writes from New River that Greg DiAngelo is like a toothpick now. Can you imagine!

John J. Greeley has recently arrived in India to serve an American Red Cross club director. Greeley has served the Red Cross on Guadalcanal and in Australia.

Kevin McChesney is in Aviation Ordnance school out west. Bill Boyle left us last week to go into the Navy. He was on his way to Great Lakes when he said goodbye to us.

Meet the Boys

By GEORGE HOBERG, A. S.

ALUMNI HALL'S engineers expect the first deck to be a rather dull place next semester, for by that time three of their more colorful "characters" will be en route to the high seas. Who, they ask, will carry on the many traditions established by this inimitable trio? Who will be able to whistle through his teeth and say "sonny!" in such excellent imitation? Who will match those many classic statements about girls, and young love, and "respect"? Who will tell them whether or not "the chow was good today, men!"?

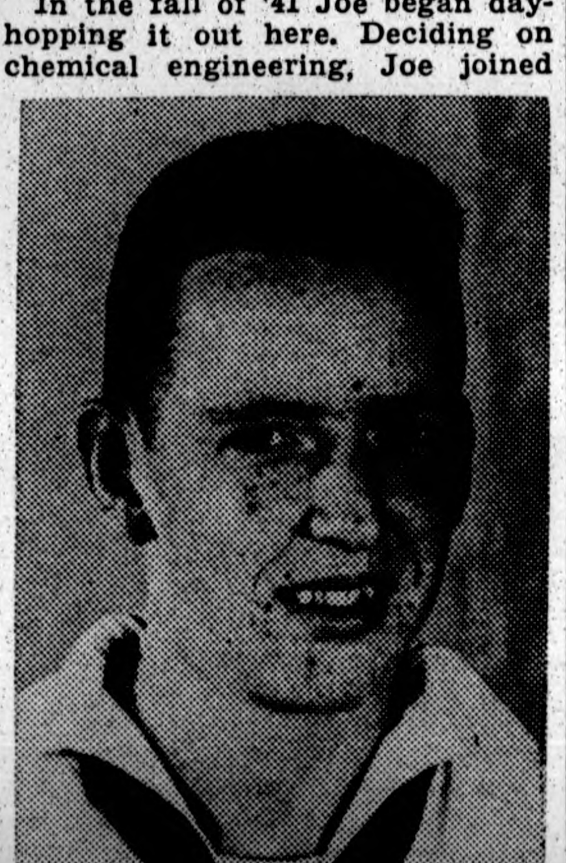
Yes, it'll be a pretty dull place, all right.

But let's take a brief look into the lives of these notables who have been making life livable for so many of us.

Joseph J. Joyce docked at the port of Prospect Park on Dec. 6, 1923, and immediately began sucking his thumb. This fact demonstrates his great foresight and desire for education, for before many years had passed Joe was using that thumb to transport himself to West Catholic High.

West appreciated this and many others of Joe's talents, and when he finished there they awarded him a scholarship to Villanova.

In the fall of '41 Joe began dayhopping it out here. Deciding on chemical engineering, Joe joined Phi Kappa Pi and the student chapter of the A.I.Ch.E., and soon proved himself worthy of membership in the math society. He justified W.C.'s faith in him by hitting the honor roll every semester, and the A.I.Ch.E., hearing of his remarkable prowess, last year awarded him a medal for being the "outstanding junior chemical engineer."



JOSEPH JOYCE, A.S.

You'd never believe it if you watched him roll a game, but Joe was a member of the bowling team that walked off with the frat championship a couple of semesters ago.

Some of Joe's fondest memories center about those civilian-era poker games which have now become extinct. And he'll never forget the time he got caught flipping for pennies and had to wash the library windows!

J J. J. is still a bit undecided about what branch of his field he'll

REEL ONE

LITTLE did we know back when we joined this fighting outfit, that the passing of each year of super-service would be marked, not by swank parties and gal-ah! festivals, but rather by the infection of dejection, namely those annual booster shots. By now the effects of Secret Serum X03652 have passed on and you are once again back to normal (?) which is better than being horizontal.

But alas—it has not passed without leaving its treacherous mark—or should we say scar; then again that would be unfair, because many of these gashes took only 11 or 14 stitches and besides. . .if you lose an arm you can always cut your sleeve off. They make wonderful potholders.

But enough of these cheap commercials. Let us get back to the meaty subject at hand. First you all must agree that any little inconvenience entailed, such as tripping over a limp dangling arm or treading upon one's fingernails was certainly worth the trouble just to see such a sharp outfit in action. Personally, at times we were a trifle scared. We know it was rather silly of us, but when Jittery Joe, the Pharmacist's Mate, reared back and banged three guys in "the Back Row" before his "serum sender" struck Home (Home being short for Homer, the target in mind) we began to wonder.

But then "This kind of treatment cannot be tolerated to any degree, Villanova being in the state of Pennsylvania, etc.," said the doctor, so measures were taken. Into Joe's empty hand was placed another needle, thus reducing the percent of error by 50%. This made everything fine until we saw the assistant needle pusher, "Big George." As first we came upon him he was about to mix it with his first patient, who had already staunchly thrust out his slender arm, shut his eyes, and gritted his teeth. For such an occasion as this, and due to the fact that George weighed only 88 pounds, a special procedure was in order. Picking up the longest needle available which was as long as a pole, George strode to the end of the runway, then turning sharply about he wheeled and, running as fast as he could dug the weapon in and then swung smartly over the head of the innocent dupe. Of course this didn't always work, but George was pretty good, as he had had a vast amount of experience as polevaulter and knitter for Jab. U.

Anyway, it's all over now.

Social Sidelights

By JOSEPH M. SULOCK, A.S.

THAT inspection . . . we really weren't worried . . . not too much.

We're a week late with this (we had to duck some shrapnel—Jack Hubert spent his weekend in home-town Washington catering to the whims of red-haired Cathy. Of all the women in Washington, we wonder why Jack chooses a member of the traditionally tempermental clan.

Auld Lang Syne — Paul Miller was surprised to find former Washington flame Liz Mahoney was now at Chestnut Hill in the Cadet Nurse Corps. Paul lost no time in renewing the acquaintanceship.

Love is Blind — LeRoy Collegeman, self-styled campus casanova, sported pretty Ruth at the Hot Shoppe after attending Media's Summer Playhouse, the Hedgerow Theatre. LeRoy claims that she is so attractive that even misogynist George Mattson couldn't help admiring her.

We consider this unfair to L.H.C. but—Herb Lamb, ever philosophizing, remarked that after a week at the books, no woman is unattractive. Attribute it to eye-strain or just plain loneliness, whichever you will.

Amusement Directory — Just in case you didn't know the rodeo now showing at the Arena, 45th and Market Sts., is said to be quite colorful and entertaining by those who have seen it.

ChezVous, Sixty-ninth's dancing emporium, has reopened after its summer layoff.

New Leaf — John Doherty, the man's man, has finally arrived at the conclusion that women aren't so bad after all. We haven't the heart to tell of the incident that prompted he-man Doherty's abrupt changeover.

Question of the Week — Last Friday night's pep rally was attended by approximately one-half of the student body. Our interrogation concerns the whys and wherefores of the other half's inability to attend. We are not attempting to crusade, but merely trying to discover what has become of the traditional college spirit and zest.

Eulogy Department — Congratulations to the football squad on their splendid victory last Saturday. Observers of the game were particularly impressed by the fine spirit underlying the Villanovan's brilliant playing. Which is somewhat of a contrast.

Shrapnel

It Hits Everywhere

WITH brisk breezes, patient plaids, and mellow moonlight, the football season opens.

The team's victory in Scranton last weekend prompts our reoprts on their activities. Captain Duke Severson was game conscious except at 10:30 Friday night when he had a punt blocked by an anonmymous character.

Headliner — Don Peterson made 60 yards in the game—going in and out.

Roses to—Jim McDaid and John McGuire. That bed deck was something. How many to a room?

New Pants to—David and Eye.

Thorns to—Dick Evans who dropped a pass in the game but didn't miss when a blonde made a pass from the stands.

Rain Check to—George Rossiter and Mark Abribat who have some bus fare coming. Do you follow, fellows?

It seems Cassiano did a great job with the Scranton crowd. They were behind him all afternoon. We don't talk about ear-banger Sullivan.

In accord with the fast moving events of today, the latest line "As you were" was revamped the other day by one J. Caudle who, noticing his roommate pass by with his sparsely populated cranium, blurted out, "As it were".

Intramural Softball Champions

The softball league this season ended in a deadlock between Alumni and the Marine team and was decided by a playoff in which Alumni took two out of three games to secure the crown. Above are shown the members of the winning team. Top, l. to r.: Gallagher, Oristian, O'Neill, Magner, Hoberg, Bombick; bottom: Shea, Waldorff, Traister, Rozensky.

Alumni Defeat Marines, 7-5 To Win The Softball Crown

Waldorff Pitches Two-Hitter But Issues 11 Free Passes; O'Neill Has Perfect 4 For 4 At Plate

By DAVE WARD, A.S.

Alumni Hall's Pre Meds won the Intramural Softball Championship of the campus last Wednesday evening by defeating the Marines, 7-5, on the field in back of Mendel.

Charlie Waldorff, the winning pitcher, yielded only two hits, but gave up 11 walks, 5 of them in an almost disastrous fifth inning in which the Leathernecks scored all of their five runs.

Bombich, lead-off man for the Pillmen, tagged one of Red Nealon's first offerings for a single to open the first stanza. Red tightened then and Shea, Magner and Oristian went down in that order. Stookey drew a walk as first batter for the Marines. Scharnberg struck out but Greeley also walked. The best Peterson and Vetter could do was a grounder to Oristian at third who threw them both out.

Bases Loaded

O'Neill singled after Gallagher had gone down, short to first. Traictor got on base as a result of an error after which Roszenskicf came through in the clutch and drove a liner to the left of the shortstop that was good for one base and sent O'Neill home with the first run of the game. With men on first and second, Hoberg smacked a hard grounder that took a bad hop and the bases were now loaded.

Waldorff popped out to O'Connell at third, but Nealon let up on Shea for a minute and the Alumni left fielder drew a walk which chased in run number 2.

Alumni added three more as Nealon hit Magner with a pitched ball to open the third. Oristian went down with no trouble; Gallagher walked and O'Neill knocked a one bagger to center which drove in Magner. Traictor singled to push in Gallagher, O'Neill going to second on the play. Roszenskicf reached first on a fielder's choice as Traictor was out at second. Hoberg proceeded to drive in O'Neill with a single to center and with two men on, Waldorf went down on a dinky fly to Nealon.

In the fifth, the rest of the scoring was completed. Alumni scored the winning runs on three hits, singles by O'Neill, Traicter, and Hoberg.

The Marines rallied in this stanza, and coupled the ineffectiveness of Waldorff with two hits by Peterson and O'Connell to bring the score to the final, 7-5 count.

Touch Football Tourney Heads Autumn Sports

Delayed because of the softball playoffs, the Intra-mural Football League commenced yesterday, September 25, instead of the scheduled September 18 opening date. The first games scheduled were Mendel vs Alumni and Fedigan against Austin. The original schedule will be strictly followed, beginning at the Sept. 25 date.

As usual the teams will consist of six men and a simultaneous touch of two hands are required to "down" a man. The time, differing slightly from last season, will be 5:50 to 6:50 P. M. Due to the extent of injuries occured during the last season a special watch on rough play will be made.

Fedigan Former Champ

The present champ and holder of the crown is Fedigan Hall who retained the title by virtue of a 12-6 win over Mendel in the outstanding game of the season. Fedigan crossed the goal line first. Anderson grabbing a pass from Shammo, but a foul was detected on the play and it was called back.

Scoring for Mendel was by Bill Koness who caught a flat pass from John Godfrey and by brilliant evasive tactics, ran down the field to tally. Milt Anderson, who was the sensation of the season, scored both of Fedigan touchdowns.

Finishing second was Mendel Hall, followed by Austin. The bluejackets from Alumni finished last.

Scranton Falls Before Wildcats In Opening Game

A new season and a new team opened the Wildcat football season with a heartwarming victory over the Tomcats of Scranton. Starting the season with a team that contained no regular members of last year's varsity, the Wildcats proved that work and good coaching still make a team.

Two Touchdowns

Two quick thrusts, one in the first and the other in the third brought the initial victory to the Main Liners. Allowing the fighting team of civilians from Scranton one touchdown, the Wildcats managed to push across both Hoot and Williams to take the game.

Giving the fans a wonderful show with an uninterrupted march of 72 yards shortly after the opening of the game, they did not stop until flashy quarterback Dick Hoot bucked over from the one yard line. The try for the extra point was unsuccessful for Severson.

In the third period it was left halfback Bucky Williams who flashed through for the winning tally in a three yard smash off tackle. This time Severson converted to bring the score to its final total of 13-7.

Strong Line

It was the line which stopped the Tomcats from ever threatening our goal line. The greater yardage made by the up-staters was through the aerial lanes as they completed nine passes out of fifteen attempts to rall up 95 yards.

Statistics for the game showed the Wildcats with sixteen first downs and 225 yards as compared with the Tomcats' total of seven firsts and gained yardage of 176.

All through the game the greatest threat to the Main Liners was this aerial attack of the Scranton team. In the waning moments of the game they traveled down the field to our twenty on passes and were it not for the timely block by Hoot and interception by David the score might have read differently.

Villanovans Seek Second Win In Diplomat Meeting

Former Victims of Scranton Tomcats To Be Met in Second Game of Season; Strong Passing Offense

Having made their debut of the 1944 season in the proper manner by defeating the University of Scranton 13-7 last Saturday afternoon, Villanova's Marine and Navy trainee manned squad will travel to Lancaster to do battle with Franklin and Marshall this weekend.

In its initial fray of the year, Scranton scored a 6-0 win over the Diplomats. Whether it was in the minds of the schedule makers or just "one of those things" we cannot say, but in viewing that Scranton-F. and M. game, it was possible for Coach Jordan Olivar to "kill two birds with one stone" — to scout the Number One and Two teams on the Villanova card on the same afternoon.

Pass Defense

It's a good bet that Coach Olivar will drill his squad long and hard on pass defense before beginning the trek to Lancaster. In handing Ursinus College a 26-0 lacing last Saturday, the Diplomats rolled over three touchdowns as a direct result of its overhead game, and much of their total yardage throughout the game was accounted for through this same offensive weapon.

Likewise, the lone tally rung up by the Tomcats came through the airways, and in the final period, except for the alertness of Bob David and Dick Hoot, they might have come off the field with at least a tie because of their aerial thrusts.

Versatile Team

Far from being a one man squad, Franklin and Marshall has in its backfield three men of almost equal proficiency, Tex Phillips, Ted Fullineer and Melvin Penrod, who have the knack of hurling the prolate spheroid with reasonable accuracy. Bill Iancelli and Evans are the pass gathering ends, but to make the game interesting and to lighten things up, one or more of the aforementioned passers oft'times finds himself "gathering it in" in the defensive backfield, as happened Saturday.

Save one man, Franklin and Marshall used three complete teams in its victory over Ursinus. And although its running attack was none too effective, it was strong enough to remain a threat

The first game is now in the books and everyone now looks forward to the coming season with expectations of more victories.

Last week they were an unknown quantity and all we knew about them was that they were practicing long and hard and might be good and then again might be bad. An underrated line played a very good game with the effect that they very nicely stopped Scranton from going anywhere along that popular route.

A young newcomer of last semester made people sit up and look as he apparently sparked the team to this win. Just recently promoted to the first string, it was Dick Hoot who ran and passed away many yards in favor of the Villanovans. He also socred the first touchdown. Before he went out for the football team, he was smashing home runs for the baseball team, being the strongest hitter on the team.

To the rest of the backfield go laurels for their playing Bucky Williams and Bob David both outdid themselves with Bucky scoring the winning touchdown and Bob stifling the last Scranton rally by an interception. The line stands to be praised as tan unit for no one individual can be singled out for praise more than another. They played as they should and that is merit enough. However one victory does not make a winning season and as yet they cannot choke themselves on optimism but can look forward with a much boosted morale.

Spec. Schiffman Leaves Villanova for Sampson NTS

By LEM WENTLING

A recent change in the personnel of ship's company was the transfer of Specialist First Class Irving A. Schiffman. Schiffman came here last May from Muhlenberg in the capacity of Physical Instructor.

Schiffman was born in New York City and entered CCNY in 1927. While at college he was a three letter man playing center on the Varsity Football team, Varsity lacrosse, and ran for three years on the track team.

He was graduated from that institution in 1931 with a Bachelor's degree in Physical Education and from there furthered his studies at Columbia University where he was awarded a Master's degree.

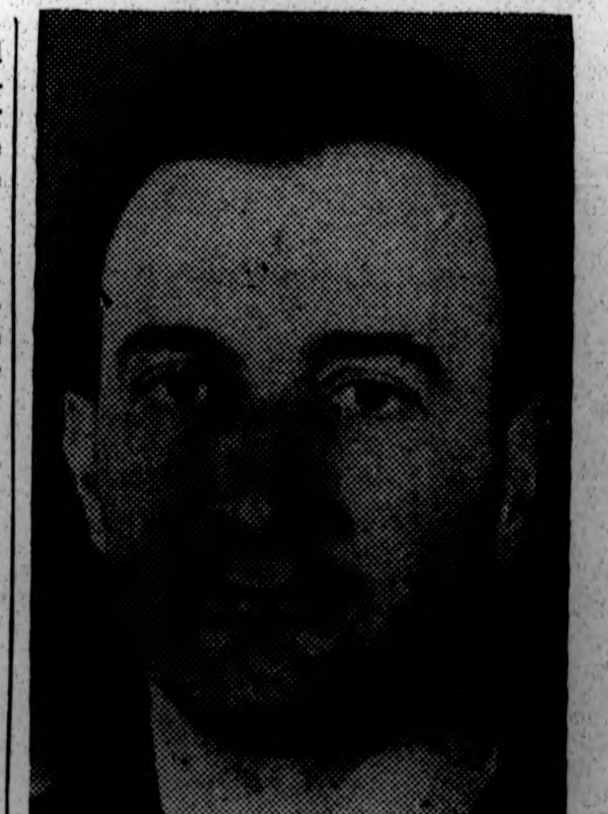
Teaching Post

After leaving Columbia, Schiffman took a position as teacher of health education in New York High Schools and then as Instructor of Education at New Jersey State Teachers College.

He enlisted in the Navy in September '43 and was sent to Physical Instructors school at Bainbridge, Md. He left this school with a 2/c rating and was a member of the ship's company at Muhlenberg when the V-12 program was inaugurated there.

Goes to Sampson

After nine months of duty as a Physical Instructor and assistant track coach, he was transferred here. During his tour of duty here at Villanova he was instrumental in developing the track team.



IRVING SCHIFFMANN, Sp/1C

Schiffman embarked for Sampson Naval Training Station last Wednesday where he will be associated with the new physical therapy which the Navy is offering to its men who return from seas with crippled limbs and digits.

And yet we fear that the facts are sadly otherwise; most men would be quick to declare their connection with a winning, well-publicized team. The fickle mob quickly jumps on the winner's bandwagon, but speaks softly of their association with a weak team.

Remember that these men are your buddies, that their showing reflects on you. Help make interesting for them, what your attitude threatens to make a drab season. Learn the cheers which have been devised and give whole-hearted support at the games when we attend in a body. Help revive the spirit which once did so much to make college life a pleasure.

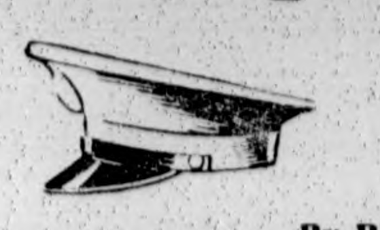
Camp To Campus



By BILL KONESS, A.S.

THAT was Jim Hobbs we saw with the gold stripe Saturday. Jim, as far as we found out, is going to Washington to become a gunnery officer. Remember him in that wrestling bout last year?

Sorry to say that we didn't get to know all the visiting officers last week for there was quite a number of them, especially Ensigns. One of them was Ben Paradee, one of the best liked guys while here. We hear he looked terrific. Ben is going to the West Coast where he will pick up a task force.

Ensign Connolly also dropped over while on leave from his Oiler, we believe. Connolly went through the invasion of Normandy and Southern France and said that he met thirteen other Villanovans while in that area. He mentioned that Frank Moscariello was quite badly wounded. Let's say a few prayers that he pulls through all right.

PFC Neal McGee is in Kansas teaching gunnery for the new B-29's. Newt Ward is now in sunny California. And our pal, Eddie Murphy, is now out in the Pacific.

Tim Schneider is now in the South Atlantic. He really gets around—South Pacific to South Atlantic.

Andy Stopper, our worry against Sampson last year, has been starring on the Bainbridge softball team as a catcher and cleanup hitter and expects to be available for the Commodore's all-star outfit this fall.

Gene Konopka writes from New River that Greg DiAngelo is like a toothpick now. Can you imagine!

John J. Greeley has recently arrived in India to serve an American Red Cross club director. Greeley has served the Red Cross on Guadalcanal and in Australia.

Kevin McChesney is in Aviation Ordnance school out west. Bill Boyle left us last week to go into the Navy. He was on his way to Great Lakes when he said goodbye to us.

Meet the Boys

By GEORGE HOBERG, A. S.

ALUMNI HALL'S engineers expect the first deck to be a rather dull place next semester, for by that time three of their more colorful "characters" will be en route to the high seas. Who, they ask, will carry on the many traditions established by this inimitable trio? Who will be able to whistle through his teeth and say "sonny!" in such excellent imitation? Who will match those many classic statements about girls, and young love, and "respect"? Who will tell them whether or not "the chow was good today, men!"?

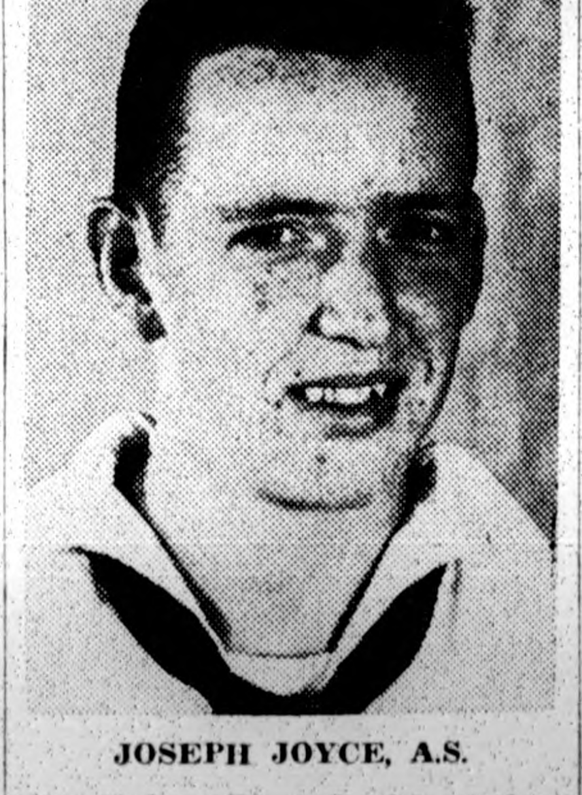
Yes, it'll be a pretty dull place, all right.

But let's take a brief look into the lives of these notables who have been making life livable for so many of us.

Joseph J. Joyce docked at the port of Prospect Park on Dec. 6, 1923, and immediately began sucking his thumb. This fact demonstrates his great foresight and desire for education, for before many years had passed Joe was using that thumb to transport himself to West Catholic High.

West appreciated this and many others of Joe's talents, and when he finished there they awarded him a scholarship to Villanova.

In the fall of '41 Joe began day-hopping it out here. Deciding on chemical engineering, Joe joined Phi Kappa Pi and the student chapter of the A.I.Ch.E., and soon proved himself worthy of membership in the math society. He justified W.C.'s faith in him by hitting the honor roll every semester, and the A.I.Ch.E., hearing of his remarkable prowess, last year awarded him a medal for being the "outstanding junior chemical engineer."



JOSEPH JOYCE, A.S.

You'd never believe it if you watched him roll a game, but Joe was a member of the bowling team that walked off with the frat championship a couple of semesters ago.

Some of Joe's fondest memories center about those civilian-era poker games which have now become extinct. And he'll never forget the time he got caught flipping for pennies and had to wash the library windows!

J. J. J. is still a bit undecided about what branch of his field he'll

LITTLE did we know back when we joined this fighting outfit, that the passing of each year of super-service would be marked, not by swank parties and gal-ah! festivals, but rather by the infection of dejection, namely those annual booster shots. By now the effects of Secret Serum X03652 have passed on and you are once again back to normal (?) which is better than being horizontal.

But alas—it has not passed without leaving its treacherous mark—or should we say scar; then again that would be unfair, because many of these gashes took only 11 or 14 stitches and besides . . if you lose an arm you can always cut your sleeve off. They make wonderful potholders.

But enough of these cheap commercials. Let us get back to the meaty subject at hand. First you all must agree that any little inconvenience entailed, such as tripping over a limp dangling arm or treading upon one's fingernails was certainly worth the trouble just to see such a sharp outfit in action. Personally, at times we were a trifle scared. We know it was rather silly of us, but when Jittery Joe, the Pharmacist's Mate, reared back and banged three guys in "the Back Row" before his "serum sender" struck Home (Home being short for Homer, the target in mind) we began to wonder.

But then "This kind of treatment cannot be tolerated to any degree, Villanova being in the state of Pennsylvania, etc.," said the doctor, so measures were taken. Into Joe's empty hand was placed another needle, thus reducing the percent of error by 50%. This made everything fine until we saw the assistant needle pusher, "Big George." As first we came upon him he was about to mix it with his first patient, who had already staunchly thrust out his slender arm, shut his eyes, and gritted his teeth. For such an occasion as this, and due to the fact that George weighed only 88 pounds, a special procedure was in order. Picking up the longest needle available which was as long as a pole, George strode to the end of the runway, then turning sharply about he wheeled and, running as fast as he could dug the weapon in and then swung smartly over the head of the innocent dupe. Of course this didn't always work, but George was pretty good, as he had had a vast amount of experience as polevaulter and knitter for Jab. U.

Anyway, it's all over now.

Social Sidelights

THAT inspection . . . we really weren't worried . . . not too much.

We're a week late with this (we had to duck some shrapnel—Jack Hubert spent his weekend in home-town Washington catering to the whims of red-haired Cathy. Of all the women in Washington, we wonder why Jack chooses a member of the traditionally tempermental clan.

Auld Lang Syne — Paul Miller was surprised to find former Washington flame Liz Mahoney was now at Chestnut Hill in the Cadet Nurse Corps. Paul lost no time in renewing the acquaintanceship.

Love is Blind — LeRoy Collegeman, self-styled campus casanova, sported pretty Ruth at the Hot Shoppe after attending Media's Summer Playhouse, the Hedgerow Theatre. LeRoy claims that she is so attractive that even misogynist George Mattson couldn't help admiring her.

We consider this unfair to L.H.C. but—Herb Lamb, ever philosophizing, remarked that after a week at the books, no woman is unattractive. Attribute it to eye-strain or just plain loneliness, whichever you will.

Amusement Directory — Just in case you didn't know the rodeo now showing at the Arena, 45th and Market Sts., is said to be quite colorful and entertaining by those who have seen it.

ChezVous, Sixty-ninth's dancing emporium, has reopened after its summer layoff.

New Leaf — John Doherty, the man's man, has finally arrived at the conclusion that women aren't so bad after all. We haven't the heart to tell of the incident that prompted he-man Doherty's abrupt changeover.

Question of the Week — Last Friday night's pep rally was attended by approximately one-half of the student body. Our interrogation concerns the whys and wherefores of the other half's inability to attend. We are not attempting to crusade, but merely trying to discover what has become of the traditional college spirit and zest.

Eulogy Department — Congratulations to the football squad on their splendid victory last Saturday. Observers of the game were particularly impressed by the fine spirit underlying the Villanovan's brilliant playing. Which is somewhat of a contrast.

It Hits Everywhere

WITH brisk breezes, patient plaids, and mellow moonlight, the football season opens.

The team's victory in Scranton last weekend prompts our reoprts on their activities. Captain Duke Severson was game conscious except at 10:30 Friday night when he had a punt blocked by an anonmymous character.

Headliner — Don Peterson made 60 yards in the game—going in and out.

Roses to—Jim McDaid and John McGuire. That bed deck was something. How many to a room?

New Pants to—David and Eye.

Thorns to—Dick Evans who dropped a pass in the game but didn't miss when a blonde made a pass from the stands.

Rain Check to—George Rossiter and Mark Abribat who have some bus fare coming. Do you follow, fellows?

It seems Cassiano did a great job with the Scranton crowd. They were behind him all afternoon. We don't talk about ear-banger Sullivan.

In accord with the fast moving events of today, the latest line "As you were" was revamped the other day by one J. Caudle who, noticing his roommate pass by with his sparsely populated cranium, blurted out, "As it were".

Intramural Softball Champions

The softball league this season ended in a deadlock between Alumni and the Marine team and was decided by a playoff in which Alumni took two out of three games to secure the crown. Above are shown the members of the winning team. Top, l. to r.: Gallagher, Oristian, O'Neill, Magner, Hoberg, Bombick; bottom: Shea, Waldorff, Traister, Rozensky.

Alumni Defeat Marines, 7-5 To Win The Softball Crown

Waldorff Pitches Two-Hitter But Issues 11 Free Passes; O'Neill Has Perfect 4 For 4 At Plate

By DAVE WARD, A.S.

Alumni Hall's Pre Meds won the Intramural Softball Championship of the campus last Wednesday evening by defeating the Marines, 7-5, on the field in back of Mendel.

Charlie Waldorff, the winning pitcher, yielded only two hits, but gave up 11 walks, 5 of them in an almost disastrous fifth inning in which the Leathernecks scored all of their five runs.

Bombich, lead-off man for the Pillmen, tagged one of Red Nealon's first offerings for a single to open the first stanza. Red tightened then and Shea, Magner and Oristian went down in that order. Stookey drew a walk as first batter for the Marines. Scharnberg struck out but Greeley also walked. The best Peterson and Vetter could do was a grounder to Oristian at third who threw them both out.

Bases Loaded

O'Neill singled after Gallagher had gone down, short to first. Traictor got on base as a result of an error after which Roszenskicf came through in the clutch and drove a liner to the left of the shortstop that was good for one base and sent O'Neill home with the first run of the game. With men on first and second, Hoberg smacked a hard grounder that took a bad hop and the bases were now loaded.

Waldorff popped out to O'Connell at third, but Nealon let up on Shea for a minute and the Alumni left fielder drew a walk which chased in run number 2.

Alumni added three more as Nealon hit Magner with a pitched ball to open the third. Oristian went down with no trouble; Gallagher walked and O'Neill knocked a one bagger to center which drove in Magner. Traictor singled to push in Gallagher, O'Neill going to second on the play. Roszenskicf reached first on a fielder's choice as Traictor was out at second. Hoberg proceeded to drive in O'Neill with a single to center and with two men on, Waldorf went down on a dinky fly to Nealon.

In the fifth, the rest of the scoring was completed. Alumni scored the winning runs on three hits, singles by O'Neill, Traicter, and Hoberg.

The Marines rallied in this stanza, and coupled the ineffectiveness of Waldorff with two hits by Peterson and O'Connell to bring the score to the final, 7-5 count.

Touch Football Tourney Heads Autumn Sports

Delayed because of the softball playoffs, the Intra-mural Football League commenced yesterday, September 25, instead of the scheduled September 18 opening date. The first games scheduled were Mendel vs Alumni and Fedigan against Austin. The original schedule will be strictly followed, beginning at the Sept. 25 date.

As usual the teams will consist of six men and a simultaneous touch of two hands are required to "down" a man. The time, differing slightly from last season, will be 5:50 to 6:50 P. M. Due to the extent of injuries occured during the last season a special watch on rough play will be made.

Fedigan Former Champ

The present champ and holder of the crown is Fedigan Hall who retained the title by virtue of a 12-6 win over Mendel in the outstanding game of the season. Fedigan crossed the goal line first. Anderson grabbing a pass from Shammo, but a foul was detected on the play and it was called back.

Scoring for Mendel was by Bill Koness who caught a flat pass from John Godfrey and by brilliant evasive tactics, ran down the field to tally. Milt Anderson, who was the sensation of the season, scored both of Fedigan touchdowns.

Finishing second was Mendel Hall, followed by Austin. The bluejackets from Alumni finished last.

Scranton Falls Before Wildcats In Opening Game

A new season and a new team opened the Wildcat football season with a heartwarming victory over the Tomcats of Scranton. Starting the season with a team that contained no regular members of last year's varsity, the Wildcats proved that work and good coaching still make a team.

Two Touchdowns

Two quick thrusts, one in the first and the other in the third brought the initial victory to the Main Liners. Allowing the fighting team of civilians from Scranton one touchdown, the Wildcats managed to push across both Hoot and Williams to take the game.

Giving the fans a wonderful show with an uninterrupted march of 72 yards shortly after the opening of the game, they did not stop until flashy quarterback Dick Hoot bucked over from the one yard line. The try for the extra point was unsuccessful for Severson.

In the third period it was left halfback Bucky Williams who flashed through for the winning tally in a three yard smash off tackle. This time Severson converted to bring the score to its final total of 13-7.

Strong Line

It was the line which stopped the Tomcats from ever threatening our goal line. The greater yardage made by the up-staters was through the aerial lanes as they completed nine passes out of fifteen attempts to rall up 95 yards.

Statistics for the game showed the Wildcats with sixteen first downs and 225 yards as compared with the Tomcats' total of seven firsts and gained yardage of 176.

All through the game the greatest threat to the Main Liners was this aerial attack of the Scranton team. In the waning moments of the game they traveled down the field to our twenty on passes and were it not for the timely block by Hoot and interception by David the score might have read differently.

Villanovans Seek Second Win In Diplomat Meeting

Former Victims of Scranton Tomcats To Be Met in Second Game of Season; Strong Passing Offense

Having made their debut of the 1944 season in the proper manner by defeating the University of Scranton 13-7 last Saturday afternoon, Villanova's Marine and Navy trainee manned squad will travel to Lancaster to do battle with Franklin and Marshall this weekend.

In its initial fray of the year, Scranton scored a 6-0 win over the Diplomats. Whether it was in the minds of the schedule makers or just "one of those things" we cannot say, but in viewing that Scranton-F. and M. game, it was possible for Coach Jordan Olivar to "kill two birds with one stone" — to scout the Number One and Two teams on the Villanova card on the same afternoon.

Pass Defense

It's a good bet that Coach Olivar will drill his squad long and hard on pass defense before beginning the trek to Lancaster. In handing Ursinus College a 26-0 lacing last Saturday, the Diplomats rolled over three touchdowns as a direct result of its overhead game, and much of their total yardage throughout the game was accounted for through this same offensive weapon.

Likewise, the lone tally rung up by the Tomcats came through the airways, and in the final period, except for the alertness of Bob David and Dick Hoot, they might have come off the field with at least a tie because of their aerial thrusts.

Versatile Team

Far from being a one man squad, Franklin and Marshall has in its backfield three men of almost equal proficiency, Tex Phillips, Ted Fullineer and Melvin Penrod, who have the knack of hurling the prolate spheroid with reasonable accuracy. Bill Iancelli and Evans are the pass gathering ends, but to make the game interesting and to lighten things up, one or more of the aforementioned passers oft' times finds himself "gathering it in" in the defensive backfield, as happened Saturday.

Save one man, Franklin and Marshall used three complete teams in its victory over Ursinus. And although its running attack was none too effective, it was strong enough to remain a threat

The first game is now in the books and everyone now looks forward to the coming season with expectations of more victories.

Last week they were an unknown quantity and all we knew about them was that they were practicing long and hard and might be good and then again might be bad. An underrated line played a very good game with the effect that they very nicely stopped Scranton from going anywhere along that popular route.

A young newcomer of last semester made people sit up and look as he apparently sparked the team to this win. Just recently promoted to the first string, it was Dick Hoot who ran and passed away many yards in favor of the Villanovans. He also socred the first touchdown. Before he went out for the football team, he was smashing home runs for the baseball team, being the strongest hitter on the team.

To the rest of the backfield go laurels for their playing Bucky Williams and Bob David both outdid themselves with Bucky scoring the winning touchdown and Bob stifling the last Scranton rally by an interception. The line stands to be praised as tan unit for no one individual can be singled out for praise more than another. They played as they should and that is merit enough. However one victory does not make a winning season and as yet they cannot choke themselves on optimism but can look forward with a much boosted morale.

Spec. Schiffman Leaves Villanova for Sampson NTS

By LEM WENTLING

A recent change in the personnel of ship's company was the transfer of Specialist First Class Irving A. Schiffman. Schiffman came here last May from Muhlenberg in the capacity of Physical Instructor.

Schiffman was born in New York City and entered CCNY in 1927. While at college he was a three letter man playing center on the Varsity Football team, Varsity lacrosse, and ran for three years on the track team.

He was graduated from that institution in 1931 with a Bachelor's degree in Physical Education and from there furthered his studies at Columbia University where he was awarded a Master's degree.

Teaching Post

After leaving Columbia, Schiffman took a position as teacher of health education in New York High Schools and then as Instructor of Education at New Jersey State Teachers College.

He enlisted in the Navy in September '43 and was sent to Physical Instructors school at Bainbridge, Md. He left this school with a 2/c rating and was a member of the ship's company at Muhlenberg when the V-12 program was inaugurated there.

Goes to Sampson

After nine months of duty as a Physical Instructor and assistant track coach, he was transferred here. During his tour of duty here at Villanova he was instrumental in developing the track team.

IRVING SCHIFFMANN, Sp/1C

Schiffman embarked for Sampson Naval Training Station last Wednesday where he will be associated with the new physical therapy which the Navy is offering to its men who return from seas with crippled limbs and digits.

bloodily to maintain the legend, pasted their divisional stickers on the bodies of Germans they knifed and on enemy equipment they disabled. When Allied Forces broke out from the beachhead, the Force spearheaded the attack, led by Robert Frederick wearing a bandage around a neck wound.

After Rome, Forceman Frederick became a major general (at 37) and took the airborne command for the invasion of southern France. Colonel Edwin A. Walker, one of the regimental commanders, took over, led the outfit in its toughest fight yet, a landing in rubber boats on Levant Island, which guarded the approaches through Cavalaire Bay.

Kelly Wounded Again

Before the S.S.F. reached Rome, it had lost more than half the men who sailed from Kiska, including two regimental commanders and nearly all battalion C. O.'s At Levant, where the Germans fought bitterly from their camouflaged hideouts, the casualties struck deep again. By then, because Canadian replacements were fewer, the outfit was more than two-thirds U.S. and many of its officers were ex-noncoms commissioned on the battlefield.

Lieutenant Kelly was wounded three times, for which he has received the Purple Heart; the last time (May), he received wounds in the neck and leg, and since then has been in and out of the hospital. He was back in battle from July 4 to 23, and is at present in the hospital again. In one letter he writes that in only two actions did the force with which he was connected finish with the C.O. with which they started. Lieutenant Kelly was the C.O. these two times.

anese are no mere conjectures of propagandists. In order to capture one of the islands which Lieutenant August visited, it was necessary to literally blast the Japs off. American battleships came in and fired at point-blank range. From the entire Jap force on the island, not one escaped or was taken prisoner—all were killed. An example of the terrific battering the island took during the attack is shown by the fact that every tree was slashed off about the middle.

Part of the Show

". . .I'm glad that I am to be privileged to be in on at least part of the show. We are right in the thick of all preparations for the knockout blow," comments Lieutenant August. But despite the interest he is taking in his work and his desire to be in on the kill, a highball or so at the Top of the Mark in San Francisco, a sleep under a couple of blankets in some zero climate, and a real home-cooked meal, among other things, would fulfill the Lieutenant's dreams for some time to come.

But until the real thing comes along, mail will serve as a most welcome substitute. Writing not only for himself but for all service men in general, Lieutenant August stresses the importance of this item. It certainly is true all that has been written about how much mail from home means out here, so I hope that if you have the chance that you will write."

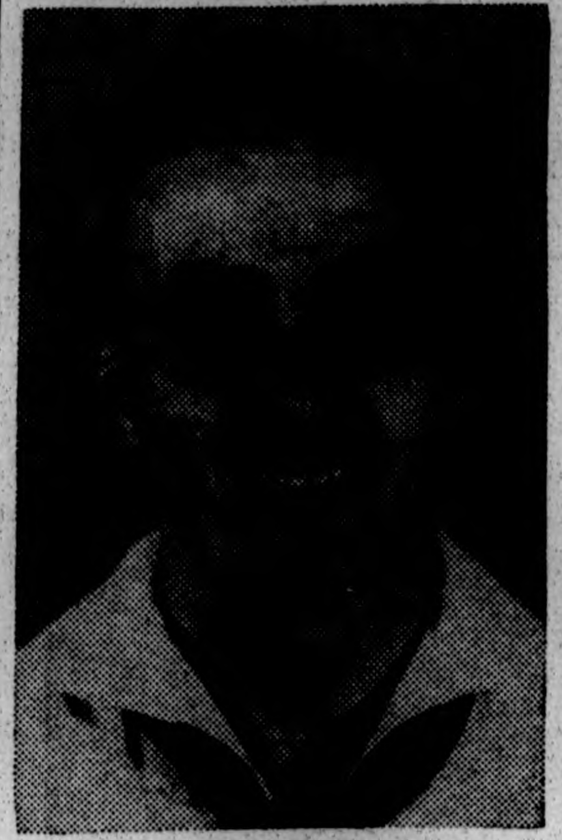
work in, but definitely intends to do some graduate work as soon as he get out of this—well, as soon as he gets to be a civilian again.

The second of our noteworthies, William S. Regii, came as a birthday present to his grandmother on Sept. 27, 1923. (By the way—Happy Birthday, Bill!)



JAMES REDDITT, A.S.

Bill went to South Philly High. Here he showed an early interest in his chosen field by joining the Chemistry Club. By way of diversion he participated in a student rendition of "Carmen". Bill made the honorary scholastic society known as the "Mace".

WILLIAM REGII, A.S.

A resident of nearby Oakmont, Bill started commuting out here with Joe in '41. Registering as a chem engineer, he immediately proceeded to join the frat, the A.I.Ch.E., and the American Chemical Society, and went on to become secretary of the Math Society. He has been a consistant honor student.

As a civilian Bill was very active in intramural sports. He, too, was on that championship bowling team. Take a look at the cup and you'll see his name inscribed first (if you start reading from the bottom).

Bill says his future will be occupied with the design and construction of chemical plants, although he might take time out to do a bit of graduate work first.

James H. Redditt was born on exactly the same days as Joe Joyce (Dec. 6, 1923). He attended St. Joe's Prep, where debating and dramatics occupied most of his extra curricular time.

Jim didn't expect to be able to attend college, so after leaving the prep he spent the summer of '41 at Drexel taking ESMDT engineering courses. However, in the fall he found himself able to matriculate at St. Joseph's College as a physics major. He did very well there as evinced by the fact that after his first year he was awarded a scholarship. He worked on the school's newspaper staff.

Jim wasn't quite so fortunate as our other interviewees when the V-12 program came along, for last July 1 he found himself down at Mt. Saint Mary's scheduled as a basic student. Since he couldn't study physics in the Navy, he did the next best thing and applied for engineering. He must have handed them a pretty good line, for just five days later he found himself a civil engineer at Villanova.

The change in course made it impossible for Jim to obtain a degree in eight semesters, so he is leaving here just one semester shy of a sheepskin.

He has been an honor student throughout his college career. Jim joined the ASCE soon after his matriculation as a C.E.

Although his post war ambitions lie in the field of architecture, Jim's immediate desire is to get a commission in the Seabees.

When Private Jankauskas finally knocked out the sniper who was causing all the calamity, it was found that the so-called "German sniper" was a mere girl 15 years of age who had come from a small town near Berlin. Private Jankauskas is now at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., where he is recovering from wounds inflicted upon his shoulder and on his hands.

The fact that Villanova won over Scranton, 13-7, which beforehand had taken F. and M.'s measure, 6-0, is unimportant. The difference in the scoring certainly does not give the Wildcats a wide margin for favoritism. Despite all, one of the oldest axioms of football is: "Comparative scores mean nothing."

The game time is set for 2:30 at Franklin and Marshall's home field, and a capacity crowd is expected to be on hand.

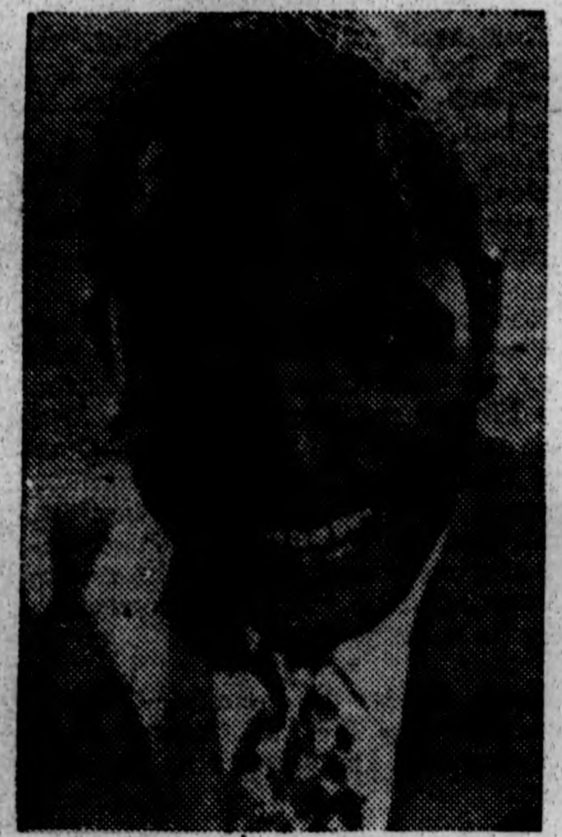
Talented Singer With Johnny Warrington Is Noted For Recordings; Tea Dance at Rosemont Proves Successful

When Johnny Warrington and his orchestra come to the Villanova Field House on Saturday evening, October 14, to play for the Student Council's Blue and White Hop, he will bring along one of the most popular radio and recording artists, Bon Bon.

Bon Bon started originally on the Horn and Hardart Children's Hour and from there he joined Jan Savitt, with whom he sang for four years. Upon leaving Jan Savitt, Bon returned to Philadelphia and was forthwith engaged by Johnny Warrington. He is now famous for his scat songs as well as his ballad interpretations.

Popular Vocalist



BON BON

Warrington himself gained musical experience with Savitt's band. After graduating from Duke University, Johnny joined Savitt and became his arranger and featured saxophonist. Johnny stayed with Jan for three years. Upon leaving this well known orchestra, Johnny became staff arranger at radio station KYW, and began to arrange for many of the country's leading bands.

Until recently, Johnny Warrington had refused all offers to have a band of his own. But the lure of putting his own musical ideas into practice finally made Johnny succumb. He organized his orchestra and was immediately engaged by Philadelphia's foremost radio station, WCAU.

Through the efforts of Francis O'Connor, A.S., Chairman of the Council, and Francis McBride, A.S., Chairman of the Publicity Committee, a tea dance was arranged with Rosemont College last Sunday which proved a huge success — from the point of view of both Rosemont and Villanova.

Miss Betty Rice, Chairman of the Social Committee at Rosemont and her co-workers were in charge of the affair. This committee took care of refreshments and the task of introducing the shy Rosemont freshmen to the more bashful and retiring Villanovans. After the "get together" got rolling, about 75 couples graced the dance floor in Mayfield Hall.

Members of the Council detailed for the distribution of tickets will make a drive this week to secure payment for as many as possible. Cooperation by the student body in paying for their tickets would help the Council in making final arrangements.

Thirty Members Of AIEE Attend Tour of Institute

Professor Bueche, Counsellor of Student Branch, Conducted Trip; Lightning Display Witnessed

Thirty members of the Junior class in Electrical Engineering school and members of the Villanova Branch of the A. I. E. E. attended a trip to the Franklin Institute last Friday afternoon, September 29, sponsored by the student society.

Professor Harry S. Bueche, Professor of Electrical Engineering and Counsellor of the Villanova Branch, conducted the inspection of Philadelphia's storehouse of knowledge in especially the Electrical Engineering, Illumination, and Radio departments.

The group arrived at the Institute in time to see the demonstration of man-made lightning and hear the demonstrator's lecture. The destructive effects of the phenomenon together with recently developed protective measures were demonstrated and explained.

Study Illumination

One of the most interesting lectures of the afternoon was heard in the Illumination section. Mr. Lee, a former illuminations expert with a large manufacturing company, received the attention of the group for nearly an hour as he explained the intricacies of artificial lightning. The interesting displays he used were all his own property.

One of the main objectives of the trip, the Communications department, was closed for alterations. To account for this, Mr. Bueche stated that a similar trip may be forthcoming at which time a visit would also be made to the Planetarium.

A similar trip was conducted by the society on the previous Friday at which time, Senior class members attended.

About 30 Yankee Doodle Club Girls and 30 Trainees Rehearse for Show

Amid cheers and whistles from some of the thirty trainees enlisted for the Yankee Doodle Club stage show, thirty girls of the cast bounced into the field house last Wednesday evening for their first grand rehearsal. The show is under the direction of Mr. George Nope, director of the Jenkintown Club, and is scheduled for Friday evening, October 13.

The show will consist of several short skits, parodies on the daily routine here at Villanova, and songs sung by both male and female choruses and by individual stars of the Club such as Miss Betty Sweeney, Miss Theresa Sherry and others, remembered by many for fine past performances.

Attempt Cancan

One scene which will be remembered many weeks after the show, will be the dance of the "Flying Feet", in which 10 students with varied physiques display their new-found knowledge of Terpsichorean art. These hopefuls' attempt to do the cancan should bring down the house (especially if George would lead them as he does in rehearsals).

Even in the embryo stage, however, it shows promise of a good evening's entertainment. The members of the cast deserve a lot of credit for the time and effort they are putting into the show.

Pharmacist Mate Comes to Campus After Tour of Duty in Caribbean

By PAUL CIAMAICHELA

The Medical Department has a salty newcomer in the person of Vito F. Esposito, Pharmacist's Mate 1/c. Frank was born on the eventful day of October 10, 1919, in the town of Donora, Pennsylvania. He is one of the members of what he terms "a small family". Frank has three sisters who are now married, one brother serving in an anti-aircraft unit on Saipan Island, and another brother acquiring his sea-legs at Sampson Naval Training Station.

Frank's civilian life was a little uneventful. He was an honor student at Donora High School. After graduation he helped contribute to the smoke which hangs so low over the housetops of Pittsburgh, by becoming an employee of the United States Steel Corporation.

Ph.M. 1/C V. ESPOSITO

Enlists in Navy

Approximately three weeks after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Frank and a few of his buddies were making their presence known down in Wheeling, West Virginia, where they were spending the Christmas weekend of 1941. The boys got to talking, and they decided that the best way they could help their Uncle Sam was to join the Navy. The final steps were taken, and the entire group enlisted together. Frank was sworn into the Navy in January of '42.

In order to make up for all the dull days he had spent previously, Fate had quite an eventful time in store for Frank. After he enlisted in the Navy, he was sent down to the Panama Canal Zone, to a base with strikingly familiar "can't remember where I heard it before" name of Coco Solo. To help make his trip a little more interesting, he was assigned to a munitions ship, which was to escort him blithely through the sub infested waters of the Caribbean down to Coco Solo. However, the Nazi Subs didn't find Frank's ship and he seems to have arrived safely.

Becomes Card Shark

Since there were so many things to do and so many sights to see down at the Canal Zone, Frank and the rest of his buddies used to while away the time playing a very friendly game of cards every time that pay day rolled around. Take a fair warning mates, Frank is quite a shark at these "friendly little games". In fact he has been dubbed "Captain of the Poker Deck".

After twenty-five months of service in the Caribbean theater, Frank was sent to Great Lakes Naval Training Station, where he graduated from the first hospital corps class ever held. From this stop, Frank was transferred to the U. S. S. Villanova. Frank really loves this assignment. He says, "I used to dream about a place like this when I was down at Coco Solo, but I never though my dream would come true".

Staff Meeting

A meting of the entire staff of the Villanovan has been called for Thursday, October 5, at 12:45 in the Villanovan office, Room 119 Mendel Hall. Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., Moderator of the newspaper, is expected to announce the new Editor-in-Chief and Sports Editor for the coming two semesters at this time.

Fraternity Presents Keys At Banquet for Seniors

Greater Activity Urged by Speakers at Dinner Dance Held Saturday at Palumbo's; Advantages of Membership Cited

In a gathering reminiscent of Villanova social functions of pre-war days, Phi Kappa Pi, engineering school fraternity, presented keys to 15 members at the first Annual Senior Banquet held last Saturday evening at Palumbo's Restaurant in Philadelphia.

Over 50 members of the fraternity and 16 professors from the engineering faculty attended the affair, which began with dinner at 8:30 and included a presentation of the regular floor show, short talks by two professors, and a period of dancing.

Presents Keys

REV. J. A. KLEKOTKA, O.S.A.

At the completion of the show, President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., rose to introduce the speakers. First he presented a man who has probably witnessed more such affairs than any other—J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the School of Engineering. Dean Morehouse spoke briefly on the advantages of an organization such as Phi Kappa Pi.

Urge Greater Activity

Pointing out that it was the most universal of the engineering societies on the campus, he praised it as a means of binding more closely together all members of the school and exhorted the younger men present to see that in the future it becomes even more active than it has been.

President McGuinn, who himself brought the fraternity from a state of comparative inactivity following the start of the accelerated program to its present condition, heartily endorsed the Dean's statements and urged his successor to carry on the work which he has begun.

In the regretted absence of Rev. John S. O'Leary, O.S.A., moderator of the fraternity——Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., himself a president of Phi Kappa Pi in undergraduate days at Villanova, was called on next to present the keys.

Fr. Klekotka struck a responsive note, when he appealed to the seniors to cherish the awards not for their physical value but because they are the keys which will keep "locked up in their hearts" all the things which Phi Kappa Pi and Villanova have meant to them.

He tried to impress the men with the personal interest which the professors take in the students and urged them to come back in later years to show the teachers the fruits of their efforts to produce "fine engineers and fine men."

Sing Alma Mater

After this, the following men came up individually to the speakers table and received their keys from Fr. Klekotka: John Belletti, Hugh Gillespie, Robert Gruss, Albert Hurford, Philip Jakeway, Francis McGuinn, Gerard Riegger, William Regii, Patrick Reagan, Martin Roddy, Angelo Rosa, Thomas Schubert, Vincent Silverio, John Wilson, and Eugene Weinert.

Finally, all rose and joined in the singing of the Alma Mater—heard but infrequently on the campus in the past year—and, to celebrate the football team's second consecutive victory. "College Days," traditional song of athletic contests. Two hours of dancing concluded the evening.

Nominations

Nomination of officers of Phi Kappa Pi for the coming semester will be held on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock in room 214 Mendel Hall. Proceedings will begin promptly at one in order to have them completed before the noonday muster. All members are urged to attend in order to insure the nomination of the majority choice. Final election among those chosen this week will be conducted at the same place on the following Thursday afternoon.

bloodily to maintain the legend, pasted their divisional stickers on the bodies of Germans they knifed and on enemy equipment they disabled. When Allied Forces broke out from the beachhead, the Force spearheaded the attack, led by Robert Frederick wearing a bandage around a neck wound.

After Rome, Forceman Frederick became a major general (at 37) and took the airborne command for the invasion of southern France. Colonel Edwin A. Walker, one of the regimental commanders, took over, led the outfit in its toughest fight yet, a landing in rubber boats on Levant Island, which guarded the approaches through Cavalaire Bay.

Kelly Wounded Again

Before the S.S.F. reached Rome, it had lost more than half the men who sailed from Kiska, including two regimental commanders and nearly all battalion C. O.'s. At Levant, where the Germans fought bitterly from their camouflaged hideouts, the casualties struck deep again. By then, because Canadian replacements were fewer, the outfit was more than two-thirds U.S. and many of its officers were ex-noncoms commissioned on the battlefield.

Lieutenant Kelly was wounded three times, for which he has received the Purple Heart; the last time (May), he received wounds in the neck and leg, and since then has been in and out of the hospital. He was back in battle from July 4 to 23, and is at present in the hospital again. In one letter he writes that in only two actions did the force with which he was connected finish with the C.O. with which they started. Lieutenant Kelly was the C.O. these two times.

anese are no mere conjectures of propagandists. In order to capture one of the islands which Lieutenant August visited, it was necessary to literally blast the Japs off. American battleships came in and fired at point-blank range. From the entire Jap force on the island, not one escaped or was taken prisoner—all were killed. An example of the terrific battering the island took during the attack is shown by the fact that every tree was slashed off about the middle.

Part of the Show

". . . I'm glad that I am to be privileged to be in on at least part of the show. We are right in the thick of all preparations for the knockout blow," comments Lieutenant August. But despite the interest he is taking in his work and his desire to be in on the kill, a highball or so at the Top of the Mark in San Francisco, a sleep under a couple of blankets in some zero climate, and a real home-cooked meal, among other things, would fulfill the Lieutenant's dreams for some time to come.

But until the real thing comes along, mail will serve as a most welcome substitute. Writing not only for himself but for all service men in general, Lieutenant August stresses the importance of this item. It certainly is true all that has been written about how much mail from home means out here, so I hope that if you have the chance that you will write."

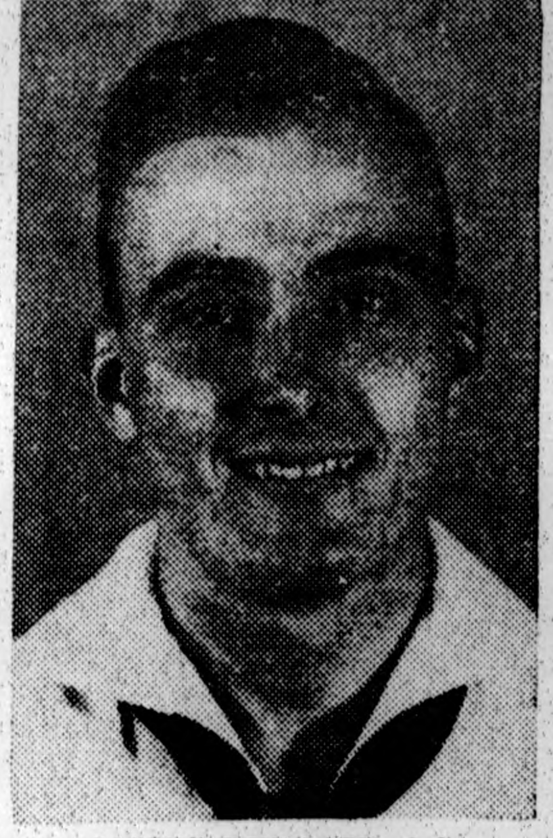
work in, but definitely intends to do some graduate work as soon as he get out of this—well, as soon as he gets to be a civilian again.

The second of our noteworthies, William S. Regii, came as a birthday present to his grandmother on Sept. 27, 1923. (By the way—Happy Birthday, Bill!)



JAMES REDDITT, A.S.

Bill went to South Philly High. Here he showed an early interest in his chosen field by joining the Chemistry Club. By way of diversion he participated in a student rendition of "Carmen". Bill made the honorary scholastic society known as the "Mace".

WILLIAM REGII, A.S.

A resident of nearby Oakmont, Bill started commuting out here with Joe in '41. Registering as a chem engineer, he immediately proceeded to join the frat, the A.I.Ch.E., and the American Chemical Society, and went on to become secretary of the Math Society. He has been a consistant honor student.

As a civilian Bill was very active in intramural sports. He, too, was on that championship bowling team. Take a look at the cup and you'll see his name inscribed first (if you start reading from the bottom).

Bill says his future will be occupied with the design and construction of chemical plants, although he might take time out to do a bit of graduate work first.

James H. Redditt was born on exactly the same days as Joe Joyce (Dec. 6, 1923). He attended St. Joe's Prep, where debating and dramatics occupied most of his extra curricular time.

Jim didn't expect to be able to attend college, so after leaving the prep he spent the summer of '41 at Drexel taking ESMDT engineering courses. However, in the fall he found himself able to matriculate at St. Joseph's College as a physics major. He did very well there as evinced by the fact that after his first year he was awarded a scholarship. He worked on the school's newspaper staff.

Jim wasn't quite so fortunate as our other interviewees when the V-12 program came along, for last July 1 he found himself down at Mt. Saint Mary's scheduled as a basic student. Since he couldn't study physics in the Navy, he did the next best thing and applied for engineering. He must have handed them a pretty good line, for just five days later he found himself a civil engineer at Villanova.

The change in course made it impossible for Jim to obtain a degree in eight semesters, so he is leaving here just one semester shy of a sheepskin.

He has been an honor student throughout his college career. Jim joined the ASCE soon after his matriculation as a C.E.

Although his post war ambitions lie in the field of architecture, Jim's immediate desire is to get a commission in the Seabees.

When Private Jankauskas finally knocked out the sniper who was causing all the calamity, it was found that the so-called "German sniper" was a mere girl 15 years of age who had come from a small town near Berlin. Private Jankauskas is now at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., where he is recovering from wounds inflicted upon his shoulder and on his hands.

The fact that Villanova won over Scranton, 13-7, which beforehand had taken F. and M.'s measure, 6-0, is unimportant. The difference in the scoring certainly does not give the Wildcats a wide margin for favoritism. Despite all, one of the oldest axioms of football is: "Comparative scores mean nothing."

The game time is set for 2:30 at Franklin and Marshall's home field, and a capacity crowd is expected to be on hand.

Talented Singer With Johnny Warrington Is Noted For Recordings; Tea Dance at Rosemont Proves Successful

When Johnny Warrington and his orchestra come to the Villanova Field House on Saturday evening, October 14, to play for the Student Council's Blue and White Hop, he will bring along one of the most popular radio and recording artists, Bon Bon.

Bon Bon started originally on the Horn and Hardart Children's Hour and from there he joined Jan Savitt, with whom he sang for four years. Upon leaving Jan Savitt, Bon returned to Philadelphia and was forthwith engaged by Johnny Warrington. He is now famous for his scat songs as well as his ballad interpretations.

Popular Vocalist

BON BON

Warrington himself gained musical experience with Savitt's band. After graduating from Duke University, Johnny joined Savitt and became his arranger and featured saxophonist. Johnny stayed with Jan for three years. Upon leaving this well known orchestra, Johnny became staff arranger at radio station KYW, and began to arrange for many of the country's leading bands.

Until recently, Johnny Warrington had refused all offers to have a band of his own. But the lure of putting his own musical ideas into practice finally made Johnny succumb. He organized his orchestra and was immediately engaged by Philadelphia's foremost radio station, WCAU.

Through the efforts of Francis O'Connor, A.S., Chairman of the Council, and Francis McBride, A.S., Chairman of the Publicity Committee, a tea dance was arranged with Rosemont College last Sunday which proved a huge success — from the point of view of both Rosemont and Villanova.

Miss Betty Rice, Chairman of the Social Committee at Rosemont and her co-workers were in charge of the affair. This committee took care of refreshments and the task of introducing the shy Rosemont freshmen to the more bashful and retiring Villanovans. After the "get together" got rolling, about 75 couples graced the dance floor in Mayfield Hall.

Members of the Council detailed for the distribution of tickets will make a drive this week to secure payment for as many as possible. Cooperation by the student body in paying for their tickets would help the Council in making final arrangements.

Thirty Members Of AIEE Attend Tour of Institute

Professor Bueche, Counsellor of Student Branch, Conducted Trip; Lightning Display Witnessed

Thirty members of the Junior class in Electrical Engineering school and members of the Villanova Branch of the A. I. E. E. attended a trip to the Franklin Institute last Friday afternoon, September 29, sponsored by the student society.

Professor Harry S. Bueche, Professor of Electrical Engineering and Counsellor of the Villanova Branch, conducted the inspection of Philadelphia's storehouse of knowledge in especially the Electrical Engineering, Illumination, and Radio departments.

The group arrived at the Institute in time to see the demonstration of man-made lightning and hear the demonstrator's lecture. The destructive effects of the phenomenon together with recently developed protective measures were demonstrated and explained.

Study Illumination

One of the most interesting lectures of the afternoon was heard in the Illumination section. Mr. Lee, a former illuminations expert with a large manufacturing company, received the attention of the group for nearly an hour as he explained the intricacies of artificial lightning. The interesting displays he used were all his own property.

One of the main objectives of the trip, the Communications department, was closed for alterations. To account for this, Mr. Bueche stated that a similar trip may be forthcoming at which time a visit would also be made to the Planetarium.

Fraternity Presents Keys At Banquet for Seniors

Greater Activity Urged by Speakers at Dinner Dance Held Saturday at Palumbo's; Advantages of Membership Cited

In a gathering reminiscent of Villanova social functions of pre-war days, Phi Kappa Pi, engineering school fraternity, presented keys to 15 members at the first Annual Senior Banquet held last Saturday evening at Palumbo's Restaurant in Philadelphia.

Over 50 members of the fraternity and 16 professors from the engineering faculty attended the affair, which began with dinner at 8:30 and included a presentation of the regular floor show, short talks by two professors, and a period of dancing.

Presents Keys

REV. J. A. KLEKOTKA, O.S.A.

At the completion of the show, President Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., rose to introduce the speakers. First he presented a man who has probably witnessed more such affairs than any other—J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the School of Engineering. Dean Morehouse spoke briefly on the advantages of an organization such as Phi Kappa Pi.

Urge Greater Activity

Pointing out that it was the most universal of the engineering societies on the campus, he praised it as a means of binding more closely together all members of the school and exhorted the younger men present to see that in the future it becomes even more active than it has been.

President McGuinn, who himself brought the fraternity from a state of comparative inactivity following the start of the accelerated program to its present condition, heartily endorsed the Dean's statements and urged his successor to carry on the work which he has begun.

In the regretted absence of Rev. John S. O'Leary, O.S.A., moderator of the fraternity—Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., himself a president of Phi Kappa Pi in undergraduate days at Villanova, was called on next to present the keys.

Fr. Klekotka struck a responsive note, when he appealed to the seniors to cherish the awards not for their physical value but because they are the keys which will keep "locked up in their hearts" all the things which Phi Kappa Pi and Villanova have meant to them.

He tried to impress the men with the personal interest which the professors take in the students and urged them to come back in later years to show the teachers the fruits of their efforts to produce "fine engineers and fine men."

Sing Alma Mater

After this, the following men came up individually to the speakers table and received their keys from Fr. Klekotka: John Belletti, Hugh Gillespie, Robert Gruss, Albert Hurford, Philip Jakeway, Francis McGuinn, Gerard Riegger, William Regii, Patrick Reagan, Martin Roddy, Angelo Rosa, Thomas Schubert, Vincent Silverio, John Wilson, and Eugene Weinert.

Finally, all rose and joined in the singing of the Alma Mater—heard but infrequently on the campus in the past year—and, to celebrate the football team's second consecutive victory, "College Days," traditional song of athletic contests. Two hours of dancing concluded the evening.

Nominations

Nomination of officers of Phi Kappa Pi for the coming semester will be held on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock in room 214 Mendel Hall. Proceedings will begin promptly at one in order to have them completed before the noonday muster. All members are urged to attend in order to insure the nomination of the majority choice. Final election among those chosen this week will be conducted at the same place on the following Thursday afternoon.

It's Tradition

VILLANOVA'S twice victorious team will play its first home game of the 1944 Football Season when they meet Sampson N. T. S. this weekend at Shibe Park. With this game will once again rise old traditions associated with gridiron classics—those little things that add so much color to the show.

Among the most colorful tradition familiar to Villanovans—that brings the band to the middle of the field, that brings a hush over the cheering throng, that brings thousands of spectators to their feet—is the singing of our ALMA MATER.

In former years, no freshman was two months old in college life before he had learned the ALMA MATER, mainly through the efforts of the Orientation Committee. But today, there are few students that know or remember even the first line of the school's song. Our new band is working hard to learn the music by Saturday. Let's make an effort—all of us—to learn the words of our ALMA MATER. Let's make the bleachers ring.

I

When the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the campus green,
When the blue and purple night
Comes stealing on the scene
Loyal sons of Villanova
Sing a hymn of praise
To our dear old ALMA MATER
And our college days.

II

Villanova, Villanova
When we leave your shelt'ring walls,
We shall leave an echo ringing
Through your treasured halls.
We will leave an echo ringing
In the silent night
While our memories are singing
Of the Blue and White.

III

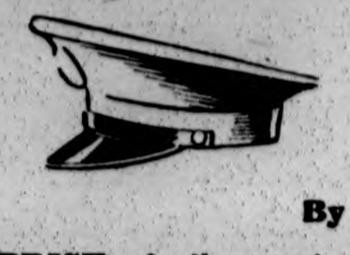
When the last big game is over
And the last roll call is heard;
When the oldest pedagogue
Has had his final word,
We shall come to ALMA MATER
In our dreams again
With a prayer for Villanova
And a sweet amen.

Cooperation Did This

AFTER a period of relative inactivity this past summer semester, the various student organizations of this institution have arisen from their moribund state, and have presented for their members a series of activities which have stirred a lively interest among the students.

The A.I.E.E. is to be congratulated for the interesting plant trips which they arranged for their members. The Phi Kappa Phi deserves more than praise for the succesful dinner dance which it held at Palumbo's Restaurant this past Saturday evening. Stimulating movies and lectures were presented weekly by the A.S.M.E. during the past semester which were a great success. The Student Council deserves its share of congratulations for the planning of the Blue and White Hop.

These various social activities have stimulated the interest of the students of the school to cooperate with one another to acieve success in sundry endeavor. This spirit of success must be carried on in future months. It is sincerely hoped that more and better activities are in the offing.



Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

SURPRISE of all surprises was when Bill "Booger" Oehrlein dropped a line to Frank "Oke" the other day. Booger arrived in the states on the first of this month after a number of months in Italy. He has a Presidential Citation and one Oak Leaf Cluster, is expecting another. Cpl. Oehrlein was one of the boys with us when we were civilians in Alumni. He expects to go on B-29's.

Our ex-drum major, Bob Beale, is at Bainbridge and from the sound of things, seems to be making out okay. His only complaint is that he can't get used to having the chiefs think for him.

Austin Gavin dropped in Friday. He has been in Bethesda doing lab work for the past year. Austin starts at Jefferson Medical School this week. (We feel guilty Scooping you like this, Father.)

And it was good news to hear that Ensign Fred Meisner is coming along much better. Keep going, Fred. He is now at St. Albans General Hospital, Long Island.

Out in the Caribbean, now, is Maurice Bingham and on a sub no less. Bing really likes his sub duty.

Ensign Jack Worthington is now in Pascagoula, Miss., and doing ferry work on the Gulf of Mexico.

Milt Kohler and Phil Golden were up to pay us a visit last week, both looking very well. They are at Temple Medical School.

Dick Butler was also around; this time in civvies. Sorry to hear it Dick.

Lieut. E. A. Gallagher III, U. S. N. A. C., came back from the west coast last week to tie the well known knot with Miss Eileen Leahy. He is an ex-'41 Mechanical Engineer. Ed is slated to see action sometime around Christmas, after a long grind of instructing at Pensacola Naval Air Station, Florida. Incidentally, Eileen is Bob's sister.

A letter from Larry Schmitt, who is now in O. C. S., informs us that he ran into Lt. Tex Carter, Vinnie Carlesimo and "O. C." Lou Casbarro. Lou has only one week to go. They are all down in Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Joe Hoffman came to see us last Saturday on liberty from the Naval Hospital. Let's hope that everything turns out okay for Joe as he is one of the swellest fellows we know.

MacGil's Folly

By BOB McKIBBIN, A.S.
and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

SINCE last we drew our pens and cracked the mighty Webster a happening of great magnitude and singular importance has caught up with us, i.e., summer has ceased all activities for the year of '44, while autumn has stepped in to try its frosty hand at reminding us that "it was very cold last winter—and it's going to be cold this winter, toooo". As a season there's nothing quite like autumn. However, it's not be be rushed into lightly—have those red flannels handy. For instance—take the case of the Summer Sisters: when it came time for them to spend their Fall they found themselves living at the bottom of a lake in an "Automobile" and just look at the Brow—most people are content to go around a Maypole in the spring, but he has to rush the Fall—And where does he wind up but about a flagpole. So do be ever so careful.

With the coming of autumn so comes the leaves, the pumpkins, the korn, the squirrels, and—ah that reminds us — the girls from our neighboring sister colleges also make their appearance once again at this time. So is it any wonder that we like this season—there's nothing quite like a slab of fresh pumpkin pie. But to get away from the ever present subject of food—we would like to take this opportunity to welcome all the smooth chicks back, from not too far Immaculata, over the hill and far away Chestnut Hill and finally our ever so close but friendly neighbors—the deah girls of Rosemont. All-too dull, as can be witnessed by taking uh look at any empty wallet, still it will be a relief to take up old acquaintances and foster new ones with girls that won't spend all our money—mainly because they have to be in slightly early and just don't have the time . . . My, my, Bertram, how bitter thou art!

As usual, a large crop of seasoned veterans of many a tea dance (where tea stands for Tee Hee) will be returning, as well as a large bevy of those simple, unaffected frosh who have yet to engage the local operators of Villanova on their home grounds at Ye Olde Tea Dawnce.—Definition of an operator: A self-styled socialite and playboy, usually male, who boozes on Saturday nite and tea-zes on Sunday . . . Little do these newcomers realize the thrill of sipping a spot of Orange Pekoe while jiving it up to the tune of "Our Last Waltz", or something equally as scintillating—but they'll learn.

Which reminds us of the time Dr. E. L. Haenisch ('L' for Legree, Simon A.) was teaching a course at Rosemont one summer and assigned the girls in the class some graps for homework. Coming in the next morning "Doc" innocently said: "Okay, girls, let me see your curves."

So, with our trusty dictionary still open, we leave you with something which will live on far after our time — Webster's last words. To wit: zymic, zymology, and zynotic.

Meet the Boys

By PVT. C. STRICKROTH

WHEN looking around the barracks for a loyal Villanova man to defend the college under any circumstances, we know that we can always count on Pvt. Raymond W. Kasper. Having entered Villanova in September of 1941, he hasn't yet missed a chance to shout the praises of his Alma Mater, and justly so.

Ray hails from the half-way city of Trenton. Very few of us could miss that fact, during baseball season especially when we see him dash for the papers to see how his home town club made out. The Franciscans were responsible for his high school education at Trenton Catholic Boys High School.

PVT. RAYMOND KASPER

Even then he began to pull away from the crowd by excelling in his studies. In fact he was so successful that he entered Villanova on a scholarship.

When here as a civilian, Ray was studying Chemical Engineering and was consistently on the honor roll. At that time he was more of the quiet type and made good use of his time in such societies as the A. I. Ch. E. Yes, he was a chemical all the way. But the Marine Corps changed things around a bit so that he is now taking Electrical Engineering.

Now we might say that Ray is quite a social man, holding mem-

Get together—Phi Kappa Pin's dinner dance at Frank Palumbo's Saturday night, first big social function at Villanova since the June Hop, was a thorough success. Hats off to president Frank McGuinn and the other executives of the fraternity who helped arrange the enjoyable affair.

They'll hate us for it but—Jack McChesney, Don Rinehardt, and Bill Koness added a note of dissymmetry when they arrived a full half hour late.

Tid-bits—Andy Murphy helped to make the show when he aided the m.c. over a few drab jokes . . . Alan Schneider gets our vote for the best dancer of the evening. . . The cheapest stunt of the evening was pulled by Walt Huber who wouldn't buy Betty a picture.

We can't be too blunt so—He-men Phil Pakeway and Ed Nolan took offense at the "prohibitive" measures taken by the far-seeing members of the planning board.

This could go without saying, we know, but — The presence of Dr. Haenisch, Profs. Gorman, Driscoll, Greyson, Bueche, Auth, Gallen, Oakey, Dean Morehouse and Fr. Klekotka added a touch of dignity to the affair. (How are we ever gonna miss that honor roll now!)

Rosemont's first tea dance since the opening of the new scholastic year was attended by Jim Cassin, Joe McFadden, Hugh Johnson, Jim Dolan, Frank Ronan, George Courie, Harry Duffy and Mel Racusin, among others. Frank O'Connor, chairman of the help-get-the-dancing-started board, reports the dance was enjoyed by all, but of course he may be a bit prejudiced.

Good cheer department—Just a reminder to Joe Hoffman, Jack Freytag and Joe Carroll to get well soon.

P.S.—Two more week-ends until the Blue and White hop.

It Hits Everywhere

THE question of who has the prettiest girl in the Marine detachment was brought to our attention when an eminent feminine connoisseur declared Pvt. Kelchner has THE beauty. Please take a quick look, you judges of physical talent to see if the "body" was right. If any improvements can be made please contact Bill (I'm crazy about Frenchmen) Dennis.

Speaking of the ex-company commander, it seems [illegible] isn't without company because he has one explosive gal in Miss Yeager. She must be the pretty but dumb type because every so often in her letters there are numerous "x's". Probably can't think of anything to say.

Watch your step Pvt. R. S. You were seen in the wrong place at the wrong time last week-end. But they did look nice.

The band under (Don (I'm now a conductor) Rugen's leadership is doing a great job both musically and morally. You fellows deserve your extra liberty. While on the subject of liberty, how about those fellows who work five evenings a week and fight hard to win on the sixth day. They wouldn't object.

Telling people where to get off is best left to the street car conductors, right G. K. S.?

Thorns to:—Pvt. T. O'Connell who tried to keep two women happy with the same line. It seems Red Nealon registered a scoop with this columnist in revealing Tom's underhand methods. Bigamy has received another set-back, Red.

Now to you Junior G-Men who are striving to hunt this columnist down. Keep up the good work fellows. Pvt. J. J. K. is in the right church but the wrong pew; your suspects don't have the savvy to write like this. Only Kismet can decide.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Starting Bluejacket Players

In the starting line-up for Sampson N. T. C. on Saturday night when they meet the Main Liners are, on the left: Fran Raye, former Columbia football star under Lou Little, who will call the signals, and the starting right guard, Howie White, veteran of last year's team and former Kansas State footballer.

Mendel Takes Lead With Two Wins In I. M. Football

Fedigan Defeated Twice in First Week of Play; Marines and Austinites Play to 18-18 Deadlock

The lid was pried open on the Intramural Touch Football League last week with four of the eight scheduled games being played. Wednesday's and Friday night's games were postponed due to the practice drill and the pep rally.

On Monday night, Mendel began to establish the lead which she now holds by defeating the Alumni Sailors 32-6 in an uneventful ball game.

The same night Austin eked out a 14-12 margin over Fedigan in a thriller that appeared to be Fedigan's win up until the last 30 seconds when Austin crossed the line to annex the game.

The opening game of the new intramural season, Mendel displayed the form which they possessed last season when they were runner-ups for the football crown. It was the successful passing combination of Winters to Ward that accounted for the opening three touchdowns and from there on in the Mendelites pulled away. Last season they played off for the title with Fedigan when Fedigan had the great Milt Anderson to snatch any and all passes.

The most exciting game to date was the Marine-Austin tilt on Tuesday night which ended in an 18-18 tie. The Leathernecks were the first to score, garnering their first six points early in the game. Fedigan, however, put up stiff resistance and their offense was good for six more points. The Marines took the lead once more when Marty Greeley ran back Bob Plath's kickoff past Austin's goalline.

Shortly after they increased their lead to 18-12 and Austin looked hopeless until 30 seconds beofre the final whistle when Bob Grieve snatched a pass in the end zone to assure his team of a tie.

On the other field Mendel chalked up victory number two by downing twice-defeated Fedigan by the score of 6-0 in a game featuring excellent defense on the part of both teams.

In taking this game the Engineers finally managed to pull through successfully a pass play to score the winning tally. It was again Sparky Winter who tossed the aerial but on the receiving end was Don Schmitt of distance running fame.

The Standings:

Austin	1	0	1
Fedigan	0	2	0

Twenty-five Men Quality In Red Cross Swim Test

Spec. 1st Class C. S. Brunt announced last week that twenty five men of the Navy V-12 Unit passed the Senior Life Saving Course and will receive certificates to that effect within the next few days.

This group which was composed of chief swimmers under Navy standards completed a 17 hour course taking two classes every week for the past two months. Mr. Brunt, who qualified as a water safety instructor in 1931, taught the men from both the theoretical side as well as from the practical aspect.

Much Practice

Various carries such as the head, the tired swimmers, the cross chest, the hair and the chin carry were all included in the curriculum. Along with these, the methods of breaking many different types of holds were also taught.

Mr. Brunt stressed the new idea of the American Red Cross as far as water safety goes in that those who passed the course were not only competent swimmers but also know just what methods to use in the preparation and supervision of a public swimming place.

Twenty Five Pass

Those apprentice seamen who are entitled to receive certificates as Senior Red Cross Life Savers are:

Tom Baxter, Bob Bean, Joe Carroll, Leroy Collegeman, Mike Flynn, Ed Grostas, Bill Hoffman, Walt Huber, Joe Keating, Herb Lamb, Jack McClancy, Andy Murphy, Hughie O'Reilly, Gene Orcutt, who was transferred to another station, George Siebert, Frank Solis, Dave Ward, Tom Welch, and Sparky Winter.

The remainder of the group were Marines and they are:

Fred Goetz, George Hooper, Brent Morse, Charlie Stukas, Jack Welles, and Al Streck.

Football Information

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

In answer to the numerous queries circulating about the campus concerning drill, the procedure will be as follows. The trainees will assemble in mass formation behind the temporary bleachers before the start of the game.

From this position they will march out onto the field, circling it once and then, breaking into separate companies, they will march across the field to the front of the stands. Immediately following will be the National Anthem and the N-A-V-Y cheer.

After this the companies will be dismissed and will proceed back to the temporary stands. The companies will again assemble at the half, as before, and proceed to pass in review. After the half, the trainees will be free to do as they wish.

Dates Allowed

As to the Friday night games, transportation will be furnished to and from the games, all returning in a group. For Saturday afternoons, the trainees will proceed to the games in the manner best suited to them. No transportation will be furnished. However, for the Muhlenberg game, the trainees will be transported to the game but will be free after parading.

Dates and friends may accompany trainees in the temporary stands. Trainees wishing to leave the stadium, may do so between drilling sessions. Admittance will be checked off on a special list and a "matric" card or some means of identification will be necessary. Civilian students will be admitted only upon presentation of matric cards.

Where To Go

In regards to adverse weather conditions, trainees will be transported to games regardless of the fact that the weather may not be suitable for drilling.

Shibe Park Stadium may be reached by proceeding North on the Broad Street Subway and taking a West bound No. 54 trolley at the North Phila. subway stop, getting off at the 21st Street entrance. Tickets and information about all games are available at the Athletic office, situated in the Field House.

There will be four home games this season, two of which will come in this semester. The first Sampson, a Saturday night affair, is this coming Saturday, and again on the 21st of the month, in the afternoon we play Muhlenberg.

Strong Sampson Team Here In First Local Home Game

Villanova First College Engagement for New Bluejackets Have Record of Four Losses To Professional Teams

By DAVE RYAN

Villanova College will play its first home game of the 1944 season on Saturday night, October 7, under the lights at Shibe Park when an all-Navy contest will be presented—the Main Line V-12'ers against Sampson Naval Training Center's Bluejacket eleven.

Coached by Lieutenant Commander James H. Crowley, USNR — better known as "Sleepy Jim" Crowley, All-American halfback in the best publicized and most glamorous backfield quartet in the annals of football, Notre Dame's Four Horsemen of 1922, '23, '24—Sampson comes to Philadelphia with a record of four losses in four games. But, in the words of Al Smith, 'Let's Look at the records".

Pro Opponents

All four teams which defeated the Sailors were members of the National Professional Football League. First came the Boston Yanks, the League's newest entry, which could manage only a 14-0 victory despite the inexperience of the Bluejacket line.

The Green Bay Packers, picked by many experts to take the pro crown this season, had to go all-out to attain their 25-14 win. It wasn't until late in the fourth quarter that the issue was really decided and the game iced.

Sampson threw a real scare the way of Stout Steve Owen's charges the New York Giants when they threatened to score upon the Giants three times from within the one yard line. The New Yorkers prevailed with a 13-0 win.

Former Wildcat

Last on this list of Ponderous Pachyderms of football is the Cleveland Rams. Steve Pritko, former Villanova end, tallied once for the Rams as they outscored the Bluejackets 26-12.

In all their defeats at the hands of the play for pay boys (?), Sampson displayed a passing attack which cannot be regarded lightly, especially in view of the fact that the lone scores rung up by Scranton and Franklin and Marshall came as a direct result of overhead thrusts.

For the most part, the Sampson roster is devoid of names familiar to the college or pro game fan. To balance this, however, a select few have a wealth of intercollegiate varsity football competition and experience behind them.

Syracuse Star

One of the mainstays of the team is 6"1', 210 pounds, Red Heater, from Syracuse University, at center. Don Cushing, erstwhile of Cornell looks to be the standout end. Cushing was understudy to his brother, Meredith, former captain and center at Cornell, but was moved to end by the Sampson coaches because of the wealth of center material and the dearth of end talent.

Howard White and Ed Pucket, guards, played on the Kansas State and Murray College (Ken.) elevens respectively, before entering the Navy. White was also a second string lineman for Sampson last fall.

Pro Player

Holding down the tackle positions are Garry Schmeelk, 6'2", 216 pounds, and Stan Belinkas, 6'1", 234 pounds. Belinkas played one season of both freshman and varsity ball at Holy Cross. Schmeelk, who played against Sampson last year as a member of the New York Giants in an early season game, previously performed for Herb Kopf at Manhattan.

Jack Miers is the only man on the first team without any collegiate experience. He played three years of varsity ball, however, with Rock Island High School (Ill.).

Standing out at quarterback is Fran Raye, who is best known as Fran Sposato. Raye played three years at Columbia under Lou Little, being a member of the 1938 Colum-

Diplomats Fall 14-6 For Second 'Cat Triumph

Bucky Williams Drives Across Twice to Score Both Touchdowns; David and Severson Add Points to Victory

In the second game of the season the Main Liners traveled to Lancaster to make it number two in the triumph book as they passed and ran through the Diplomats to score a well earned 14-6 win.

Overcoming the obstacles of a wet field and a pass minded team the Villanovans took the advantage right from the start, scoring in the first and second period to pile up a half-time advantage of 14-0.

Bucky Williams, small but speedy and powerful rushed across both the touchdowns. Points after scores were added by right guard Duke Severson and fullback Bob David.

Long March

Receiving the opening kickoff the Wildcats immediately commenced a march from their own twenty which ended in their opponent's end zone. With Williams, David and Hoot alternating in lugging the leather they marched uninterrupted to the one yard line where halfback Williams plunged over for the initial score. The extra point was added by Severson.

Late in the second quarter the 'Cats again tallied as David set up the score by intercepting on our forty-five and traveled to F. C M.'s 48. Williams and Mark Abribat picked up thirteen yards through the line and then Dick Hoot tossed a twenty five aerial which end Bob Forrest caught and fell with on the Diplomat's five. Williams again slanted off tackle for the second and final Villanova socre. David converted.

Diplomats Score

It wasn't until the latter part of the second half that the Diplomats started to rall. Then Tex Phillips, on his own 41, uncorked a long pass to End Buel who snared it and was downed on the Wildcat 34. Again Philips winged another long aerial, this time to Bill Iannacelli, the opposite end, who, taking it on the Main Line ten, did a tight-rope stunt as he teetered along he sideline to the one before he stumbled out of bounds.

Fullback Fultineer then carried it across for their lone tally. End Buel's kick after score was too low. This lone score was the only result of a Franklin and Marshall afternoon of passing. For the greater part of the game they attempted to find success in their aerial attack when ground plays failed o produce gains. They managed to secure but one first down through a Wildcat line that played superbly.

Out of fourty four attempted forwards they only completed fourteen. Quite often it was William's height that prevented him from intercepting as he ball was literally snatched from his hands. It was Bob David who saved the day many times by blocking and intercepting passes. Better than his defensive work was his kicking which continually kept the Diplomats in a hole.

bia eleven which upset Army 18-13. Raye's forte is blocking.

Southpaw Passer

Waylon Manning is regarded as the Number One halfback. From Texas A and M, Manning is a southpaw passer who did a considerable amount of the Sampson hurling last autumn. He completed a thirty-two yard toss in the Sampson-Cornell game last year, which was one of the longest completed passes for the Sailors during the season.

Vince Renzo and Angelo Maglio round out the backfield. Renzo played with Pop Warner's Temple teams of 1935, '36, '37 and later with the Patterson Panthers of the American Association. Maglio has but one year of freshman football behind him, gained while at Holy Cross.

Twin Advantage

For the first team at least, the Sailors have the advantage both in weight and in experience over the Wildcats. Their line has an average of 193½, and the whole team goes at about two pounds more. They have demonstrated their ability to conduct an effective passing game in their contests with the pros, and the chance that they will produce a ground attack, most probably of the powerhouse type, is not remote.

The Bluejackets have scrimmaged Syracuse and Colgate, but Villanova is the first formal college game listed on their card.

Although the Wildcats have come through victorious in their first two contests, they have shown a definite weakness in their pass defense. No doubt then that the nightly practice sessions this week will be allocated, in the main, to the correction of this weakness.

bership in the PKP and the student council. The latter office speaks for itself in showing that he was and always will be a favorite with the students. Besides his social talents Ray is quite an athlete and he was picked for the All-Star Intramural Basketball team this year.

In a few weeks Villanova will lose this loyal rooter, but Villanova's loss will be the Marines Corps' gain with Ray as a Lieutenant in a few months.

IF you were to ask a Loyola man of recent years who the "gold-dust twins" are, we doubt very much whether he would even have to stop to think before saying, "Pula and Paska, of course".

THADDEUS PULA, A.S.

Yes, Thadeus J. Pula, A. S., and Roman A. Paska, A. S., have been practically inseparable since they first entered college at Loyola in Baltimore. In fact at both Loyola and Villanova they have continually caused the profs. much trouble in deciding which is which.

We have known Roman for quite some time now, since our homes are but a few blocks apart. We attended the same grammar school near our home, but, when it came to High School, "Rom" sided with the Jesuits rather than the Brothers and went to Loyola High School. No doubt about it, he was really a student all the way. From grade school to the present time he has always been found on top or very close to it whenever the scholastic ratings were put out.

It was at Loyola College that Tad Pula came into the picture. Not having attended high school with either of us, Tad had attended the largest public high school in Baltimore—City College. Even in a school of that size he did more than hold his own both scholastically and socially.

ROMAN PASKA, A.S.

Coming to Villanova on July 1, 1943, meant a two-fold change for these fellows. Besides undertaking the duties of the Navy they also switched their course of study to Electrical Engineering. Seeing their opportunity in an open field, Rom and Tad decided to work for their E. E. degree instead of their former plans. Continuing their friendly rivalry for the highest marks, they still hold their usual position near the top of the scholastic lists.

Because of the changing of courses at the midway point in their college career, at the end of the semester they will be a few credits short of receiving their degrees in Electrical Engineering. We feel quite sure that this will not stop them though, and that they will finish in short order after the war. At present, however, the foremost thought in their minds is what the Navy has planned for them when the semester ends in a few weeks.

PKP Nominates Officers Thurs.

Final Elections To Be Held This Week; Complete Attendance Urged

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering school fraternity, will congregate in room 214 Mendel Hall at 1:00 P. M. Thursday to cast the final votes in their annual election. The nominees were elected at a meeting held last Thursday. One of the most important meetings of the year, the nominations of last Thursday were well attended and a still larger turnout is expected for the eletcions.

The nominees are as follows: for President, William Koness, William Farrell and Francis O'Connor; for Vice President, Michael Flynn, Hubert O'Reilly and Paul Miller; for Secretary, Charles Harrington, Robert McKibbin, James Shoemaker and Frank Solis; for Treasurer, Anthony Cocco, Robert Cramer, Joseph Gerngross and Andrew Murphy; for Sergeant at Arms, Stanley Wagner, Herbert Lamb and John Cockroft; all Apprentice Seamen.

The election proceedure will be as follows: Everyone will be handed a ballott slip upon entering room 214 on Thursday. These slips will contain the names of all the nominees, their office of nomination and their present semester of attendance. To vote, a check will be made alongside the name of the person whom you wish eletced.

The ballot slips will be counted before and after the eletcion, as a check on the proper tallying. Candidates should be elected on the strength of their past activities and ability and willingness to add to the success of the "frat."

Two Profs Attend ChemLab Opening

J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the School of Engineering, and Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering on the college faculty, were among those invited to the formal opening of the new Research and Development Laboratory of the Pennsylvania Salt Company last Wednesday afternoon.

The nearly 400 industrial executives and deans and department heads of academic institutions who attended were the first to witness the results of the transformation of Whitemarsh Hall, residence of the late Edward T. Stotesbury, into a modern chemistry laboratory.

Before their tour through the building, the guests were served a luncheon at which Mr. Kettering, vice-president of General Motors Corporation, addressed the gathering.

All present, according to Dr. Haenisch, were deeply impressed with the ingenious manner in which what had once been a palatial, private residence had been converted to the purposes of modern industry without destroying in any way the identity of the original structure.

Indeed, the fine facilities already present had been utilized to the fullest. For example: few changes were made in the original plumbing; a vacuum cleaning installation was pressed into use providing a vacuum pump for research purposes; the spacious ball-room is now a technical library.

Unit Citation

Villanova, 10 October — Congratulations are accorded to the entire Navy V-12 Unit of Villanova College for the fine spirit of cooperation which has been manifested lately. The following items deserve special mention:

1. Latest reports from the district War Bond office show 100% cooperation on this station. Every trainee and member of the ship's company is now participating in the Bond allotment program.
2. The pre-game and half-time parades at Saturday's football game were well executed by all companies and made a favorable impression on the public and especially the many high ranking Naval officers in attendance.
3. Wholehearted and roof-raising support given to the team in the way of cheering surpassed expectations and was over-rated only by the team's excellent fighting spirit.

Casualty Record In New Alumnus

The fall edition of the Alumnus, quarterly magazine of the Alumni association will come out next week. The official organ, edited by Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A., will contain many items of interest to the Alumni both at home and serving abroad.

Due to lack of space the service record will not be included in this issue and only those who lost their lives in the present war since the last issue will be listed. Up to the present time there are 22 former students of the college who are known to have died in the present conflict.

Along with the customary President's message, the Alumnus will feature a tribute to Father Stanford, the retiring President of the college, complemented by a story on the recent changes in the Administration.

Villanova Salts

By S. H. GOLDBERGER, A/S

Walter M. Dapkunas, of Philadelphia, is the most modest of Villanova's fleet men. He entered the Navy in June, 1941, and headed for Newport for eight weeks of boot training. After he finished boots, he spent several months being transferred from base to base. Part of this time Walter spent in signal school, where he became a signalman 3/c.

After this, Walter went to Cape May Section Base, where he arrived in August of 1942. Then followed a tour of duty on a patrol craft. Walter's next assignment was to the New London Submarine Base, where he spent five months in the signal tower.

Barely Misses Invasion

Following the pattern of continual change, Walter next served aboard a submarine chaser, and then went to England with the Amphibious Forces. He just missed the invasion, as his V-12 orders brought him to Asbury Park Pre-Midshipman's School in May, 1944, for pre-V-12 training. July 1 found him at Villanova.

Next on the list is S. Timothy Yaros, who comes from Passaic, N. J. The Navy claimed Tim in January, 1942, and he went to Sampson Naval Training Station for boot training. After ten weeks at Sampson, Tim went to Norfolk, where he attended the Carpenter's Mate School, finishing CM 3/c.

Next followed a short stay at Pier 92, New York, and then Tim went to the Navy Receiving Station at Lido Beach, Long Island, N. Y. Assigned to the Amphibious Forces, Tim then went to the British Isles for training.

Promoted at Anzio

From Great Britain Tim went to Italy, where he participated in the landings at Anzio. During this action, he received promotion to CM 2/c. He then returned to the British Isles, where he made application for V-12, and he too arrived at Asbury Park in May. On July 1 he came to Villanova.

Nearby Norristown, Pa., is the home of Charles S. Fesmire, next salt. Charlie began his Navy life with a month of boot training at Newport in October, 1942. He then proceeded to Jacksonville, Fla., where he went to Aviation Machinist Mate School, finishing with the rate of AMM 3/c.

Sees Action in Pacific

Charlie then moved to Cecil Field in Jacksonville for two months of advanced training, and on June 12 left for Receiving Station, San Francisco. There followed three weeks at Camp Parks, and then he was on his way "over there."

After stopping briefly in New Hebrides, Charlie's Unit moved on to New Caledonia, where they spent two weeks before shoving off for Munda, in New Georgia. Here they operated an airfield just built by the Seabees. In February, 1944, the unit went to the Russell Islands for rest and new equipment, and March 10 brought orders for Charlie to return to the United States for V-12. After the usual procedure, Charlie arrived at Villanova July 1.

Last of Fedigan's fleet men to be interviewed is Edward L. Bernard, of Hoboken, N. J. Ed reported to Newport in April, 1943 for 12 weeks of boot training, and then proceeded to the Electrician's Mate School at the same base, where he spent four months, finishing as Fireman 1/c. From Newport he went to Norfolk for Destroyer Escort training, was assigned to the complement of a ship under construction, and sent to Brooklyn Receiving Station to await her completion.

The crew took the new ship on her shakedown cruise, then began patrol duties on the coast. Next they made a trip across to Africa, coming back by way of Brazil. While on this cruise, Ed was promoted to ElM 3/c, and was assigned to V-12 training.

Lt. Tom Doyle, '42, Is Navigator In First Mass Daylight Raid on Philippines

Lt. Doyle is a flight navigator in a B-24 Liberator unit of the Fifth Air Force known as the "Kens Men". His unit has sunk more than 700,000 tons of Japanese shipping —top score for any single Army Air Force unit in the entire Southwest Pacific theater.

Lt. Doyle is the son of Major and Mrs. Thomas H. Doyle, 6331 Sherman St., Philadelphia, and a graduate of La Salle High School. He attended Villanova College where he was well known as the editor of the Villanovan and for his interest in other student activities before his graduation in May, 1942.

Upon entering the Army he attended Hondo Army Air Force Flying School, obtaining his commission in August, 1943, upon completion of the navigation course at this school. Overseas since February, 1944, he now wears the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and has completed more than 270 combat hours. He completed his fortieth mission on September 6.

Lt. Joseph Lord Wed In College Chapel; Former Court Star

Second Lieutenant Joseph Lord, Bombardier in the Army Air Force, was married last Saturday morning at a nuptial mass in the college chapel to Miss Polly Anne Parke. Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., president of the college, officiated at the ceremony. The bride is a resident of Villanova.

Lord a stellar guard on the 1941 and 1942 Wildcat basketball teams, left school in the middle of his junior year to report for duty with the air corps. At present he is stationed at a base in Florida. The teams with which he played were among the most successful in the court history of the school. Prior to the leaving and Lord and several other stars for the army, they had lost but one game.

Year Book Due

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A. and Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., co-moderators of THE BELLE AIR, college Year Book, have announced that this year's book is due to arrive on the campus on October 15, and should be distributed to subscribers shortly thereafter.

Show And Dance Planned For Big Social Weekend

Over 250 Tickets Out For Blue and White Hop; Yankee Doodlers Rehearse Sunday for Review

During the past week, the Student Council completed all arrangements for the Blue and White Hop to be held Saturday evening in the College Field House, while a dress rehearsal held last Sunday afternoon at Villanova helped Director George Noake iron out flaws in the Yankee Doodle Show to be staged Friday evening.

Tickets for the dance, which will feature Johnny Warrington and his orchestra with Betty Barton and Bon Bon, may be procured from any member of the Council. Ticket price is $3.30 per couple. Patrick Reagan who is in charge of tickets for the affair has announced that over 250 tickets have been distributed on the campus and Council members have reported a fine cooperative attitude among the students.

First Curtain at 8:15

The Yankee Doodle Review, consisting of about 30 girls of the Jenkintown Club and an equal number of Villanova trainees recruited for special roles, will begin at 8:15 P.M., Friday evening in the Field House. All trainees will attend and members of the faculty and civilian students are cordially invited.

Both events were scheduled for the same weekend to facilitate the transformation of the Field House into first a theater and then a ballroom without interfering greatly with basketball practice sessions. However, the Friday show will hinder extensive decorations for the Blue and White Hop as much of the work will have to be done Saturday afternoon.

Along these lines, the decorations committee has decoded on the seasonable theme of football pennants of all local and nationally known colleges. There will be no lounge on the stage this year as the band will be directly in front. The new banner of the College Seal first used for the Centennial Convocation will be a fitting background for the affair.

Notice

There will be a meeting of the Student Council on Thursday at 12:45 P. M. in room 215 Mendel Hall. It is important that all members attend and they are requested to bring an account of their ticket sales.

Advance payment for tickets must be made prior to Thursday evening. After that time, payment must be made at the door on Saturday night.

New ASME Officers To Be Elected; Hold Nominations Monday

The nomination of candidates for the offices of the Villanova student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers took place yesterday at a meeting of the Society at 6 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. Candidates for the offices of President, Vice-President and secretary-treasurer for the coming semester were nominated.

Officers were formerly elected for a term of two semesters, the normal scholastic year, but due to the uncertainties of the present circumstances officers will hold their positions for a period of one semester only.

The election of officers will take place at a meeting tomorrow evening at 6 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. All members of the Society are requested to attend this meeting so that a truly representative choice may be made.

bia eleven which upset Army 18-13. Raye's forte is blocking.

Southpaw Passer

Waylon Manning is regarded as the Number One halfback. From Texas A and M, Manning is a southpaw passer who did a considerable amount of the Sampson hurling last autumn. He completed a thirty-two yard toss in the Sampson-Cornell game last year, which was one of the longest completed passes for the Sailors during the season.

Vince Renzo and Angelo Maglio round out the backfield. Renzo played with Pop Warner's Temple teams of 1935, '36, '37 and later with the Patterson Panthers of the American Association. Maglio has but one year of freshman football behind him, gained while at Holy Cross.

Twin Advantage

For the first team at least, the Sailors have the advantage both in weight and in experience over the Wildcats. Their line has an average of 193½, and the whole team goes at about two pounds more. They have demonstrated their ability to conduct an effective passing game in their contests with the pros, and the chance that they will produce a ground attack, most probably of the powerhouse type, is not remote.

The Bluejackets have scrimmaged Syracuse and Colgate, but Villanova is the first formal college game listed on their card.

Although the Wildcats have come through victorious in their first two contests, they have shown a definite weakness in their pass defense. No doubt then that the nightly practice sessions this week will be allocated, in the main, to the correction of this weakness.

bership in the PKP and the student council. The latter office speaks for itself in showing that he was and always will be a favorite with the students. Besides his social talents Ray is quite an athlete and he was picked for the All-Star Intramural Basketball team this year.

In a few weeks Villanova will lose this loyal rooter, but Villanova's loss will be the Marines Corps' gain with Ray as a Lieutenant in a few months.

IF you were to ask a Loyola man of recent years who the "gold-dust twins" are, we doubt very much whether he would even have to stop to think before saying, "Pula and Paska, of course".

THADDEUS PULA, A. S.

Yes, Thadeus J. Pula, A. S., and Roman A. Paska, A. S., have been practically inseparable since they first entered college at Loyola in Baltimore. In fact at both Loyola and Villanova they have continually caused the profs. much trouble in deciding which is which.

We have known Roman for quite some time now, since our homes are but a few blocks apart. We attended the same grammar school near our home, but, when it came to High School, "Rom" sided with the Jesuits rather than the Brothers and went to Loyola High School. No doubt about it, he was really a student all the way. From grade school to the present time he has always been found on top or very close to it whenever the scholastic ratings were put out.

It was at Loyola College that Tad Pula came into the picture. Not having attended high school with either of us, Tad had attended the largest public high school in Baltimore—City College. Even in a school of that size he did more than hold his own both scholastically and socially.

ROMAN PASKA, A.S.

Coming to Villanova on July 1, 1943, meant a two-fold change for these fellows. Besides undertaking the duties of the Navy they also switched their course of study to Electrical Engineering. Seeing their opportunity in an open field, Rom and Tad decided to work for their E. E. degree instead of their former plans. Continuing their friendly rivalry for the highest marks, they still hold their usual position near the top of the scholastic lists.

Because of the changing of courses at the midway point in their college career, at the end of the semester they will be a few credits short of receiving their degrees in Electrical Engineering. We feel quite sure that this will not stop them though, and that they will finish in short order after the war. At present, however, the foremost thought in their minds is what the Navy has planned for them when the semester ends in a few weeks.

J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the School of Engineering, and Dr. Edward L. Before their tour through the building, the guests were served a luncheon at which Mr. Kettering, vice-president of General Motors Corporation, addressed the gathering.

New ASME Officers To Be Elected; Hold Nominations Monday

The nomination of candidates for the offices of the Villanova student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers took place yesterday at a meeting of the Society at 6 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. Candidates for the offices of President, Vice-President and secretary-treasurer for the coming semester were nominated.

Officers were formerly elected for a term of two semesters, the normal scholastic year, but due to the uncertainties of the present circumstances officers will hold their positions for a period of one semester only.

The election of officers will take place at a meeting tomorrow evening at 6 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. All members of the Society are requested to attend this meeting so that a truly representative choice ma be made.

Seek Truth on Russia

AS the day of total victory begins to rise to sight over the still distant horizon, plans for post-war peace start to take their proper place in the foreground of public thought. To thinking men among such planners, the problem of reaching a basis of agreement with our Soviet ally presents itself as the great obstacle to be hurdled.

Already agreements made at Dumbarton Oaks and Teheran have been repudiated by the actions of the Russian armies. Even now, as the liberation of eastern and western Europe proceed apace, Soviet methods seem to resemble in bestiality those of the Nazi oppressor whom they replace; and the press remains silent on the subject of the outrages being committed only because the fortunes of war have cast us as brothers-in-arms with the offenders.

While this policy might have been defended as the most discreet, if not the most honorable, while the might of the Nazi terror cast a shadow over men's minds, the day is rapidly approaching when we will no longer be able in conscience to avoid the issue. The time has come to bring the facts out into the open for frank discussion.

A prime instance of the Russian policy is found in the story of the liberation of Poland. After two solid months of having invited the Poles—by radio broadcasts—to an uprising, the Soviets stopped in front of Warsaw as soon as the actual insurrection began.

According to an article in the Brooklyn Tablet, a courageous Catholic paper which has boldly seized the issue which the secular press has avoided, "not only did they bring no help to the burning Polish capital, but insults and political attacks were dropped on General Bor's heroic forces from Soviet microphones. Russia refused even to grant air bases to British and American planes which, at Polish request, flew with rescue for Warsaw." Only when there was danger that Warsaw would win without Soviet aid did the Russian troops step in.

Reports are gradually reaching the country of cases in which, after a successful military collaboration between the Polish underground forces and the advancing Soviet troops, and once the objective has been conquered, entire Polish units were arrested by the Russians and deported. This happened in Wilno, in Lwow, in Lida, and many other localities.

The Tablet further states: "The Baltic countries are experiencing a similar fate. From Lithuania already mass deportations have taken place, and those Lithuanian leaders who survived the Nazi rule are already safe in Soviet custody in Siberia. This is Allied victory in eastern Europe!"

If such policies continue to dominate the actions of our powerful ally in the East, the high-flung principles by which this war has been justified must be cast aside. It will matter little to the subjugated peoples of central Europe whether their oppressors are Nazi or Soviet. It is as surely the duty of our leaders to take up the political battle for the rights of these nations as it was their duty to accept the military task of protecting them from German aggression. Only in this way can the present world conflict accomplish even temporary gains for freedom.

ENSIGN Don Collins was up for a visit last week and looking quite sensational with the gold stripe. We've got to hand Don a lot of credit, for, when we think of it, he is the first one from our class to come back with his commission in the Navy Air Corps. Don is going to San Diego after just having finished a few months of additional training at Pensacola. We all know what a tough grind the N. A. C. is. (Almost as bad as the V-12).

Bill Boyle was back after getting a discharge from the Navy. But to top everything off, he is going into the Army in two months.

There aren't many of the present-day juniors who will forget our freshman days and especially our quite thorough orientation. Remember our orientation committee? How could we forget! There were such men as Jacques Mauch, Bob Simpson, John Quinn, Scotty Boyle, and we all know John Doherty. It was seeing Scotty Boyle last week that remeinded me of all this. It was funny—seeing him seemed to make you think that you were a frosh again, and the old fright came over you, thinking you didn't have your tie in a bow or your pants rolled up.

Scotty looked exactly the same, as if he had been around here all the time riding us. He was wearing an Army discharge pin. We all have those fellows to thank for the little bit of college life that we did have. Of course, we didn't realize it then, though.

Just learned from Joe Gerngross that brother Fred is now out at sea. His latest letter was addressed from the Indianapolis, but it isn't sure that he is on that particular ship. Fred just got out of Midshipman's School a couple of weeks ago. It certainly didn't take him long to get in the fight. Anyway, his going out so soon bolsters our morale.

Ensign Frank Reilly is now on his LST, which is on is way out.

Our boy, Joe Carnol, is in the Brooklyn Naval Hospital after getting a transfer from Philly's. The old fourth deck is lonesome for you, Joe, so hurry up and get well.

And we almost forgot to mention Jim (better known as Pudgy) Ackroyd. Pudgy is in Camp Wheeler, Ga. Mike insists that we put your name in here, Pudge, so we have to humor him, you know. He just wanted to let you know that he is thinking of you.

Right good football game, huh? Lotsa fight, plenty of pep and just the right amount of spirit. . .Yes, the team deserves all the credit in the world. In fact, if they will just go down to Mo Goldstein's delicatessen they can get all the credit they want.

Thinking of Mo brings to mind the fact that ice cream has been banned in Germany—know why? 'Cause the people like to eat it out of COHENS.

But seriously, though, the team played a great game. So this week's congrats go to the Villanova football squad and Coach Jordan Olivar —but definitely.

Bill Connor taking Julie under a toadstool 'cause he thought it was a mushroom. . .Stan Wagner filling the locker room with water when the coach told him he was going to send in a sub. . .a few anonymouses who thought they were magicians so they went out and turned into State Stores. . .the fellow standing in the rain after the game at an intersection with a knife and a gun 'cause he didn't know whether to shoot up the alley or cut across the street. . .the wit from Alumni Hall who kept calling his date Postscript 'cause her name was Adeline.

In conclusion we must admit that there were many pretty gals at the game. We would like to comment on a few but it wouldn't be considerate so we'll be very 'broad-minded about the whole thing and not mention any. Anyway, they're bigger than we are. So just bear in mind the following bit of advice: If you can't take long walks in the Fall, rent an Autumn-mobile.

HAVE you ever heard of that thriving miniature metropolis in Puerto Rico called Mayaguez? Neither did we until we ran into that handsome son of Mayaguez, Hector C. Martinez. Hector started in the grammar school at Mayaguez, then after fourth grade he began his roving career. At first, Hector G. was satisfied with travelling from school to school, but after a one year stay at Aguadilla High school in Puerto Rico, he came to the United States. This was in 1938, the year he entered Peddie Prep at Heightstown, N. J.

HECTOR MARTINEZ

From Peddie Prep, Hector came to Villanova, where he started his pre-law course in the school of Commerce and Finance. When he graduates at the end of this semester, he will have the supreme honor of being the top man in his class. (By the way, he's the only one in his class.) Hector plans to go to Cornell University Law School next November, to pursue his studies in the field of law.

During his stay at Villanova, Hector has been a consistent honor student, and has held the position of Photography Editor of the Belle Air. Heck has acquired an interesting hobby during his years at Villanova. To wit. . .visiting New York every weekend. Ask him why. However, there is only one thing that Hector misses. . .the good old days over at Simpson Hall.

THAT "thrilling" parade . . . we please the public . . . oh yeh? We could cover the weekend activities of practically everyone on the campus by simply saying that all the sundry attended the football game. But we couldn't disappoint our reading public and leave the rest of the column a blank. (Or would you prefer it that way?)

On the side were those of us who didn't mind spending two-fifty to take the number one gal to the game. Witness George Biddington with Hazel, Jerry Mellon with Terry, Jerry Reigger with Ann and Jack Glancy with . . .

What-would-you-do department—Imagine Bob Forrest's predicament when he was confronted by four girls after emerging from the locker room. Preferring to remain true to steady gal Jean, Bob remained stag for the rest of the evening. (At least that is what Bob would like us to report.)

Wrong tip—Whoever told us that George Mattson, the latent lover, had an aversion to women was very much wrong. For the past few weeks ends the misinterpreted Mattson has been absorbed in entertaining pretty Cathleen.

Crisis—Frank Doorley was in a quandry when the usually punctual —oops! we musn't mention her name — hadn't arrived when the parade started. Egotistical Frank really wanted to strut his stuff before the one and only.

The last reminder—We hate to keep bringing it to your attention, but the Student Council dance, the Blue and White Hop, is just one week away. If you haven't already made arrangements to go, it's still not too late. (That is if she is an agreeable girl.) In view of the previous dances, we feel safe in guaranteeing you a most enjoyable evening

The unseen columnist heard Hack Cuff planning his post game attack on the corner bar. From his briefing he leads us to believe than an offensive was worth while. Was it Hack?

Pop Berry made more yardage in the last ten minutes of his Saturday night clash than Sampson made in four quarters.

When the crowds were yelling "Hold that line" Pvt. Muldoon's situation was the imperative one. He has so many girls on the line it has reached its elastic limit.

Jim Lubin is anticipating his fudlough trip to Syracuse Are you still convinced thaat no difficulties will arise?

Hank Wall the more prominent of the juvenile duo gave a break. Hank "poisonally" likes hometown girls. Who am I kidding?

When you're down in the dumps Friday night drag yourself down to the field house. Ha . . Ha . . . Ha. Sounds voluntary doesn't it? After getting a bird's eye view last week we think that Jim Skane better practice his closing scene or the reputations of the Marine Corps will be ruined . I'm positive that one of the members of Friday nights audience would be glad to help you out Jim.

When Coach Olivar looked over his roster of players he found that many of them boasted a wealth of experience. Leading the pack is Capt. "Duke" Severson, capable gaurd and place kicker, who worked under Ollie last year after starting his collegiate career at Georgetown University. Bob David, fullback and punter, did part time duty last year and played for Notre Dame Frosh before entering the Marine Corps. Alex Coleman, 195 lb. guard, another man who saw action last year, was a member of the St. Mary's (Calif.) College, football team.

Len West, outstanding tackle, was on the Pitt freshman squad two seasons ago. Frank Eye, number three guard, is a product of Muhlenberg and received his precollege experience at nearby Uppr Darby High. Pass receiver Bob Forrest go his start at Bucknell University. Dick Tierney, starting pivot man, performed the same task for Miami U. before the war.

Bucky Williams, point-making halfback, came here from the Virginia Military Institute. His running mate, Bob Griffith, hails from Admiral Farragut Acadmy. Dick Hoot, leading signal caller, gained his acclaim at Swarthmore High. Bill Kuzman, another regular without college experience, played for Allentown High School. Ray Wille was active in the Suburban League with Lansdowne.

Bill Ryan, passer deluxe, began his career at St. John's High. Playing against him was Frank Cassisano, from South aChtolic. Frank Brady, heaviest man on the squad, adorned Hanover's line. Don Peterson played scholastic football back in Minneapolis. Dick Evans, no win his second season with the Wildcats played for his home town high school in La Crosse, Wisconsin.

Gene Peyton, subustute end, held the same berth for Boston College. Alex Kaval, recently converted to tackle, was on the Northeastern University team before coming here. John Freytag performed for the Garnet of Swarthmore College. Marc Abribat was in the University of Maryland's backfield. Roger McRae was a membe rof the high school club in Swanville, Minnesota. Lymie Whelan, another of last year's reserves was outstanding for his alma mater in New Rochelle High.

Mendel Wins Two To Take Lead In Football League

Mendel Hall's Engineers kept up their winning ways this past week by defeating Austin, 18-0 on Monday night and Alumni, 6-0 on Tuesday. In other games the Marines scored victory number one over their hallmates, the Austin Swabbies, 18-0 and Fedigan also chalked up its first win, 12-0 with the hapless Swabbies again going down to defeat.

Three Scores

Three different men scored for the Slip Stick kids. The first tally came on an intercepted pass by Dave Ward who went over after a beautiful block by teammate Don Schmitt had removed the last Austinite.

Later on in the game, with Mendel down on the five yard line, Sparky Winter unlimbered his pitching arm and threw a strike to the same Don Schmitt who made a beautiful catch with two men practicaly hanging on him. The third, last and wholly unnecessary score occurred with but five minutes of the game remaining.

The same night, the Leathernecks defeated Alumni. Burt Cox, erstwhile track star managed to snare two passes in the end zone to aid in the Marine victory. Marty Greeley added another when he skirted around end and on some nice blocking went the last few yards over the double stripe.

On Tuesday, Fedigan scored two touchdowns with comparative ease. Matt Lempa gathered a touchdown pass from Wilson and a little later in the game they reversed things and Wilson caught a touchdown pass from Lempa.

Mendel won its fourth straight on this evening when with but a minute and a half to go, Paul Miller pitched a short pass to Don Schmit who carried it the last few yards to pay dirt. Mendel had previously been down within Alumni's two yard line three times, but each time the Pillmen stiffened and took the over the ball on downs.

Because of the fact that examinations are coming up within a week, the league will not operate after tomorrow night, even though it will mean that the Leathernecks won't have played the Engineers. Each time these two teams were scheduled, the games had to be called off either for Navy drills, or pep rallies.

Ollie's Comments—

— "one of the finest exhibitions of spirited football put on by a Villanova team"

A true Villanovan victory was won last Saturday evening when we defeated Sampson 7-6. By that, I mean that the game belonged to the student body as a whole asd not merely reserved for the football team. The display of spirit in the stands, the organized cheering and the spontaneous outbursts of encouragement did more to inspire the team than any coach's pep talk or any other incentive could.

Those were the things that helped us to overcome the advantage of weight and experience which Sampson had over us. In my mind it was one of the finest exhibitions of spirited football ever put on by a Villanova team at Shibe Park.

CAPTAINS—LEADERS

To pick out one or two men for praise would be an injustice as everyone seemed to play his position to the hilt. Co-captains Bob David and Duke Severson were real leaders, bringing the team from its own one yard line in the first period to a socre in the second. David's punting was a vital fatcor as it kept Sampson away from our goal line continually and in the final minutes put them in a hole as he coffin-cornered one on the two yard line. The end play of Bob Forrest and Bill Kuzman was spectacular and clearly effective.

Sampson's vaunted passing attack was a failure because they were rushing Maglio and Manning so fast. The one pass Sampson hurt us with was the "Pro pass" which caught us napping several times. The tackle and the guard assignments were well handled by Len West, Ray Wille, Frank Grady asd Alex Colman. They closed up the gaps in the pinches and on punts held off the Sampson line very well. Last year Sampson blocked two kicks completely on us and partially blocked two others.

CENTERS INJURED

Our two centers Don Peterson and Dick Tierney were both play- Nevertheless they were able to stop Sampson's famous delayed reverse

Wildcats Score Brilliant Victory Over Sampson NTC

Team Scores Third Straight Win in 7-6 Victory Over Former Pro and College Stars From Sampson; Blocked Kick Provides Victory Margin

Upsetting all the dope in true football fashion, the Villanova team outplayed a favored, heavier, and more experienced Sampson eleven to the tune of 7-6 to maintain its undefeated streak with three straight victories.

With the talented toe of fullback and co-captain Bob David providing the technical margin of victory, it was rather a team than an individual victory, for it was the all around playing of the whole team that made the win possible.

It was Sampson who first took the offensive with a series of quick plays in the opening moments of the first quarter to bring the ball down to the Wildcat twenty yard line. Here the Main Line defense stiffened and they took over the ball on downs. Both teams battled back and forth around the fifty yard marker for the remainder of that first period. Then came the break that started the Villanovans on their way.

Peterson Recovers

A fumble by Sampson was recovered by the alert center, Don Peterson, giving the locals the ball on the Sampson thirty-five. A long pass from Hoot to Forrest brought the ball down to the twenty and another shore one with the same combination set the ball on the sixteen where a short plunge by Hoot and a two yard buck by Marc Abribat gave us a first on the nine. Fullback Bob David brought the ball to the two and then Bucky Williams spun off the left side of the line for the initial score of the ball game.

David Converts

It was then that Bob David kicked the fateful point that won the game. It was a perfect boot that smacked into the scoreboard on the stadium high above the crossbar. Severson then kicked off for us, a long end over end boot that traveled back to the Sampson five. A repetition of the first quarter followed with both teams fighting hard but with no scoring punch.

In the second half the Villanovans, twice, just missed scoring opportunities as two passes, thrown by Hick Hoot, barely missed their mark. The first was a long one thrown on the run to end Bob Forrest who was outdistancing his coverage and which just skimmed over his outstretched hands into the end zone. The other, a pass to Marc Abribat, in the clear bounced from his shoulder due to the wet condition of the ball.

It was in the last period that the Sampson men finally scored on a beautiful end run by back Magliola who, skirting end with beautiful interference, dashed down the right sidelines with a three man convoy to score their only six points. Dick Hoot, playing safety made a valiant attempt to tackle Magliola but only managed to stagger him.

Team Meets Holy Cross In Fourth Game Of Season

Powerful Passing and Running Attack Constitute Big Threat to 'Cat Streak; Scanlon-Coached Team Has Good Record

By DAVID I. RYAN

For the fourth time in as many games this season, Villanova will meet up with a team whose main offensive weapon is the pass and which can effectively back this up with more than an adequate running attack, when it plays Holy Cross on next Sunday afternoon, October 15th, at Worcester, Mass. Last autumn Holy Cross beat the Wildcats 12-7.

The Crusaders, with a record of one tie—Dartmouth, 6-6—and one win—Temple, 30-0—in two games, are captained by Tom Kenney, a Philadelphia high school product, who ran off with All Scholastic honors while at Saint Joseph's Prep in 1940 . Kenney is regarded as one of the strongest of All American candidates in the East this year.

Versatile Player

He is probably the most versatile football player to be met by Villanova since the Main Liners ran into Jimmy Woodside of Temple, who, in 1942, was selected as the best all-around ball player in the country. This 170 pound Crusader mainstay will call both offensive and defensive signals come Sunday, as he has done in both the Temple and Dartmouth games.

McNally, Coach

Vince McNally, backfield coach, certainly needs no introduction to Villanova followers. A quarterback under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, Vince graduated from there in 1926. For seven years he was chief aid to "Clipper Smith here at Villanova

Jim Reilly, from La Salle, another local high school product, is but 17 years old, and is holding down the first string right guard position.

Passing Attack

Again it will be mainly up to the Wildcat pass defenders to protect the Blue and White double stripe line. Five of the six touchdowns rung up by Holy Cross have come directly through the air. Passing also figured predominately in the Crusaders' 54-yard march resulted in their sixth tally.

Jim Cahill and Ted Morasky alternating, left halfbacks, comprise the hurling end of the Holy Cross aerial attack, while, for the most part, Bob Turner, Leo Troy and Bill Sullivan make up the receiving end. These men were responsible for a total of 13 out of 19 completed passes which netted 165 yards against Temple. Included in these statistics are four perfect strikes which were good for touchdowns

Elusive Back

In addition to his passing abilities, Cahill is also rated as the most elusive back on the entire Crusader squad. He played last season with the Boston College Informals. Morasky was a reserve back at the Cross in '43.

Battalion and Band on Review At Sampson Game

Under the blazing arclights of Shibe Park, the V-12 Unit of Villanova College made it's first public appearance. Led by the recently formed band, one Marine Company and three Navy Companies paraded before the start of the game and again at half time.

The perfection of the drill, the splendid appearance of the unit as a whole and the playing of the band, brought the highest praise by all who viewed it. Included among those who added their compliments were many high ranking military officers and public officials.

Much Praise

To be praised highly was the great spirit manifested by the student body, whose mighty cheers and wholehearted support was responsible in a large measure for the appearance and mostly for the victory scored by the team. The mighty Navy cheer rendered by the battalion while at attention and the cheering all through the game received favorable comments from many people who witnessed it.

touchdown was unsuccessful as our line smashed through and ringed by three men, Sampson's Renzo was only able to kick the ball into tackle Frank Brady's midsection. This great charge was typical of the Wildcat playing all night as consistently they broke through the heavier Sampson line to bring down passers and runners for large losses. Time and again ends Forrest and Kuzman, who played a brilliant game and the other linemen crashed through. The center of the line was impregnable as David, Severson and Peterson and later Tierney backed it up in formidable fashion.

Picking out the highlights of the game shows the whole team outstanding for their play. Co-captain Bob David played in All Star style as he punted, ran and tackled Sampson to defeat. In particular one long punt set the Sampson team back on their own two yard line. Early in the game, he not only blocked a long pass but taking the bobbling ball into his arms he ran it back for a substantial gain, failing to gain further because of the wet grass upon which he slipped.

Hoot Brilliant

Dick Hoot distinguished himself by his beautiful passing, running and job of quarterbacking as he called the plays faultlessly. His quarterback sneaks and long passes not only accounted for the winning touchdown but were the reasons for a great many of our other gains. At the one halfback spot Bob Griffiths played sixty minutes, the only man on the team to play the whole game. At his position he played an outstanding game. Bucky Williams and Marc Abribat alternated at the other half spot. It was Williams who scored our only touchdown and Abribat who made the crucial first down in this scoring parade.

On the line, all played a beautiful game ranging from ends Forrest and Kuzman who continually played in the opposing backfield through to Severson who was captain of the game with David.

to Manning and the sort side passes to Raye.

Our backfield played superbly. Their pass defense improved considerably over the F. and M. performance and on offense the ball handling was fine despite the rain in the last period. Bob David's line backing kept Renzo and Maglio under control while on offense Mark Abribat and Buck Williams were scooting through those holes and around the ends to good effect. By the way, this is the second time this year that Bob Griffith has played sixty minutes.

Bill Ryan and Dick Hoot held nicely to the road between daring and conservatism in the choice of plays and the final socre should indicate that it paid well.

The highlight of the ball game was the blocked etxra point by Frank Brady. As he put it "I prayed for a little shove and I got it."

ward passer on the team, plus being an able kicker and runner, Frank Kroneff plays at the pivot spot. He was recently shifted to center to add blocking power to the line.

After many long hours spent in rehearsals and composition, the Yankee Doodle Service Club of Jenkintown, aided and abetted by thirty trainees of Villanova, delighted a capacity crowd in the College Field House last Friday evening with their original skits and genuine acting.

Credit for the show goes collectively to Mr. George Noake, director of the Club, Mr. Robert Whelan, Athletic Association Secretary, composer of many of the songs in the show and general arranger of details, Pvts. Villanovans At The Front

According to word received by his mother at 326 St. Davids Road, Wayne, Pa., Staff Sergeant Joseph A. Ryan, ex '41, brother of David Ryan, a college freshman in the Economics course, was seriously wounded somewhere in France on Sept. 17. After going overseas in the early spring of this year, Sergeant Ryan was made supply sergeant of a tank destroyer outfit in France in the middle of June.

Ryan entered Villanova in '37 as a civil Engineer, but withdrew at the end of his freshman year. He was subsequently employed at the I. D. McShane Construction Co., Phila., and worked in Baltimore, Washington, and Quantico, Va.

Word has also been received that Steven H. Aisenbrey, co-pilot of a B-24 bomber, has been interned in Switzerland after having bailed out of his crippled plane following a raid on enemy territory on July 20. According to a lettter received by his wife, Florence, who resides at 7 Haig St., Baldwin, N. Y., Steve, who was on his seventeenth mission, bailed out of his plane at 18,000 feet, he and all of the crew landed safely. At the present time, Steve is being well taken care of while attending college in which he mentions studying German and accounting.

Steve, after entering Villanova in 1938, served as football manager for four years, was a member of the Holy Name Society, and the intramural baseball team. He graduated with a B. S. in Economics.

J. Millet Elected ASME Chairman

The result of last Wednesday's elections have been announced by Eugene P. Weinert, A.S., retiring chairman of the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Elected to the post of chairman was John M. Millet, A.S., present secretary-treasurer of the Society. Joseph A. Dwyer, A.S., was chosen to succeed John F. Wilson, who graduates Sunday, as vice-chairman, while William J. Koness, A.S., is the new secretary-treasurer. All the new officers are juniors in the mechanical engineering department.

The chairman-elect is well recommended for his position, having served as secretary-treasurer of the Society for the past two semesters, as well as being active in other campus activities, having filled several posts on the Villanovan as well as co-editing the engineering publication, the Villanova Engineer. The other officers-elect have also been active in the affairs of the Society.

Blue and White Hop Proves Huge Success; Student Council Pleased With Turnout

Finis was written to another semester's social activities in grand style last Saturday evening when the Student council presented one of the most successful affairs which the campus has seen for several months in the form of the Blue and White Hop.

For many of the 350 couples who attended, it was in the nature of a farewell celebration as these trainees await detachment from the unit on October 24. This was the last such affair that they will have the opportunity to attend as students at this college.

Danceable tunes, both sweet and swing, were ably provided by Johnny Warrington and his WCAU orchestra. Varied rhythms were well calculated to suit the tastes of all. Vocal renditions by popular Bon-Bon and lovely Betty Barton were the musical highlights of the evening.

Seasonal Decorations

Decorations for the evening, capably planned by Thomas P. Welch, A.S., and John M. Millet, A. S., were well in tune with the season as they presented displays of pennants from colleges throughout the country arranged along the walls in an attractive fashion. Audience appreciation o fthe idea was well attested to by the fact that no penants remained when the evening was over.

Even the programs, which consisted of the conventional booklet bound in a rather unusual silver-colored cover, attracted more than the usual amount of comment. Credit for the novel arrangement goes to Frank Ronan and James Cassin, A.S.

Francis J. O'Connor, A.S., president of student council, declared the evening as a whole a success and expressed satisfaction with the cooperation which he had received in arranging the affair.

Frat Elections Result In Ties For Four Posts

Elections held last week by Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, proved indecisive in four out of six cases, it was announced by Francis J. McGuinn, A.S., retiring president, and a second ballot to decide the issues will be cast this afternoon in room 214 between 12:45 and 1:15.

The two offices which were decided last week were secretary and treasurer. Frank R. Solis, A.S., boxing team stalwart and Villanovan scribe, will replace William E. Farrell, A.S., as secretary; and Donald P. Reinhardt, A.S., junior mechanical engineer from Rochester, N.Y., will relieve Thomas M. Schubert, A.S., as treasurer.

Presidential Tie

Most important tie which exists is that between Farrell, retiring secretary, and Francis J. O'Connor, present student council chairman, for the position of president.

Other deadlocks exist between Michael N. Flynn, A.S., and Paul W. Miller, A.S., for the vice-presidency; Alfred Dumsa and Joseph J. Gerngross, A.S., for student council representative; and John J. Cockroft, A.S., and Stanley T. P. Wagner, A.S., for sergeant-at-arms.

Year Book Delayed

The 1944 Edition of the "Belle Air" will be published shortly after October 22. The book was held up due to the paper shortage, and will be mailed to the students who have left as soon as they are received.

Those who have made partial payments are requested to settle their accounts before leaving, in order to save C. O. D. charges. If anyone wishes to order copies, he should see either Father Falvey or Father Sullivan, and make a deposit.

Comdr. McDonald to Speak At Graduation October 22

Chaplain In South Pacific Will Address 22 Degree Recipients at Exercises in College Chapel; Nine in Graduating Class Are Members of Navy V-12 Unit

Twenty-two members of the senior class will be awarded baccalaureate degrees at commencement exercises to be conducted next Sunday morning at 11:45 in the college chapel.

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., president of the College. He will be assisted by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., vice-president, as deacon; Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, dean, as sub-deacon; and Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., chaplain, as master of ceremonies.

After the mass, Lieutenant Commander David H. McDonald (Ch. C.), USNR, will deliver the address to the graduating class. Lt. Commander McDonald, who is now serving at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, returned last June from the South Pacific theater of operations, and it is expected that he will have sound advice to offer in particular to the graduates who are themselves already in the naval service and may see similar duty before long.

Pacific Veteran

While in the Pacific, Commander McDonald served with the Marina Aircraft Group which took active part in establishing beachheads in the Solomon Islands. For a year before his return, he was chaplain at the Naval Hospital for the combat wounded in that area.

Previous to his enlistment in the Navy, Fr. McDonald was assistant curate at the parish of St. Andrew's in Forest Hills, Massachusetts, and was in addition professor of Religion at Emmanuel College in Boston.

Students who will receive their degrees upon successful completion of their final examinations include thirteen civilians and nine of the naval personnel. They are: Peter Curreri, John A. Doherty, A. S., Francis M. Doorley, A. S., Hugh F. Gillespie, A.S., Robert H. Gruss, Thomas F. Hitchell, Alvin C. Hurford, Joseph Joyce ,A. S., Pvt. Joseph E. Magnuson, Hector G. Martinez, Francis J. Ciamaichela New Editor-In-Chief Of College Paper

Succeeds Welch as Head of Villanovan; Gained Experience as Co-Editor of Southeast Catholic High Paper

Paul Louis Ciamaichela, '48, will succeed Thomas P. Welch, A. S., USNR., as Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan at the commencement of the Winter semester in November, it was announced by the Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., Faculty Advisor, at a recent meeting of the paper's staff.

Ciamaichela is now in his second semester at Villanova, and has been a staff writer on this paper "Loie" Ciamaichela, for twenty five years Master of the Hamburg at Ye Old Pie Shoppe, Paul was born July 8, 1927, and received his primary education at, first, the David Newlin Fell Grammar School, then at the Acalemy of the Sisters of Mercy, Broad st. and Columbia ave.

His secondary schooling was taken at Southeast Catholic High School, in Philadelphia, from which institution he graduated in January of this year. He was a four year honor student, and at graduation was recipient of the Latin award.

Journalistic Background

During his stay at Southeast Catholic he constantly delved into the fiield of extra-curricular activities, to wit, co-editor of the school's newspaper, business manager of the yearbook, member of the Demosthenes Debating Society, the German and the Science Clubs and the orchestra and band.

Paul entered Villanova two months alter leaving high school and is taking the pre-medical course. Here, as at South Catholic, his name is included among the honor students.

A Wildcat through and through, Paul, "always wanted to come to Villanova". This desire manifested itself when he turned down a very tempting offer in order to come here.

Ever since the day he learned to tell the difference between a block and a tackle, Paul has followed and rooted for the Wildcat elevens. He is a veritable walking encyclopedia of Villanova football information concerning the past ten years.

Other Changes Made

Until entering Villanova he wore pre-war "freshman dinks" and these served to make him well known around his South Philadelphia neighborhood. However, he is now a resident of Ardmore.

The next Editor-in-Chief has two distinct and as opposite hobbies as are immaginable — reading and "boogie woogie" playing. However, it may be stated with reasonable accuracy that he enters into the latter with which more fervor than the former, because of his own admittance, he once sprained a finger while "beating it out on the keys."

Some other changes among the editors were also announced: Pvt. Walter "Lem" Wentling, USMCR, Sports Editor; David I. Ryan, Managing Editor; William Wescott, Business Manager. John Coyne and Frank Faccilio will remain at their present posts of Circulation Manager and Subscription Manager respectively.

Largest Engineer To Arrive Today

The September edition of the Villanova Engineer will be distributed today. This issue, the largest in the history of the publication, containing 24 pages, is the first to be published under the new publica-year. Because of the reduced number of editions it was lecided to increase the individual issues in size from 16 to 24 pages.

The forthcoming issue features an article on the Pennsylvania Turnpike by George A. Seibert, A. S. as well as an interesting discussion of the post-war light plane by Joseph F. Miller ,who is a light plane pilot himself. It contains the regular feature, "Here Are Your Profs", short biographical sketches of members of the engineering faculty. Presented in this month's edition are Professors Bueche, Amelotti, and Gorman, as well as Dr. Drenick. The section "Progress" again gives timely and informative engineering and industrial news.

This is the last edition to be published under the co-editorship of A.S.'s Joseph H. Hoffman and John M. Millett. Because of the desire to concentrate on scholastic work, Hoffman is retiring from the staff. Millet will continue as editor-in-chief, with Francis J. O'Connor, A. S. as managing editor, Allen J. Curtis, A.S., business manager, and Frank R. Solis, A.S., circulation manager.

Battalion and Band on Review At Sampson Game

Under the blazing arclights of Shibe Park, the V-12 Unit of Villanova College made it's first public appearance. Led by the recently formed band, one Marine Company and three Navy Companies paraded before the start of the game and again at half time.

The perfection of the drill, the splendid appearance of the unit as a whole and the playing of the band, brought the highest praise by all who viewed it. Included among those who added their compliments were many high ranking military officers and public officials.

Much Praise

To be praised highly was the great spirit manifested by the student body, whose mighty cheers and wholehearted support was responsible in a large measure for the appearance and mostly for the victory scored by the team. The mighty Navy cheer rendered by the battalion while at attention and the cheering all through the game received favorable comments from many people who witnessed it.

touchdown was unsuccessful as our line smashed through and ringed by three men, Sampson's Renzo was only able to kick the ball into tackle Frank Brady's midsection. This great charge was typical of the Wildcat playing all night as consistently they broke through the heavier Sampson line to bring down passers and runners for large losses. Time and again ends Forrest and Kuzman, who played a brilliant game and the other linemen crashed through. The center of the line was impregnable as David, Severson and Peterson and later Tierney backed it up in formidable fashion.

Picking out the highlights of the game shows the whole team outstanding for their play. Co-captain Bob David played in All Star style as he punted, ran and tackled Sampson to defeat. In particular one long punt set the Sampson team back on their own two yard line. Early in the game, he not only blocked a long pass but taking the bobbling ball into his arms he ran it back for a substantial gain, failing to gain further because of the wet grass upon which he slipped.

Hoot Brilliant

Dick Hoot distinguished himself by his beautiful passing, running and job of quarterbacking as he called the plays faultlessly. His quarterback sneaks and long passes not only accounted for the winning touchdown but were the reasons for a great many of our other gains. At the one halfback spot Bob Griffiths played sixty minutes, the only man on the team to play the whole game. At his position he played an outstanding game. Bucky Williams and Marc Abribat alternated at the other half spot. It was Williams who scored our only touchdown and Abribat who made the crucial first down in this scoring parade.

On the line, all played a beautiful game ranging from ends Forrest and Kuzman who continually played in the opposing backfield through to Severson who was captain of the game with David.

to Manning and the sort side passes to Raye.

Our backfield played superbly. Their pass defense improved considerably over the F. and M. performance and on offense the ball handling was fine despite the rain in the last period. Bob David's line backing kept Renzo and Maglio under control while on offense Mark Abribat and Buck Williams were scooting through those holes and around the ends to good effect. By the way, this is the second time this year that Bob Griffith has played sixty minutes.

Bill Ryan and Dick Hoot held nicely to the road between daring and conservatism in the choice of plays and the final socre should indicate that it paid well.

The highlight of the ball game was the blocked etxra point by Frank Brady. As he put it "I prayed for a little shove and I got it."

Here he followed the Mechanical Arts course with his eye set on Aeronautical engineering. During his stay at Northeast, Morton was a member of the tennis team and the student council.

MORTON SORK

After his graduation from Northeast, Mort traveled to Florida and sundry other places on a vacation trip. On his return Mort went to Brown Prep to take a few refresher courses, and from here he migrated to Villanova. Ciamaichela New Editor-In-Chief Of College Paper

Succeeds Welch as Head of Villanovan; Gained Experience as Co-Editor of Southeast Catholic High Paper

Paul Louis Ciamaichela, '48, will succeed Thomas P. Welch, A. S., USNR., as Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan at the commencement of the Winter semester in November, it was announced by the Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., Faculty Advisor, at a recent meeting of the paper's staff.

Ciamaichela is now in his second semester at Villanova, and has been a staff writer on this paper "Loie" Ciamaichela, for twenty five years Master of the Hamburg at Ye Old Pie Shoppe, Paul was born July 8, 1927, and received his primary education at, first, the David Newlin Fell Grammar School, then at the Acalemy of the Sisters of Mercy, Broad st. and Columbia ave.

His secondary schooling was taken at Southeast Catholic High School, in Philadelphia, from which institution he graduated in January of this year. He was a four year honor student, and at graduation was recipient of the Latin award.

Journalistic Background

During his stay at Southeast Catholic he constantly delved into the fiield of extra-curricular activities, to wit, co-editor of the school's newspaper, business manager of the yearbook, member of the Demosthenes Debating Society, the German and the Science Clubs and the orchestra and band.

Paul entered Villanova two months alter leaving high school and is taking the pre-medical course. Here, as at South Catholic, his name is included among the honor students.

A Wildcat through and through, Paul, "always wanted to come to Villanova". This desire manifested itself when he turned down a very tempting offer in order to come here.

Ever since the day he learned to tell the difference between a block and a tackle, Paul has followed and rooted for the Wildcat elevens. He is a veritable walking encyclopedia of Villanova football information concerning the past ten years.

Other Changes Made

Until entering Villanova he wore pre-war "freshman dinks" and these served to make him well known around his South Philadelphia neighborhood. However, he is now a resident of Ardmore.

The next Editor-in-Chief has two distinct and as opposite hobbies as are immaginable — reading and "boogie woogie" playing. However, it may be stated with reasonable accuracy that he enters into the latter with which more fervor than the former, because of his own admittance, he once sprained a finger while "beating it out on the keys."

Some other changes among the editors were also announced: Pvt. Walter "Lem" Wentling, USMCR, Sports Editor; David I. Ryan, Managing Editor; William Wescott, Business Manager. John Coyne and Frank Faccilio will remain at their present posts of Circulation Manager and Subscription Manager respectively.

Largest Engineer To Arrive Today

The September edition of the Villanova Engineer will be distributed today. This issue, the largest in the history of the publication, containing 24 pages, is the first to be published under the new publica-year. Because of the reduced number of editions it was lecided to increase the individual issues in size from 16 to 24 pages.

The forthcoming issue features an article on the Pennsylvania Turnpike by George A. Seibert, A. S. as well as an interesting discussion of the post-war light plane by Joseph F. Miller ,who is a light plane pilot himself. It contains the regular feature, "Here Are Your Profs", short biographical sketches of members of the engineering faculty. Presented in this month's edition are Professors Bueche, Amelotti, and Gorman, as well as Dr. Drenick. The section "Progress" again gives timely and informative engineering and industrial news.

This is the last edition to be published under the co-editorship of A.S.'s Joseph H. Hoffman and John M. Millett. Because of the desire to concentrate on scholastic work, Hoffman is retiring from the staff. Millet will continue as editor-in-chief, with Francis J. O'Connor, A. S. as managing editor, Allen J. Curtis, A.S., business manager, and Frank R. Solis, A.S., circulation manager.

Thanks to All

FOR us on the newspaper staff, this week will place the familiar ——30—— to another twelve issues of the Villanovan. For us it has been an interesting and enjoyable term, despite the hardships of publishing a college paper during twisted war times and especially in the summer months, when many of the few surviving college activities are at a standstill. However, the task is completed, and, judging from comments from the alumni and students, our earnest efforts have not been unrecognized.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the members of the various staffs for their fine cooperation in helping to make the Villanovan one of the few college papers to be published during the summer.

It may be of interest to state here the facts of our circulation. Of the thirty-five hundred copies printed weekly, approximately twenty-five hundred are mailed to alumni, subscribers, and all Villanovans in the service. This latter group requires special attention, as from ten to thirty changes of addresses of these service men come to our office weekly. To this end, we sincerely thank Father McGrath, Alumni Secretary, for his fine cooperation in having the addresses rectified, and in supplying us with news to fill our column "Villanovans at the Front".

To our moderator, Father Klekotka, goes both our heartfelt thanks and congratulations. Thanks for his willing assistance throughout the term, and congratulations on his success at filling the shoes of Father McKee, a veteran at the job; and taking his post during a most hectic time.

With an eye to the future, we appeal to all students interested in newspaper work, and who will return to college next semester, to apply for positions on the staff now. Although comparatively few carried on successfully this year, it was often at great personal sacrifice, and a larger staff would certainly lessen the individual work as well as improve the publication.

THOMAS P. WELCH,
Editor-in-Chief.

Closing Time

THE closing of the semester brings not only a change which is effected here in our newspaper as well as in the student body, but to a certain number of the students it conveys the realization that they are not reaching the end in the proper manner. To some the realization that their school work has not been up to par is not only manifested in mental anguish but also in the sad fact that because of their failings they must leave school.

Although the finish may not appear to be the appropriate time to resolve to turn over a new leaf, it is most proper. All now understand where their effort has brought them; if it is not satisfactory, now is the time to change it and carry on this alteration in the months of study to come.

To those who are leaving in the happy knowledge that they have come through successfully, we bid God-speed and wishes for the best of success which they must certainly attain. It will be strange not to see them around, for they were the school, but a certain happiness remains in the thought that they are well prepared for the battles which they are to face and that they will bring only the highest praise back to their Alma Mater.

Camp To Campus

By BILL KONESS, A.S.

THE show Friday night brought back to Villanova one of the big-timers that once frequented our classes. He was none other than Charley Memzic, the man of the hour. Charley really looked good in his Merchant Marine Cadet's uniform and of course felt good about the whole setup. No, fellows, he didn't get in the Merchant Marine Air Corps Reserve—(one of Charley's ambitions).

Also on the campus recently was Tom Boyle who just got out of boot camp at Bainbridge with (of course) his Seaman Second. Tom is going back there to find out what they have decided to do with him.

In the NROTC at Penn is John Littlefield who was also down to visit us. John likes it quite a bit despite his being at Penn.

Among the graduates of the Information and Education course at the school for Special and Morale Services, Lexington, Va., last week was Captain David H. Duffy. The objective of this program is to aid the individual soldier in becoming better adjusted to Army life, and to equip him mentally as well as physically, to be a more efficient fighting man and citizen.

If any one remembers last semesters' boxing bouts, he'll remember John Brahm. John informs us that he has just finished boots and mainly wants to be remembered to Doc Drenick.

Word has it that Second Lieutenant Joe McCarthy was around last week, but sorry to say that we didn't find out anything about him.

We guess this will be the last time you'll be seeing the gruesome picture alongside of this column. It doesn't seem like we've been writing this for eight months but it is a big consolation in knowing that the time is skipping by so quickly. Who knows, maybe we will leave here someday. Well, we'd better got on those books or we'll be leaving sooner than we think. So long to those who are leaving us.

MacGil's Folly

and HUGH GILLESPIE, A.S.

FIGHTING ALONE FOR MACGIL.

"Clear it with Sidney."

Well, fans, friends, and fanatics, as it must come to all good things, an end must come also to these delightful bits of prose. In the past semester we have endeavored to bring into those unexciting lives of yours just a bit of dash and color. We hope we have succeeded, but then, how could we have failed?

Why just look at our enviable record: In the past four months we have alienated the affections of forty-nine die hards, lost ten slightly abused friends, and aroused the emotions of four hundred or so young ladies of unquestionable zeal. Not a bad record, huh?—but really it was nothing!—why we were hardly warmed up.

During our short term, we must admit that we met with the utmost cooperation by all concerned—for the safety of their lives and their loved ones we will not mention any names. Our editor was most unique—always a pleasant word and a facsimile of a smile when the going got tough. The printers were a little short of terrific, considering that they didn't know what they were printing; remarking at "Times" that it read like a Hungarian Menu, in no mild language.

And so to this fact, together with what in peacetime might be termed a severe case of Summer Help, we attribute the de-lemon in which we have played some of our feminine readers. By the ommission of three lines of singular importance and the antiquated paragraph form, our work took on a new and hitherto unforseen tone of bitterness which any true fan would have immediately recognized as quite unlike the genial and inoffensive MacGil.

Just as every issue brought you that much closer to hysteria, so too did each bit of fan mail passed through the bars bring us that much closer to sheer perfection. To explain, allow us to quote from one of our more recent and destructive letters . . . Ready girls? Gentlemen!!

Request shipment of 15,000 more copies of Rosemont, Pa.—stop—Better make it 22,000—stop—Expect a hot time.

Yours,
J. Arson

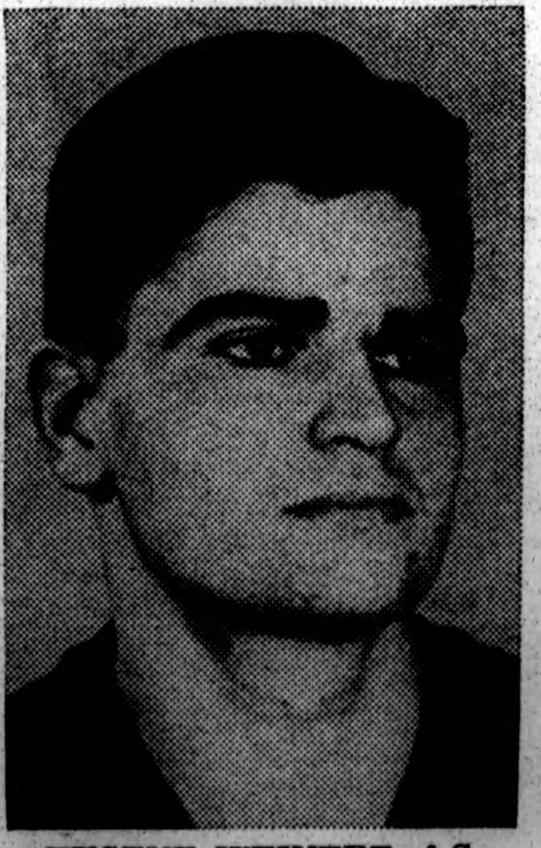
Meet the Boys

ANOTHER semester draws to a close; another group of Villanovans make their farewell to college days. Soon there will be new names and new faces to present to you. This week we bring you the last three members of the present class to be introduced here.

First on the list is a man who has been well prepared since childhood for the nomadic life which a naval officer must lead. Eugene P. Weinert, A. S., son of a former big league baseball pitcher, attended over half a dozen grammer schools in nearly as many cities before he completed his elementary education.

The story of his education marks the path of his father's career in organized baseball. Yeadon, Florida, Columbus, Oakmont, Lansdowne ,and Drexel Hill are the loclities where he attended school, with St. Andrew's in the last named community becoming the scene of his longest stay when he completed his last three years there. It was not until the name "Lefty" Weinert became attached to the roster of the home town Phillies that the family settled down to a normal life.

High school days at West Catholic High in Philadelphia saw the first manifestations of his interest in aeronautics as he became a member of the aviation club. Intramural track was his only athletic endeavor with the school, since there was no baseball team. But during those years, Gene showed himself to be a true son of his father by pitching with American League ball clubs in Drexel Hill.



EUGENE WEINERT, A.S.

The talent he showed there was sufficient to attract the interest of the college authorities, and he came here in the fall of 1941 as a

THAT clever show . . . the big dance . . . final exams . . . everything happends at once.

Don't say we didn't tell you—The Blue and White Hop was, of course an overwhelming success. Congratulations to the executives of the student council and their assistants for arranging the enjoyable afair.

Family doings—'Twas no accident that Tom Schubert's three sisters Agnes, Rita and Roseanita were all at the dance for Don Schmitt, John Millet and Joe Dwyer arranged their dates several weeks ago. (Cut-throat competition you know) . . . Tad Pula, that effervescent lad, escorted Pat Collins, while While Joe McLaughlin took younger sister Nancy . . . Frank Solis and "Smiles" Welch had a very pleasant evening with twin sisters Ann and Mary Welsh.

Reunion—Among the ex-Villanovans who attended the dance were Ed Cannon, Jim Humes, Phil Golden, Jack McCann, Jim Diamond and Charlie Mamzic, all resplendent in their midshipmen outfits.

Thanx to—Mr. George Noake and the girls of the Yankee Doodle service club who put on that swell show for us Friday evening. Also to the Villanovans in the cast who sacrificed a lot of time in order to make the night's entertainment as enjoyable as it was. (And we hope the Rosemont lassies liked it too).

Plugging these social affairs is part of our duty so—Chestnut Hill college invites the boys from Villanova to attend their Sunday afternoon tea dance on Nov. 5. In keeping with the best traditions of Chestnut Hill and their dances, it looms as an entertainment-promising afternoon.

P.S.—Our final item is one that you'll like. In order to make room for the young talent, we're moving out of this column come next semester. We hope that you enjoyed reading it as much as we enjoyed writing it, and with that we bid "adieu."

Here I am, pen in hand
To say—swell band,
But your looking for your name
And not our comments on the game.

This little poem is dedicated to all of you social hounds who enjoyed the Blue and White Hop Saturday night. Now with the dedication over we will proceed to talk about some of the football players.

It was too bad Duke, you couldn't get the tickets, but the subs come first.

Everyone saw Gene Peyton's pretty miss, but we're afraid he wasn't too free with the introductions. It seems she had a Saturday night date in Boston so Gene saw her only a little while Sunday morning.

All of the boys went to church Sunday morning, even Don Peterson who was approaching the stage of a full fledged heathen.

None of the Villanova romeos did any better than Foster (The Joint is Jumpin') Blough, who was personally led through New York by a big article. The large object happened to be a blonde. It seems Foster had the smoothest line, so he also had the distinction.

Hearing the well known radio commercial "see Wilson," Pvt. L.P., T.C. and W.H. decided upon seeing Wilson. But Red, we hear the above Pvts. don't think the radio commercial and the one you had in mind are the same things. How about taking us along?

At least one Sailor knows B.D.'s qualities. You don't have a chance with that girl now, Joe.

As the trainee said to the teacher when he was handing back the finals, "Send me brother."

Departing Varsity Players

With the close of the semester, many players will be leaving the team. Foremost among those who will be sorely missed are the above pictured players: l. to r., tackle, Len West, steady varsity lineman; fullback, Bob David, game captain of the Sampson game and one of the outstanding players on the team, and end, Bob Forrest, who brilliantly played the flank position all seasoon.

Engineers Sweep League With Undefeated Record

Mendelites Win Final Tilts To Boast Undefeated, Untied Schedule; Fedigan Seizes Number Two Spot

By DAVE WARD

Mendel Hall won the Intramural Touch Football Championship of the Campus with a perfect six-and-none record by winning games from Austin, 12-0, and Alumni, 12-6, on Tuesday and Wednesday respectively of the past week. Any chance that the Marines might have had of at least tying for the crown were dealt a rude blow on Monday evening as Fedigan held them to an 18-18 tie, followed by a 12-6 defeat administered at the hands of the Pre Meds from Alumni Hall on the next night.

As a result of the tie, coupled with a forfeit by Austin, the Fedigs leap frogged over Austin in the standings to wind up in second place. On Monday, Austin had nosed out Alumni 12-6 to keep just a one game advantage over the Marines who ended up in fourth place. Bringing up in the rear is Alumni which ended the season with a surprising 12-6 victory over the Marines, and a similar defeat by Mendel.

Tie Game

In Monday's Marine-Fedigan contest, the Fedigs jumped to a 6-0 lead at the beginning of the game when Matt Lempa snared a pass with a beautiful leaping catch in the end zone. The Leathernecks roared back and tied the score as the passing combination of Greeley to Cox went to work and only ended up in pay dirt.

Then the Leathernecks went ahead, this time with a passing combination of Reidy to Goetz counting. Not to be outdone, Hirsch of Fedigan went around end for a twenty five yard gain to put the ball down within striking distance of the goal line. He proceeded to add insult to injury as he caught a pass on the very next down in the end zone to again tie the contest into a knot.

Lempa Tallies

The Leathernecks, battling hard in order to be able to claim a first place tie if Mendel either lost or tied a ball game, scored once more on the same combination which accounted for the first touchdown to go ahead 18-12. As before, the Fediganites rolled up field after the kickoff for another Lempa tally to tie up the old ball game just before the final whistle.

While this was going on, Frank Kempf managed to cross into scoring territory for the Austin Swabbies twice. This enabled them to

Altantic City NAS Replaces Kilmer InScheduleChange

In a recent announcement by Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Athletics, Camp Kilmer will not play the Wildcats this year. This change was necessitated by a rearrangement of personnel at that military reservation. Instead, the Atlantic City Naval Air Station will find the open gap left on the schedule for November 10th.

Undefeated

To date the sailors from New Jersey are undefeated, having rolled over Swarthmore 3-0, Ursinus 45-7, and Scranton 21-7 in rapid succession. The remainder of their schedule includes such teams as the Army Plebes, Army B Team, Princeton, and Muhlenberg, another of Villanova's opponents.

As did Sampson, Atlantic City has a strong team composed of many former college players, some of whom have had four years of experience. At the terminals will be Hardy and Gottman who will assist their passing attack. Filling the tackle slots we have Valenzula and Snyder who are expected to give our lineman a lot of trouble. Ludwig and Petcheney will play left and right guard respectively while Vanaman will be the snapper-back in addition to bolstering their heavy line.

Good Backs

Atlantic City will present a fleet combination of backfield men in the persons of Frederick, calling signals, Veteri, at left half, Richel, blocking back, and Whiteman, who will play fullback. These men will provide the Corsairs with a running offense to augment their effective passing attack and are of no little ability.

The game will be played under the lights and all arrangements will be the same as was originally announced for the Kilmer game.

As this semester fades into the mist of finished events, the full import of the ancient tome that all things, good or bad, must eventually come to an end, strikes us. Today we can record, as if by coincidence together with the football team, the sad fact that a good has come to an end.

Sunday found the football team suffering the bitter depths of defeat after riding the crest of victory for three successive games. With this sportorial we complete our tenure of office as your sports editor. For us the work has all been good but it is rather for you to judge our relative merit by our work, which will remain, and its acceptance to you. Before we leave, comment must be made not only on our gridiron representatives but on a situation which has long existed and too long been tolerated.

Concerning Sunday, sympathy is not required but only an assurance that we will not fail them for they have in no way failed us. Though lashed by defeat they still proudly tower, filled with the spirit and fight which characterized their upset triumph over mighty Sampson just a short while back. In the Crusader game they again unstintingly gave their all and although it was not quite enough they lose no glory for the score of that game tells very little about the great battle that they waged.

The capricious whims of fate failed to favor them in the opening minutes of the first quarter when they approached so close to the Holy Cross goal line. If they had scored they would have gained the psychological jump and perhaps a different story would have been written. The magnificent work of the whole team deserves praise and in particular the defensive work of Bob David who played as one inspired and to the fine all around play of Dick Hoot. To review the entire game would be a useless procedure for after doing that we would still come to the same conclusion that the score could as well have been 14-7 as the final total. The Crusaders were on and it is rare to find the opponents that could defeat them when in that state.

Wildcats Face Mules Sat; Army Tilt Starts Semester

Muhlenberg, Thrice Beaten, Is Last Game Of Semester; Undefeated Cadets, With Mighty Squad, Listed As Number Six

By DAVE RYAN

Villanova College will open up the second half of its 1944 football season when it meets Muhlenberg College at Shibe Park this coming Saturday afternoon, October 21. Two weeks later, the Wildcats will travel to West Point to play the Army Cadets at Michie Stadium, for the first game of the winter semester.

For the Mules, the Villanova game will mark the sixth contest of the season. Starting out very weakly, Muhlenberg last its first three games—two to Bucknell, and one to Penn State. Following these defeats, however, the Allentowners switched over to the victory column by swamping neighboring Swarthmore College, 33-6, and eking out a 19-18 decision over Franklin and Marshall, by means of a sensational last period rally in which they put over two touchdowns and the deciding conversion.

Nine 'Cat Wins

The Villanvoa-Muhlenberg rivalry dates back 29 years, in which time fifteen contests have been played. The Wildcats have taken the measure of the Mules nine times, and have lost but two games. Four scoreless ties have been played. Last year, in the renewal of the rivalry, despite a mucky gridiron and a driving rain, the Main Liners hung up a 35-12 win.

Jim Devlin, 195 pounds, six feet even, from Orange, N. J., a guard and one of the two holdovers from the '43 Muhlenberg team, is captain. Listed on the roster as a fullback, Devlin has started games at both end and tackle.

Many Injuries

From the very start, Coach Alvin J. (Doggie) Julian's green and inexperienced squad has been harrassed with injuries. After the opening game of the season with Bucknell, four of the Mules' varsity players, including Captain Jim Devlin, center Frank Vidinski, and guards Earl Malhop and Bob Schmidt, were so seriously injured that they did not even make the trip to Lewisburg for the second

Wildcat Streak Ended In 26-0 Win By Holy Cross

Crusaders Get Jump in Opening Period and Are Never Headed; First Villanova Defeat of the Season

Meeting the Powerful, highly rated Holy Cross football squad, the Wildcats came out on the short end of a bitterly contested 26-0 defeat. Sparked on by the bone crushing defensive tactivs of Bob David and Dick Hoot, the Wildcats threatened twice but lacked the power to break through the staunch and determined Crusader line. The aforementioned David and Hoot played a championship game being in on practically every tackle of the game.

Williams Hurt

Entering the fray under full power the Wildcats swooped down the field to smother Turner of Holy Cross who received the kickoff on the 15 yard line. Staving off the Crusaders vigorous plunging attack, the Wildcats took the offensive when Dick Hoot returned Turner's punt from the 40-yard marker to midfield. Here Griffiths drive through the line to the Holy Cross 38 yard line where a smashing plunge by Williams netted the determined Wildcats 14 yards. Bill, unfortunately was hurt on the play and remained on the bench for the rest of the game. Thus the Mainliners were left without their greatest component of ground gaining power.

On the next play Marc Abribat drave to the 14-yard line where an incomplete forward and a short lived plunge ended Vianova's scoring threat.

Kicking Duel

Taking over on the 14 yard line the Crusaders, led by Ted Morasky, advanced to the 45 where a plunge by Turner carried them to the Wildcat 42. Here Coleman intercepted Morasky's pass and lateraled to David who was stopped on the 48. After a 'Cat penalty of 15 yards for clipping, Bob David started a short kicking duel which brought the pigskin bounding back to Villanova's 34.

Here Tom Kenney, formerly of St. Joseph's High, recovered David's fumble. Morasky took it around right end to gain the 10 yard marker. Here Sullivan's drive took it to the 4 followed by Morasky who hiked it to the 2. An attempted pass to Sullivan failed as the ball was caught just outside the end zone.

Taking over, David kicked to the 42 where Morasky ran it to the 24. From here a pass to Smith placed the Crusaders on the 9. Gaining the 2 yard stripe, Morasky was stalled on the next three plays but a fake pass opened up center and enabled him to score. Splitting the posts, Nestor boosted the tally 7-0.

Fumble Recovered

Hoot returned the kick-off to the Villanova 31, where Jim Reilly, former La Salle High star, recovered a fumble for the Crusaders. The Morasky Express then shipped the ball to the 10. After a short plunge and a knocked down pass, Frank Eye recovered Cahill's fumble on the 15 yard line. David punted and Cahill returned to the 37 where, a game with Bucknell. At one time or another, seven of the Cardinal and Grey players have had to be benched because of hurts.

PVT. WALTER J. WENTLING better known as Lem, now succeeds to the post of Sports Editor. Lem is a Villanovan of away back. A graduate of Malvern Prep in 1942, he came to Villanova where he stayed a year, writing for the paper during that time. He then enlisted in the Marine Corps and spent seven months in boots and radar school, before he was sent to Villanova. He has been writing for the sports section since he came back and succeeds to this position on the basis of his good work.

In the initial contest of their schedule, the Mules fell before Bucknell 24-7 ,after Muhenberg had held a 7-0 lead. In the second game of this home-and-home series, the Bisons again took the laurels of victory, this time by reason of a 14-0 win. The Nittany Lions of Penn State, the following week, buried the Mules under a 58-13 count.

Close Decision

In its fourth contest the Cardinal and Grey aggregation pounded Swarthmore College into submission 33-6, by a well balance admixture of passing and running.

Last Saturday, roaring back in the final period with two touchdowns and the only extra point of the day, the Mules notched another victory when they took the count of Franklin and Marshall, 19-8.

Cadets Strong

Army, the A-1 team of the East, which has gone on scoring jamborees in the three games it has played so far this autumn, is carded as the first opponents to be met by the Wildcats' in the winter semester.

The Cadets have amassed a total of 174 points to opponents 14. Showing signs of improvement as the season progresses, they have, in order, smothered North Carolina 46-0, buried Brown 59-7 ,and shellacked Pitt 69-7 (the most drastic setback ever suffered by a Panther eleven). In these three contests (?) the West Pointers gained 523 yards through the air and 1039 yards by rushing. This '44 Army eleven is a reasonable facsimile of a prewar version of the Chicago Bears, even to the extent of losing some 188 yards through penalties—in the Brown game alone they lost 98 yards.

Mighty Squad

Further statistics are hardly necessary. The record speaks for itself.

To dwell upon the different personalities and stars of the squad is almost impossible—space will not allow it. Pitzer, Stanowicz, Nemetz, Rafalko, Kenna, Minor, Hall, Blanchard, Dobbs. Volumes could be filled with the football deeds and promises of these and more of the Cadets.

It suffices mearly to mention that Lieutenant Colonel Earl H. (Red) Blaiw, head coach, has at his command a squad which "has what it takes"—weighty, fast and aggressive linemen who have collaborated to rip opposing forward walls to shreds, and a host of backs of every sort and type, who can either "gun or lug the mail" with equal proficiency.

day-hop with a scholarship for baseball. A wealth of fine pitching talent and shortened schedules kept Gene out of action in his first two years here, but last spring and summer he did excellent work in several games and finally became the squad's leading pitcher.

Athletics have by no means been the major part of Gene's college career, for he chose for himself the time-consuming course in Mechanical Engineering and has consistently done well scholastically. He has been a member of Phi Kappa Pi, and last year was chairman of the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

GERARD RIEGGER, A.S.

Right now Gene's plans, like everyone else's, are well taken care of by the navy; but after the war he hopes to realize his lifelong plan of entering the field of aeronautical engineering.

Gene reported to the V-12 here a year ago, he found assigned to him as a roommate one Gerard C. Riegger, a transfer from Gannon College in Erie. They have remained such ever since.

Born in Baltimore, on December 16, 1923, Gerry moved with his family to Northeast ,a suburb of Erie, a few years later; and that is his home today. At Northeast High School, he played in the school band, alternating between drums and baritone or alto horn. He also played centerfield on the varsity baseball team for two years, and was a member of the ice hockey team.

FRANCIS MOTZENBECKER

Gerry had completed two years in the pre-engineering course at Gannon and had matriculated at the University of Detroit when he was assigned to active duty here by the navy. After his arrival he chose civil engineering as his major. At Gannon, he was a member of the newspaper staff ,but here his only activities have been membership in Phi Kappa Pi and participation in intramural softball and football.

With the other C. E.'s who have completed their stay here, Gerry will report to Davisville, Rhode Island, next month. After the war he plans to return for a semester and earn the few remaining credits which he lacks for a degree as a result of changing schools. Beyond that his plans are as vague as most peoples.

Francis P. Motzenbecker completes the list of this semester's graduates. A native of New Jersey, he was born in Newark on May 11, 1923, but moved to East Orange at the tender age of two. Since high school days he has made his home in Short Hills.

At St. Benedict's Prep in Newark, Frank was a member of the Chemistry Club, the German Club, and the varsity track team. He graduated in '41 and came to Villanova in the fall of the same year. Here he had majored in Chemistry, and has earned a consistent honor rating in this difficult course.

Frank holds the distinction of having been a member of the last pre-war Orientation Committee. In his sophomore year he helped to initiate the present' juniors, and since then no one has initiated anyone. He was also secretary of his class that same year, and was invited to join the ranks of the mathematics society.

After graduation, Frank expects to enter the industrial world for a little while to acquire some practical experience. Then he will continue with his studies in chemistry, hoping eventually to attain the doctorate.

which could be termed an existant wrong.

Invariably in the days gone by, all have, in the perusal of the local city tabloids, read in the sports section of one, a column or other piece of copy, "graced" with the by-line "by Art Morrow". That by-line is the subject of our short comment.

We fully understand that the possessor of above mentioned by-line is a faithful alumnus of dear old Pennsylvania; we realize that he sleeps, eats, lives and breathes the clinging perfume of her time encrusted traditions and the rare goodness of her ivy covered walls but it has been a constant enigma why it is permitted to invade his work on a newspaper which has no traces of tradition and glory inherent in the old school.

Time and again, we of the lesser institutions of learning, for we realize our insignificance, have had it impressed on us that our position is that of a nonentity and in view of such we merit suitable treatment in his journalistic accomplishments. Since it requires in the very minimum, the full length of his allotted space to discourse on the triumphs of the Quaker school, Villavona and Temple rooters may find out abou their respective teams by listening to the radio or the information will be gladly furnished. upon. a. call .to. the paper.

One must understand that as long as alma mater still rolls up impressive scores over undefeated W. & M. and trounces "powerful" Dartmouth, they will fill his column since others can not sensibly compare in any way. We can still recall the voice of the expert on the 27-0 'Cat defeat by Army last year when he said that it was kindness itself that kept the score to such an appreciable minimum and that the Cadets are then the souls of generosity but would in no way spare arrogant and self sustaining alma mater.

We can appreciate that this "expert" knows that we will fare much better at the termination of this semester and must tell John Public all about uncorroborated news. Thanks for our generous treatment but somehow it is not appreciated.

So in some style, we close our period of service and with the last hurried correction on the copy, we sign the newsman's —30— to our last piece of sports copy and wish our successor the maximum in luck and the wishes for a plentiful and good year.

FUTURAMA

In the weeks to follow, the lot of this comic strip will be a bitter and terrible one, believe us! For who are going to take over but two of our most active members of the Villanova Branch of the (Oops!) G. O. P., B. Cramer and B. Connor. Cool, calm, studious William together with suave, coy, corniferous Bobby, will have to get up pretty early in the morning (or maybe stay up all night) to keep astir the wake so amply kicked up by their modest predecessors. Please be curt-eous, but don't encourage.

few plays later, Morasky passed to Troy on the 20 who went all the way to score. Nestor again converted to bring the score to 14-0.

An interception by Sullivan after the kickoff enabled Morasky and Nestor to reach the 33. A pass to Smith, a 15 yard penalty, and a run by Nestor place dthe Crusaders on Villanova's 20. A pass to Smith put the Holy Cross ball club on the 6. At this point the Wildcats dug in and held, gaining the 18 on the offensive as the half ended.

Locals Stopped

Fighting hard the Wildcats came back strong in the last quarter as Abribat and Hoot alternately took the ball to gain a first down on the 3. The Crusaders, however, took hold and stormed the Wildcats with strong defensive tactics, throwing them for losses and finally taking over on the 10. This was the last threat of the Main Liners. The Crusaders threatened once more in the final period and made it good but Nesor failed to convert, leaving the final score 26-0.

outpoint the Pre Meds 12-6 who could only push Chick Magner across the double stripe once.

Mendel Wins Two

Tuesday saw the Engineers gain at least a tie for first place when they handed the Austinites a 12-0 defeat. Austin held the eventual winners for most of the game but in the last ten minutes the Slip Stick Kids pushed both Don Schmitt and Bill Koness into touchdownland to wind up the evening with a twelve point advantage.

The Marines will all hope of a tie for first place gone succumbed before the surprising offensive of Alumni, 12-6. Gallagher was the hero for the Medics as he scored twice, while Cox again caught a pass for the only Marine tally.

In the final contest of the league on Wednesday evening, Mendel Hall outpointed a fighting Alumni sextet by that prevalent score of 12-6. The Pre Meds, behind by one touchdown, knotted the count with but three minutes to go, as a Magner to Oristian pass clicked. The Medics kicked off and after a succession of four plays by each team, and with Mendel still some fifty yards from a touchdown, a Winters to Ward pass found the latter behind the safety man in the open for the deciding tally.

President Advises New College Men

Asks Civilians To Remain in School; Emphasizes Seriousness of Task Ahead

The Faculty and Administration of Villanova extend a cordial welcome to all newly enrolled students whether from civilian life or from the military. An especial welcome is extended to the war veterans who are appearing for the first time on the campus. We welcome you to the company of men serious in the pursuit of their common objectives. We welcome you to a campus divested of many of the frivolities permissible in times of peace. We welcome you to the classroom where hard work is the only key to success.

The Colleges of America today are the cradles of national leadership. It is their task to mould men — spiritually, intellectually, physically. This task does not belong merely to the faculty. It is equally the task of the student, whose contributions are his willingness to be moulded and his efforts in carrying his shares of the burden.

It sometimes occurs to civilian students who are subject to imminent induction and to members of the V-12 Unit who are in immediate preparation for officership in the Navy and Marine Corps that the time spent in the classroom is time wasted. Such a thought might be characterized as unpatriotic. To the civilian student I would recall the exhortation of our President made some time ago to remain in school until you are actually called to military duty . Your value in the service is dependent on your moral, intellectual and physical equipment. These are more fully developed on the college campus. To the members of the V 12 Unit, I would suggest the thought that your superiors ordered you to the classroom. They expect you to carry out those orders as completely and perfectly as you possibly can. They do not consider it waisting time. They are shaping you for an enormous taks and they expect you to be ready in your turn.

Your colleagues have gone in large numbers from these classrooms. They have taken their places as officers in the United States Navy and Marine Corps for which they were preparing. They have participated in the invasions at Normandy, in Southern France, and at present they are in the Philippines. They have performed their tasks with brilliant success. They prepared themselves in these very classrooms for that success. You were not expected at Normandy, nor in Southern France, nor in the Phillipines. You will be expected, however, at equally important battleposts in the future. You will have an enormous task to perform. You will have in your hands the responsibility of other men's lives, as well as the success or failure of a military operation. You must prepare now for that success.

PRESIDENT ADVISES

Working for the Villanovan has always been one of the most outstanding of extra-curricular activities here at Villanova. The paper is one of which we can be proud as it is noted for its high standards. It is an undertaking run wholly by students.

This term many of the older staff members have left, but in spite of the fact that the younger members have been promoted the editor still needs help.

All students who are literarily inclined are cordially invited to join the staff. There is also a need for men who would like to help on the circulation staff.

The Villanovan office is just across the hall from the Bookstore, so drop in on your next lunch period. There will always be someone there to greet you.

Wave Hails From Scranton

A salty newcomer has been added to the list of naval personnel. She is a WAVE, and she certainly does justice to the Navy Blue in more ways than one.

Kathleen Dell was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on (date censored for reason of military security). In this little suburb of Scranton she attended Meyers High School, from which she received her high school diploma.

Joins Waves

The big moment in Kathleen's life came when she decided that she would join the WAVES, in order to help her Uncle Sam. This eventful day was June 1st 1944. Kathleen was sent to Stillwater, Oklahoma where she received her "boot" training.

It seems as though Miss Dell enjoyed herself immensely down at Stillwater, for she claims that there was more doing "down in them parts than up in these h'yar parts." Just what holds Kathleen's interest at Stillwater is a dark, impenetrable secret. She, however, claims that she enjoyed the company of the group of girls with whom she was trained. Coud be.

Y1/C KATHLEEN DELL

Kathleen is now a yeoman first class, proudly displaying her three stripes. She states that she had many motives for joining the WAVES, among them were adventure, the urge to travel, and an honest desire to serve her country as best she could.

Various Hobbies

Miss Dell still likes to indulge in a few hobbies during liberty besides waiting for "male-men" to call at her door. Reading and dancing occupy most of her spare time.

Kathleen comes from a red-white-and-blue blooded family. Her parents have given three of their children to the service of Uncle Sam. Two of Kathleen's brothers are now serving overseas. One is serving in the Indian theater of operations. He is a member of the Air Force.

New Officers Of Phi Kappa Pi Outline Plans

President O'Connor Reveals Plans For Combined Smoker And Dance

The Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova's engineering fraternity held its first meeting of the new winter semester on Wednesday, November 8, in room 214 Mendel Hall. A large number of the members attended the meeting.

The newly elected officers of the fraternity conducted their first meeting. The officers for this term who were elected after a tight battle at the end of last semester are, Francis O'Connor, who defeated William Koness and William Farrell in a close battle for the presidency. Michael Flynn nosed our Hubert O'Reilly, former Sports Editor of the Villanovan, for the position of Vice President. Frank Solis was elected secretary and Donald Reinhardt, the treasurer. John Cockroft was chosen sergeant at Arms, while Joseph Gerngross is the Student Council representative. All are members of the V-12 unit. The chairman of the membership finance, social and awards committees will be appointed in the near future.

Bowling League Planned

At the meeting plans for the coming semester were outlined. These include a bowling league to be started in a few weeks. Initiations, and many social activities, which include a combined smoker with the other fraternities, and a dance for the members sometime later in the season, are all on the list of future activities.

The Phi Kappa Pi boasts a fairly large membership at present. However, with most of its members seniors, the fraternity is at present seeking newer and younger members. New members are urged to join as soon as possible so that they may be eligible to get in on the affairs planned by the various committees at the outset.

Judging from the huge success of this organization in the past years, and the success of its affairs this seems to be a promising offer for new engineering students in the school.

Personnel Changes Involve Transfer Of Storekeeper 2/C

Among the recent changes in the Ship's Company was the loss of shopkeeper 2/c Walter Savage, who was transferred to the Naval Receiving Barracks, Lido Beach, Long Island, New York, on November 6. After serving for a time at Franklin and Marshall College, Savage came to Villanova late last April.

Born in Huntington, West Virginia, he completed his secondary schooling there, and then majored in Economics at City College, New York, where he received his degree in 1933.

Served in Merchant Marine

He served in the Merchant Marine off and on from 1930 until he enlisted in the Navy in 1942. He made several trips in the summer while he was still in college, and then made a few trips to Europe before his enlistment. Since he entered the Navy, however, he has been on shore duty, serving in Newport, Rhode Island, Cape May, New Jersey, University of Pennsylvania, and Franklin and Marshall.

An addition to the Ship's Company is John O'Leary, who is taking the place of Walter Savage as shopkeeper. Born in East Grand Forks, Minnesota, he attended Sacred Heart High School there. After his entrance into the Navy he was sent to Northern Ireland, where he remained for 21 months. Much of his time was spent in repairing and remaking ships in preparation for "D-Day."

When O'Leary was transferred to the Navy Yard in Philadelphia, he left a lovely red-head behind, but he hasn't decided whether or not he shall return for her after the war. He likes sports, and has found since he was transferred here on October 28, that he likes Villanova.

Freshman Class Tops Honor Roll; Juniors Follow In Second Place

Freshmen Place Forty-three; Juniors Forty-two; Four Seniors and Three Sophomores Attain Perfect 4.00 Average; Civilians Take Twenty-one Places

Led by the Freshman Class, Villanova's Honor Roll for the Summer-Fall semester rolled up to 149, one more than last semester, and approximately 23 per cent of the student body. The list included seven men who attained a perfect average of 4.00, three of them sophomores and four seniors.

The Freshman Class placed 43 of its members on the Honor Roll, the Juniors being second with 42; the Sophomores tabulated 36 and the seniors 28. Those who attained a perfect percentage were: Francis Motzenbeck,er Armando Alverez, Thomas O'Connell, and Roman Paska, seniors, and Mike Krak, Robert Plath, and Robert Rossheim of the class of '46.

Class Leaders

Also leading their respective classes, but missing the straight 'A' average were: George Hoberg and Lee S. Carter, juniors; George Bacsik, sophomore; Robert Hoffman and Harry Edwards, freshmen.

The service men took 128 of the total Honor Roll, while civilians captured 21 places or about 14%. With the increased civilian registration, including many war veterans, not only should they increase that figure, but the total Honor Roll should be bigger.

The complete Honor Roll, from the Office of the Registrar, reads as follows:

Senior Class (Second Semester): F. Motzenbecker, John Wilson, Francis McGuinn, Philip Jakeway, Hugh Gillespie, Patrick Murphy, Thomas Hitchell, John Doherty, Charles Miranda, Morton Sork, William Regii, Joseph Magnuson, Joseph Joyce.

Senior Class (First Semester): Armando Alvarez, Thomas O'Connell, Roman Paska, Harvey Bresler, John Belletti, Lawrence Pilot, Wilford Beisel, William Henkel, Louis Silva, Donald Sawtelle, James Skane, George Smith, James Redditt, Thaddeus Pula, George Stathopoulos.

Junior Class (Second Semester): George Hoberg, Jacques Severson, John Waters, Alan Schneider, Allen Curtis, Kenneth Dollinger, William Nealon, John McChesney,

Support The Administration

THE battle for the presidency of the United States has ended. The victorious army of the Democratic party has exacted unconditional surrender from the rank and file of the Republican party. The people of America have made their final choice. They have chosen, by a majority vote, the man who they believe is capable of leading them to complete victory at the peace table as well as complete victory on the battlefield.

The great privilege possessed by each and every American adult, to speak his mind as to what kind of government he wants, has for many years been a source of inspiration to every man possessed of a free soul. This past election has proven conclusively that the American people believe in and cherish their right to a voice in the government of their nation.

This is the only nation in the world in which the common people have such an intimate contact with their political government. This is the only free nation upon this earth which has held an election in the midst of a titanic struggle for the preservation of liberty, in order that the people might decide by whom they wanted to be governed. This is true democracy.

We, as Americans, are the custodians of a precious heritage founded by our farsighted forefathers but a little less than one hundred and seventy years ago. The fact that this government has become so stable in such a short time as to enable its citizens to continue their practice of voting for the leaders of their choice, is nothing short of amazing.

It is now vital that every one of us unite completely behind the President, to continue to wage total war against the enemies of the republic. This is a crucial period in the history of our nation. We must see to it that posterity will benefit by our present day actions.

We have made our choice. We must now support the choice which upholds the views of the majority. We must uphold this choice not only for the sake of the Union, but likewise for the sake of the entire world. The future peace and good will among the peoples and nations of this earth depend upon our country's participation in the peace plans, for our nation will see to it that every nation, large or small will be given a voice in international collaboration.

The people of America must not stop now. A political battle has been won, the military battle has not yet been won. A great task lies ahead of us, we must not falter now. The administration has a right to demand our support at this time.

Not until the last German fanatic and the last shintoist Japanese has surrendered can we be said to have finished our gigantic task.

Our enemies still cannot believe that we, "the decadent democracy," have come so far in such a short time. We have indeed traversed a bitter road of defeats and agonies, but now the flag of freedom is flying close to the enemy's homeland. Our united efforts in support of the administration will enable us to realize the day when the National Emblem and the Stars and Stripes will fly above the cities of Berlin and Tokio.

—PAUL CIAMAICHELA.

Camp To Campus

By MICHAEL N. FLYNN, A.S.

IT is fitting that our first column should be opened by a word or two about Ens. Frank Mascariello, '43. Frank visited Villanova last week, relucant to tell of his experiences, but we did learn that he has been awarded the Purple Heart, Frank was wounded when his L.C.I. hit a mine off the coast of Southern France. In his travels, he met several Villanova classmates. Jim Finegan, Dutch McCarthy, John Bambrick, and Bill Marchese and Mauro Ciccorelli.

Vince "Panama" Bradley, of peacetime Fedigan fame, is now a sergeant in the Army serving in Burma. Vince, now married and the proud father of a son, declares that Burma reminds him of Panama so much that he can't wait to get home. We wonder if Vince will be able to persuade any of his buddies to migrate to Panama after serving in Burma.

Lt. (j. g.) Jim Donnelly, Ch. E. '43, was married October 28. Jim is slated for sub duty and is now awaiting assignment.

Jt. (j. g.) Mal Boyle, E. E. '43, former Phi Kappa Pi President, is now at Norfolk. Mal is engaged in electrical repair work and is also getting some experience at tossing ack-ack barrage.

Ens. Dick Ryan, '43, is doing duty on an L.C.I. (L) in the Pacific. Dick believes he is topping Magellan's journeys, and is firmly convinced that this world consists 99% of water—salt water. The consistent star on the 150 lb. team, yearns to feel the terra firma under his cleates again.

From "somewhere in England" comes news of Joe McGiness. High scoring ace of the Freshman team from Alumni Hall in '42 and selected on the all star intramural team, Joe is now applying his wealth of athletic talents as a P.I. in the Air Corps. Joe is already making plans for the home-coming game in 1946.

On the campus last week was Lt. Ken Breitzke who finished R.O.S. at Quantico and is on his way to the west coast. Lt. Walt Brannigan also finished with him.

Lt. Henry Christmas wrote that he has been playing football "some-where in the South Pacific" and scored a touchdown for his team.

Ens. Paul Smith returned last week to tell us that Ens. Joe Ringlestine and Ens. Dan Monahan graduated with him recently from Notre Dame Midshipmen's School.

Cadet Jim Carbine, seen at the sorry game, looks well and is doing fine, in spite of losing a little money on the game.

Condolences

The Villanovan wishes to express its sincerest sympathies to Charles Raymond, A.S., upon the death of his father, Anthony Raymond, and to Mrs. Margaret V. Boyle upon the death of her mother Mrs. Ellen C. Rempp.

The Reverend Edwin T. Grimes O.S.A., celebrated Requiem Mass for the repose of the soul of Mr. Raymond. The Mass was celebrated in the College Chapel on Friday, November 10, at 7 A. M. The Mass was offered at the request of the students in Mendel Hall, where his son lives.

Mrs. Margaret V. Boyle has been the custodian of the Chemistry Laboratory Storeroom for a number of years.

New Term

UPPER classmen returning for the Winter Semester at Villanova are well aware of the many changes in a wartime college life. First semester freshmen, however, may find numerous differences between their expectations and actuality. They will find a decrease in the college's traditions and social activities, but an increase in the calibre of the work given and of the results expected.

Special heed should be paid to the message of the President of the College—you, whether in the service or a civilian, are here for a purpose. Theoretically this purpose is to aid American security during the war and in the peace which will follow. Practically this purpose is to prepare yourself in various fields to lead a decent and profitable life.

Students should know whom to go to with any specific problem, whether it is of a Religious, academic or extracurricular nature. This knowledge saves time. To the students under the accelerated program time is an important factor. They have need of a methor of thorough and critical but rapid study to keep scholastically apace with a twelve month a year schedule.

Even if one is not taking the accelerated program it is not to be impled that he is taking a "relaxer's course." You are still cramming into four months time over five months work, or, in other words, your assimilation of the various subjects must be increased one and one-fifth times as rapidly as before. Here again it is important to recall the ideas of Father McGuire—you are aiding in the purpose of the war, the purpose of your parents, the purpose of the Naval and Marine authorities, the purpose of the College and, your own purpose only as long as you maintain as high a scholastic average as your mental abilities permit.

Behind The Eight Ball

by "HORSE" and "PIXIE"

INDEED the world in which we live is a place of mishaps, blunderings, and catastrophies. All about us is to be found the plight of humanity. The war has crept into the lives of everyone; famine has spread over Europe; and Rowland Higgs has passed Physics. Why Roosevelt is even thinking of declining a nomination for a seventh term, and there are rumors circulating around the campus that food might be served in the cafeteria.

Into such surroundings does this column make its first appearance. We are not supplying excuses for its existence, we are merely preparing our dear readers (BOTH OF THEM) for the worst.

Everything must have a beginning, so we have selected the following poem as our inaugural endeavor in the field of journalism:

It's quite a job to think up copy,
But we go on undaunted.
The things we want, we cannot print,
The things we print are not wanted.

Everything must also have a dedication, so we dedicate this column to those brave young men who faced the multiple dangers associated with college life; namely, a course in physics, luncheon in the cafeteria, and an occasional tea dance.

Now to get the eight ball rolling; we see hundreds of girls strangely involved in the fate of boys of Villanova. This means more tea dances are in store for us in the future. If any of the younger social lions wish to know the "do's and don'ts" to be followed, we refer them to Messrs. Plunket and Brennan. So far Jim and Bob have a perfect average, they have attended two of these affairs without any serious injuries. Jim, however, won't be able to brag about this very long if his blonde girlfriend from Rosemont learns of his activities.

While about the task of giving our first semester civilians warning about the more serious dangers to be encountered in college life, a word or two about the parties to which you might be invited would fit nicely. First of all, don't go if a group of Navy men invite you. We have already seen the effects of such an affair. The Navy men who were responsible for this so-called party were: Dan Redmond, Jim McNamara, Jim Lyons, and Dick Livingston. After spending a whole night in the company of what they called girls, Bob McNamara decided that he would live a life of seclusion, and he is now living in deep fear of the fairer sex.

However, we are inclined to think that the whole affair might have been on the level since J. Lyons and J. McNamara were seen last Saturday night in the vicinity of the Hot Shoppe escorting two of the girls (?) from the party. After being locked up all week I guess that's about all you expect from these Navy men.

The dog catchers are starting to close in on us so we better be on our way. So, with love and kindest regards we leave you in your misery, reminding you that you might be "behind the eight ball" next week.

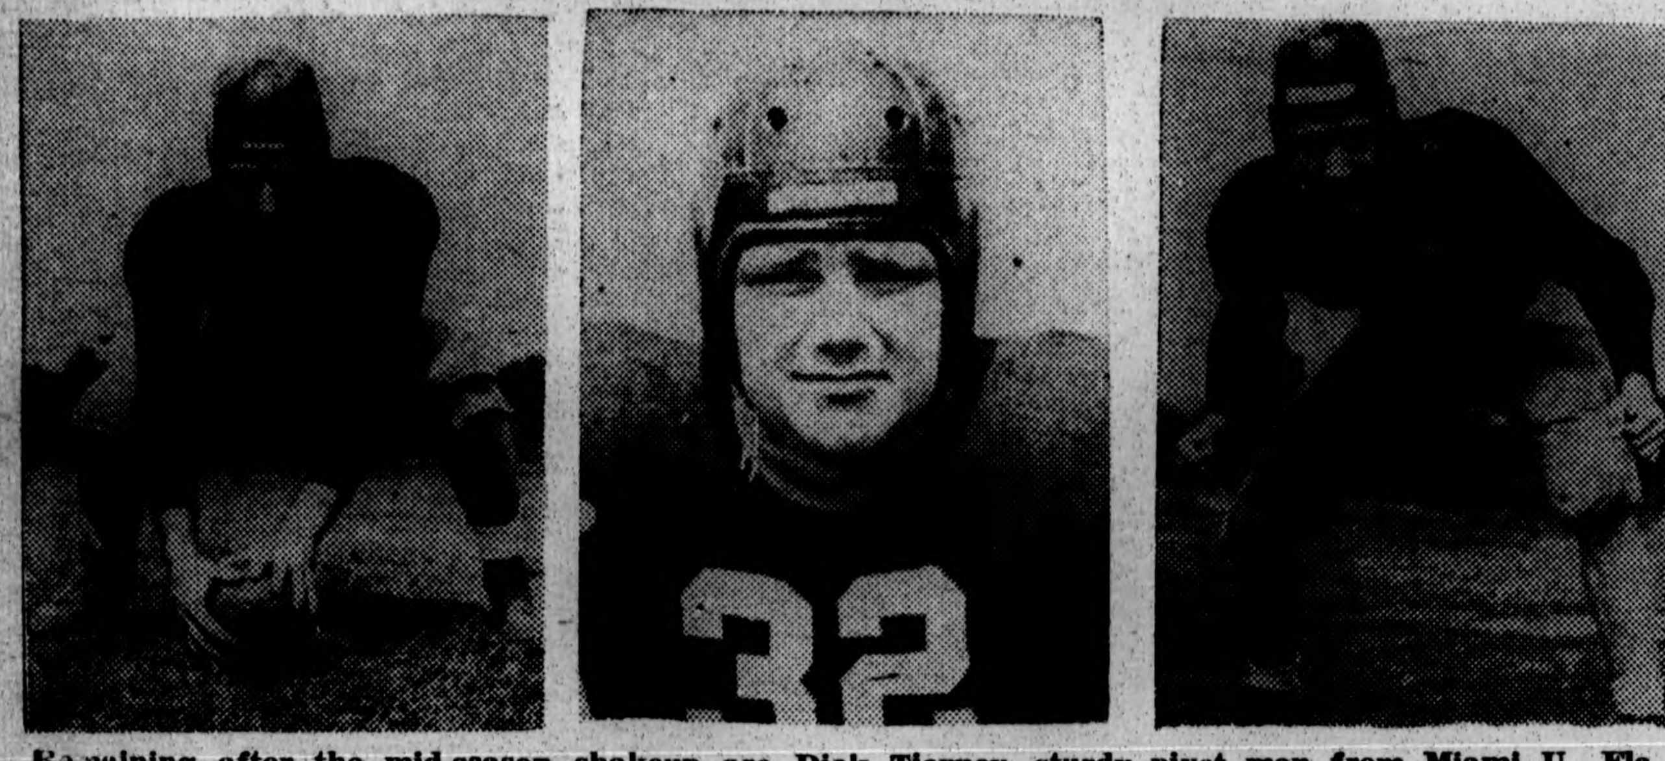
Outstanding Varsity Linemen



Remaining after the mid-season shakeup are Dick Tierney, sturdy pivot man from Miami U., Fla., who has served as co-captain in the last two games; Alex Colman, 195-pound guard, who has seen considerable action this season; and Bill Kuzman, stellar end, who co-captained his mates along with Tierney last Friday night.

Ollie's Comments—

—"We need this game for a winning season, so let's get working!"

The Atlantic City game was probably our poorest played game of the year insofar as fundamental football was concerned. Against Army we were outclassed and there was nothing we could do about it, but Friday night we were out[illegible] from start to finish. Our tackling was half-hearted, our blocking ineffective and only our passing resembled good football in spots. Perhaps the Army game implanted a defeatist attitude on us but I had thought we had gotten rid of any such thing.

The big pleasant surprise was the play of sticky fingered "Red" O'Neil who sparked our only touchdown drive after Kuzman was injured. Carl Ungaro, a new student at Villanova, also looked good, especially on defense when he made some pad-clicking tackles to stop Veteri and Perricone, the elusive Atlantic City backs. The mud at Shibe Park also helped to stop these two boys on various other occasions. Ed Cunningham, the big tackle just transferred from F. & M., stood out on our defensive line with some fine heady play. Vince McPeak played a steady all around game as did Al Sondheimer. Al put on a couple of excellent running exhibitions but had very little downfield blocking to help him out.

Referee Calls Play

One of our best plays was called by the referee who was trying to hurry us out of the huddle. "Come on, boys, twenty-five seconds left." "Okay," Ryan snapped back, "Twenty-five play to the left."

Our starting lineup will receive quite a shaking up for the Bucknell game because of injuries and transfers. In fact, only one of our starters in the Scranton game will be ready for that opening kick-off Friday night.

Kuzman Injured

Bill Kuzman injured his knee again and probably will be replaced by Sam Brown at right end. Alex Colman has a shoulder pointer and along with the transfer of Sam Hoopes leaves us with no right guards. Did anyone on the campus ever play right guard? before? Frank Brady also has been transferred, so another starter leaves and before Friday anyone is liable to be playing that line for us.

Powerful and Speedy Team Inflicts 25-6 Defeat; 'Cats Have Record of Four Wins and Three Defeats

Coming back home with their new second half season team, the Wildcats bumped up gainst an underrated Atlantic City Naval Station team that proceeded to drive the home team into defeat with an overflow of power and speed. Led by three speedminded backs, Tony Pericone, Fred Cantore and Dave Whiteman, they rang the bell four times to register a 25-6 win.

The statistics of the game did not bear out the lopsided socre as the Main Liners matched the visitors eleven first downs with ten of their own. Although the Corsairs held approximately a hundred yard edge in the rushing department, it could be accounted for by noting their gain on interceptions to be 80 yards. In the passing the 'Cats took the fore with 79 gained yards to the visitors 19.

Muddy Field

On a field made treacherous by the rainfall of early day, the power of the Air Station team showed to advantage as they started off the game with a bang by unreeling a 57 yard march to score, the first time they got possession of the ball. It was Perricone who scored the initial blow with booting specialist, Veteri making the only conversion of the night.

Shortly thereafter, brother back, Cantore, returned a 'Cat punt to our 36 and then flitted around end to complete the job with another score. This closed the scoring for the first half as both teams battled on equal terms. In the third quarter the same Cantore again paid off climaxing a 60 yard march with a 12 yard dash to the cross hatched grass.

One 'Cat Score

Then it was that the Blue and White started to click as Ryan successfully completed long heaves to ends, O'Neill, Brown and back Sondheimer. A holding penalty and a plunge by McPeak closed

With Hughie O'Reilly retiring to his engineering texts in the annals of Mendel Hall after a successful tenure of office he left us with quite a record to equal. We will attempt to keep up with the fine standards which he has set in the last thirty issues.

Our first duty as sports editor included taking in the Army game. As a result our first column will be dedicated to an explanation of the lopsided score and a few facts that did not appear in the public newspapers.

From all external appearances Jordan Oliver and his players put on a poor show the other Saturday but anyone cognizant of the true facts knows this not to be true. The boys were playing under a terrific handicap and under circumstances which could not be attributed to any one factor.

Without a doubt, Army is the best team any school has produced this year. Having annexed first place in the weekly sports poll for two successive weeks, they were the popular choice of experts all over the country. Intercollegiate athletics is a definite part of their training and adequate time is provided for this cause. They have a big selection of men from which to choose, many of whom have had several years experience in college. As a consequence their team is three and four deep in many positions, the second and third team being on an almost equal level with the first. With these facts in mind, it is not hard to see why Army has rolled up tremendous scores against the University of North Carolina, Brown, Pitt, and the Coast Guard Academy, as well as ourselves.

Defending the other goalposts we have Villanova trying her level best to retain a team during the war and cramming it into a naval training schedule for which there is little room. This, together with limited practice sessions, injuries and player transfers definitely constituted a handicap. Our boys, many of them getting their first taste of college football, with three one hour practice sessions, preceded by a ten day layoff, and minus seven regulars faced the giants of the gridiron. No other team could have done any better nor could a team who made such a gallant stand against Sampson, two games previous, be accused of lying down on the job.

Wildcats to Face Bisons In Final Meeting Friday

Team Out To Stage Comeback Against Bucknell To Avenge Last Week's Loss; Will Face Strong Passing Attack

Villanova's football schedule which opened seven weeks ago will draw to a close Friday night when the Blue and White faces Bucknell in the final game of the eight-game card. Last year the Wildcats turned back the Bisons 12-8.

Bucknell, while playing a somewhat lighter schedule, has had a fairly good season. Last week they trounced City College of New York 78-0. Not unlike Franklin & Marshall and Muhlenberg, Bucknell had its entire Marine detachment transferred two weeks ago and will bring a team composed of sailors in the Navy V-12 unit there.

Former Villanovan

Head Coach Woody Ludwig is expected to start Spriggs and Quinn at the ends. Spriggs has been at the receiving end of a lot of Bucknell passes and has snatched quite a few in the end zone this year. Quinn attended Villanova in 1942 and held down the left half-back position on the 150-lb team. At tackle we find Kochins and Wade while Strangs and Kovacs will fill the guard slots. At center Ludwig is banking on Bigler.

The Bisons will present a strong backfield equally proficient in both running and passing with Mears calling the signals, Bonk at full, and Netski and Killeen playing the halfs. This quartet is expected to give a lot of competition to the Villanova lineman.

This will mark the eighteenth time the two schools have met in a series dating back in 1900. So far, Bucknell has won ten times while Villanova emerged with six victories and two of the contests ended in a scoreless tie.

The Bisons have twice defeated Muhlenberg, lost to Cornell, and edged out a 16-13 margin against F. & M. They were defeated by Penn State, and then tied Temple before beating N. Y. U. 26-0. This will be their ninth and final game. To date they have amassed 171 points to their opponents' 73.

Phi Kappa Frat Announces Plans For Bowling Meet

The Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova's engineering fraternity, has announced plans for its forthcoming bowling season. The bowling league is an annual event of the fraternity. The league is run by and for the members of the fraternity, however, arrangements are being made for non-members to be allowed to bowl in the league.

Bill Farrel, A.S., is the secretary of the league and in charge of arrangements. Under present plans members of the frat will form their own teams. Each team will consist of five bowlers, and one alternate. At least eight teams are planned on for participation in the league.

Cash Prize Awards

The teams will bowl on Saturday afternoons from 1:30 to 3:30 P. M. Although the bowling alley has not been procured yet it will probably be either in Bryn Mawr or at 69th Street.

As in former years cash prizes will be awarded to the highest scoring team in the league. Cash prizes will also be awarded to the individual high scorer of the league. This is one of the first activities the frat is sponsoring this year, and from the first indications, it promises to be another successful year for Phi Kappa Pi.

Sp. Brunt Leaves Villanova For Duty at Sampson NTS

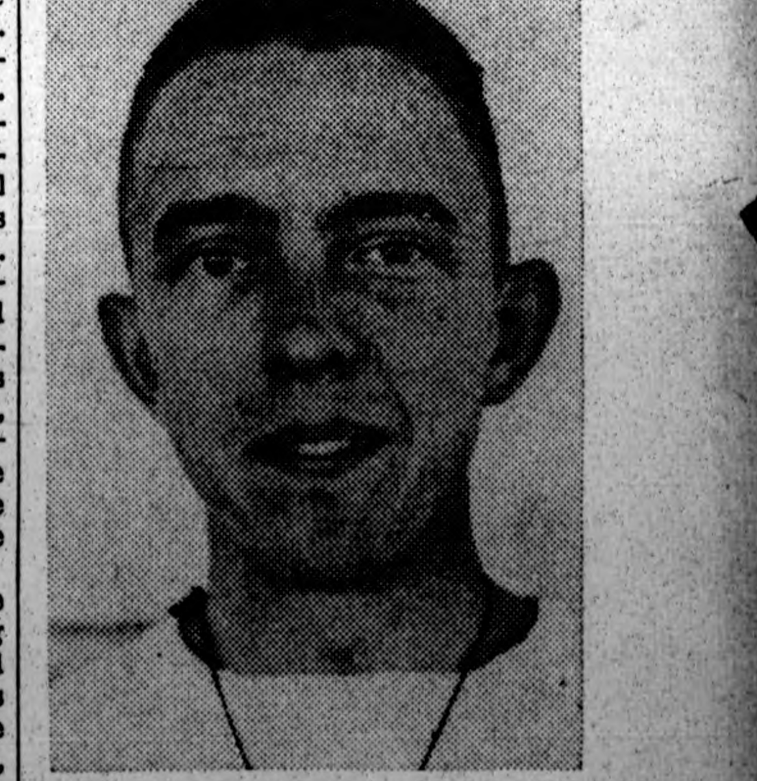
Another recent change in the personnel of ship's company is the transfer of Specialist Cover T. Brunt to the Sampson Naval Training Station in New York State. Mr. Brunt's assignment as Sampson will be in the Navy's new physical therapy department. He will join Specialist Schiffman who was transferred several weeks earlier.

Born October 25th, 1913, in Baltimore, Seaman Brunt has filled his years with a by no means sedentary existance. Living in towns all over the eastern coast, Brunt is, despite his youth, a real cosmopolitan. Finally staying in one place for four consecutive years, he graduated from the South Side School in Newark, N. J.

Looking around for a college he first enrolled in the Engineering College of Columbia University and later decided to register at Stevens Tech at Hoboken. In two years he figured he was getting in a rut, therefore he opened his next year at Panzer College.

All Around Athlete

Having been a star performer on both the Gym and Swimming at high school and an all around sportsman at college, Brunt decided to take up athletics seriously. He became a member of the gym, soccer, swimming, and tennis teams and switched his course to a B. S. in Physical Ed. On being graduated he decided to do his bit for sports from the bench, taking up school teaching at Gwynn Falls School in Baltimore. Here was a job with which even he couldn't get bored. It was his duty to guide the entire sports program of the school including coaching every varsity team.



COVER T. BRUNT, Sp(A) 1/C

In August 1943, however, Brunt brought his many talents to the bluejackets, joining the Navy in Maryland. He finished boot training at Newport and was sent to the physical instructor's school at well known Bainbridge. Immediately on graduating he was assigned to Villanova and he has guarded the mighty waters of the field house until his transfer came through at the end of last semester.

President Advises

Your solemn duty now is to learn to obey so that you will be able to exact obedience of others; to acquire knowledge so that you will know what is to be done; to increase your physical strength so that you will be fit for the task.

Each student at Villanova, I am sure, whether military or civilian, is mindful of the seriousness of his task. Each one, therefore, will apply the diligent and zealous effort required in bringing it to a successful conclusion. Each student will understand that no one ever achieved success at Villanova who did not unite his own efforts with the help of God.

the issue, and the Wildcat scoring for the night. With six minutes left in the game, Atlantic City's Whiteman intercepted a pass to bring the score to its final grand total.

In the previous weeks the Wildcats scored a win over Muhlenberg as the greater portion of the team played its farewell game on a soggy and treacherous field. With an enormous advantage in yards gained and in first downs, the Wildcats only managed to score once to produce the winning score of 7-0.

Many Transferred

After this game, varsity backs David, Hoot were transferred and Williams was sidelined with a leg injury. From the line went Severson, Forrest and West with subs Peyton, Eye and Whelan.

With a makeup team of young and inexperienced players and a handful of leftovers, we went to West Point to meet the number one team of the nation and have them administer an 83-0 drubbing, the worst defeat of the entire series. Obviously the team had little chance against such a powerhouse. The final game of the season finds the Wildcats meeting Bucknell.

They have lost nine of their early season starters but the new boys in their last two games have scored 104 points while holding their opponents scoreless. We need this game for a winning season so let's see if we can all get together and do something about it.

Members of V-12 Unit Sent to Fill Quotas of Various Colleges Throughout the Country

While sailors and marines were home on leave, and civilians were enjoying the inter-semester holiday, a few changes were being arranged in the Villanova Navy. Due to the fact that 26 men came from Muhlenberg and 25 from the fleet, while many marines also came to Villanova, the College had more than their quota, and many men were transferred to other colleges.

Edgar Larsh, Scott Ripley, Robert Rove and James Smith took up residence at Brown University, while Duke University received James Cahow, and Case Cchool receive John Moran, Stanley Slomski, Donald Bathgate, Wallace Bildeaux, Ralph Meisenhelder and Robert Titus were transferred to the "big city" to the University of Pennsylvania.

Phi Kappa Pi To Attend Joint Smoker At C & F

The Phi Kappa Pi has already started upon a season of activity. At the meeting held last Thursday, the members decided that the fraternity would sponsor a bowling league which would be open to members as well as non-members.

Bowling League

The league will be comprised of approximately six or eight separate teams, and the various meets will be held at the Bryn Mawr Bowling Alleys. It was decided that a fee of one dollar would be charged for all members wishing to participate in the games. A fee of one dollar and a half will be charged to all non members who would decide to join the league. This fee will be reduced to one dollar after the first games which will be held either on November 25, or December 2.

Joint Smoker

The Phi Kappa Pi will participate in the joint smoker which will be held December 8. The representatives of the Phi Kappa Pi for the Smoker will be Bob McKibbin, Bob Kramer and "Chuck" Harrington. The smoker will be held in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building. A speaker from the Atlantic Refining Company will be present to speak to the members. This arrangement has been made by Doctor Edward Haenisch. After the speech refreshments will be served and a movie shown. There will be a slight charge of admission, but as yet the officers of the fraternity have not decided just what the charge

Father McGuire Talks at Recent Faculty Dinner

New Faculty Members Introduced; Mrs. Hannah and Mrs. Morgan Formally Presented

The annual Faculty dinner was held last Thursday evening, November 16, at 6:30 in the Monastery dining room.

Reverend Francis X. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, was host. The 1944 dinner was presided over by the Very Reverend Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., J.C.D., D.D., assistant-General of the Augustinians.

New Faculty Introduced

Introduced at this time also were members of the faculty who had come to Villanova since the last Faculty dinner: Father Henry Eagen, O.S.A., assistant professor of Economics; Mr. George H. Auth, assistant professor of Mechanical Engineering, who presented Mrs. Auth; and Mr. F. J. Blanchard, instructor in Chemical Engineering and his wife.

The President of the College gave a brief, informal talk welcoming the new faculty members, and giving a report on current enrollment. Father McGuire sincerely thanked the faculty for their whole-hearted cooperation during the present war crisis and exhorted them to continue those efforts during an unpredictable future.

ASME Plans Trip To Both New York And Philadelphia

The Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, held its first meeting of the current semester on Thursday, November 16. The association was represented by thirty-two of its active members at the meeting.

New York Trip

President John Millet outlined briefly the future plans and activities in which the association would engage during the next year. Among the various activities are included a trip to New York, on November 29. In previous years only senior members were permitted to take this trip. However, due to the decreased enrollment in the Engineering School brought about by the war, the junior members of the Mechanical Engineering School will be allowed to go along.

Plans for a trip to Philadelphia were drawn up at the meeting. The date for this trip is still pending, but will probably be about the

College Chapel Scene Of Requiem Mass For Captain N. William Neel

On Saturday morning, November 18, a Requiem Mass was offered for the happy repose of the soul of Captain William W. Neel, who was killed in action on October 10 of this year somewhere in New Guinea. The celebrant of the Mass was the Very Reverend Francis Dennis, O.S.A., Rector of Malvern Preparatory School, Malvern, Pa., the school from which Captain Neel graduated previous to his admission to Villanova College in the fall of 1936. Servers of the Mass were Lt. Colonel Brad McManus, home on a brief furlough from England, and Doctor Abe Hobson, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., both former members of the class of 1940, of which the deceased was also a member.

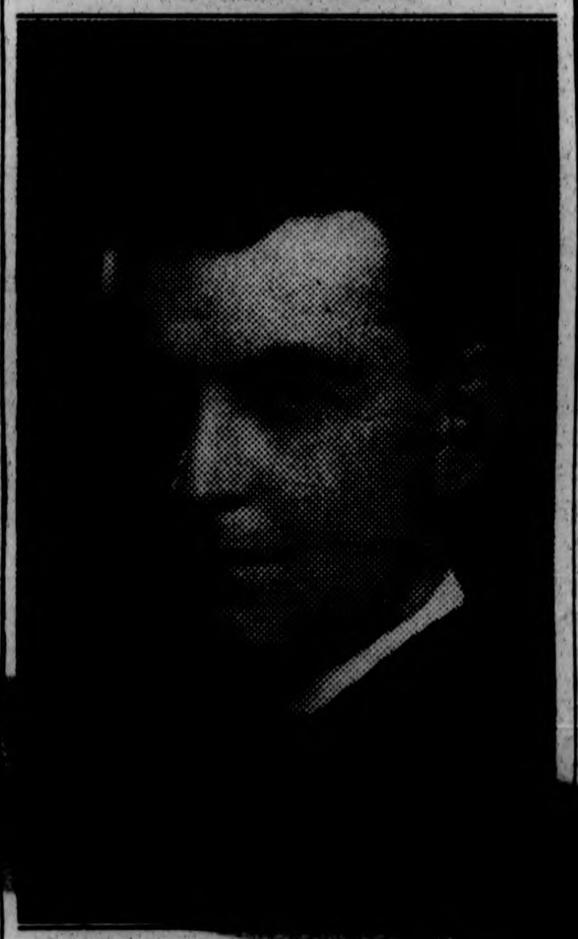
1944 Belle Aire Arrives On Campus; Military Theme Prevails In Yearbook

College Publication Smaller Than in Former Years Due to Interference With Wartime Activities

Yearbook



REV. DANIEL P. [illegible]

Last week the students and the faculty of Villanova College were in reception of the new volume of the Belle Air. This 1944 edition is the twenty second volume of the yearbook printed thus far.

The moderators of the Belle Air are Reverend Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., and Reverend Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A. The Editor-in-Chief is John Fitzgibbons. The photography was handled by Hector G. Martinez. The other members of the staff are Edward Gallagher, Frank Perna, John Reddy, Dick Sommers and Robert Gruss. All of these men deserve a great deal of praise for their fine work. Special credit goes to the Editor-in-Chief, who in spite of his accelerated academic program, has found sufficient time to compile such a fine issue. The moderators, the backbone of the Belle Air are also to be congratulated for their able supervision in spite of the many problems arising during this emergency.

Co-Moderators

REV ROBERT SULLIVAN, O.S.A.

The book is bound in blue leather, having the facade of the monastery embossed in silver on the cover. This issue chose a military theme for publication. It tries to capture the old Villanovan spirit with the peacetime activity, and acceleration due to wartime conditions. The profuse, well placed photographs with their well written captions make this book an appealing invitation to all students. Fine pictures of the members of the faculty are among those incidents included in the many pages which will help make students feel nostalgic in the future years. The pictures of the graduates have been well placed. The section of the book devoted to extra-curricular activities was very small but very complete. The sports section is one of the best in the book and pictures of all the teams and all the important games were present.

This issue is much smaller than those of former years. Since there was very little social life and very few fraternities or clubs functioning this past year much of the material had to be cut out. This Belle Air has no informal snapshots since the cuts for the book were very expensive and very hard to obtain. The staff had to work against a great handicap since it had very little student support. This meant that in spite of the increase in the costs of publication, the staff would have to work with less funds.

This Belle Air is going to be the last issue of the yearbook until the end of the war, since men, material and student support is scarce. This very dignified yearbook is a fitting tribute to a fine class.

Welch Completes Term of Office As Villanovan Head

Schubert, Millet and Perna, Former Assistant Editors, Complete Traditional Year of Service

In the traditional bi-semester change of the editorial staff of the College Newspaper, Thomas P. Welch, A.S., after completing his term of office as Editor-in-Chief of the Villanovan was succeeded by Paul Ciamaichela; and Thomas M. Schubert, A.S., former Managing Editor, was transferred to Pre-Midshipmen's School at Asbury Park.

Welch, now a Senior Electrical Engineer, was the second engineer in the Villanovan's history to be editor, as the task usually fell to a Commerce and Finance School student. He was likewise one of the few lower-classmen to hold this post as it was formerly the exclusive domain of upper-classmen.

Honor Roll Student

Active in other extracurricular activities and campus organizations, Welch has never missed the Honor Roll since he matriculated at Villanova as a civilian in October, 1942. Along with many classmates, he enlisted in the Navy V-12 Program while in his Freshman year, and was called to the V-12 Program at Villanova in July, 1943.

He came to Villanova on a scholarship awarded him at graduation from Malvern Preparatory School in June, 1942. At Malvern he gained a start in the field of journalism as Editor of the "Malvernian", the school year book; and

Thanksgiving Mass

A mass of Thanksgiving will be said in the College Chapel on Thursday morning, November 23, at 7:00 A. M. It will be offered as a prayer of thanks for all the blessings, spiritual and temporal, that God has bestowed on the College, the Faculty, and the entire student body during the year that is now drawing to a close.

Much of the traditional festivity of Thanksgiving Day will necessarily be curtailed. Despite the rationing of material things of life there is much to be thankful for. In the traditional American manner let us thank God that we live in a land whose heritage is freedom.

President Advises

Your solemn duty now is to learn to obey so that you will be able to exact obedience of others; to acquire knowledge so that you will know what is to be done; to increase your physical strength so that you will be fit for the task.

Each student at Villanova, I am sure, whether military or civilian, is mindful of the seriousness of his task. Each one, therefore, will apply the diligent and zealous effort required in bringing it to a successful conclusion. Each student will understand that no one ever achieved success at Villanova who did not unite his own efforts with the help of God.

the issue, and the Wildcat scoring for the night. With six minutes left in the game, Atlantic City's Whiteman intercepted a pass to bring the score to its final grand total.

In the previous weeks the Wildcats scored a win over Muhlenberg as the greater portion of the team played its farewell game on a soggy and treacherous field. With an enormous advantage in yards gained and in first downs, the Wildcats only managed to score once to produce the winning score of 7-0.

Many Transferred

After this game, varsity backs David, Hoot were transferred and Williams was sidelined with a leg injury. From the line went Severson, Forrest and West with subs Peyton, Eye and Whelan.

With a makeup team of young and inexperienced players and a handful of leftovers, we went to West Point to meet the number one team of the nation and have them administer an 83-0 drubbing, the worst defeat of the entire series. Obviously the team had little chance against such a powerhouse. The final game of the season finds the Wildcats meeting Bucknell.

They have lost nine of their early season starters but the new boys in their last two games have scored 104 points while holding their opponents scoreless. It will take a lot of football—good football—and some of that Sampson spirit to accomplish anything against Bucknell. We need this game for a winning season so let's see if we can all get together and do something about it.

Naval And Marine Trainees Leave For Other Schools

Members of V-12 Unit Sent to Fill Quotas of Various Colleges Throughout the Country

While sailors and marines were home on leave, and civilians were enjoying the inter-semester holiday, a few changes were being arranged in the Villanova Navy. Due to the fact that 26 men came from Muhlenberg and 25 from the fleet, while many marines also came to Villanova, the College had more than their quota, and many men were transferred to other colleges.

Edgar Larsh, Scott Ripley, Robert Rove and James Smith took up residence at Brown University, while Duke University received James Cahow, and Case Cchool receive John Moran, Stanley Slomski, Donald Bathgate, Wallace Bildeaux, Ralph Meisenhelder and Robert Titus were transferred to the "big city" to the University of Pennsylvania.

Phi Kappa Pi To Attend Joint Smoker At C & F

The Phi Kappa Pi has already started upon a season of activity. At the meeting held last Thursday, the members decided that the fraternity would sponsor a bowling league which would be open to members as well as non-members.

Bowling League

The league will be comprised of approximately six or eight separate teams, and the various meets will be held at the Bryn Mawr Bowling Alleys. It was decided that a fee of one dollar would be charged for all members wishing to participate in the games. A fee of one dollar and a half will be charged to all non members who would decide to join the league. This fee will be reduced to one dollar after the first games which will be held either on November 25, or December 2.

Joint Smoker

The Phi Kappa Pi will participate in the joint smoker which will be held December 8. The representatives of the Phi Kappa Pi for the Smoker will be Bob McKibbin, Bob Kramer and "Chuck" Harrington. The smoker will be held in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building. A speaker from the Atlantic Refining Company will be present to speak to the members. This arrangement has been made by Doctor Edward Haenisch. After the speech refreshments will be served and a movie shown. There will be a slight charge of admission, but as yet the officers of the fraternity have not decided just what the charge will be.

Father McGuire Talks at Recent Faculty Dinner

New Faculty Members Introduced; Mrs. Hannah and Mrs. Morgan Formally Presented

The annual Faculty dinner was held last Thursday evening, November 16, at 6:30 in the Monastery dining room.

Reverend Francis X. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, was host. The 1944 dinner was presided over by the Very Reverend Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., J.C.D., D.D., assistant-General of the Augustinians.

Both the clerical faculty and lay faculty and their wives were present. Lt. Commander Edward Hannah, the Navy V-12 Unit commander, and his wife were presented formally; Captain Morgan, commanding Marine officer, presented his wife for the first time. Other members of the naval personnel introduced were: Lt. James McClintock and his wife, Lt. Graham, U.S.N.R., the V-12 unit's doctor; and Lt. Kuffel, U.S.N.R., the V-12 unit's athletic and supply officer.

New Faculty Introduced

Introduced at this time also were members of the faculty who had come to Villanova since the last Faculty dinner: Father Henry Eagen, O.S.A., assistant professor of Economics; Mr. George H. Auth, assistant professor of Mechanical Engineering, who presented Mrs. Auth; and Mr. F. J. Blanchard, instructor in Chemical Engineering and his wife.

The President of the College gave a brief, informal talk welcoming the new faculty members, and giving a report on current enrollment. Father McGuire sincerely thanked the faculty for their whole-hearted cooperation during the present war crisis and exhorted them to continue those efforts during an unpredictable future.

ASME Plans Trip To Both New York And Philadelphia

The Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, held its first meeting of the current semester on Thursday, November 16. The association was represented by thirty-two of its active members at the meeting.

JOHN MILLET, A.S.

New York Trip

President John Millet outlined briefly the future plans and activities in which the association would engage during the next year. Among the various activities are included a trip to New York, on November 29. In previous years only senior members were permitted to take this trip. However, due to the decreased enrollment in the Engineering School brought about by the war, the junior members of the Mechanical Engineering School will be allowed to go along.

Plans for a trip to Philadelphia were drawn up at the meeting. The date for this trip is still pending, but will probably be about the

Keating Wounded; Peters Receives Purple Heart; Daniel Fisher War Prisoner

Lieutenant Morris L. Keating, USMC, of the class of '42, received head wounds, on the Pelelieu Islands, and is now recovering in a hospital on Guadalcanal. Since being wounded, Morris has written to his parents who reside at 4418 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa., assuring them that he is recovering from his injuries.

Another former Villanovan who was wounded in the Northern Italian Campaign, is John G. Peters, ex-'45, a member of the Infantry. Since being wounded, John has written to his parents who reside at 102 Academy Lane, Highland Park, Pa., assuring them that he is doing well. He also states the cirmumstances under which he was wounded. He writes: "Our outfit was occupying a town up in the front lines. We were stationed in the front end of the town. Word came down that the Chaplin was going to say Mass back in that part of the town near the company C. P. I went down there to Mass and started back to rejoin my squad, when I heard airplanes circling above and the next minute they were in line, diving toward me. It just happened that I was passing by a doorway and stepped inside. That doorway was a work of God, for it saved my life. Just as I stepped inside, the planes dropped their bombs and started to strafe. The concussion threw me to the other end of the room. I lay there awhile the planes came back two more times, bombing and strafing. I was numb all over and had no idea how little or how much I had been wounded . . . I then managed to come outside on the street. Everything was in ruins. Our Captain and two men from headquarters came up and grabbed me They told me I came through okay. I was not hurt bad at all. I am sending you a Purple Heart. It is a very beautiful medal. I never

Back Sixth War Loan

PAST experience has shown that there are usually two paramount trends which afflict our country—the development of a national depression and the development of international anarchy.

On November 7th last, the American people acted on the latter of these. In this action they supported for re-election their commander-in-chief; in this action they rejected the untenable theory of isolationism and in this action they agreed to put aside, temporarily, their domestic problems to win the war and win the peace.

November 20th, 1944, was the opening day of the Sixth War Loan Drive. The five which have preceded it have carried us successfully through from the beginning of the war, the disaster at Pearl Harbor; to the end of the beginning, the invasion of Africa; to the middle phases, Italy, North Atlantic and Guadalcanal; to the beginning of the end, the Siegfried line and the Philippines. Even now plans have been advanced to change back to a peace-time economy. Secure economics means secure markets; secure markets means secure jobs; all three demand that the money be in the right places in the right ratios. When you buy unneeded articles or buy the market of scarce products or buy black-market commodities—you are buying another depression. If you do buy a depression, when it occurs you can not point to Franklin Roosevelt and say "he did it in '44." You cannot point to the then current administration and cry, "they did it because they are inexperienced." You can point to yourself and say "I DID IT."

But if you invest your entire excess earnings in war bonds now, in ten years you may join the band wagon of Americans who are journeying along the two-lane highway of liberalism and progression.

Such is and will be our economic situation. The social picture is even clearer. About ten years the now reigning generation will call upon us to "carry on and advance." We will have been given a good bit of education, a good bit of experience and a good bit of power. Then, indeed, will we need the extra incentive and impetus of the knowledge that our national and personal financial status is secure.

Financially we have heard reiterated so often that investing in war bonds turns three dollars into four. By buying now and holding the inflation line we enable, it is estimated, each one of those four dollars, to buy one-third more than one of the three dollars. So that makes three dollars equal nearly to five and one-half dollars.

Now faced with a great crisis, the American people are again taking stock of their assets, their opportunities, their rights and privileges, their many benefits, and through these see a mighty nation, rich in heritage and progress. They have come to sincerely appreciate the liberties which are theirs but denied to a desperate and dispairing world. They have a firm belief in the opportunities yet before us, and they firmly resolve to defend their life and liberty against the forces of disintegration and chaos.

They and you—we must SUPPORT THE SIXTH WAR LOAN DRIVE.

—C. P. LAFERTY.

Barnacle Bilge

By LEROY COLLEGEMAN, A.S. and MATT KEARNEY, A.S.

This past week a crushing blow was struck at the vitals of the Villanovan. Francis J. McBride, erstwhile columnist, was transferred to Dartmouth College with no explanations given as to the reason of his transfer. It is believed by many, however, that the main reason for this shift is that last week's edition of this column was accidently read by one of the higher-ups of ship's company . . . well, Frank, you can't fight the front office.

LADIES . . .

"We've Learned Our Lesson" was the theme song of some fifty bleary-eyed trainees as they embarked for home after a three hour class in Bear Catching 50N or "Essentials of Navy Trainee Trapping." The Junior Class of Glassboro New Jersey State Teachers' College feted the fortunate fifty on Animal Crackers, Pink Lemonade and lollipops, in keeping with the decorations that were part of the circus theme of the dance. Standing out during the Grand March like a combination of Arthur Murray, Dale Carnegie and Mr. Anthony were Orville Anderson, John Haarhaus, Dick Balmert, John D'Erasmo, and Horace Bernton. Don't take this too seriously, fellas, things are never as bad as they sound in this column. General Opinion: nice formal, novel circus motif and we learned a lot about teaching kindergarten.

AND . . .

At Chestnut Hill College another formal was being held and was attended by some of the boys who got left out on the New Jersey trip for some reason or another, mostly because nobody signed their name to the list. Mendel Hall dominated this affair as is usual with almost all the dances at the Hill. Prominent among the Engineers there with "beeeyootiful" dates were; Tony Cocco, Bob Lawlor, Jim Shoemaker, John Cockroft, Andy Murphy, and Joe "Citrus Fruit" Keating. Fellows who knew their dates beforehand were Frank O'Connor, Dave Ward and Joe Gerngross. Everyone seemed to have a good time especially Bob Cramer who grabbed off the "cutest lil girl" and made like a toothpaste ad all evening.

GENTLEMEN . . .

Pre-meds in Fedigan!!! Many of the decks have been decked by this shift. Between the flying scalpels your reporter has found time to sweep the establishment on Spring Mill Road of much dirt. Jim Mackey was too busy cutting hair Saturday (his own!) to even remember that the Alumni's favorite chief was due to make an inspection. He did a good hair-cutting job, though, he wore his collar turned up on liberty because it was cold. Mike Krak can't figure

Camp To Campus

By MICHAEL N. FLYNN, A.S.

THE last few weeks saw many former Villanova students returning for a brief visit Pfc. George "Teddy" Baehr and Pvt. Ed Hertkorn both members of the Freshman class of '42, stopped on the way home on furlough. Ted is in the Infantry at Camp Campbell, Ky., while "Herk" is a member of the Engineers. "Herk" is still managing to get into embarassing situations—one day while energetically preparing a private foxhole, Herk failed to notice a captain who stopped at his home-to-be just as he was taking a shovelfull of mud over his shoulder. . .

From Midshipman school, attired in Ensign stripes, came many of the Navy men who left us in June. Jim Higgins and Leo Noll, both of whom graduated from Columbia, are slated for Amphibs.

Jack McGowan has just been commissioned at Cornell and has also been assigned to amphibious training.

According to the latest news from Asbury Park, P. M. S., John Doherty, former Battalion Commander, is once again making use of his powers of leadership as a Company Commander. Other engineers at Asbury with "Doc" are Bob Leahy, Jack McChesney, Frank McQuinn, Gus Gillespie and Tom Shubert. Bob Forrest, former end on the football team, is also at Asbury. Bob will be remembered for his brilliant touchdown run against Muhlenberg. Bob "Red" O'Connor is another one of the many Villanova men undergoing training there.

Now serving in the Pacific is "Battling" Ben Paradee. Ens. Paradee, former Pre-med, was unbeaten in his boxing career at Villanova. No one who attended his fierce battles with Scotty Boyle will ever forget Ben's skill.

Ensign Jim Keays '43, native of Troy, N. Y., hometown of my main source of news, popular Father Burke, is now at the Naval receiving Station at Tampa, Fla.

We were very happy to hear that Pvt. Newt Ward is about to be discharged from the hospital at Camp Livingston, Louisiana. Newt suffered an attack of plurisy after returning from his recent furlough received after basic training.

Behind The Eight Ball

By TOM HANRATTY and DICK RANDOLPH

WITH the appearance of "Saturday Night" McNamara "behind the eight ball," last week this periodical reached an all time low. As a result of this misdemeanor, the Villanovan has overnight been converted into a scandal sheet and holds every possibility of outselling the "Police Gazette." Thus, with due respect to the letters of protest obtained from such noted personages as the third chorus girl from the left in the nightly floor show down at Louie's Pie Shop, we shall give our firm promise that only the most sterling characters shall make their appearances in this column. (This statement should cost us a fifty percent decrease in the circulation).

Despite the fact that we are all well past the middle of autumn, a spring fever continues to flourish among the students at Villanova. "Hughie" Hart, a promising young socialite, is one of the more serious cases. Every weekend has seen Hugh escorted to the local football games by no less than two girls. (Wow, what the manpower shortage has done for him!)

Another victim of the fever is "Jitterbug" McLaughlin, the wizard of the Pre-Med school. Joe was seen entertaining 180 pounds of personality at one of the more recent Villanova games.

With headquarters at 15th and Market Streets Jerry Gleeson conducts a one man escort bureau for the girls of Hallahan High School. The aftermath of each football game also sees Market Street patrolled by "Bill" Schmidt, "Jimmy" Plunkett, and "Shorty" Homan. However, the only fruits of their labors were sore feet. Why not try "Lifebuoy" fellows?

J. J. Foster must appear to be an authority on music. On the way to school last week fifteen girls were trying to outsing each other in order to gain Jack's attention. Possibilities have arisen of a big romance between Donald Jordan and a certain pretty miss. We would like to give a word of advice to this fair maiden. . .watch out, pretty damsel, Donald's merely a Marine in civilian clothing!

A recent masquerade saw one of our students go to the extreme by dressing himself as Frank Perotti. This student was none other than Frank himself. It would have been a big help if he would have at least worn a mask. Besides being handsome, Frank is also quite a singer, having performed on the stage on various occasions at Southeast Catholic High School.

The lost and found department reports that the prize possession of the accounting class has twice vanished from their possession. On the day after the first disappearance of their thermometer, Mr. Schaeffer gave a talk on the traits of an honest man. The very next morning the missing article was found in its rightful position, only to disappear again that very afternoon. Some of Mr. Schaeffer's students would do better if they took a criminology course.

Before closing this week's column, we wish to say that we are quite flattered by the remarks made by some of our interested readers from a nearby college for girls. Already, we have attained one of the traits necessary for great literary genius. Yes these people have affixed to us the title of "morons." With due consideration of the fact that O. Henry and Edgar Allan Poe were dope fiends and Jack London a pirate, and Christopher Columbus crazy for believing the world to be round, we shall try to live up to the nomenclature bestowed upon us by our severest critics.

Shrapnel
It Hits Everywhere

Alex Coleman, formidable right guard on the Villanova squad, had a bit of a run-in with a conductorette on the Paoli Local the other day. It seems as if she didn't get her sights fixed for she called our hero "Chubby" . . . Congratulations to Mike Berry on his recent promotion to Sergeant . . . Carl Fritz was tripping the light fantastic with his little (did I say little) bundle of joy . . . It seems as if Lem Wentling, our Sports Editor, got a sudden attack of amnesia when he couldn't remember the last name of Nancy from Rosemont College.

Specialist Weigle New Swimming Instructor Here

Arrives Here From Bainbridge After Completing Physical Instructors' School

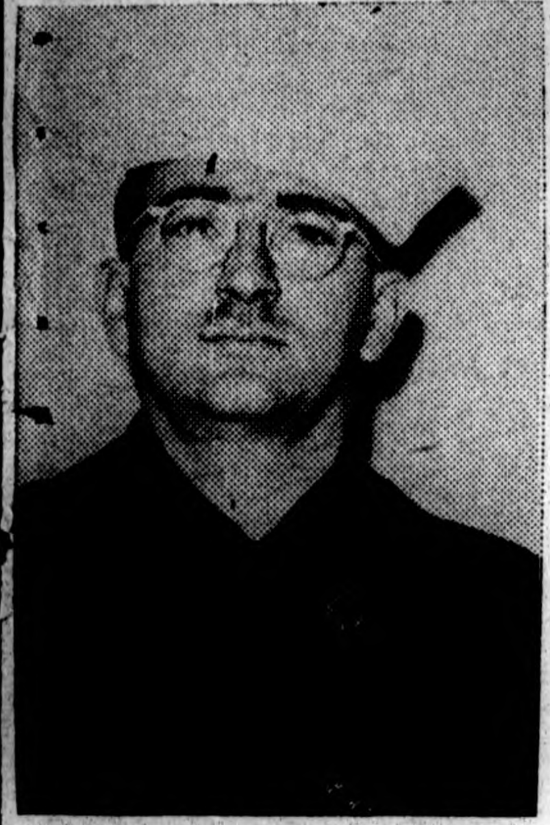
The new physical training instructor now on duty here to replace Specialist Brunt is Athletic Specialist 3/c Peck Weigle. The new instructor reported on board November first in the capacity of swimming instructor and will assist Sergeant Bastedo down at the pool.

Weigle comes originally from Carlisle, Pa., the home of the famous Carlisle Indians and possibly even more famous for the greatest football player of all time, Indian Jim Thorpe. Peck happens to be an acquaintance of Thorpe; in fact, he even played basketball with him.

Scholastic Tumbler

Specialist Weigle attended Carlisle grade and high schools and participated in all sports with swimming and tumbling heading the list. He carried these two mainstays with him when he left his native Carlisle and set out for new goals of scholastic and gymnastic achievement.

In 1928 he entered West Chester State Teachers, where he was a member of the swimming and tumbling teams of that institution. He graduated in 1932 with a B. S. in Physical Education and was married shortly afterwards.



PECK WEIGLE, Sp3/C

Enters Navy

In May of 1944 he took on a new life, that of an apprentice seaman in the United States Navy. After his boot training at Bainbridge, Md., he drew his first assignment, that being the Physical Instructor's school at the same base. Following the completion of the prescribed course he received a third class rating and was sent to Villanova.

To those not in the frat and who wish to bowl there will be an entrance fee of fifty cents per person. These men will be alllowed to bowl with teams comprising members. Arrangements are being made to set up cash awards for the successful teams which will surpass those of last year.

Ollie's Comments—

— "it takes something more to win football games"

Bucknell's 27-6 victory over our football team last Friday gave us a season's log of four wins and four losses. Statistically this is one of Villanova's worst seasons in many years. But actually as we look back, we find much to be thankful for. The stellar play of individuals such as Bob David and Duke Severson made it possible for us to eke out those early season victories. Any one of those games could have been lost if we had not had such fine line backing as they provided us.

Friday's game readily shows what could have happened. We had no one able to stop Bonk, Bucknell's fine line smasher, for anything less than five yards. Although he only scored one touchdown, he put the ball in position for all the other Bucknell scores.

Loss of Colman

Our line weakened by the loss of Alex Colman, who had a shoulder injury, was unable to cope with the trap and double team plays called so well by Mears. Nevertheless fellows such as Sam Brown, Mason Robertson, Jim Gallagher and Ed Cunningham carried out their defensive assignments well. Hank Straus was particularly outstanding as he made tackles all over the field.

Al Sondheimer and Carl Ungaro had loads of fire and on occasion looked as if they might get away for long runs. The team as a whole was really trying hard but though "The spirit was willing . . ." it takes something more to win football games.

Forrest Outstanding

Looking back we find that probably the most outstanding play was Bob Forrest's hip pocket catch of a Dick Hoot forward pass in the F. & M. game. It was a muddy day and a slick ball but old "Gluefingers" held on. This led to our second and winning touchdown.

Bob Forrest also figured on another stand-out play when he brought in another slippery pigskin from the same passer in the Muhlenberg game. No one will ever know how Bob got away from the Mule's Devlin who had Bob's ankles but could not hold on. This was the pay-off play in that 7-0 victory.

Only thirteen of the players we took to Scranton were with us at the Bucknell game after injuries, transfers and the ineligibility lists took their tolls. Among them were Dick Tierney, Ray Wille, Don Peterson, Bill Ryan, Bill Kuzman, Bernie Nappen, Dick Evans, Tom Baxter, Sam Brown, George Banning, Roger McRae, Bob Griffiths and Marc Abribat. Ray Wille was the only man able to start in all eight of the contests.

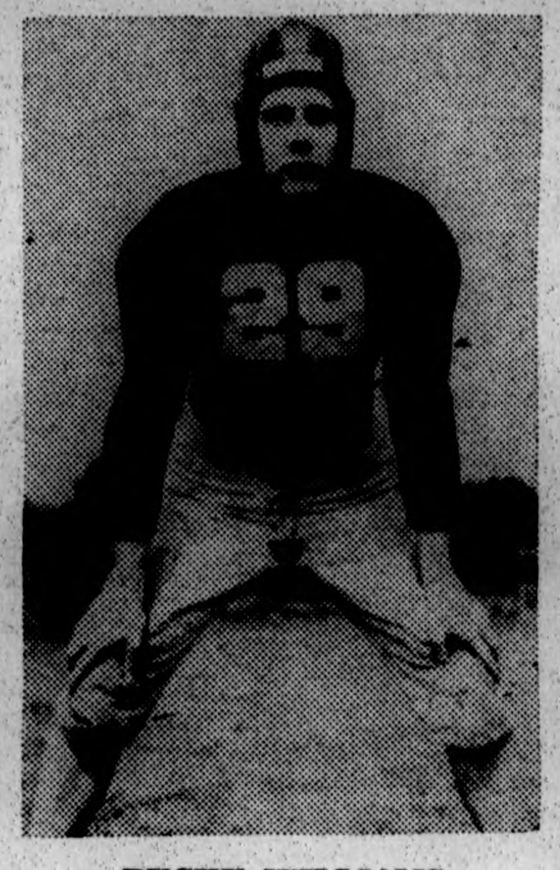
In closing for the year I want to thank the student body for its unsurpassed support throughout the year and the administration for its fine cooperation. We also owe a lot to the boys who came out to practice nightly and never got into any of the games. Thanks a lot and may you all be first string on some football team next year.

Bucky Williams Chosen Captain For The Season

Mates Choose Injured Halfback in Recognition of Outstanding Performance

Along with the election of game captain last week, the football team also nominated one of its members as the captain for the year. It is none other than Bucky Williams who received this deserving tribute from his teammates.

Mr. William Lindsey Williams, and that's his full name, hails from South Boston in the grand old state of Virginia. While living there, he attended grammar school and then South Boston High, where his athletic prowess was first recognized and thus his colorful career began to unfold.



BUCKY WILLIAMS

While at the aforementioned high school, Bucky made quite a name for himself by playing on the football team for four years, in addition to three years of varsity basketball.

College Star

However, his abilities were just beginning to show themselves, for upon graduation from South Boston High, he enrolled at the Virginia Military Institute where he played a year of brilliant football and was also a member of the V. M. I. wrestling team.

But Bucky wasn't having a long stay at V. M. I. for the Navy sent him to Villanova last July 1, where he became a student of Electrical Engineering in the Naval V-12 program. Immediately upon coming here he reported to Coach Olivar to seek a berth on the team. Due to the wealth of material, however, Bucky didn't have too much success. This did not daunt his spirit and he returned this season and promptly took over the left halfback position.

Leading Point Maker

Prior to his thigh injury received in the Holy Cross game Seaman Williams was doing more than his share for the Wildcats. He crossed Scranton's goal line in the first game, accounted for both touchdowns against F. & M., and provided the only six pointer against Sampson. Consequently, we figure Bucky is quite instrumental in our first three victories.

In the fourth game of the season, Bucky was given the honor of leading the team in the role of game captain against one of our conquerors, Holy Cross.

This was the last time Bucky wore the Blue and White for his injury cost us his services for the remainder of the season. Since then he has made all the trips and has been of considerable help in aiding Ollie with the team.

Wildcats Close Season With 27-6 Loss to Bisons

Main Liners Close Season With .500 Average As They Lose Eleventh To Lewisburg In Nineteen Game Series

The Thundering Herd from Bucknell lived up to pre-game predictions as they quietly slipped the curtain of defeat over the final Villanova game with a 27-6 victory. In this, the nineteenth game of an ancient series between the two schools, the Bisons brought along surplus power and speed to insure a win.

Taking advantage of the newly revamped Villanova team and turning to their advancement all the little breaks of the game, the Lewisburg team ran across four touchdowns to continue their supremacy in the rivalry. Four different men scored for Bucknell, going over by land and by air. Three of the touchdowns owed their inspiration to miscues committed by Villanova.

Netski, Leader

As soon as the Bisons took hold of the ball, they commenced a march which ended in the Villanova end zone. Sweeps and plunges put them on the Wildcat 20 and after three unsuccessful attempts at the line Netski fired a long, looping pass to end Killeen for the score.

In the same quarter, Netski again led the attack as he ran the team deep into Villanova territory and then engineered a pass to end Spriggs who lateralled to Williams who dashed over for the score. The second quarter found the former Dartmouth back, Harry Bonk, intercepting a stray Wildcat pass to run it back to the Villanova 15. The same Bonk then plunged to the 4 and from there he tallied to make the half-time score 20-0.

'Cat Opportunities

The second half was a repetition of the first as Bucknell continued to pile up yardage by consistently running fast plays through a spread Villanova line. The only Villanova chances of the evening were gambled away. In the end of the second quarter, the 'Cats advanced to the Bison 30 but as the clock rushed to close the half a flurry of Ryan propelled aerials failed to achieve their objective.

Catholic League Dedicates Game To Bill Howlett

As a fitting tribute to Lieut. William Howlett, U.S.M.C.R., who died sometime in August as a result of wounds received during the closing days of battle for Guam, his Alma Mater, Roman Catholic High, dedicated their game with St. James of Chester in his honor.

Bill Howlett played varsity football for one year and varsity basketball for two years for Roman Catholic and was an All-Catholic halfback in his senior year. He was also given honorable mention on the All-Scholastic team that year.

President of Class

He graduated from Roman in 1938 and came to Villanova the following fall. While at Villanova he played varsity football for four years and varsity basketball for three years. He was president of his class in his junior year and was a member of the Student Council the same year. He graduated with a B. S. in Economics in 1942.

At yesterday's game which resulted in a 7-7 tie his parents were the guests of Rev. Joseph Dougherty, moderator of athletics at Roman Catholic. Father Dougherty proclaims Bill, "one of the greatest fellows he ever knew, both on the gridiron and in the classroom."

NOTICE

The Intramural Basketball League will not open until next week due to the fact that the Alumni Gym is being used as a Navy storeroom.

Hugh O'Reilly Completes Year As Sports Editor

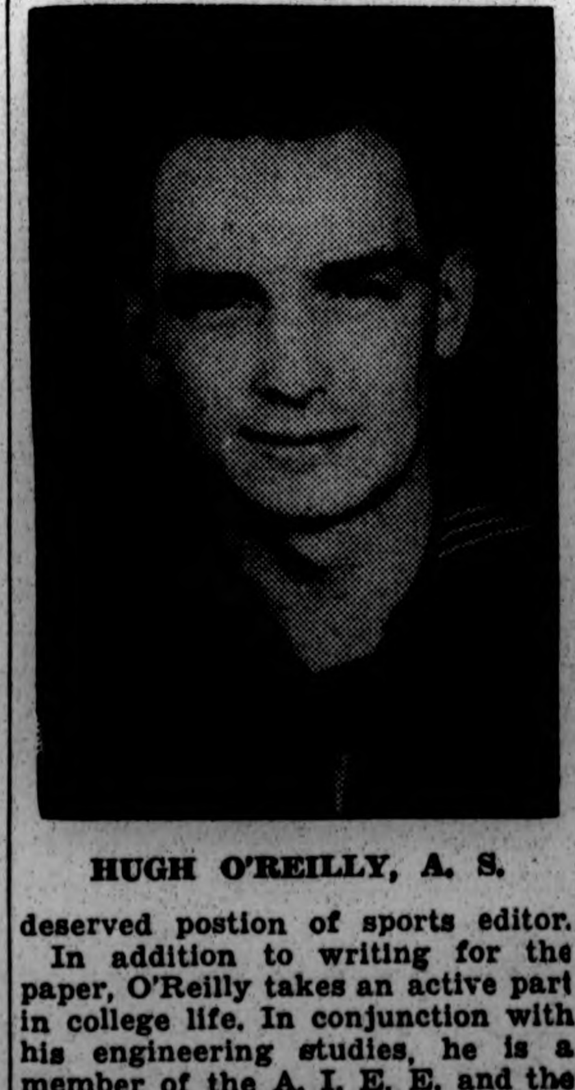
The retirement of Hugh O'Reilly as Sports Editor became effective with last week's issue. O'Reilly, who had held the post for the past two semesters succeeded his roommate, Dave Ward, last March. He had been a member of the sports staff since July 1943 when he became a member of the Navy V-12 unit here.

The former sports editor first gave vent to his journalistic talents while attending St. Joseph's Prep where he was a member of the year book staff. Besides writing for the school annual he was chosen as general manager of athletics at St. Joe's which later proved to be of inestimable help to him as a sports writer.

Entered Villanova in 1942

Hughie first came to Villanova in September 1942 and enrolled in the electrical engineering curriculum. Giving his books undivided attention, he did not join the Villanovan until his sophomore year. Having roomed with Editor Tom Welsh and then Sports Editor Dave Ward at that time, his environment forced him on the staff.

A native of nearby Overbrook, O'Reilly has been following Villanova teams for many years. As a student he takes an active part in the intramurals, representing his hall on most of the teams. His early assignments were to cover the intramurals and he later took over the job of covering varsity basketball before ascending to the well deserved postion of sports editor.



HUGH O'REILLY, A. S.

In addition to writing for the paper, O'Reilly takes an active part in college life. In conjunction with his engineering studies, he is a member of the A. I. E. E. and the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity. He also belongs to the Sanctuary Society and is on the Belle Air staff. During football season he may be found up in the press box, spotting for the radio.

Back Sixth War Loan

PAST experience has shown that there are usually two paramount trends which afflict our country—the development of a national depression and the development of international anarchy.

On November 7th last, the American people acted on the latter of these. In this action they supported for reelection their commander-in-chief; in this action they rejected the untenable theory of isolationism and in this action they agreed to put aside, temporarily, their domestic problems to win the war and win the peace.

November 20th, 1944, was the opening day of the Sixth War Loan Drive. The five which have preceded it have carried us successfully through from the beginning of the war, the disaster at Pearl Harbor; to the end of the beginning, the invasion of Africa; to the middle phases, Italy, North Atlantic and Guadalcanal; to the beginning of the end, the Siegfried line and the Philippines. Even now plans have been advanced to change back to a peace-time economy. Secure economics means secure markets; secure markets means secure jobs; all three demand that the money be in the right places in the right ratios. When you buy unneeded articles or buy the market of scarce products or buy black-market commodities—you are buying another depression. If you do buy a depression, when it occurs you can not point to Franklin Roosevelt and say "he did it in '44." You cannot point to the then current administration and cry, "they did it because they are inexperienced." You can point to yourself and say "I DID IT."

But if you invest your entire excess earnings in war bonds now, in ten years you may join the band wagon of Americans who are journeying along the two-lane highway of liberalism and progression.

Such is and will be our economic situation. The social picture is even clearer. About ten years the now reigning generation will call upon us to "carry on and advance." We will have been given a good bit of education, a good bit of experience and a good bit of power. Then, indeed, will we need the extra incentive and impetus of the knowledge that our national and personal financial status is secure.

Financially we have heard reiterated so often that investing in war bonds turns three dollars into four. By buying now and holding the inflation line we enable, it is estimated, each one of those four dollars, to buy one-third more than one of the three dollars. So that makes three dollars equal nearly to five and one-half dollars.

Now faced with a great crisis, the American people are again taking stock of their assets, their opportunities, their rights and privileges, their many benefits, and through these see a mighty nation, rich in heritage and progress. They have come to sincerly appreciate the liberties which are theirs but denied to a desperate and dispairing world. They have a firm belief in the opportunities yet before us, and they firmly resolve to defend their life and liberty against the forces of disintegration and chaos.

They and you—we must SUPPORT THE SIXTH WAR LOAN DRIVE.
